HOT WAVE CONTINUES

Poor People In New England Cities Suffer Terribly

HOSPITALS ARE KEPT BUSY

Attending to the Numerous Cases of Prostration—Many Persons Who Seek Relief by Bathing Meet With Death—Mortality Among Horses

Boston, July 1.—The weather throughout New England yesterday was generally a slight improvement over that of the previous three days, a breeze tempering the sun's terrific heat on altitudes and along the coast. In the cities, however, the suffering was terrible among the poorer people, and the hospitals were fully as busy as during the week.

In Boston the official figures for the maximum temperature was 93 degrees, one degree more than Saturday, while the humidity was only 53, giving a summer day's warmth without the dog day saturation. The police report only one death from heat prostration in Boston proper, but there were very many serious cases. The hospitals are still treating scores of patients prostrated, so that the list of heat victims is abnormally large. It appears that mortality among truck horses in Boston has been appalling, and the Sunday rest was a great relief to delivery companies.

In the New England states the day recorded an unusually large number of casualties from the heat or from a cause incident to it, apparently.

Daniel O'Leary, aged 24, died at Haverhill of heat prostration. He was employed in the street department.

Charles W. McPherson was prostrated by the heat at Malden, Mass., and died at a hospital. He was employed by an ice dealer. He was 32 years old.

Two more persons died at Lawrence from the effects of the intense heat, making seven deaths at Lawrence since Friday from the heat. Two of the victims died Friday, three Saturday and two Sunday. The victims yesterday were Robert L. Ritchie, aged 23, and William Hennessey, aged 4 years.

There were three deaths at Manchester, N. H., from the excessive heat. Annie Spooner, John King and Mary Clark were the victims.

Cornelius Miskell, 13 years old, was drowned while bathing at Cambridge, Mass., although hundreds of persons were in the water around him. He was probably drowned after diving, as his head was stuck in the mud.

While bathing at South Boston, Joseph Lannigan, about 25 years old, who was standing in the water about up to his knees, suddenly dropped and disappeared from sight. When found a few minutes later he was dead. His death is attributed to the heat.

Edward Hayford, 38 years old, was found dying on a hay loft in a barn in Boston, and he was taken to the city hospital, but was dead before reaching there. The heat is held responsible for his death.

Joseph Green was overcome by the heat, and died while being taken to the Boston city hospital.

Daniel Sutton, aged 18, of Northampton, Mass., was drowned in the Connecticut river.

Annie Madden, aged 19, and Bridget Gleason, aged 18, were drowned at Torrington, Conn., while bathing.

George Grenier, 11 years old, was drowned while bathing in the Blackstone river at Woonsocket, R. I.

An unknown Italian was drowned at Pittsfield, Mass., in the Housatonic river.

The body of the man found in the Merrimac river at Tyngsboro, Mass., has been identified as that of John Brown. He was slightly demented.

New York Still Swelters

New York, July 1.—The relief from the killing heat of last week, which was promised yesterday in the shape of thunderstorms, did not materialize. Instead, the temperature increased, and 11 deaths and 19 prostrations were reported up to 9:30 o'clock last night.

Pittsburg's Record

Pittsburg, July 1.—Between midnight Saturday and midnight Sunday, 11 deaths directly traceable to the effects of the heat, and 15 prostrations, are recorded.

Old Newspaper Gives Up

Paris, July 1.—Le Moniteur Universel, one of the oldest journals in France, founded in 1789, until 1871 the official organ of the government and subsequently a staunch royalist sheet, announces this morning that it will cease to appear.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

AFFECTS 50,000 MEN

Union Employes of American Steel Hoop Company on Strike

Pittsburg, July 1.—President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, issued today an order calling out all union employes of the various mills of the American Steel Hoop company. It is estimated that 15,000 men will be subject to the call, which, in connection with the big strike of the American Sheet Steel company, ordered by President Shaffer on Saturday, will affect 30,000 men.

President Shaffer says: "The impression that only the mills of the American Sheet Steel company are affected by the decision of Saturday is a mistake. The workmen of all mills in the American Steel Hoop company are interested, and were officially notified today that the scale has not been signed, and that they will quit work. What is known as open mills, where union men have been allowed to work side by side with the non-union, is where we have to move. Union men must walk out of these open mills. This, I believe, will bring the number of men affected up to 50,000.

"It is a matter of regret that the issue has been forced, but it now looks as though it will be a fight to the death. The Amalgamated association is not unprepared for it. We have not had a general strike for many years, and in that time we have not been idle. We have funds and will use them. The association will begin at once to take care of its people."

American Capital Invading Canada

London, July 1.—J. H. Bourassa, who is a member of the Dominion parliament, has arrived in London for a holiday. In The Daily News he says: "American capital is breaking down the barrier between Canada and the United States. The Americans are not conquering us, but they are buying us up. When this is accomplished, it will only need a slight political difference with the home government and the annexation movement, now dead, will revive. Then you will have to look, not to the half-Americanized business men of Toronto, but to French-Canadians, who have saved Canada for you more than once, and may save it again unless you hopelessly alienate us."

Swelled Church Attendence

London, July 1.—At the invitation of Vicar Philips, Mrs. Brown Potter, gowned in white and wearing a picture hat, recited from the chancel of the Gorleston church yesterday Pope's "Vital Spark of Heavenly Flame" and "The Queen's Last Ride," delivering both to organ and choral accompaniment. The vicar's idea was to enhance the attractions of the service. Hundreds were unable to gain admission. It is rumored that the bishop will forbid a repetition of the incident. Mr. Philips is now writing a play for Mrs. Potter.

Shafter on Retired List

San Francisco, July 1.—Two important military events occurred at the presidio yesterday, the retirement of Major General Shafter and the mustering out of four volunteer regiments. General Shafter went on the retired list at noon, when he formally transferred the command of the department of California to Major General Young. In the afternoon the Fourty-fourth, Fourty-ninth, Fourty-eighth and Thirty-eighth volunteer regiments were mustered out.

Gambler Killed Gambler

Granite Falls, Minn., July 1.—The jury in the murder trial of Dr. Wintner returned a verdict of not guilty. The defendant was released. Dr. Wintner shot and killed William Lenard, with whom he was playing poker, explaining at the time that he had discovered the man to be cheating him. He demanded his money back, and secured part of it from Lenard's partner, but Lenard refused to give up what he had won, and Dr. Wintner shot him.

Liquor Revenue Curtailed

Atlantic City, N. J., July 1.—The Sunday closing law was strictly enforced here yesterday, and for the first time since 1875 visitors were unable to obtain intoxicating liquors at the bars or in the hotel buffets. The new order, it is said, will cost Atlantic City nearly $50,000 of revenue every Sunday it is enforced.

Big Crowd at Tientsin

Tientsin, July 1.—This city is now more crowded than ever. Officers of all nations are here en route for their homes, and the hotels are placing cots in every available place. Prince Chun and his suite of 40 will remain here for three days before leaving for Germany to make formal apologies for the murder of Baron Von Ketteler.

Empress Dowager Is Suspicious

PANIC ON A STEAMER

Passengers Thought That Mohawk's Boilers Had Burst.

SCRAMBLE FOR LIFE BELTS

All of the Seven Hundred Passengers Aboard Rescued by Launches—Steamer Armenia Lies a Hopeless Wreck Off the Port of St. John

South Norwalk, Conn., July 1.—Seven hundred employes of the John W. Green hat factory left Danbury Saturday for an excursion ti Glen Island, the steamer Mohawk being chartered for the trip. After spending the day on the island the party boarded the steamer for the return trip at about 5 o'clock.

The steamer had been under way about 10 minutes when the excursionists were startled by a tremendous crash. It was thought at first that the boilers had blown up. It was soon known, however, that the ship had struck a rock, and was in danger of sinking at any moment. A panic then followed, during which every one of the 700 passengers on board scrambled for the life preservers.

Mrs. Richard Volt, who was a passenger on the steamer, makes the statement that men fought the women who had life preservers and buckled them about their own bodies. In the crush which followed the announcement that the steamer was sinking, women and children were knocked down and trampled upon. One child had an arm broken, and another was picked up seriously injured about the body.

During this excitement the steamer had been steadily sinking, and 10 minutes after the crash the first deck was submerged. The stairways and ladders to the upper decks were by this time jammed with a struggling mass of panic-stricken men and women, and several jumped overboard.

Three launches, which were near by when the accident occurred, had by this time nearly reached the disabled steamer. They immediately went to the rescue of the passengers who jumped overboard. They were quickly taken aboard, none the worse for their experience, with the exception of Mrs. Joseph Searles, who was picked up in a state of exhaustion and carried back to Glen Island in a critical condition.

The passengers on the second deck were by this time in nearly as bad a predicament as their fellow excursionists on the first deck had been a short time before. The water was just beginning to wash over the deck when the excursion steamer Myndert Stearn arrived from the island and took on board the remaining passengers.

The party was taken to Norwalk by the Stearn, from which city they went by train to Danbury.

Wreck of the Armenia

St. John's, July 1.—The Anchor Line steamer Armenia, on her way to St. John from New York, lies a hopeless wreck on Nigger Head, about seven miles from St. John. She struck about 10 o'clock Saturday morning. The mate was navigating the vessel at the time, and was taking soundings. The last was only four minutes before the steamer struck, and showed 24 fathoms of water and a sand and mud bottom.

The weather was very foggy, and it was impossible to see any distance thead. The steamer was just feeling her way along. When the shock was felt the engines were reversed full speed, but the boat was soon hard and fast.

Word was sent to the St. John agents of the steamer, J. H. Scammell & Co., and tugs were sent down. They made every effort to move the steamer, but met total failure, and the attempt was given up. The crew were taken on board of one of the tugs and brought to St. John. The falling tide caused the steamer to cant, and she now lies on her side, masts pointing seaward.

Shipping men who saw her in her bad position give their opinion that the only use the Armeina will ever be again will be for junk.

The steamer was in ballast, and was to load lumber at St. John. She is 2218 tons register, was built at Glasgow in 1881, and was under command of Captain J. W. Shanklin. She had no pilot aboard coming up the bay.

Hole In Schooner's Side

Boston, July 1.—The six-masted schooner George W. Wells of Taunton, which sailed from here Saturday afternoon for Newport News in ballast, came back in port yesterday afternoon, under tow, with a great hole in her side, cut down to within three feet of her waterline. She was run into by the six-masted schooner Eleanor A. Percy, in the fog, square amidships, on the port side. The collision occurred off Cape Cod. The Percy had her bowsprit and jibboom carried away.

Death of Dr. Sunderland

Catskill, N. Y., July 1.—Rev. Dr. Byron Sundelrand of Washington died here yesterday of cerebral embolism at the home of his son-in-law, Orrin Day. Dr. Sunderland was 83 years old, and for more than 60 years had been an active Presbyterian minister. He was a native of Vermont.

Good Afternoon.

The kindergarten schools of Quincy will open next week in the Adams, John Hancock and Gridley Bryant school buildings and continue six weeks. Year by year they grow in number from one to two, two to three, and this year there will be a manual training class for older children in the Cranch school house. These school are quite popular and are appreciated by mothers and enjoyed by children.

Commenting on summer schools the New Bedford Standard says: "The city of Lowell is going into the vacation school business this summer for the first time starting in good earnest to give the project a fair trial. For two years the Woman's club of the city has maintained summer playgrounds. It has now induced the city to take these off its hands, and the vacation movement will be extended by the formation of manual training and cooking classes, the city having appropriated fifteen hundred dollars to cover the season's expenses. The manual training school in the high school annex will be used with facilities for the instruction of eighty boys. There will be at least two lessons of an hour and a half each a week and if the number of pupils should be less than eighty, the number of lessons can be increased. A cooking school where free evening classes have been conducted for fourteen years—not at the city's expense we believe—will be used for classes of girls.

These classes are for the exclusive benefit of public school pupils between the ages of twelve and fourteen. For younger children two playgrounds will be maintained, two school houses with their grounds being opened for the purpose, one to be in charge of the supervisor of kindergartens in the city whose interest in the project has led her to give her services during the summer at a nominal price, and the other to be in charge of one of the regular grammar school teachers. So well started the movement must be a success. The vacation school is no longer an experiment. It is a tried enterprise whose value has been demonstrated."

Missing Since Friday.

George Fred Stone, aged 24 years, is reported as missing from his boarding place on North street since last Friday. Stone, who came from Whitingsville and was employed at the Fore River works, left his boarding place Friday noon on his bicycle to go to his work. He did not go to work, however, and his friends have been unable to find any trace whatever of him. He is reported to have had from $30 to $50 with him at the time. When last seen he wore a blue serge suit, black shoes, gray cap and black shirt.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

TWO MORE VETOES.

Business for the City Council for This Evening.

There is considerable business to come before the meeting of the City Council tonight and unless the Council chamber cools off considerable the members of the Council will swelter.

The Mayor will return without his approval the loan order for $10,000. He will also return without his approval the order granting a victuallers' license to W. Wighteman, and thereby hangs a debate.

Petitions will be received for the Telephone Company for a location of poles on Washington street, and for the Old Colony street railway for a location for a turnout on Washington street and for a location on Quincy Point bridge. The usual number of petitions for minor licenses will also be received.

Public hearings will be held on the laying out of Edison and Plain streets.

Two orders will be received from the Metropolitan Park commissioner asking concurrence in the taking of land between Hancock and Adams streets.

The Committee on Public Buildings will report in the communication of the Mayor relative to sale of city property and on the purchase of Butler pond.

The Committee on Streets will report an order laying out Irving place; on the petition of the Old Colony street railway for a location of poles on Washington street; on the petition of the Old Colony street railway for turnouts on Quincy avenue and Randolph avenue; a double track on the Quincy Point bridge, and on the relocation of tracks and turnout on Washington street.

In the calendar is the order for a double track on Hancock street between Johnson avenue and Merrymount Park.

The Finance Committee have a large number of orders before them, upon which reports may be expected.

A Braintree Case.

No town furnishes more funny cases in the district court than does Braintree. There were two of these cases in court this morning. In both cases William Sullivan was the defendant. The first case against Sullivan was for the larceny of six bottles of beer from William Billings. Officer Gallivan who had charge of the case said that Billings came to him crying. He said that Sullivan had knocked him down and taken six bottles of beer from him and he wanted that beer back. Billings took the stand and said that Sullivan knocked him down and took his beer away. Later he saw Sullivan and two others and that all three then sat down and drank the beer. The court could do nothing but find Sullivan not guilty on the larceny charge. A second complaint against Sullivan was for disturbing the peace. Officer Gallivan said that there was a crowd on Depot street at 1 o'clock Sunday morning singing and he arrested Sullivan for disturbing the peace. On the witness stand the officer admitted that he told Sullivan he was to put him in for disturbing the peace so as to get a case against him. Sullivan denied singing and was supported by Billings the complaint in the first case. The court, however, imposed a fine of $5.

Historic Books.

While the Rev. D. M. Wilson was minister of First church, he was invited by another ancient church, the First church of Gloucester to prepare and deliver an historical discourse for its two hundred and fiftieth anniversary. This he did to the entire satisfaction of the people. And now, within a month, the discourse has been included in a book published by the city of Gloucester containing the proceedings of the city's celebration of its 250th anniversary In the columns of one of the Gloucester papers we read that "the sermon by Rev. Daniel M. Wilson is a wonderfully clear, concise, interesting, historical production. Rev. Mr. Wilson also wrote the first elaborate history of Quincy's old and famous First church and it was printed in the best style with portraits of the famous persons who have been connected with the church from the beginning. A few copies of this book we understand, are for sale at Linscott's jewelry store.

A Tough Gang.

Maurice Horn of Hyde Park came to Quincy Saturday night, and while standing in the crowd his pocket was picked of $18 in money. There was a gang of South Boston toughs about, who had been to New Downer Landing, and it is thought they were the gang who did the work. While at New Downer Landing, Officer Butler attempted to prevent two of them from dancing together when they set upon him and he was roughly handled before his brother officers could come to his assistance. Office Butler was thrown down and kicked several times in the face.

—The North Weymouth B. B. C. was defeated Saturday at Hingham 21 to 10.

Both pitchers were effective in the ball game at West Quincy on Saturday, only fifteen single hits being made in the game. It was, however, the tenth consecutive victory for the home nine who won in the ninth innings.

The score was 5 to 4 in favor of the City Point C. A., when they closed their half of the ninth innings, but the West Quincys were equal to the occasion and sent two men round the bases with only one out.

The attendance at the game was large, being estimated at about 900.

The Big Show.

The Corning, N. Y., Democrat of May 11 says of the New Fashion Plate Show, which gives two performances in Quincy on July 12, as follows:

"The parade, which took place shortly before noon, was in reality a brilliant affair, the cages, chariots and costumes worn by many knights and their ladies being entirely new and made of the most costly material.

"As a general thing the street pageant can be considered a criterion of what is to be expected of the performance, and if Mr. Main fulfils this old saying our people will surely get their full money's worth.

"The new Main shows this season, have so far received nothing but highly flattering criticisms and has fully upheld Mr. Main's seventeen years reputation for giving nothing but highly meritorious performances. Everything connected with the aggregation is new this season and many of the novel features were secured during Mr. Main's sojourn of fourteen months in Europe, where he went in quest of novelties. The stock is certainly the finest ever seen in this city.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Loring N. Hayden, a well-known resident of West Quincy, died suddenly at his home on West street, Sunday evening, the cause of his death being attributed to heart disease. Mr. Hayden had been out driving Sunday and returned home late in the afternoon. He put up his horse and entered the house. He was taken ill a little later and expired in a few minutes. Mr. Hayden was a stone cutter by trade, and resided in Quincy nearly all his life. In his younger days he was a member of the volunteer fire department. He leaves widow, two sons and a daughter.

—Somerville will celebrate on the Fourth with a parade, games, music, fireworks, etc. John P. Pritchard, formerly of Quincy, will be marshal of one of the divisions.

SUMMER STOVES.

What's the use of making your summer miserable working over a red hot coal stove, when for a small expenditure you can own a Blue Flame Oil Stove and be cool and comfortable when you are doing your cooking. These stoves use common oil and burn as clear and clean as gas. Don't smoke your pans up either, and costs but the fraction of a cent an hour to run.

Now here's your chance to practice economy, as well as being up-to-date. You wouldn't part with a blue flame stove for ten times its cost, if you owned one and couldn't replace it.

Glad to have you look them over.

Recital.

Despite the weather conditions Miss Spear's music rooms were filled Saturday by an appreciative audience.

Miss Young a piano and voice pupil was unable to appear. Miss Carlson's Swedish songs and Miss Loyn's serenade by Raff were very well received.

Miss Souther sang the waltz song Se Saran Rose with ease and charming effect. Later she sang Dudley Buck's setting of Sidney Lanier's "Sunset." Mr. Wason played the violin obligato, which Miss Souther had written when she had the honor of singing this song at the unveiling of the portrait bust, placed in the college at Kach Hill, S. C., in memory of the greatly admired poet. This was received with enthusiasm as were also Mr. Bullock's tenor solos. Mrs. Tappendens song was effective. Mr. Wason played his violin solos with fine spirit and artistic interpretation.

Miss Spear accompanied throughout the program and sang, one solo number, "The Orioles Song," the words and music of which she composed last summer. The music being for the most part reproductions of the bird's tones. This was received with applause.

Miss Souther and Miss Spear rendered two Tuscan folks songs. Mr. Wason closed the program with Consolation, and Hongroise by Liszt for piano.

Wollaston Picnics.

The annual picnics of the Wollaston Unitarian and Methodist churches were held Saturday. Both picnics were held in Weymouth, the former at Lakeview Park and the latter at Hunter's point. Two special cars left Wollaston at 9.30 o'clock. Both were largely attended and as the picnic grounds bordered on the waters, the day did not appear so warm to many. At Lakeview Park boating seemed to please many, while the bowling allies were full during the day. Although somewhat warm, much pleasure was obtained in dancing. The pavilion was very large and inviting to those who could not withstand the heat.

There was continual excitement after the base ball game began at Hunter's Point. Many little ones enjoyed bathing and are now suffering from sunburnt backs. Except for the car accident the day was enjoyed by both parties. The cars returned to Wollaston at 6.30 P. M.

Narrow Escape.

On Saturday a man driving a team drawn by a fine horse, reached the crossing at Quincy station as an outcoming train reached the curve of the track. The flagman waved his flag and the driver pulled up. Then his judgment leaving him, he gave his horse a cut with the the whip, and by this time the engineer's whistle to stop was heard. People turned away, but the team got over safely.

The flagman says he has hard work at times to keep people from killing themselves, and that the dogs give him even more trouble.

COTTAGE AVENUE.

Many Reasons Why Short Cut Should Be Widened.

Editors Daily Ledger:

For some time past, the Council has been considering whether the city should add 16 feet to the width of this little way between Hancock and Chestnut streets.

If its importance were no greater than its size I could easily understand why the Council should hesitate in granting, or rejecting altogether, the petition to have Cottage avenue made 16 feet wider. The avenue is, however, of far greater importance than its size would indicate.

I doubt if there is a street in Quincy, no larger than Cottage avenue, which is travelled over as much as it is. It has always been a busy little street. There is not the slightest danger that it will be less busy in the future. Its location makes it busy and important. It cannot help being important and very busy.

The "Hollow" was always one of the busiest localities in Quincy. How it used to delight us to see the crowds of men going to and from work at the tanneries, not to mention the other old-time solidly-established business-places there! In those days of the town, "the hollow" rivaled the Quarry district.

Today the tanneries are no longer there, but, business has not diminished. The place is busier still. It is a business centre. It would be rash to predict that it will cease to be such in a century. Business is on the increase there every day.

Now Cottage avenue is the way to "the hollow" for the people in the district northeast of it. This avenue accommodates the people of a very large district, though poorly, at best, because of its narrowness, sharp corners and general condition. How many coal teams, lumber teams, teams of all descriptions have to squeeze through it in a week on their way from Quincy Point! It is a handy way for them to get to "the hollow." All who come from this district northeast of the avenue do not wish to go round through the Square or up the hill on Revere road. They must do it or submit to the inconveniences and dangers of the avenue.

How many thousand times has Undertaker Hall driven his hearse and hacks cleaned up, to decently carry and escort the dead, through this dirty little lane. It is only a lane. The corner which Mr. Hall has to turn when entering this avenue from his place of business is a sharp and very awkward one. It is a dangerous one. There is always a gully on either side of it. I have seen people who are familiar with this corner and the dangers it presents, stand and hold their breath when the fire engine was coming down the street. This corner is contemplated in the petition.

Cottage avenue has always been simply a water-way for the district above it. One is surprised to find it otherwise than muddy. When there has been anything more than a shower, one has to pick his way or he'll "be in" over his ankles. In winter, especially when there is ice on the streets, it is positively dangerous to go through this avenue. I am far from exaggeration when I speak of danger lurking here in winter. Again, except in broad daylight, two teams cannot pass each other with safety, and they must pass at a walk, then, and on the sidewalk too.

How would the fire apparatus operate in this miserable lane? Really, I doubt if the ladder truck could get into Cottage street from either end. Just try it and see. I think you'd have to lug ladders from either Hancock or Chestnut street or Revere road if you wished to use them in Cottage street.

I argue from the narrowness and cramped condition of Cottage avenue, that property in Cottage street is not properly protected by the city. Of late many thousands of dollars have been spent on property in Cottage street helping the city in pocket and appearance.

Cottage avenue is very near the City Square. Before many years, the city will want this and all streets near the centre to be of a good width. It will have to overhaul things and at great expense then.

If Boston had made Washington street 15 feet wider some years ago, rapid transit would not cause so much trouble and expense.

Can it be that the city fathers are positively trying to avoid doing anything to Cottage avenue? If so, why?

They have fixed up the Square. Coddington street has grown to a boulevard under their care, and is entirely worthy of the city. Chestnut street has been put in fine trim; Foster street; also Revere road — in this locality—has been made too good for its old name. Even Cottage street has been put in prime condition. Cottage avenue might well shout out — "Never touched me!" I think its importance cannot be questioned. Then it is for the public good to widen it, and not in a stingy way. No private interests should stand in the way. The cost of putting the avenue in the condition sought by the petitioners, is much exaggerated by those who stand in the way of public improvement, and desire that Cottage avenue should continue a disgrace to the city, by remaining as it is. The cost will not grow less with time.

The foundry should have been removed from the avenue long ago. It has been and is a nuisance, in its present location. We have respect for Mr. Packard, and would regret exceedingly to see the place or business discontinued, when we say this. Whether work is done in it by night or day, people breathe in its dense smoke. It is too near the centre, and in too thickly settled a community to be allowed to retain its position much longer. The lungs of people in this district have become veritable "coal storage" houses by reason of this foundry. It would not cost much to alter it, as it is merely a shell. The ink shop is practically an unused building. Memories of business haunt it. "A carriage or two as good as new" are stored in it, while in a remote corner of it there is an attempt at business. Mr. Cavanagh could, for little money, put this building 16 feet in the rear, whilst we are talking of it.

People have submitted to the inconveniences of Cottage avenue long enough. They are not unreasonable in asking an increase of 16 feet in its width. With decent sidewalks the street will not be too wide or needlessly wide. There are portions only of a sidewalk along only one side, now.

To widen it as proposed, will relieve a long-felt want. It will have to be done soon at the latest. It can be done cheaper now than later on. I do not think that the city fathers could be accused of lavish expenditure of money in granting the petition, but that, on the contrary, they would be commended for doing well what ought to be done.

I'll wager that the work will be one that the city fathers will be proud of, if they do what that petition calls for.

Cottager.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Downing was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy. He was given until Friday to raise the fine.

Louis Barglar was arraigned for assault on Michael Slaugher at Quincy. No one appearing against the defendent he was discharged.

William Sullivan was arraigned for the larceny of six bottles of beer from William Billings at Braintree. He was found not guilty and was discharged. Sullivan was also arraigned for disturbing the peace and was fined $5.

The Day's Chief Topic.

Where and how to spend the summer is a question to be considered by nearly everybody. If you are not interested, you should be, and if you are, consider New England, with its great wealth of mountains, rivers, lakes, seashore and historic spots.

In the heart of the Appalachian Range, the secondary range of America, which includes the famous White mountains, and hundreds of places where one may go and enjoy the cool, quiet grandeur of the magnificent panoramic scenery, its grand precipitous rocks, its green fields and the beautiful silvery lakes sprinkled here and there like bits of broken mirror.

Think of the places where sports of all kinds may be enjoyed, including the popular games of golf, polo and tennis.

Leave the mountains and turn to the beautiful lakes and streams, or to the vast, grand ocean which forms the eastern boundary of New England, here boating, fishing, yachting and bathing are participated in more than in any other part of the world.

New England lacks not historically, but can boast of containing many relics of the early pilgrim settlers, as well as of the Indian and Revolutionary periods.

A valuable book containing a list of hotels and boarding houses with their rates and accommodations, also maps, routes and rates of the Boston & Maine Railroad and connections will be sent free to any address on application to the to the Passenger Department of the Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, Mass.

Nail in His Head.

Carl Peterson, one of the workmen employed in tearing down the chapel at Christ church, met with a serious accident Saturday afternoon. He was at work inside the building trying to push out one side. One end had been loosened and he was at work on the other end. Suddenly his hand slipped and the board sprung back driving the projecting nails into his head. He was attended by Dr. Davis, who ordered his removal to the City Hospital. Peterson's in jury, fortunately, was not as serious as at first supposed.

Wollaston P. O. Station.

Letters unclaimed for week ending June 29: Mrs. A. H. Lovering, Mrs. Chas. L. Kaulback.

☞ Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a phys cian. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

DIED.

HAYDEN—In Quincy, June 30, Mr. Loring N. Hayden of West street, aged 60 years, 3 months and 19 days.

HUMPHREY—In Newton, June 29, Mr. Thomas Campbell Humphrey of Hingham, aged 57 years.

KELLEY—In South Braintree, June 30, Lucy Katherine Kelley of Franklin street.

Accident.

About seven o'clock last evening a single buggy containing two men was coming over Presidents' bridge, Adams street, when the horse took fright at a train going underneath. One man was thrown out, then the other; off went one wheel and the horse went up Adams street at a lively pace with three wheels left to the team.

He ended his exercise in Mr. W. B. Rice's yard, going through a lattice work. No one was injured, and except to the buggy, neither passengers nor horse were very much demoralized.

Mr. Rice has in his house a little emergency corner for the relief of the frequent accidents that occur around this neighborhood. The bridge is one cause, and Dewson's hill, as we used to call it, is a constant menace to teams and wheels.

Hold the Fort.

In October, 1864, Allatoona pass, a defile in the mountains of Georgia, was guarded by General Corse, with 1,500 men. It was a strong, strategic point, and, moreover, 1,500,000 rations were stored there. Fresich, the southern general, with 6,000 men, attacked the garrison and drove the defenders into a small fort on the crest of the hill. The battle was fierce. The northern soldiers fell in such numbers that further fighting seemed folly.

But one of Corse's officers caught sight of a white signal flag fluttering in the breeze on the top of the Kenesaw mountain, across the valley, 15 miles away. The signal was answered, and then came the inspiring message from mountain to mountain: "Hold the fort. I am coming.—W. T. Sherman."

Cheer after cheer went up, and, though hopelessly reduced in numbers, they did hold the fort for hours until the advance guard of Sherman's army came to their relief. Six years later P. P. Bliss, the evangelist, heard the story in all its vivid detail from a soldier friend and then wrote the words and music of his famous hymn.—Presbyterian.

Near the Popping Point.

"Mary," said her father, "you have been keeping company with that Mitchell fellow for more than a year now. This courtship must come to a termination."

"Oh, father, how can you talk so? He is, oh, so sweet and nice!"

"Ah!" And the fond father arched his eyebrows. "Sweet and nice, eh? Has he proposed?"

"Well, father, not exactly." And the girl hung her head and fingered the drapery of her dress. "He hasn't exactly proposed; but, then, last evening when we were out walking we passed by a nice little house, and he said, 'That's the kind of cottage I'm going to live in some day,' and I said, 'Yes,' and then he glanced at me and squeezed my hand. Then, just as we got by, I glanced back at the cottage, and—and I squeezed his hand!"

"Oh, ah, I see!" said her father. "Well, we'll try him another week or two."—London Answers.

Quaint Hannibal Hamlin.

To the day of his death Hannibal Hamlin was a figure that men would turn and look at a second time on the street. His tall form, which in old age was but slightly bent, was always clothed in the old fashioned black swallowtail suit, and he always wore a tall silk hat, generally a "back number," tilted slightly back on his head. For years he was famous as a man who never wore an overcoat, and to his death he never burdened himself with that, to him, unnecessary garment except on the most severely cold days. For a half century he never changed the style of his clothes. He walked with a swinging gait and had so many friends and acquaintances to whom he had to bow that a smile seemed to be ever on his face.

Both Trained.

Little Edith had been very ill, but was convalescent. Waking up suddenly and finding a strange lady at her bedside, she asked, "Are you the doctor?"

"No, dear," replied the lady; "I'm your trained nurse."

"Oh," exclaimed Edith, pointing to a cage hanging near the window, "trained nurse, let me introduce you to my trained canary!"

Fish Aversions.

The celebrated Erasmus, although a native of Rotterdam, had such an aversion to fish that the smell of it threw him into a fever. Ambrose Pare had a patient who could never see an eel without fainting and another who would fall into convulsions at the sight of a carp.

Not a Success.

"I warn you," he said threateningly, "to keep away from Miss Bilton. I've been making love to her myself."

"Have you, really?" replied his rival. "Well, she'll be glad to have the matter cleared up."

"Cleared up! What do you mean?"

"Why, she said she thought that's what you'd been trying to do, but she wasn't sure."—Chicago Post.

What a man lacks in his head he must make up in his legs.—Atchison Globe.

Travellers Will Appreciate It

Halifax, July 1.—The Canadian government's intention to install a wireless telegraph plant at Sable island and on the mainland of Nova Scotia will be an important advantage to travellers. With that station and another at Brow Head, trans-Atlantic passengers will be cut off from telegraphic communication only 2 1-2 days during the passage.

CAN BEAT SHAMROCK

Opinion of the Owner of the Cutter Kariad

HE ASKS FOR TRIAL RACES

That England May Be Represented by the Better Boat In the Contest For the America's Cup—No Difficulty as to the Question of Eligibility

Rothesay, Scot., July 1.—A development as intensely interesting as it was entirely unexpected has occurred concerning the challenge for the America's cup. This is due to the action of Kenneth M. Clark, owner of the cutter Kariad.

Mr. Clark has had three opportunities of racing the Kariad against the Shamrock I, and he has witnessed all the trials of the two Shamrocks since the challenger was refitted. His observations have led him to doubt seriously whether the Shamrock II is good enough to send to American waters to challenge for the cup. He has a belief that the Kariad is a better boat than the Shamrock II, and he desires to see this question settled before any yacht goes out as a challenger.

When interviewed yesterday, Mr. Clark said he had no desire whatever to push himself forward in the matter, and had hoped to have an opportunity of resolving his own doubts quietly in the ordinary races in which he expected the two Shamrocks to take part.

"It now appears, however," said Mr. Clark, "that the challenger will only be tried against the Shamrock I. Even if both sailed to win the result would only show which of the two excelled, and would give no real proof as to whether either is the best boat we have available. The contest is an international affair. The contest is an international and, for the credit of British yachting and the good of the sport, it is desirable that the British side of the contest should be upheld by the best available boat.

"I believe the Kariad is faster than either of the Shamrocks and I consider that I have excellent reasons for the opinion. I desire an opportunity to enter the Kariad in the trials. If this request is not granted I shall challenge Sir Thomas Lipton to trial races between the Shamrock II and the Kariad, to be sailed over courses similar to the course for the America's cup, and on the American measurement, in order to decide which should be sent as the challenger."

When asked whteher the Kariad was eligible, and whether he would carry through the challenge if the Kariad should prove the faster, Mr. Clark said he had no desire to go to the United States, but, if it should be proved that Great Britain had a better chance of success through his boat, he was prepared to carry the challenge through. So far as the eligibility of the Kariad was concerned, he said he understood that there would be no serious difficulty, as the Royal Ulster Yacht club had lodged a challenge on behalf of a cutter under 90 feet on the waterline, and he was a member of the club and his boat answered the description.

"If Sir Thomas Lipton has the better boat," Mr. Clark concluded, "I shall be delighted to stand aside. My only desire is to ensure the sending of the fastest British yacht and this cannot be secured without a trial."

Mr. Clark has owned many steam yachts. The Kariad is his first big racing cutter. She was built last year to a Watson design by the Hendersons for C. B. Rose, who had the misfortune to lose two sons in the South African war, and she was not launched until purchased this year by Mr. Clark.

Good Work of Independence

Newport, R. I., July 1.—That the yacht Independence is possessed of great capabilities in going to windward was shown yesterday in her run from Vineyard Haven to New London, a distance of 75 miles, which she covered in exactly eight hours. The first 20 miles was a dead beat, but the balance, 55 miles, was made in two long hitches and one short one, the yacht sailing nearly the entire distance under three lower sails and working topsail.

Yachting Season Opens

Newport, R. I., July 1.—The yachting season for the big 90-footers, and also the first of the tuning-up races of the intended cup defender, Constitution, begins today with a 30-mile race between the new boat and the champion of '99, the Columbia.

Receiver For Another Bank

Washington, July 1.—Comptroller of the Currency Dawes late Saturday night appointed a temporary receiver for the City National bank of Buffalo. Mr. Dawes said that the condition of this bank was so serious that he could not consent to its reopening for business Monday morning, unless sufficient assets to pay the depositors in full were satisfactorily guaranteed. He added that the bank is certainly insolvent.

RECOGNIZED AS FUGITIVE

Two Men Are Positive They Saw Blondin Near Chelmsford

Lowell, Mass., July 1.—Inspectors Allen and Laflamme went to Chelmsford Sunday and met Mr. Williams, who reported Saturday that he had seen and talked with Blondin. Williams led the police inspectors to a camp in the Chelmsford woods. He told the police that Blondin intended to stay in the camp Saturday night. The camp, however, did not show any signs of having been inhabited for a long time.

Williams said that he had seen a man whom he recognized as Blondin on the road between Chelmsford and Lowell, and had conversed with him. The stranger was on a bicycle, had on dark clothing, his coat being strapped to the machine, and he had two large revolvers and two knives in a belt which he wore. He recognized the man because he worked with him in a Chelmsford wood lot last May.

H. F. Heald of Carlisle, while driving through Chelmsford to Lowell, Saturday afternoon, telephoned in from the suburbs that he had seen a man with a bicycle beside the road, whom he recognized as the man whom, while working for J. C. Osterhout, last summer, he saw and had a talk with.

The man whom Mr. Heald saw asked the distance to Westford, and also to South Framingham. He had on a black coat and trousers, black and green duck tie and brown derby hat. Inspectors drove out to the place, had a talk with Mr. Heald, and came to the conclusion that the man he had talked with was not Blondin.

Dead Body Found In Alley

Clinton, Mass., July 1.—The body of Mrs. Mary Mooney, a widow, was found yesterday in an alley between the Deitzman and Bergman blocks, the woman evidently having been dead four or five hours. Her collar bone was dislocated, half a dozen ribs were crushed in, puncturing the lungs, and her right leg was broken. The woman lived alone in a room on the third floor of the Deitzman block, and the police are investigating the case.

Carpenters Want Eight Hours

Boston, July 1.—The carpenters of this city and immediate vicinity, numbering over 10,000 men, today enforced their demand for an eight-hour day, and the movement is to be extended to all parts of New England before the close of the present season. Already over two-thirds of the men have been promised the eight hours, and whatever strikes are ordered are expected to be short and decisive.

Big Pavilion Burned

Haverhill, Mass., July 1.—The pavilion at the Pines, owned by the Lynn and Boston Street Railway company, was totally burned yesterday. The fire is supposed to have started in the basement from an explosion of gasolene. The theatre and menagerie were saved. A boy named Dunn had a narrow escape from being burned to death. The loss will be $7500.

Thought to Be a Horse Thief

Worcester, Mass., July 1.—A man, 62 years of age, giving the name of George Wilson, but believed by the police to be David E. Tenney, a horse thief with a long criminal record, was arrested here as he was trying to dispose of a horse hired of Joseph Beaudry & Son. Wilson admits his guilt in this transaction, and also that he has been known as Tenney.

Contracted Disease In Cuba

Worcester, Mass., July 1.—Lieutenant Arthur C. King, who commanded company C, Second regiment, M. V. M., at the battle of El Caney during the illness of Captain Allen, died here yesterday of heart disease. His death is said to have been due to rheumatism and malaria, contracted in Cuba, from which he had never been free since.

Exploding Lantern Caused Death

Fall River, July 1.—Owen Dowd, 35 years old, unmarried, was burned to death yesterday by the explosion of a lantern which he was using in his sleeping room. Followed Example of Betrothed

Boston, July 1.—A special to The Herald from Taunton says that Miss Annie Lynch took poison yesterday and died. She was bethrothed to Edwin Newhall, who committed suicide two weeks ago yesterday, and it is supposed his untimely end was the cause of Miss Lynch's act.

WAS DEEPLY IN LOVE

Miss Vietz Left a Letter Explaining the Motive For Her Crime

Boston, July 1.—A letter, left for her parents by Annie Vietz, the girl who shot Henry C. Blanchard at East Walpole on June 19, and then killed herself, has been made public, and it confirms the belief previously held that the act was due to the fact that Blanchard cared for someone else. Blanchard, who is still suffering from his wound, has not been able to discuss the case.

The letter says that Blanchard made love to Miss Vietz, and asked her to marry him. Later she found letters which showed that the man was deceiving her. On learning of this, the letter says: "My heart failed and my life was at an end, and not mine alone, but Harvey's, too, for if I could not have him, no one else should have him; and I determined that when I should see Harvey, I would instantly shoot him down on the spot, and then I would shoot myself."

In another paragraph the writer said: "Harvey has made me a murderer." Miss Vietz urged her mother not to grieve efor her, "for," she said, "I could never love another man, and I hate them all. Whenever I see a man now, I am so wrought up that my blood seems to stand still in my veins." The letter contained the request that the writer be buried in the same grave with Harvey.

Political Riots at Lyons

Lyons, July 1.—Godefroy Cavaignac, former minister of war, presided yesterday at a meeting of the League of Patriots here. Sebastian Faure, the anarchist, organized an opposition meeting of revolutionary Socialists, at which he violently denounced nationalism as a "detestible compound of clericalism, capitalism and militarism." Subsequently the Socialists marched through the streets, shouting, "Down with Cavaignac," and "Down with the priests." Ultimately, the hostile bodies met and fought, the police finding considerable difficulty in dispersing them. Even after they were scattered various groups indulged in riotous scuffles. Many persons were injured and numerous arrests were made.

In Memory of Fire Victims

New York, July 1.—A granite monument, erected zy the North German Lloyd Steamship company in memory of the 171 victims of the Hoboken steamship fire, was dedicated at Flower Hill cemetery, North Bergen, N. J., yesterday, the first anniversary of the disaster. The monument is 10 feet high and 10 by 8 feet in area. The names of the 171 victims of the fire are inscribed on a bronze plate, although but 149 persons are buried in the plot.

Thomas-Lee Nuptials

New York, July 1.—Edward R. Thomas, who was president of the Seventh National bank for a day, and Miss Linda Lee of Louisville, were married Saturday evening at the home of the bride's aunt in this city. It was the original intention that the marriage should take place at the bride's home in Louisville, but the Seventh National bank's trouble prevented this. Only a few relatives and intimate friends were present at the wedding.

Strike Situation Unchanged

Waterville, Me., July 1.—At the headquarters of the Waterville division of striking trackmen, the situation is apparently unchanged over that of the past week. The tracks east of this station are still patrolled by special trains carrying the Italians who remain.

Thirty-Day Fast Begun

SHE LOST TEN MINUTES

Constitution Handicapped In Race With Columbia

THE OLD CUP YACHT WON

Outpointed the New Boat In Going to Windward, but the Latter Gained Steadily In the Run to the Finish —Suffered Accident to Her Jib

Newport, R. I., July 2.—The Constitution was defeated by the Columbia yesterday by the small margin of 48 seconds in the first real race in which the new Herreshoff yacht has participated. Although the contest, from start to finish, was close, the Constitution lost through misfortune. However, the result of the contest is far from conclusive, and there is still much to be decided as to the relative merits of the two racers.

The mishap to the new boat came about an hour after the start. While the boats were on the second long tack to windward, the clew of the jib of the new boat was carried away, and for some 10 minutes she was without the use of that sail. This accident set the Constitution back practically a mile, but, in spite of it, she was able to get within two minutes of the Columbia at the turn, and cut this lead down more than half on the run home. Some of this gain, however, was undoubtedly due to the fact that she brought up the better wind.

The Columbia did not escape without accident, for immediately after crossing the finish line, in gybing over the big mainsail, her main boom buckled, and she had to be towed to the city. It will be necessary to sling a new spar before the Columbia can race again, but it is expected it will be in place for a race Wednesday.

The event yesterday was the first of a series of special races arranged by the New York Yacht club for the purpose of bringing the two yachts together, and it was under the auspicies of that organization. The course was cleared for the racers when the time approached for the firing of the signal gun, and a breeze came up from the southwest just when it was wanted. Fifteen miles dead to windward and back again was the course.

The starting signal sent the Columbia off well to windward, and three seconds in advance. On the starboard tack she pointed up with a capital luff. All at once the Constitution came on with a rush, and ran through the Columbia's lee, pointing for a much higher position than was expected of her.

This did not last long, however. Both yachts went hunting for whatever wind there might be, and were making the best of the breeze. The Constitution footed faster than the Columbia. But while the new Bristol boat was going swiftly along she had not the grip on the water that the old craft had, and the Constitution went to leeward like a crab, while the Columbia not only pointed, but was bound to fetch what she pointed for. Along on the starboard tack the two yachts sailed at an eight-knot gait. The Constitution sould not stand up so well as her rival by at least three degrees.

When the time came for the Constitution to tack it was a question whether she could or could not cross the Columbia's bow. Just at the moment when the Constitution's helm was put down, the Columbia also came about, and both went over on the port tack for a few minutes. Suddenly the luff of the Constitution's big jib began to shake. The pennant or the sheet itself had evidently carried away. Down came the jib halyard, and for over 10 minutes the Constitution on that close hauled stretch was without the benefit of her jib.

When the great sail was in place again the Constitution rapidly forged ahead, making up much of her leeway. It was, however, too big a gap to fill.

On the beat to windward, the Columbia defeated her opponent nearly two minutes. In setting spinnakers the Columbia was a trifle smarter than the Constitution. In the run before the wind back to the finish line, the Constitution gained. With sheets eased off she is faster than the Columbia. The times at the finish were: Columbia, 2:32:38; Constitution, 2:33:29. Thus, over the course of 15 miles to windward and back, the elapsed time of Columbia was 2:52:04, while that of the Constitution, was, 2:52:52, the margin between them being 48 seconds.

If the jib of the Constitution had not been out of order for over 10 minutes the Columbia could not have won. In a fresh breeze and smooth water the Constitution is the better boat on the wind, and with sheets eased off. What will happen to the craft over a triangular course remains to be seen.

Immediately after crossing the finish line the Columbia took in her spinnaker and hauled aft her main sheet in readiness to gybe over. Captain Barr gybed and in so doing the Columbia's main boom doubled up and broke about 30 feet from the jaws, and she lay helpless. Strange to say, the big sail was not in the least injured. The Columbia was towed to the city.

The regatta committee last night announced that the spare boom of the Columbia will arrive here today.

Clark Anxious For a Race

Glasgow, July 2.—Kenneth M. Clark, owner of the Kariad, has sent a challenge to Sir Thomas Lipton for trial races between the Shamrock II and the Kariad, to be sailed over a course similar to the course for the America's cup and on the American measurement, in order to decide which yacht shall be sent as challenger to American waters.

A MILE OF FIRE

Mills, Lumber and Dwellings Go Up In Smoke at Stillwater, Me

Stillwater, Me., July 2.—A most disastrous fire visited this town yesterday afternoon, destroying three mills and a large number of dwelling-houses. It started in the fire room of the Kimball & Adams lumber mill, and spread until all the buildings along the bank of the river for fully a mile were ablaze.

The fire departments of Oldtown, Bangor and Milford sent aid, but the fire had gained such a start that it was impossible to save any of the buildings in the path of the flames.

The Kimball & Adams mill, together with a dryhouse, a store house, four company houses and sheds containing 2,000,000 feet of shingles, was totally destroyed. All the machinery was destroyed. The George A. Lewis mill and machinery and a dryhouse containing 100,000 feet of shingles were destroyed, as was also the Sutton mill with its machinery. The Maine Central Railroad company lost two box cars, eight flat cars and 100,000 feet of lumber.

At a late hour last night the fire was under control. Among the other losses were 10 dwellings, a shop, saloon, storehouse and two small buildings.

Frenchman at the Head

Boston, July 2.—Champion finished the first night of the six-days' cycle race in the lead at Charles River park. Nelson, who had been the favorite, was third. Moran was second and Stinson and Walthour brought up the rear in that order. Champion, in two hours, made 68 miles, 742 yards. Nelson led the greater part of the race, but Walthour and Stinson drove him so hard that all of these three became worn out and went to pieces. Champion rode a steady race.

Sewer Flushed With Liquor

Portland, Me., July 2.—The $6000 stock of intoxicants in the liquor room at the county building here was considerably reduced yesterday. The libels on numerous bottles and packages having expired, two special deputies were set at work "spilling," and nearly all day a stream of liquor flowed to the sewer trap. The alcohol will be extracted from the hard liquor and sold, and the proceeds will be paid to the county treasurer.

A $200,000 Fire at Boston

Boston, July 2.—By a fire which was the most spectacular that has been seen in Boston for years, pier 5 of the Hoosac Tunnel docks was almost totally destroyed yesterday, causing a loss of $200,000. Steamers Sachem and Commonwealth, which were at the docks, were saved, and the good work of the firemen kept the fire confined to the one pier, saving the great grain elevator. The cause of the fire is not known.

Forgery Is Charged

Boston, July 2.—A wife and a baby waited last night in vain for the homecoming of the husband and father, Charles F. Archer, 24 years old, employed as draughtsman and confidential clerk by J. R. Coolidge, architect. Archer was arrested, charged with forgery of various checks in amounts ranging from $25 to $60.

Malden Man's Head Hammered

Malden Mass., July 2.—James Cannon is under arrest for alleged assault with a dangerous weapon upon Crane Monohan. Cannon used a large hammer, striking Monohan twice on the head, inflicting severe injuries. He will be held pending the outcome of the injuries to Monohan, which are considered serious.

Located by Boston Officers

Boston, July 1.—Dong Sue, who is wanted by the New York police, in connection with the murder of Ah Lee in New York on Sept. 21, 1900, was arrested by Boston officers yesterday in a laundry in the East Boston district. Dong Sue is held for the New York officers.

Will Go Home a Corpse

Boston, July 2.—John E. Stanton, 37 years old, was cut in twain under the wheels of a freight train which he tried to board at Cambridge last night. He was on his way to Westport, Conn., where his wife lived.

Almost Unanimous Vote

Boston, June 2.—The mayor's $3,422,500 loan order was passed by the board of aldermen yesterday, by a vote of 11 to 1. This is the loan order over which there has been a big fight in the common council.

Death From Smallpox

Worcester, Mass., July 2.—William J. Robinson, the fourth victim of the smallpox, died at the smallpox hospital last night. He was committed to the institution on Thursday.

Additions to Pension Rolls

Washington, July 2.—A statement prepared at the pension office shows that for the fiscal year ended June 30 there were 69,612 names added to the pension rolls, of which 44,861 were original issues, and 4751 were restorations.

NO CHANCE OF ESCAPE

Bolt of Lightning Strikes a Party of Twelve

ELEVEN INSTANTLY KILLED

Had Been Fishing and Were Huddled Together In a Shanty to Escape Thunder Storm—Twelve-Year-Old Boy Found Alive Under Corpses

Chicago, July 2.—Crowded together in a little zinc-lined shanty under a North Shore pier, 10 boys and young men and one old man met instant death by lightning yesterday. They had left their fish lines and sought shelter from the fierce thunderstorm that deluged the northern part of the city about 1 o'clock. Ten minutes later their bodies lay, with twisted and tangled limbs, "in a nest of snakes," as the man who found them said.

Twelve sought shelter, and one escaped. Twelve-year-old Willie Anderson was uninjured, but he lay many minutes before he could be drawn out from under the heap of dead bodies. The dead are all from the families of comparatively poor people. They had been seeking recreation and an escape from the fierce heat of the city.

The scene of the tragedy was a pier just south of Marquette terrace, and a few hundred feet from the water works pumping station, at the foot of Montrose boulevard.

Watchers in the pumping station saw the lightning strike the water, as they thought. There was one boy, however, who saw the bolt strike the shanty. But for him the dead might have laid where they were for hours, and Willie Anderson might have been suffocated under their bodies.

Percy Keene, clad in bathing trunks, had been watching also from the water station. He rushed across the beach, and at the pier heard a cry "Help, get me out." He looked into the cabin and saw the twisted bodies.

Young Percy, crying, pulled at the dead men's arms and legs to get them away. He saw Willie Anderson's head and part of his body, but he could not pull him out, nor could he pull the heavy bodies from on top of him. Then he telephoned to the police, who succeeded, after a great deal of difficulty, in reviving young Anderson, and recovering the dead bodies of the others.

When the rain began to fall and it became evident that a severe electrical storm was coming, the party rushed to a shelter they had built on the pier. Willie Anderson gave a bare idea of the horrible ending to an hour's sport, and then fainted. He was carried to a nearby house, where medical assistance was rendered. The fatal stroke was the most powerful seen here in years. The pier was instantly demolished, giving the victims not the slightest chance of escape. In age the victims ranged from 12 to 25 years.

None Exempt by Reason of Age

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 2.—The 930 Boer prisoners, who arrived here June 28, on the British transport Arfnenian, were yesterday moved into the camps prepared for them on Darrell's and Tucker's islands. These Boers are part of the force of General Cronje, and were captured at Paardeberg. They include several boys of 8 and 10 years, who carried ammunition to their fathers when the latter were in the Boer trenches. Among the prisoners were also two Boers so old that they crawled on all fours down the transport's gangway.

Strike Evidently a Success

Boston, July 2.—It appears likely that the hope that the carpenters' strike will be of very small proportions will be fulfilled. According to the reports received by the strike committee, only 129 men in Boston proper were obliged to strike yesterday for $2.70 for eight hours' work.

Attempt to Poison Whole Family

Toledo, July 2.—The city chemist yesterday reported that he had discovered a large quantity of arsenic in the mutton soup which caused the illness of Arthur Miller, his wife and five children. The police claim that it was a dastardly attempt to murder the family.

A Contribution of $50,000

Oberlin, O., July 2.—President Burrows announced yesterday the receipt of a check for $50,000 from "A friend in New England," toward the completion of Oberlin college. It is necessary yet to secure $150,000 to assure Mr. Rockefeller's conditional gift of $200,000.

Death of Senator Kyle

Aberdeen, S. D., July 2.—Senator James H. Kyle died here last evening. He was stricken about 10 days ago. His trouble was of malarial origin, and resulted in an affection of the heart. His health had not been robust for a year or so.

Press Workers Won't Yield

Westerly, R. I., July 2.—After seven weeks of idleness the striking press workers of the firm of C. Cottrell & Sons show but little signs of weakness. Out of 125 strikers, less than 10 have broken the ranks and returned to work.

What's the use of making your summer miserable working over a red hot coal stove, when for a small expenditure you can own a Blue Flame Oil Stove and be cool and comfortable when you are doing your cooking. These stoves use common oil and burn as clear and clean as gas. Don't smoke your pans up either, and costs but the fraction of a cent an hour to run.

Now here's your chance to practice economy, as well as being up-to-date. You wouldn't part with a blue flame stove for ten times its cost, if you owned one and couldn't replace it.

FOURTH OF JULY NOTICE.

There will be no Daily Ledger on Thursday, the Fourth of July, the office of publication being closed for the day. See Friday's paper for news of the holiday.

Good Afternoon.

The Somerville Journal in its last issue did a very creditable and enterprising bit of work, devoting several pages to the public school graduations and printing excellent half tone groups about 10x8 of the graduates of each building with the principal of each. As a souvenir it should be highly prized by graduates and their friends. In one group appears Mr. George L. Baxter, headmaster of the Latin High school, a native of Quincy, while in others were George M. Wadsworth and John S. Emerson, formerly principals in Quincy schools.

The publishers regret that anything which might be construed by any one as personal should have appeared in the Cottage avenue communication in the Daily Ledger of Monday. We feel positive that nothing personal was intended, but the writer in his earnestness to show the public necessity in comparison with private interests was not as careful as he should have been. The business of the Packards is probably larger than most people are aware and should be encouraged. We agree with Col. Packard that Maple place should be extended, and have repeatedly advocated it. We also believe that the need is greater for the extension of Irving place than most of the improvements favored by the City Council last night. No one will say that Cottage avenue should not be improved. We believe now is the time to widen and rebuild it.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞The June weddings in this city have been unusually pretty affairs, and the guests have seemed especially original in decorating the personal property of the newly married in a way to publish abroad the glad tidings that two hearts have been made one. Most of us, however, do not get married very often, and once in a lifetime can afford to let friends have a little fun at our expense.—Brockton Enterprise.

Fourteen Deaths at Baltimore

Baltimore, July 2.—Up to midnight 14 deaths and 28 prostrations had been reported. Many factory hands had to stop work during the day because of the heat.

Lack of Details

Des Moines, July 2.—Tornadoes are reported near Holstein, Cambridge and other Iowa points, but details are lacking. Communication with Cambridge cannot be secured from here.

☞Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a phys cian. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

The Amount of Loans Favorably Considered by the City Council Last Night.

If Paid in One Year Would Increase Tax About $3---With Interest Will Cost More.

Was it hot in Cty Council chamber Monday night? Well rather, yet the members of the City Council sat there from 7.30 until after 11 o'clock minus coats and vests, sweltered, debated and passed orders calling for appropriations of nearly $50,000. The Finance Committee was turned down and orders were passed by a majority vote, as the president ruled the orders did not call for the raising of any money although it involved the expenditure of money.

Councilman Nicol and Smith were absent.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Mayor sent a communication from the School Committee relative to connecting the Lincoln school with the public sewer. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

Mayor Hall returned without his approval the order granting a victualler's license to W. W. Weightman. The Council sustained the Mayor by a vote of 8 in favor to 10 against passing.

The Mayor returned without his approval the loan order for $10,000. His reasons were on account of the length of time the notes ran, and because some of the matter should have been charged to general appropriation. There was also a question of legality of the order as passed.

The vote was reconsidered. Councilman Newcomb moved to lay on the table. Lost.

The question was then on passing over the Mayor's veto. This the Council refused to do by the following vote, two-thirds being required:

Yeas — Adams, Alden, Callahan, DeNormandie, Elcock, Faxon, Freeman, Hughes, Hultman, Newcomb, Nichols, Sherman, Thompson—13.

Nays — Bass, Gassett, Hadlock, Langelier, McLennan, Spargo—6.

Absent—Craig, Nicol and Smith.

The vote was reconsidered and the order laid on the table. Near the close of the session, the order was taken from the table and passed over the Mayor's veto by a vote of 19 to 1, Councilman Bass alone voting in the negative.

PETITIONS.

The New England Telephone company petitioned for a location of poles on Washington street. To Committee on Streets.

The Old Colony Street Railway petitioned for a turnout on Washington street near Cherry avenue, and for a location on the new Quincy Point bridge. Laid on the table until later when orders were offered for public hearings on the same September 3.

Petitions were received to accept Charles street and to widen Howard street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order authorizing the Mayor to sell at auction the Hose house in Ward Five and the Hersey house in Ward Two.

The same committee reported unadvisable to sell the marsh land at Germantown. Accepted.

The same committee reported leave to withdraw on the petition to purchase Butler's pond. Accepted.

HEARINGS.

A public hearing was held on the acceptance of Edson street.

James P. Clare favored. People have an idea that there was some expense attached to the acceptance and that land was to be taken. The street ought to be accepted. It was badly gullied at present.

Charles H. Winslow and George S. Bass opposed.

Their claim was that the street was in good order now and there was no necessity of its being accepted. There was no need of the city spending money to fix the street. It was hardly wide enough to lay out as a public way.

Mrs. H. O. Souther opposed, as she did not feel like going to the expense. It would take land and probably injure the trees.

When informed by the President that no land as to be taken, no trees touched or no expense to the residents of the street, Mrs. Souther said then she would not object.

The hearing closed and the order was recommitted.

A public hearing was held on the acceptance of Plain street. No one appeared for or against and the hearing then closed; the order was recommitted.

President Bryant stated that he was in error in ruling that the order did not pass. The order did not call for the borrowing of money and therefore required only a majority vote.

RODMAN STREET SIDEWALK.

An amendment was reported to the order for $1800 for building a sidewalk on Rodman street, making the amount $900 for one side of the street only.

Councilman McLennan hoped report would not be accepted.

The report was rejected and the original order passed to be ordained, Councilmen Alden, Callahan, DeNormandie, Faxon Freeman, Hughes, Hultman and Sherman voting No.

CRANCH SCHOOL LOT.

The committee reported ought not to pass on the order for $1,000 for grading the Cranch school lot.

Councilman DeNormandie hoped report would not be accepted.

Councilman Freeman said the $3,000 was appropriated with the understanding that the lot should be graded with gravel and not loam.

Councilman Faxon. It was entirely impracticable to grade with gravel instead of loam. The end toward Granite street was dangerous.

Councilman De Normandie believed a school lot should be a place of beauty. He did not think the Finance committee had a right to dictate how a lot should be graded.

Councilman Thompson thought it economy to grade properly.

The report of the Committee was rejected and the order passed to be ordained, Councilmen Callahan, Freeman, Hultman and McLennan voting No.

GROVE STREET.

The committee reported, ought not to pass on order for $3,000 for improving Grove street.

Councilman Elcock hoped report would not be accepted. This was an improvement much needed.

Report of Committee rejected and the order passed to be ordained, Councilmen De Normandie, Faxon, Hultman and Sherman voting No.

APPLETON STREET.

The Committee reported adversely on the order for $1500 for a gravel sidewalk on Appleton street.

Councilman Gassett hoped report would not be received. This was the only thoroughfare to the beach. The report was rejected and the order passed, Councilmen De Normandie, Faxon, Hultman, McLennan, Nichols and Sherman voting No.

PARKWAY TAKING.

Councilman De Normandie offered orders concurring with the Metropolitan Park Commission in the taking of land for a boulevard between Hancock and Adams streets. Adopted.

STORM SEWER.

Councilman Sherman offered an order for $1000 for paved gutter on Dimmock street, a storm sewer on Goffe street, and catch basins on Upland road. To Committee on Streets.

Walter L. Main was granted a circus license for $50.

ATLANTIC BRIDGE.

Councilman Gassett offered an order that the County Commissioners be petitioned to act on the matter of widening the bridge near the Atlantic depot and widening the approaches.

Councilman Nichols moved to lay on the table. It would make some difference in the cost of assessment if city took the initiative in the matter.

Councilman Alden was called to the chair, and President Bryant taking the floor said this matter was now before the County Commissioners they held it up at the time they were under investigation. It was time the New Haven road was made to do something as it had agreed to.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

Councilman McLennan wanted the Water street grade crossing included, but was informed that matter should go through another channel.

The order was then passed.

To Celebrate.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Quincy Point Cribbage Club, the following board of officers were re-elected: C. A. Sampson, president; F. E. Burrill, vice president; W. H. Sampson; secretary; C. A. Sampson, treasurer; Joseph Delory, janitor. It was voted to keep open house on the night before the Fourth, also to arrange for the annual sailing party on the sloop "Hattie." An addition to the membership was made.

Moonlight Sail.

It is not surprising that those who enjoyed the moonlight sail of the Wollaston Yacht club Monday evening, were loth to land, and sorry afterward that they did. It was a delightful night to be on the briny deep; beautiful moonlight and breezes cool but light. Several yachts and about 150 ladies and gentlemen participated. Refreshments were served on board the yachts.

Vacation House.

A new branch of Catholic charitable work was inaugurated Monday with the opening of the Cathedral Vacation House at Houghs Neck, Quincy. The institution, which is the only one of its kind under Catholic auspices in New England, says the Herald, is the outcome of a summer settlement maintained last season in West Lynn. It will remain open until September, and the promoters hope in the meantime, to benefit several hundred needy children.

The vacation house will accommodate about 30 children at a time, who will be given a week's vacation at the place. Boys and girls will alternate during the several weeks. Each week the house will also be the centre of a couple of excursions from the city. These will comprise from 80 to 100 children who will visit Houghs Neck to spend the day there, returning to their homes in the evening. It is the purpose of the directors to restrict the privileges of the vacation week to the more needy children of the South end district, but the excursions will be open to all children who may desire to avail themselves of the opportunity of a day's outing.

The work will be conducted under the direct auspices of the Cathedral Sunday school. The institution is the idea of the Rev. Dr. F. X. Dolan of the Cathedral, who also conducted the vacation settlement at West Lynn last summer. He has had the assistance of the Sunday School teachers in furthering the work, and the means for maintaining the establishment have been supplied by small subscriptions and donations, the most of which have been collected by the teachers.

The supervision of the house will be in charge of members of the Sunday School Teachers' Association and members of the Cathedral Young Men's Catholic Association. The young women will have charge of the girls' weeks and the young men will direct the boys.

Much wholesome recreation will be provided for the children, and there will be an abundance of healthy food. Regular retiring hours will be insisted upon, and care will be taken to make rest and enjoyment the principal feature of the vacation week.

THE SEA SERPENT.

Quincy Men Declare They Saw the Monster in Boston Harbor.

On Sunday morning a party of well known Quincy gentlemen, at the invitation of the Commodore of the Quincy Yacht club, left Quincy Point on the Commodore's yacht "Countess" for a day's outing around the harbor. It was saved to them to get a view of the much discussed sea serpent and were it not for the excellent standing of the members of the party, there might be considerable doubt as to the truth of the statements made by the various gentlemen.

When the "Countess" was in the vicinity of Harding's ledge, about a mile to the eastward, Mr. Angier, who was sitting on the deck, called the attention of the party to an object, apparently about fifty or sixty feet long, floating in the water about two hundred yards from the yacht. The boat was headed for the object when to the consternation of the party a head was raised from the water and a violent squirming of the black object was commenced. The excitement among the party was intense. The boat was laid to the wind and for some two of three minutes every member of the party had a complete view of the huge animal.

The party consisted of Commodore Davis, Clarence Burgin, Charles A. Price, Henry M. Faxon, E. H. Angier, George W. Jones, Russell A. Sears, Frank F. Crane, F. S. Davis, Emery L. Crane, James M. Nowland and Joseph B. Groce.

Immediately upon receiving information of this startling news the Ledger man started to run the story down to some reliable foundation, if possible, and last night received the story from the mouth of the Commodore.

"Yes" Dr. Davis said, "it was the most remarkable thing that I ever saw.

We were coming up into the inner harbor, having been down nearly to Minot's light, when the first I knew my attention was called to something floating a little distance from the boat. We slacked off and came within several feet of what we then supposed was an overturned ship almost sunken, when the thing took life and an immense head was raised into the air and the whole thing began to wiggle like an eel. There was a loud hissing noise from the monster as he headed across our bow in the direction of the light. He swam with great rapidity and the wave sent forth by his passing was such as would be made by a small tug boat. I should estimate that the length of the body was somewhere between one and two hundred feet. It was difficult to say because the body was never straight. I am aware that the story is almost incredible and I should rather have you see some of the gentlemen of the party to confirm my judgment.

Henry M. Faxon, the well known yachtsman, was seen at his house and was told what Dr. Davis had said.

"I know of nothing more," said Mr. Faxon, "that I can add. It's a fact; an absolute fact. I should say the creature was fully a hundred or more feet in length. The head looked to me something like the head of the kind of animal that the Norsemen used to put at the bow of their boats — you know. I never expect to see such a sight again in my life."

Mr. Price was called upon, and seemed inclined to avoid an interview.

"What's the use" he said, "we shall only be a mark for our friends for a long time to come; still it is a fact." Upon being told that others of the party had been seen, Mr. Price confirmed what had been said. What I noticed the most," he said, "was the loud hissing that the thing made as it crossed our bow.

I can only liken it to the blow off of a steam craft. When I hear of the sea serpent in the future, I shall know that it is not all a joke."

"He looked to me" said Mr. Crane "just as I have seen pictures when a boy, shaped like a lizard of a black-brown color, eel like tail that was splashing the water and a head similar to a horse's, only many times larger. How he did glide through the water! He's the ugliest thing that I ever saw." And Mr. Crane was serious too.

Word has been sent to the Society of Research, Boston, and it is expected that their representative will call upon all who were aboard the lucky boat.

Fire at Braintree.

Box 46 was responded to by the fire department Monday afternoon at 4.10. for a fire in the house occupied by Edward Barrett on Washington street. The fire was started in the barn, the cause of which is unknown, and was burned to the ground in spite of the efforts of the firemen.

The house was partly destroyed. Loss about $1000. No insurance.

TODAY'S COURT.

Fred W. Brown was fined $3, and George W. Davenport $5, for disturbing the peace at Braintree.

The office of the Daily Ledger will be closed on the Fourth of July.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

One Quarryman Killed and Two Others Injured.

There was a serious accident at the quarry of C. H. Hardwick & Co., Monday afternoon, which resulted in one man dying shortly after from his injuries. Two others were also badly injured.

When word of the accident reached the Ledger office that afternoon, Mr. Hardwick was reached by telephone His reply was that there had been no serious accident, and that only one man had been slightly injured. However, it turned out that at that time one man was dying at the City Hospital.

The accident was caused by one of the gny ropes becoming loosened allowing the derrick to fall intothe qurry.

This quarry is a hundred or more feet deep, and at the time a large number of men were at work. Those who saw the derrick falling shouted a warning and the most of the men escaped

Herman Nordguila, a colored man named Johnston, and Solomon Anderson were not so fortunate however.

Nordguila was struck on the head and had his skull crushed. He died shortly after. Johnston was struck by a flying guy rope and sustained severe bruises. He was removed to the Hospital.

Anderson was struck on the arm, but was not seriously injured.

There was no load on the derrick at the time it fell, but a short time before a fifteen-ton block had been hoisted, and this evidently strained the guy ropes in such a manner as to loosen one of them.

Nordguila, the man killed, was about 40 years of age and has four children in Finland

Shipbuilding.

With the ending of the first six months of the year 1901, Bath makes an excellent showing in the way of shipbuilding, says a dispatch to the Herald. The total gross tonnage launched amounts to 23,866, exceeding the first six months of 1900 by 3100 tons. In addition to this is the torpedo boat Biddle of 64 tons, which is not required to be documented at the custom house.

During the six months the large steel tug Cuba and the barges Havana, Matanzas, Cardenas and Sagua, built for the Staples Coal Company of Taunton, Mass., have been launched. These are among the largest wooden barges ever built, and will carry 3000 tons of coal each. In addition to these is the big steel sailing ship built by Arthur Sewall & Co., for the Standard Oil Company of New York, and launched a few weeks ago.

The outlook is very promising for the last half of the year.

The Best Liniment for Strains.
Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

Fire! Fire!!
When that cry sounds how people rush to help and sympathize! And when some fireman rescues a woman from the flames, the streets echo with applauding shouts.

And yet if that woman had perished in the flames it is possible that she would have suffered less than she suffers almost daily from the inflammation which disease has lighted in the delicate womanly organism.
That fire of inflammation can be put out. The gnawing ulcer can be cured. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only establishes womanly regularity and dries enfeebling drains, but it heals inflammation and ulcerations and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.
"I suffered for four years with what four physicians pronounced ulceration and prolapsus of the uterus," writes Mrs. Ada Brooks, of Kirbyville, Taney Co., Missouri. "Also inflammation of bladder and urethra. My case was chronic and complicated. Had several good physicians, but kept getting worse. Had been confined to my bed five months when I wrote to you. I received your reply very soon and then dismissed my physician and began taking Dr. Pierce's medicines. I took eight bottles of his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and began to get better at once. In two months I could sit up in a chair, and kept getting better. In four months could do all my house work, including washing and sewing."
Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Councilman Freeman offered a loan order for $45,817.43 to cover the orders passed. To Committee on Finance.

"GAG LEGISLATION."

Councilman DeNormandie offered an order instructing the Finance Committee to report separate loan orders at the next meeting upon all orders that had been passed, calling for more than $300 that did not receive sixteen votes.

He said this method of passing orders with a low majority was a gag to legislation.

Chairman Bryant ruled the order out of order. He said there was no attempt at gag legislation.

Councilman DeNormandie appealed from the decision of the chair.

President Bryant was stating his position when Councilman DeNormandie arose and said he thought if the President intended to debate the matter he should take the floor. He was sharply called to order and President Bryant continued his argument.

CHUBBUCK STREET.

Reference to the next Council on the order for $7,500 for widening Chubbuck street. The report was rejected.

Upon motion of Councilman Newcomb the amount was made $6,000. In support of the order, Councilman Newcomb said last year it was planned to have a street from Washington streed to Des Moines road, and Chubbuck street seemed the most desirable street. Land for Chubbuck street extension was given with the understanding that this year the street should be widened. The development of the locality demands it.

Councilman DeNormandie asked the Commissioner if $6,000 would do the work with sidewalk.

Commissioner Knowlton replied that it would.

The order failed to pass by the following vote:

16 FEET AMPLE.

For Roadway on Cottage Avenue —Regrading Necessary.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

An article in your Ledger of July 1, 1901, signed "Cottager" is not only apt to deceive the public, but was in many respects uncalled for.

In 1830 Cottage avenue was laid out as a passageway for the tenants of the houses then or thereafter to be built upon it. At that time four houses, which are still standing, were built from the stones and timbers of the old Unitarian church. Upon this passage way since that time two more tenements have been added.

From these six houses and the adjacent streets there is little travel. It is not a main artery from one section of the city to another, as your article would make one believe, and never could be. The number of people who use and are benefited by it, is, and always will be, small. There is no doubt however that the passageway is in bad order and should be repaired, instead of being used by the city for a surface drain.

Cottage avenue is twenty-four feet wide and should be graded to line of Hancock street and Chestnut street and have a four-foot sidewalk on each side of the way, leaving a roadway of sixteen feet, which is ample for any teams to pass with safety night or day, with three feet between them.

The natural and proper way to accommodate general public who would like to visit the "hollow" would be to extend Maple place through to Chestnut street, coming out in front of the Orthodox church, bringing one to the business centre of the city and joining Granite to Washington street.

At Philadelphia the maximum temperature was 102 degrees, exceeding by one degree the previous highest record of July 26, 1892. At Washington the maximum of 102 degrees has been equalled and exceeded but once, on July 16, 1887, when it was 103 degrees. Warm weather will continue in New England. On the coast the winds will be mostly south to west.

Heartburn.

FEWER DEATHS AT BOSTON

But the Physical Depression of the People More Noticeable—Cities In West and South Are Suffering as Much at Those of New England

Boston, July 2.—The sigh for a cool breeze again went up in many parts of New England yesterday, for the thermometer indicated that the hot wave was still present, with no sign of a break-down. The day was not unlike Sunday, the heat and humidity figures being about the same, but people experienced physical depression to a more noticeable extent, although fatalities and casualties were not so many.

The weather bureau in Boston, which began its forecasting for New England yesterday for the first time, promises no relief. Heat casualties in Boston were numerous, with six deaths at the hospitals and six critical cases.

There was a peculiarly pathetic case of death from heat prostration in South Boston last evening. When Mrs. Frank A. Bepp reached home, after a hard day's work, she found her 15-months-old boy, Frank, who had been left in the home alone, dead in bed. The medical examiner pronounced the case one of heat prostration.

Although there was but one prostration with fatal result in Lowell yesterday, the effects of the heat were perceptible in the increased mortality among infants. Five such deaths were reported in Little Canada. Lizzie Robinson was overcome by the heat. She was removed to a hospital, where she died shortly after her arrival.

Joseph Broginni, aged 49, proprietor of the American House, Concord, N. H., died as the result of apoplexy, caused by the intense heat.

Suffering In New York

New York, July 2.—At 2 o'clock this morning the record for the 24 hours ending at that time in Greater New York was: 87 dead; prostrations, 163. For the last five days covering the present heated term, the total deaths in the same territory were 136. The records show that in the 30 years preceding yesterday, only two days in all that period had a higher temperature been reached. Those days were July 9, 1876, and July 3, 1898. On these days the thermometer reached 99 degrees. The suffering would have been much intensified had the humidity been great. The percentage of humidity was only 48.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 2.—The continuous hot wave is causing much suffering throughout this section. The thermometer last night registered 90 degrees, and there was increased humidity.

Jamestown, N. Y., July 2.—The temperature here yesterday was 98 in the shade during a part of the day. J. W. Upham fell dead on the street as a result of the heat.

Schenectady, N. Y., July 2.—Rachael Lansing was overcome by the heat yesterday and died. Several other prostrations occurred in this vicinity.

Elmira, N. Y., July 2.—The temperature here yesterday was higher than on any July 1 in 19 years, reaching 101. Several persons were prostrated by the heat. Several manufactories ceased operations for the day.

Shops Had to Close

Philadelphia, July 2.—Philadelphia and vicinity yesterday experienced the highest temperature ever recorded in this city, the government thermometer on the top of the postoffice building, 170 feet from the street, registering 102 degrees. Every one of Philadelphia's many hospitals were taxed to their full capacity. The extreme heat had a most demoralizing effect on the manufacturing establishments of the city, many having to close down. At Cramps' shipyard the prostrations were so numerous that the 5000 men employed there were dismissed at noon. At numerous other places scores of heat sufferers had to quit work.

Thermometer 102 at Washington

Washington, July 2.—The hot weather continued here yesterday, with unabated fierceness, the climax coming when the weather bureau thermometer recorded a temperature of 102 degrees. There were 20 cases of heat prostration reported, two of which resulted fatally.

Five Deaths at Chicago

Chicago July 2.—Five persons dropped dead on the streets in Chicago yesterday from the excessive heat, and 15 others were so badly overcome that they had to be removed to hospitals.

Held In Light Bail

Saco, Me., July 2.—In the municipal court yesterday probable cause was found against Horace E. Kimball, who was arraigned on the charge of assaulting Mrs. Abbie J. Newcomb, an elderly woman of Kennebunk, and he was bound over in $200 for his appearance before the grand jury. He obtained bail.

USED A STILETTO

How an Italian Attempted to Prevent Marriage of His Daughter

Malden, Mass., July 2.—Felix Oliverio, an Italian, stabbed Frank Veno, another Italian, under the eye in Malden square last night, because Veno was attempting to marry Oliverio's 14-year-old daughter, Mary, when, Oliverio claims, Veno has a wife in Italy.

In "Yankee Village," where Veno lives, it is said that sometime ago, Veno, who is about 26 years old, and whose attentions to Mary had been resented by her father, eloped with her to New York, but they were not married. Oliverio went there and brought the girl home. Both Mary and Veno wished to be married, and yesterday the man took out a license, and it was said they were to be married here today. Last night, the father, hearing of this, went to Veno's house and remonstrated with him. They came out, and made their way up to the square, arguing and threatening.

When they reached the square, Oliverio took out a stiletto about five inches long and stabbed Veno under the eye. An officer arrested both of them before the father had time to do any more damage. After they got inside the station house Oliverio attempted to attack Veno again, but was held by the officers.

Taft Becomes Civil Governor

Washington, July 2.—The president yesterday signed the commission of GOVERNOR WILLIAM H. TAFT.

William H. Taft of Ohio to be civil governor of the Philippine islands.

Big Strike Fairly On

Pittsburg, July 2.—The end of the first day of the strike troubles between the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers on one side and the American Sheet Steel company and the American Steel Hoop company, constituent companies of the United States Steel corporation, on the other, finds all of the union plants idle, and many workers from open mills, who are members of the Amalgamated association, on strike. The association officials claim to be satisfied with the situation, and claim they will be able to control between 35,000 and 40,000 men in the two companies. No move was made yesterday on either side, and it is doubtful if anything decisive will be done for at least a week.

Kaiser Loses a Naval Officer

Berlin, July 2.—During the races at Kiel there occurred a circumstance which has not hitherto been noticed. During the race in which the royal yacht was entered, a small German war vessel crossed the starting line in front of the competitors. Emperor William ordered the captain of the vessel to 24 hours' arrest. The captain obeyed, but the next day he resigned his commission in the navy.

Attacking Forces Defeated

Halifax, June 2.—The annual mobilization of the troops of the garrison, and the attack and defense of the city by sea and land took place yesterday. The umpires decided that the defense won all the operations. With the completion of new batteries, now under construction, Halifax will be an almost impregnable position.

Likely to Be Condemned

St. John, July 2.—The general opinion is that the wrecked steamer Armenia will be condemned. Superintendent Engineer Nash of the Anchor line arrived yesterday from New York and inspected the wreck. He will report to the New York office and there will be no definite statement until word from there is had.

Presented to British Navy

London, July 2.—It was announced in the house of lords yesterday that the hospital ship Maine, which was fitted out by a committee of American women for the use of the wounded and sick in the South African war, and which later was sent to Taku, had been presented, as a free gift, to the British navy.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

MURDER AND SUICIDE

Probably Prevented by the Timely Arrival of a Rescuer

Providence, July 2.—Incensed at his wife's refusal to further supply him with funds for the continuance of a debauch, Orin W Capron of Centredale shot her in the chin and shoulder, inflicting serious wounds. Capron attempted to end his own existence after the arrival of Dr. Corbett, who answered the call of Mrs. Capron for help, and a struggle was necessary before the physician secured the weapon. Capron afterward became repentant and did everything possible to alleviate his wife's sufferings. The wounds are not thought to be necessarily fatal.

Capron said his wife bothered him about going to work, and that he made up his mind not to stand it any longer. Procuring a revolver he went to where his wife was sitting, and demanded a dollar. Upon being refused he said he fired two shots, although the weapon missed fire a number of times.

Capron appears to be suffering from the effects of his debauch, although when arrested it was not evident that he was under the influence of liquor.

He is 45 years old, and his wife is 42. The couple have three children.

Butler Won the Race

New York July 2.—On a board track banked at the turns to an angle of 50 degrees, and the thermometer registering almost 100 degrees, many bicycle riders took part in the second indoor meet of the season at Madison Square Garden last night. Tom Cooper's bicycle slipped, and he took a tumble just at the spot where the McFarland-Nelson accident occurred a week ago. Cooper was only slightly scratched, although the accident put him out of the race, the final of which was won by Tom Butler of Boston.

A Disposition to Yield

Washington, July 2.—President O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists yesterday received dispatches from Cincinnati announcing that the men and their employers at that place were getting together. There are about 4000 men out in that city, and heretofore there seemed to be no disposition on the part of either to consider matters.

Offer of Gift of $750,000

Detroit, July 2.—The Detroit public library board has received a letter from Andrew Carnegie stating that he will contribute $750,000 toward the erection of a new public library building in this city.

SUMMER STOVES.

What's the use of making your summer miserable working over a red hot coal stove, when for a small expenditure you can own a Blue Flame Oil Stove and be cool and comfortable when you are doing your cooking. These stoves use common oil and burn as clear and clean as gas. Don't smoke your pans up either, and costs but the fraction of a cent an hour to run.

Now here's your chance to practice economy, as well as being up-to-date. You wouldn't part with a blue flame stove for ten times its cost, if you owned one and couldn't replace it. Glad to have you look them over.

STREET CARS ARE TIED UP

And Electric Lighting Companies Are Temporarily Disabled by the Tangle of Wires—One Life Lost and Many Narrow Escapes From Flying Debris

Boston, July 3.—For a period of about 10 minutes last evening residents of the southern and western sections of the city were treated to as nearly correct a representation of a western cyclone as they are anxious to experience, and, when the sky had cleared away, scores of houses in South Boston, Roxbury and Dorchester were minus their windows, chimneys, porches and roofs, while the streets in those sections were filled with broken branches, bricks and debris of every description.

Only one life was sacrificed to the fury of the gale. George Herder, 75 years old, a watchman at an unfinished house, in South Boston, was buried beneath the timbers of the house, which was toppled over upon him by the wind. Many narrow escapes from falling missiles are also on record. Street car traffic was interrupted for nearly two hours, and all of the electric wires were in a perfect maze of confusion.

Down in the bay, at the foot of L street, more than two score of yachts which were riding at anchor were forced adrift and many were landed bottom up on the beach. All buildings of frail construction along the shore were crushed like eggshells.

In the Andrew square section of South Boston the effects of the high wind and storm are in evidence. The two upper stories of a tenement house were blown away, and S. H. Richardson, Miss Lillie Bassett and a girl visitor were slightly hurt, while an old lady sustained such a shock to her nervous system that fatal results may follow.

A large shed, owned by Nicholas Herlan, a bottler, had its sides blown in and the roof lifted, while directly across the street two chimneys fell upon the roof of Mrs. Bridget Ellis' dwelling, crashing through into the upper story, and a shed in the rear collapsed.

On Locust street, Sipe's Dog and Lilliputian show's large tent collapsed, temporarily burying 175 employes and many of the animals. The latter became greatly frightened, and, after escaping from their canvas covering, raced around the enclosure for some time before they could be quieted. None of the employes or animals was injured.

Windows, skylights and sashes on all sides, and many trees were snapped off by the force of the gale. The wind came from off the bay and during the 10 minutes or less that it lasted was a veritable cyclone in its fury.

Throughout the Roxbury and Dorchester districts the wind and lightning played many pranks. Twenty surface cars of the Boston Elevated railway company had their motors burned out by the powerful electrical current, and in one instance a car caught fire from a lightning bolt that followed down the trolley pole to one of the wires connecting with a push button in one of the stanchions of the car. There was much alarm among the passengers, but none of them was hurt.

The Advent Christian church on Warren street was struck by lightning, but was only slightly damaged. Wires of all descriptions were mixed up in terrible confusion. This was the case in other districts over which the storm swept, and as a result the entire southern part of the city, South Boston, Roxbury and Dorchester, was without electric street lights last night.

A terrific thunderstorm and cyclone visited Webster, Mass., and vicinity, causing damage to the amount of nearly $25,000. The center of the storm was at Wilsonville, in the town of Thompson, Conn., just over the state line from Webster, and the chief damage was in that village.

During a cyclone which passed over Cohasset and vicinity, three large barns on the summer estate of Thomas W. Lawson of Boston were blown over and completely wrecked, entailing a loss of about $9000.

A severe thunderstorm passed over Norwell last night, the lightning doing considerable damage. A bolt struck a barn on the Nelson Gardner place, setting fire to the structure, which is a total loss. A house occupied by Charles Abbott was struck, the electrical current passing down the chimney to every room in the house, and passing out through the porch, which was set on fire. Although the members of the family were in the house, no one was injured, yet the family cat was killed.

End of the Armenia

St. John, July 3.—The diver's examination of the starboard side of the wrecked steamer Armenia at Nigger Head yesterday, showed that she rests on boulders, and has been badly broken. Hope of raising her has been given up.

MANY HORSES BURNED

In a Coal Wharf Fire Which Caused $400,000 Damage at Boston

Boston, July 3.—The stable and wharves of the Metropolitan Coal company were burned early this morning. Out of 75 draught horses in the stables 20 were burned to death, and property destroyed to the possible extent of $400,000. Several other buildings in the vicinity were destroyed or damaged, including a couple of tenements. The latter were occupied, but the tenants got out in safety.

The origin of the fire is unknown up to a late hour this morning. It is supposed to have started in the northwest corner of the plant, near First street, in the stables.

The "State House" on Colton street, occupied by about 20 families of colored people, employed by the company, was completely gutted, and the occupants had a close call. So, also, did the two families of a house on First street.

The stampeding of terrified and blistered, injured horses; their screaming neighs, the shouts, the yells, the crashing of falling timber, the thundering, hissing clamor of the engines—all combined to make a scene of "confusion worse confounded."

The sheds were all of wood, in them were some 80,000 tons of coal. Outside were piled about 500 cords of hard, dired wood. They burned like tinder.

Liberal Leader May Resign

London, July 3.—That the crisis in the ranks of the Liberal party has reached an acute stage was publicly admitted and deplored by Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, the leader of the party, in a speech at Southampton last night. A meeting of the party has been suddenly convened for next Tuesday, when it is expected he will offer his resignation. The imperialist section of the Liberal party has been doing its utmost to enlist Lord Roseberry on its side, but the latter has made no sign of meeting its desires.

A Fearful Death List

New York, July 3.—Between the hours of 2 a. m. yesterday and 12:45 a. m. today, there were in the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, 158 deaths and 177 prostrations. This tells in brief a story of a vast deal of suffering. However, the effects of the heat were somewhat mitigated late yesterday afternoon by a succession of thunderstorms, which cleared the atmosphere, and sent the mercury tumbling down 10 degrees between the hours of 4:30 and 8 p. m.

China's Troubles Increasing

Tientsin, July 3.—Fresh reports of fighting in Manchuria and on the frontier of Chili province have been received here. A pitched battle has been fought at Sheng-Yang, in which the natives defeated the Mohammedans. General Tung Fu Sian is reported as attacking the Chinese converts in Shan Si province.

Long Journey For Tug

Washington, July 3.—The naval tug Fortune, now at Boston, has been ordered by the navy department to make the trip around South America to Puget sound, where naval tugs are much in demand. The trip will be about 14,000 miles, and will be one of the longest on record for a craft of this character.

Reading Strike Settled

Reading, Pa., July 3.—The Reading railway striking shop hands yesterday ratified the agreement with President Baer, and it was decided to return to work on Friday. Over 1200 men were present at the meeting.

CORNELL'S FINE ROWING

Brings Success In 'Varsity and Four-Oared Races

ACCIDENT TO FRESHMEN

Deprived Her of Having Three Victories to Her Credit—Records Are Shattered In the Finest Race Ever Seen on the Hudson

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 3.—A new record for 'varsity eights was made on the Hudson river last evening, and, what is more, the four leading crews in the race each broke the old record by many seconds. The times were:

'Varsity eights: Cornell, first, time, 18:53 1-5; Columbia, second, time, 18:58; Wisconsin, third, time, 19:06 4-5; Georgetown, fourth, time, 19:21. The best previous time for 'varsity eights was 19:44 3-5. No time was taken for Syracuse and Pennsylvania, who were many lengths behind.

In the 'varsity four, Cornell was first, time, 11:39 3-5; Pennsylvania, second, time, 11:45 2-5; Columbia, third, time, 11:51 2-5. The best previous record for the distance was 10:31 1-5.

In the freshman race, Pennsylvania was first, time, 10:20 1-5; Cornell, second, time, 10:23; Columbia, third, time, 10:36 1-5; Syracuse, fourth, time, 10:44. The previous record for freshmen eights for this distance was 9:19 1-2.

Georgetown, a new rival for honors, and to whom little attention had been paid, got inside the time record, and hung on to the leaders with a tenacity that surprised everybody. Pennsylvania was never in the race with its second crew, and Syracuse, with its light oarsmen, were outclassed, although they pulled through to the end.

The 'varsity race was one of the fiercest struggles ever witnessed in college aquatics, and had any one of the crews in the lead have failed because of physical weakness the tailenders were ready to take their places and make good time at that. As it was, although the race was one of the most severe ever rowed, there was not a sign of distress in any boat.

From the 1 1-2-mile point to the 3-mile point, at the bridge, was one of the most remarkable feats of endurance and skill ever witnesses. Cornell, rowing a low stroke, to the minute, kept the nose of her shell just a scant half length in front of Columbia, who, with a higher stroke, and a clean running boat, made desperate efforts to reach her rival. Wisconsin, a half length behind Columbia, made equally great efforts, but they seemed to be of no avail, and Georgetown held on the trio of pacemakers wth a tenacity that won for her the plaudits of the spectators. Those who watched the terrific pace being made looked at any moment to see one of the four leaders go to pieces, but they swept down under the bridge without changing positions.

Here it was that Columbia made a desperate attempt to take the lead. Her stroke hit up the swing and her boat in less than five seconds had evened up with Cornell, and in another five had shoved its nose 10 feet to the front. From the observation train went up a mighty roar "Columbia wins," but there was still a mile of water to cover, and Cornell had an unknown reserve.

The Ithaca boat had been pushed forward at the lowest stroke rowed by any of the crews, and when the Columbia boat rushed to the front they raised it slightly, and, taking the lead again, passed toward the finish line, increasing the lead, until, when the line was crossed, they had a length and a quarter advantage over Columbia. Wisconsin had found herself unable to get any more speed in the last mile, and finished two lengths and a half behind Columbia. Georgetown had hung on like a young bulldog, and finished only a scant two lengths behind the Wisconsin crew. Syracuse and Pennsylvania were distanced.

The four-oared race for the Davidson-Kennedy challenge trophy was called first, the competing crews being Pennsylvania, Columbia and Cornell. At the report of the referee's pistol Pennsylvania's four caught the water first, but they were quickly followed by Cornell and Columbia. There was a brave fight for the lead. Near the last quarter Cornell spurted and again decreased Pennsylvania's lead, while Columbia dropped to the rear. The Ithacans seemed to have plenty of reserve power left, and made another spurt when near the finish, closing up the gap between the two shells, and taking the lead over Pennsylvania, winning the race by a length and a half.

The freshman race between crews representing the universities of Cornell, Pennsylvania and Syracuse for the Steward's cup, presented by Francis S. Bangs, was a beautiful struggle from start to finish. Cornell began splashing badly near the close, and it was discovered that Torrey, at No. 5, had broken his oarlock. The Cornell eight were unable, after that, to regain the lead, and Pennsylvania won by half a length. Columbia was third by three lengths, and Syracuse fourth by two lengths and a half.

FOURTH OF JULY NOTICE.

There will be no Daily Ledger on Thursday, the Fourth of July, the office of publication being closed for the day. See Friday's paper for news of the holiday.

Good Afternoon.

It is a little more than one-half a century since the public school children of this place formed a line in front of the then Quincy Stone Bank to march in a Fourth of July procession. Miss Mary Adams and Miss Butler led the line. Later in the day all were assembled in the Town hall, and Josiah Quincy, great-grandfather of the present ex-Mayor of that name, began to make a speech and got confused and stopping said, "I had an idea, but this old brain won't get it out." His son, Mr. Josiah Quincy came to the rescue and commencing with "my father's hesitancy reminds me of a story, which will allow the old gentleman to collect his thoughts and to go on." Not one member of this distinguished family lives in our city today; but we have the Adamses still among us.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞How different things would be in Philadelphia and Pittsburg and all Pennsylvania today, if at the last state election the voters had chosen such a governor as Massachusetts did.—Hartford Courant.

☞All things being equal, we prefer to patronize home talent, but in this case we do wish Massachusetts had been neighborly enough to have given us the loan of Governor Crane for a week or so.—Philadelphia City and State.

☞The Harvard navy will come up smiling again next year, just as if nothing had happened. The soreness of defeat at the hands of Yale disappears in a twelfth month, but they never could get over being done up by oarsmen from Skowhegan.—Lynn Item.

☞We have never regarded the raising of prices by the trusts as at all the most serious phase of the situation created by them. It is the effect of the profound change which they seem to be working in the whole structure of society that is the thing most worth considering. If the tendencies which have been manifest for some years, and which are now more conspicuous and more powerful than ever before, shall continue unchecked, it can hardly be doubted that they will pave the way for radical changes in governmental institutions. A hundred million people will not be content indefinitely with the economic domination of a handful of financial organizers responsible to no one but themselves. Whether the cost of products is a little higher or a little lower will make no difference in the settlement of so profound a question, affecting the very constitution of society.—Baltimore News.

Killed While Fighting Flames

Northampton, Mass., July 3.—While fighting a forest fire on the side of Mt. Tom yesterday, Levi Wells was burned to death. It is supposed he became entangled in some underbrush, and was rendered unconscious by the smoke, so that he could not escape the flames. He was 55 years old, and married. Over 1000 cords of wood and much lumber were destroyed.

TERRIFIC THUNDER STORM.

Several Houses Struck---Others Damaged by Wind---Woman Injured.

No Part of the City Seemed to Escape the Fury of the Storm.

Seldom has a more severe storm visited Quincy than that late yesterday afternoon. The storm although of short duration was unusually severe and the lighting and high wind did a large amount of damage.

It was but a little after 5 o'clock when the first signs of the approaching storm were apparent by the darkening of the clouds and the distant rolling of thunder. This was followed by wind which increased in violence until at the height of the storm it blew a gale that rent limbs from large trees, tore off shingles and in one case at least took the roof from a house under construction.

It was some minutes before rain began to fall but when it did, the rain came in sheets that beat into the hot earth. Accompanying this were sharp flashes of lightning and heavy thunder. The flashes of lightning were blinding and at times sounded like the sharp crack of a whip, causing the telephone bells to jingle and the bells on the fire alarm circuit to strike.

The shower was practically over at 6 o'clock, although at that time there was an occasional flash of lighning. Then the fire alarm bells struck box 37, and it was evident that some building had been fired. This proved to be the house on the corner of School and Franklin street owned by Mrs. Wood and occupied in part by Mrs. William J. Howard. The interior of the house was badly torn and the plastering thrown about, setting the house on fire. Mrs. Howard was struck by something but whether it was the lightning bolt that grazed her or a piece of flying wood that struck her she does not know but thinks it was the lightning. She received a bad cut over one eye and Dr. Welch who was called took several stitches in it. The fire was quickly extinguished the department making an unusually quick response.

The lightning entered the house by the chimney, which was bent and twisted out of shape. It then passed down through the house tearing away everything in its path. As it passed through a bedroom the bed was taken up and turned about. Windows and door casings were splintered and many pranks played. It is estimated that $200 will be required to put it into shape again. Mrs. Howard received a bad fright and she did not fully recover all night. She declares that it was the lightning that struck her, but that can not be so. If it had been lightning she could not have lived to tell the story. She was probably struck by flying debris.

A large elm tree on Elm street near the residence of Officer Goodhue and a large tree in the yard of Councilman Thompson were struck. Large limbs were torn off. Limbs were torn from the trees all through the street which was strewn with the broken limbs; also on Bigelow street near the brook.

The telephone poles on Mill street caught it. Some were broken short off and others were splintered. Circuit No. 2 of the fire alarm also suffered.

The new arc light on Bigelow street was blown down and a tree near the street railway barn was blown over, so that it rested on top of a street car.

On Spear street a chimney in the house belonging to the estate of Franklin Hardwick was demolished, also one at the house occupied by C. F. Hardwick. An apple tree at G. W. Prescott's was also badly split, and other damage done.

AT ATLANTIC.

The house of Assessor William B. Glover at Atlantic was another mark for the lightning's queer pranks. The bolt ran down the chimney into the house and out through the cellar. It did but little damage. Some of the plastering was torn off and the woodwork scorched. The building however, did not take fire. The occupants received a bad fright.

AT SOUTH QUINCY.

A house on Rodman street was quite seriously damaged by the lightning. A chimney was demolished, a stretch of the shingling ripped off, a number of the clap boards and a window on the north side were torn out. The house is otherwise severely shaken. None of the inmates were touched.

A new house on Trafford street, belonging to Jasper Rastelli and occupied by Mr. Alfred Spargo and family, was struck on the roof by the lightning which torn off about ten feet of the shingles. None of the occupants were hurt.

AT WEST QUINCY.

A telephone pole at the junction of Copeland and Willard street was struck and the cable box demolished and burnt out. Several wires were burnt off and fell into the street.

The Swedish Baptist church at Brewers corner was struck apparently in the spire of the building. The windows in the building were smashed and the shingles and clapboards torn off. Fortunately the building did not take fire.

The barn of Philip Sullivan on West street was struck by lightning. The bolt passed down through the hay and almost split the barn in half. It also tore it badly. The barn however did not take fire.

AT QUINCY POINT.

On Cleverly Court Mr. Glidden's shed was moved about three feet and a smaller building was carried over the fence and demolished. At Isaac Bent's a maple tree was split in twain.

On South street, a large sign board on the meadow was completely demolished, and an apple tree and pear tree in Crane's yard were blown over.

On Cherry street, Mr. Quinn's house under construction was badly damaged, the entire roof being crushed in and a tool shop on the same premises was twisted and moved a foot or two.

On Washington street, in front of Hose house, a large elm tree was split the broken half falling towards the street, the trunk part remaining supported by the feed cables and wires. The telephone wires to the hose house were broken and rested on the other wires and trolly. As a precautionary measure a sign was put out "live wire —dangerous." The debris was cleared away by railroad men.

Numerous branches of trees strewed the street from Chubbuck to the bridge.

At Pine Point house an eighteen foot boat belonging to Mr. R. Justin, the proprietor, was carried from the end of the hotel to the beach on the north side of the house, a distance of 300 feet and completely destroyed, being split from stem to stern. A number of doors were blown down and several windows broken.

As New Downer Landing the plank walk ripped up at entrance about 30 feet and carried over flats. The theatre was partly destroyed; the piano tipped off stage into auditorium and completely destroyed; the fence on south side was all blown down

AT WOLLASTON.

Lightning did little damage at Wollaston. The roof of Shunks news stand lost a few shingles. On Wollaston avenue a brick chimney was struck. A telegraph post on Standish avenue was badly split. On Elm avenue two telegraph wires were burnt out.

AT HOUGHS NECK.

The wind, lightning and sea were wicked during Tuesday's storm. It is estimated that the wind must have blown at least 60 miles an hour. The sea was blown in whirls. A small boat sailed by Charles May and "Dave" was capsized near Nut island. The men were fortunate to escape, and they saved the yacht, too. Capt. Andrews' cottage, the Mayflower, on Crosby street was struck and the chimney demolished. The Danielson cottage nearby suffered, and also other cottages.

Mrs. Alice Cobb returned from Cape Elizabeth, Tuesday reaching home about 8 P. M. She did not encounter the storm.

Commissioner Knowlton advertises today for proposals for building the foundation and bridge over the railroad tracks at Warren avenue.

The hours at the Quincy Post office tomorrow will be from 7 to 10 A. M. and 5 to 7 P. M. There will be one delivery and collection in the morning.

News from Mr. and Mrs. George Morton report a most enjoyable trip every way thus far. The latest word from them from Lucerne says: "Seven days in Naples, nine in Rome, six in Florence," etc., and adds "All that we have heard about Switzerland was not overdrawn. Words can not describe it."

Mrs. Frederick Lapham of Coddington street had a rough experience during the storm. She was going down Coddington street toward her house, under the shelter of an umbrella, when the wind caught it. She held onto the handle, however, and was thrown down and rolled along the street for nearly forty feet, and then thrown against a stone wall with such force as to bruise her badly.

Seventy-five years ago this Fourth of July the light began to dawn for John Adams, not the light of this world, but of an eternal one. The current Harper's for this month alludes to this fact, concerning our eminent townsman and second President, and Thomas Jefferson, who also joined him upon the last journey on the same day. It is pleasant on this anniversary, to see the old President Adams mansion opened and to see members of the family at home there.

KILLED AT CROSSING.

Quincy Man Driving Over Road to New Hampshire.

Had Span and Three Carriages.

John Bradley, a Faithful Employe of J. H. Dinegan.

About 5 A. M., Monday, John Bradley of Chestnut street, left Quincy over the road with the horses and carriages for West Wilton, N. H., where the family of John H. Dinegan of School street are to spend the summer on the farm of D. Vinton Pierce, also of Quincy.

The turnout included a Beverly carriage with pole, drawn by a pair of horses, and behind a covered buggy and a rubber tired runabout. Comment was made before the start that in Ohio such a carriage would have had a brake and the importance will later be realized.

The trip the first day was uneventful. Mr. Bradley reached Lowell, the home of his sister, at 4 P. M., and sent postals to his wife and Mr. Dinegan announcing everything O. K.

Early Tuesday morning Mr. Bradley proceeded on his trip and had almost reached his destination when a fatal accident occurred. A railroad crossing was approached on down grade and also on a curve and was hidden from view by trees. When too late Mr. Bradley realized the danger. He possibly might have saved himself, for he was seen by two women to rise in his seat and whip up the horses in an attempt to save them and the carriages. Had he had a brake he might have checked the momentum of the carriages, and kept them off the crossing which was without gates or flagman.

A dispatch to the Globe from Wilton, N. H., gives the fullest particulars:

An accident which resulted in the death of one man and demolition of three carriages occurred at Richardson, a flag station and crossing about two miles east of here.

The first seen of the team by the engineer was on the crossing. The fireman saw the danger and shouted to the engineer who immediately shut off steam and applied the emergency brake, but it was impossible to avoid a collision. The engine struck the front end of the first carriage freeing the horses and throwing Mr. Bradley about 40 feet, where he fell beside the track.

The three vehicles, being hitched together, were carried along in front and beside the locomotive until they reached a milk platform some 30 feet from where they were struck and were crushed into kindling.

As soon as possible the trainmen went to the unfortunate man but he breathed only a few times and did not speak. The body was taken to Milford and placed in charge of an undertaker.

As the team was a strange one in this section and the dead man also unknown it was several hours before complete identification could be had. A business card bearing the name of Mr. John H. Dinegan and a postal directed to Mr. Dinegan, Quincy, Mass., assisted in the identification. The postal was evidently intended to have been mailed at Wilton on his arrival and would have notified Mr. Dinegan of his safe arrival here.

The train was in charge of conductor F. T. Sears, engineer E. F. Lawrence and fireman Harley Mastic.

The later says the man evidently saw his danger a moment before the locomotive struck and tried to escape by whipping up the horses but was too late.

The accident occurred about 4 P. M., within four miles of the destination, and a telegram seeking identification was a sad blow to his wife and relatives, and to Mr. Dinegan and family. Mr. Bradley resided with his wife and little daughter of four years, on Chestnut street in the family of his wife's parents Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown. For many years he has been in the employ of Mr. Dinegan, and was highly esteemed as a reliable, conscientious and faithful all-round man. He took care of the horses, drove the children to school and about town, and will be greatly missed.

Mr. Bradley's father resides in Braintree and one of his brothers is the Rev. James Bradley at St. Mary's college in Baltimore.

Mr. Dinegan and Undertaker Bean left early this morning for the scene of the accident, and may return tonight with the body.

An inquest over Mr. Bradley was held today.

John Adams Afterwards President, Foretold the Celebration of the Fourth of July.

July 3, 1776, John Adams wrote to his wife:

"The second day of July, 1776 will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to G d Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward for evermore."

As the Declaration was formally adopted on July 4th, 1776, that is the date now celebrated.

PLUMBERS AGREE.

Ames & Bradford Men Will Work Eight Hours.

Ames & Bradford and their plumbers came to a mutual agreement this morning, and the men have returned to work on the eight-hour basis. By choice, the men will work from 7 A. M. to 12, and 1 to 4 P. M.

It is reported that all the plumbers of the city have signed the agreement, so that the 8-hour day among plumbers becomes general.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

Y. M. C. A. Fete.

The grounds about the Dorothy Q mansion looked very pretty before the storm yesterday. They had been decorated for the lawn fete given under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A building fund. Booths were arranged about the spacious grounds for the sale of ice cream, lemonade, candy and pop corn. The storm rather marred their beauty as well as limited the attendance. The grounds were, however, illuminated with Chinese lanterns and looked attractive.

A pleasing program was given including a concert by the City band; readings by little Ella Adams; mandolin solo by Mr. Briggs; solos by Miss Ruth Packard; readings by Miss Lutze; selections by the Swedish Congregational church choir and the Huntington male quartette.

Out of Quarantine.

The MacLeod family, and their two men boarders who have been under quarantine since May 30, were released Tuesday, as all danger of their having the smallpox has passed.

The only persons now under quarantine are MacBeth, the first man taken with the disease and the girl, Bessie MacLeod. MacBeth has practically recovered and it is intended now, unless something new developes, to release him on Saturday.

The girl had the disease in a very mild form and it will not be long before she will be released.

Gravity Steeplechase.

This very popular resort will be opened to the public on Thursday next, July 4, at Revere Beach, at 2 P. M.

A private opening will take place on the evening of July 3, for the members of the press and the personal friends of the parties interested.

For weeks past it has been the scene of wonder and mecca of thousands of visitors to the beach and already it has a large host of warm friends; all predict that it will jump at once into public favor.

The management has given the closest attention to the novelties, the third degree regions, and cave of the winds will furnish the most startling and realistic results. The funny stairway is all that the name applies and is in itself a strong enough attraction to warrant an extra charge but it will be free to all visitors.

O'Connell Reports Victory

Washington, July 3.—President O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists says that he regards the machinists' strike as practically won.

Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

THE SEA SERPENT.

Might Not Have Been Over Fifty Feet Long.

Nobody ever expected that a Quincy man, a resident of the home of Faxon, would see a sea serpent, but the new century is responsible for many new and record smashing things. It is stated positively by ex-Mayor Sears that there was nothing stronger than ginger ale on the Countess on the eventful trip. Treasurer Burgin of the Quincy Saving bank judges the length of the serpent by the bank room. He says the reptile would reach nearly across the street side, which would make it fully 200 feet.

Still many are skeptical of the report. The yacht Mudjekeewis, formerly owned by Dr. Davis, sailed up past Harding's ledge on Sunday. Commodore A. L. Baker says they saw no snake. His crew were all sober.

WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN

Inferior to McKinley In One Respect, According to Secretary Long

Boston, July 3.—The Massachusetts club, the great power in state politics, because it is generally supposed to be made up of the stalwarts in the Republican party, held its annual midsummer outing at Nantasket yesterday. Hon. John D. Long was the special guest of the occasion, and Robert T. Davis, who was a contemporary of Secretary Long in congress, presided.

Secretary Long came characteristically clad in a warm weather suit of seersucker, and his remarks were as informal as his attire. He told of the work of the various heads of bureaus in Washington, praised the achievements of the administration and eulogized the president. He thought that when the history of these times is written, McKinley's name will be linked with those of Washington and Lincoln. In his phrases of eulogy he called attention to McKinley's superiority to both Washington and Lincoln in one respect—his remarkable ability in "getting along with congress," a sphere of influence in which Lincoln failed on several occasions, and in which even Washington in his second administration did not achieve signal success.

After incidentally referring to some of the remarks of the Phi Beta Kappa orators at commencements, he concluded his remarks by alluding to what has been accomplished toward establishing stable conditions in Porto Rico and Cuba, which, he thought, would ultimately seek some kind of affiliation with the United States; in the Philippines and in China, to which a liberal portion of the indemnity expected of her would, he ventured to say, be returned. Secretary Long was the only speaker.

On a Political Errand

Washington, July 3.—Much curiosity has been felt here as to the meaning of the visit of General Gomez to this country, and all sorts of rumors have been set afloat. It is said, on authority, however, that Gomez has come here to visit T. E. Palma, presumably on a political errand connected with the organization of the new republican government in Cuba. The United States government knows nothing officially of his purpose.

Combine's Move Puzzles

Pittsburg, July 3.—The announcement yesterday that the sheet steel combine had cut prices occasioned surprise, as it is known that all the mills have been busy, and many orders remain unfilled. The heaviest cut is on No. 23, the standard gauge, which is reduced from $3.55 per 100 pounds to $3.10. The lighter guages have been cut in price from $1 to $3 a ton. The move has puzzled the amalgamated officials.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

AND STILL NO RELIEF

Hot Wave Continues Throughout New England

ANIMALS FEEL ITS EFFECT

Causing an Alarming Increase In Infantile Diseases—Seventy Deaths Directly Due to Heat In a Period of Six Days

Boston, July 3.—A gale of wind, accompanied by a beautiful electrical display on great banks of black clouds, and here and there deluges of rain, temporarily broke up the heat wave throughout New England late yesterday afternoon.

The storm in most sections gathered in about half an hour and spent its force in a few minutes, leaving considerable ruin to mar the visit. Then, after the rain, the sun on the western horizon gave a peculiar glow, which seemed to turn the sky a greenish-yellow. Cool air came with the dusk, but the mercury began to rise about 9 o'clock, giving the weather-wise an opportunity to say that there is more heat in store.

The storm ended the sixth day, and practically the worst, of the heated spell, for, while fatalities were not quite as numerous as on some other days, the prostrations were many and severe. Animals succumbed more readily and infantile diseases were increasing to an alarming extent.

Along the New England coast early in the day the east wind tried to put in an appearance, dropping the mercury nearly 20 degrees, but by noon the hot wave reasserted itself.

During the six days of intensely hot weather, about 70 deaths from the heat directly were reported in New England, of which number a score were in Boston. Drowning claimed the next larger number, mostly among boys, and there was a general increase in deaths by violence.

The Boston police reports last night showed that there had been four deaths and 30 prostrations in the city during the day.

There is great suffering among horses in Boston. Scores of them have been prostrated and many have died. The Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is providing a headgear for the protection of horses in the shape of a small straw bonnet, almost conical in shape, with holes at each side for the ears. The contrivance is fastened to the bridle by strings. More than 20 horses have died in Cambridge from the heat.

An electrical storm last night broke the heat spell to a considerable extent at Fall River, but caused some property damage. The electrical car service was crippled and telegraphic communication interrupted. It was the hottest day of the present heated spell, it being 102 degrees at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

The thermometer registered 102 in the shade at Clinton, but sufferers from the heat were temporarily relieved last evening by a severe thunderstorm, accompanied by a gale of wind. Several horses dropped in the street during the heated part of the day.

Lowell was again enveloped in a blanket of humidity, the effects of which were even more uncomfortable than any of the proceeding temperature kiting days. There were three deaths by prostration. An undertaker in Little Canada reports the death of 15 children in the past few days. Perhaps the greatest sufferers in Lowell are the people who live in the crowded tenement house district. A large proportion of the little ones there are ill on account of the excessive heat.

Two deaths resulted from the heat yesterday at Springfield.

Mrs. Eliza McMahon and Mrs. Fannie Bowles were killed by the intense heat at Lawrence yesterday, and there were four prostrations reported.

Yesterday was the hottest of the season at Marlboro, the temperature reaching 104 degrees in several places, while 100 degrees was quite general. There were a few prostrations, but no fatal results.

One death from the heat occurred yesterday at Manchester, N. H. There were also two prostrations. Both are in a hospital in a critical condition.

Not the Worst on Record

Washington, July 3.—The weather bureau last night issued the following:

The hot wave which has prevailed over New England, the middle Atlantic states, the lake region, the Ohio valley and the Central west and northwest, continued Tuesday, although temporary relief was afforded during the afternoon by numerous thunderstorms in New England and the middle Atlantic states and at Chicago and St. Louis. At Philadelphia a maximum temperature of 102 degrees was again reached; at Washington it was 100; at New York city, 98; at Boston, 94; at Albany, 98; at Scranton, 98; at St. Louis, 96; at Louisville, 96, and at Alpena, Mich., 92. Maximum temperatures above 90 also occurred in the extreme western states.

As yet this warm wave has not equalled in duration those of 1881 and 1900, except in New York city. Neither have the extreme temperatures of the present wave yet exceeded the previous highest record, although they were nearly equal to them.

The eastward movement of another low pressure area in the extreme west renders it improbable that there will be any long continued relief from the high temperatures over districts now affected, but it is now probable they will reach the previous extreme in the Atlantic states on account of the influence of a moderate West Indies disturbance, which appears to be moving northwestward over the lesser Antilles.

Succumbed to Heart Disease

New York, July 3.—Albert L. Johnson of Cleveland, brother of Mayor Tom Johnson, died last night at Brooklyn from an affection of his heart. Although he had been ill for some time, he had only been confined to the house about three weeks. At his bedside when he died were his wife and four children, his brother, Thomas L. Johnson, and his mother.

Not Afraid of Kariad

London, July 3.—Sir Thomas Lipton says that if Mr. Clark wishes to challenge for the America's cup the way is open to him to give the usual notice for a race in 1902. He had not the shadow of doubt of the Shamrock II's ability to beat the Kariad handsomely, as had already been proved when the Shamrock I beat the Kariad by 55 minutes in Wemyss bay. Mr. Jameson is so satisfied over this that he has proposed to Mr. Clark a series of matches on the America's cup conditions, between the ex-challenger and the Kariad.

Storm In Connecticut

New Haven, July 3.—Connecticut's hot wave was broken last night by a thunderstorm that broke in the western part of the state, and traversed a wide area, stripping down trees and setting fire to buildings. All over the state electric traffic, and along the line of the Central New England railroad, steam travel, was greatly obstructed by fallen trees and wires. Telephone communication was almost entirely cut off for two hours, and but meagre reports are obtainable from certain sections.

Tongues Were Unbridled

Brussels, July 3.—A riotous scene between Socialists and Ministerialists in the chamber of representatives yesterday was provoked by a Socialist interpellation over the recent speech of the general of the civil guard, who is reported to have exhorted his men, in case of a riot, to fire on the mob. "Liar" and "assassin" were among the epithets hurled at the Ministerialists. The house, ultimately, approved the government's position in the matter.

Move In Barker's Behalf

Trenton, N. J., July 3.—A writ of error in the case of Thomas G. Barker, who shot Rev. John Keller, was filed yesterday, with the county clerk of Hudson county, by counsel for Barker. The writ is returnable here at the November term of the court. Barker will be kept in the county jail for several days at the request of his counsel. He will be brought here probably within a week.

The Seventh National Difficulties

New York, July 3.—United States District Attorney Burnett has delegated W. S. Ball to assist Examiner Raynor in the investigation of the affairs of the Seventh National bank, with especial reference to possible criminal proceedings by the government against the officials who it may be found have violated the law.

Town Destroyed by Fire

Phoenix, Ariz., July 3.—The mining town of Globe, 100 miles east of Phoenix, has been almost totally destroyed by fire. The loss is very heavy. The wires are down and particulars are unobtainable at present.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

The office of the Daily Ledger will be closed on the Fourth of July.

SHOT IN THE HEAD

Policeman Who Endeavored to Quell a Row Is Killed

Arlington, Mass., July 3.—During a quarrel here between John G. Smith, a negro, and an Italian fruit dealer, Patrolman Garrett J. Cody, who attempted to restore order, was shot in the head and severely wounded. Smith is under arrest, charged with the shooting.

It is stated that during the row the fruit dealer threatened to stab Smith. Officer Cody took a hand in the affray and seized Smith. The latter, however, managed to get possession of the officer's revolver, and, it is alleged, fired five shots at Cody, one of which took effect in the officer's head.

Smith fled, but was captured later, just over the Cambridge line, by Officer Brennan. The negro was brought to the police station here, after making a stubborn resistance, and was locked up. Officer Cody was taken to a Boston hospital, where he died.

Moran Is Doing Fast Riding

Boston, July 3.—By the hardest sort of riding, J. F. Moran pulled himself to the top of the score in the Golden Wheel six-day race at Charles River park last night. Will Stinson excelled him in mileage by a few yards, but his low score Monday night left him in third place. Moran's speed was superb, although he had a fall which shook him up considerably. Walthour has been suspended for a week for not riding to win on the first night.

Full Swing For Celebrators

Boston, July 3.—The celebration of the Fourth in this city is likely to be a little more vigorous than usual, because it is the 125th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and Mayor Hart has asked the police department to be lenient with the celebrators. The police, contrary to the custom, will permit the use of fireworks in the public streets, commons and squares for 20 hours. The use of firearms, however, is barred.

German Couple Deported

Boston, July 3.—Peter Feilzer and his wife were before United States Commissioner Fisk yesterday, charged with being fugitives from justice from Germany, where they are wanted to answer to a charge of forging a will. The couple were given a hearing and were ordered deported to Germany. They were arrested recently on board the steamship Saxonia.

Disease Believed to Be Spreading

Fall River, Mass., July 3.—Five new smallpox cases were discovered yesterday in the family of J. B. Gagnon, whose wife fell a victim to the disease two weeks ago. There is considerable alarm in the city, as it is believed that the contagion is spreading.

Better Than Contract Required

Bath, Me., July 3.—The official trial of the torpedo boat Biddle was held over the Southport course yesterday, and she easily exceeded the speed called for in the contract. Without being pushed to the limit, she made 28.6 knots, the contract being 28 knots.

A Blondin Suspect

Manchester, N. H., July 3.—A stranger was arrested on a street here last night, on the supposition that he might be Blondin. The suspect stated that he was William Lyman, and had escaped from an insane asylum at Cleveland.

End of Fish Combination

Boston, July 3.—The National Fish company, organized in February, 1900, with a capital of several hundred thousand dollars, has gone out of existence. Only 11 of the 34 fish dealers on or near T wharf entered the combine. Each member now has resumed business on his own account.

Resigned From a Distance

Lowell, Mass., July 3.—At the meeting of the common council last night a letter was read from President Brousseau, who has been missing from this city since early in March, in which he resigns his seat in the common council. The letter was dated Escaraba, Mich. The resignation was accepted.

Salem People Burned Out

Salem, Mass., July 3.—Fire broke out in the Hurley block yesterday afternoon and it was destroyed. The building embraced several small tenements. It is thought that the fire was caused by children playing with matches. The loss on the building will be about $12,000.

Young Man Charged With Forgery

Newton, Mass., July 3.—Myron A. Nichols, 21 years old, was locked up last night on a warrant charging him with forgery of a check for $153.27, drawn on the Beacon Trust company of Boston.

No New Strike Features

Pittsburg, July 3.—The second day of the strike of the sheet steel and steel hoop workers of the Amalgamated association passed without interesting or exciting features. It is evident that neither side anticipates early developments.

Brooklyn Church Burned

Brooklyn, July 3.—St. Agnes church was burned last night. The fire originated from a bolt of lightning. Loss, $250,000. Three firemen were fatally hurt by the falling masonry.

PLENTY OF ENTHUSIASM

Chacterized the Fourth at New England's Metropolis

DEPARTURE OF HOT WAVE

Gave the Stay-at-Homes an Opportunity to Enjoy the Day—Captain Hobson Gives an Historical Addres and Speaks In Defense of the South

Boston, July 5.—The center of the section which saw so much of the history which the observance of the Fourth of July recalls upheld yesterday its firmly established record as a city of demonstrative enthusiasm.

Beginning at the moment of midnight, which separated the night before from the morning of, and lasting until the late hours of last night, Boston was a veritable incubator of firecracker patriotism. Cannon ushered in the anniversary, and the roar which followed the explosions of powder in scores of forms, from the giant crackers to the picturesque fireworks, accompanied each moment of the day.

But even if the noise and confusion was great and amazing in its abundance, and the use of explosives apparently reckless, there were few accidents, and no damage of extent was caused. The exodus of people to the beaches was remarkably large, but the breakdown of the heat period kept many in town to attend the various celebrations, who would have otherwise fled from the city's pavements.

The chief individual celebration in the city districts was that by the Jamaica Plain Carnival association, held in the park system. The guest and orator was Captain Richmond P. Hobson, and he spoke from a stand erected in a natural amphitheatre in which stood many thousands of citizens.

He spoke of the early development of the country under the guiding hands of the forefathers, its struggles during its early existence, its foreign wars, its internal strife, which had been satisfactorily settled, and the last foreign war, the contest with Spain, which had brought forth many new glories, new careers and new responsibilities.

He spoke of the navies of the world, their relative strength and power, and showed that, while small in displacement, the power of the American navy was second to none on account of its personnel.

Some time was devoted to economics, during the course of which Captain Hobson defended the south in regard to the slavery question, making the statement that it had been, in fact, the salvation of the negro race, for, like other colored races, it would have been exterminated had not the south, through slavery, given them the start, a foothold which they can now stand on.

He said that when the time was ripe slavery was abolished in a year; that it had shown the willingness of all, both north and south, to stand by their own principles. Today the country was more united than ever, as the uprising of all sections for the support of the government during the Spanish war had shown.

Perhaps the greatest single celebration of the day was the observance of the 125th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. This was held in Faneuil hall. Mayor Hart presided. After the reading of the Declaration of Independence, General Guild delivered an oration which was mainly historical in nature, but frequently it considered present day conditions and problems.

One of the pleasantest features of the day was the distribution of flowers to 3000 children from the poorer districts of the city. This was done by the Floral Emblem society.

At Franklin field last night 20,000 people witnessed the city's display of fireworks, and in Cambridge there were three displays, and during the day athletic events in which there were entries from many parts of New England.

The Parader Beats Commando

New York, July 5.—Commando, a prohibitive favorite at 1 to 6, was decisively beaten in the coveted Lawrence realization stakes at Sheepshead Bay, yesterday. R. T. Wilson's The Partner, with McCue up, won cleverly by two lengths. The race was at one mile and five furlongs.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Saturday, July 6.
Sun rises—4:14; sets, 7:24.
Moon rises—9:58 p. m.
High water—2 a. m.; 2:30 p. m.

The heat wave still continues from the Rocky mountains eastward, except in New England, and the greater portion of the lake region. At Kansas City and Dodge City, Kan., the maximum was 104 degrees, and at Des Moines and Davenport, Ia., 100 degrees. Showers will be general in New England. On the coast the winds will be fresh and mostly southerly.

PEACE IS FAR AWAY

Boers and British Will Continue the Strife to a Finish

London, July 5.—In the house of commons tast night an acrimonious discussion arose between the Radicals and the government on the South African war, many violently denouncing the government's war policy. William Redmond reminded the government that the day was Independence day beyond the seas, and that British statesmen were now glad to claim kindship with and sing hosannas to great and independent America. The anniversary, he insisted, ought to be a lesson to them. War Secretary Brodrick reproached the pro-Boer Radicals with prolonging the war by encouraging the Boers to a vain resistance.

Mr. Brodrick announced that the government had just received news that Commandant General Louis Botha had permission in June to communicate with Mr. Kruger, the result of which was a meeting at which General De Wet, General Botha and others decided to continuance, and accept no terms short of independence. Mr. Brodrick added that the government's resolution was still unshaken, and that great progress had been made in the war during the last three months.

The dispatch read by Mr. Brodrick was a proclamation issued by Messrs. Schalk-Burger and Steyn, detailing the result of General Botha's communications with Mr. Kruger, being to the effect that Mr. Kruger and the Boer delegates in Europe still had great hopes of a satisfactory issue of the war.

The dispatch was the first really definite announcement the government has made that the peace negotiations have failed. It has revived keen interest in the war.

Bryan's Oration

Monteagle, Tenn., July 5.—William J. Bryan, who spoke here yesterday afternoon, declared the constitution and the Declaration of Independence inseparable, and said the constitution without it would be dead. The nation will never outgrow the Declaration of Independence until it forsakes the doctrines of the consent of the governed. The abolition of the declaration, he said, would cause us to lose the respect of all nations, and the adoption of a brute force policy would ultimately lead to the downfall of the republic. Imperialism, he said, is the logical outcome of the commercial spirit of the country.

Opinion of the Independence

Newport, R. I., July 5.—The three 90-footers, Independence, Constitution and Columbia, the fastest racing yachts in American waters, if not in the world, are now at their moorings in Newport harbor. The Boston boat, the Independence, is the latest addition to the fleet. She came into the harbor last evening. The yachting opinion in Newport is that she is a strange and dangerous looking racer.

Perhaps Fatal Assault

Lynn, Mass., July 5.—Alexander Zawistowiski, who was arrested Wednesday on the charge of beating Frank Shutz and wife at their home, and was released in $300 bail, was rearrested last night to await the result of Mrs. Shutz's injuries. It is alleged that he entered the house of Mr. Shutz and proceeded to pound them with a fence rail. It is now believed that Mrs. Shutz will not recover.

Alleged Flat Workers Caught

Boston, July 5.—Two men, who gave their names as Joshua Williamson, 28, of Jersey City, and Benjamin Long, 25, of Chicago, were arrested in Brookline last night, on the charge of entering residences in Brookline and Allston. False keys, numerous articles of jewelry and silverware were found in their possession. The police believe they are noted flat workers.

An Anti-Imperialist Oration

Boston, July 5.—A Fourth of July oration to the American people has been issued by the Anti-Imperialist league. The address urges a further consideration by the people of the colonial problem presented by the Philippines and Porto Rico, of the recent legislation of congress affecting Cuba, and the attitude of the members of the next congress upon these matters.

Ruthven Sent to Prison

London, July 5.—Victor Ruthven, a former monk, who drew a revolver to protect himself against an infuriated mob that attacked him at Shanklin, while Ruthven was delivering an anti-Catholic lecture, and who was charged with shooting with intent to kill, was sentenced to nine months' in prison.

Many Victims of Bank Failure

Berlin, July 5.—The list of victims of the Leipziger bank failure increases daily. The Gustavus Adolphus Protestant institution reports the loss of 450,000 marks to the failure of this bank, and a clergyman named Mueller became insane from losing all the money he possessed.

Mysterious Disappearance of Gold

San Francisco, July 5.—Six bags gold, each containing $5000 in $20 gold pieces, have disappeared from the mint here, according to The Chronicle, and no trace of the coin has been discovered, although mint officials have been at work on the mystery since June 29.

Flanagan Breaks a Record

New York, July 5.—John Flanagan, New York Athletic club, broke the world's record for throwing the 16-pound hammer in a 9-foot circle. The distance was 175 feet, 4 3-8 inches. The former record was held by A Plau of California.

AS IN UNITED STATES

Our Porto Rican Brethren Celebrate the Fourth

A FREE TRADE RESOLUTION

Unanimously Passed by the Assembly and Signed by Governor Allen—Insular Treasury Will Dispense With Porto Rican Customs Qevenues

San Juan, P. R., July 5.—The Fourth of July was celebrated with great enthusiasm here. Both the political parties assisted in the ecremonies for which Governor Allen appropriated $500, and the citizens donated the balance. The city was crowded.

Never has there been such a display of colors in San Juan. A majority of the houses were decorated with flags and bunting, and fireworks in profusion were set off. At 6 o'clock in the morning a salute of 21 guns was fired. At 9 o'clock the parade started. There were over 4000 persons in line, including 2000 schoolchildren and 300 native troops. The parade was reviewed by the governor, and the line of march was thronged with the people of the city.

The national salute was fired at noon. During the afternoon there was a baseball game between an American and a Porto Rican nine, and athletic contests, including foot, boat and swimming races for cash prizes. At 4 o'clock there was a mass meeting in the theatre, where school children sang national airs in English, after which addresses were made and the Declaration of Independence was read. At 6 o'clock Governor Allen held a public reception at the palace. There was an illuminated boat parade last evening, and a great display of fireworks.

Telegrams from other towns on the island report the patriotic observance of the day, excepting Ponce, which has done nothing, because of lack of funds.

In a joint session lasting three hours, the Porto Rican assembly yesterday unanimously passed the free trade resolution. The assembly hall was crowded with people, and cheers greeted the announcement that Governor Allen had signed the resolution.

The free trade resolution begins with a preamble, in which reference is made to section three of the Foraker law. The resolution then continues:

"The Porto Rican assembly, in extra session and acting pursuant to the instructions of congress, does hereby notify the President of the United States, that, by virtue of the Hollander act and other acts, it has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of insular government, and it hereby directs that a copy of this joint resolution be presented to the President of the United States, and it requests that Governor Allen deliver the resolution in question to President McKinley, to the end that the proclamation may be made by him, and, if it shall seem wise and proper to the President of the United States, the assembly requests that his proclamation be issued July 25, as that day is being established a legal Porto Rican holiday, to commemorate the anniversary of the coming of the American flag."

Governor Allen personally read a message before the assembly in which he exhaustively reviewed the financial situation of the island, and showed that Porto Rico possessed abundant revenues for its needs without drawing upon customs receipts.

Mr. Hollander's report on the island's resources from which revenue could be derived was considered sufficiently definite to warrant the joint resolution in favor of free trade. Mr. Hollander reviewed the working of the new tax law and explained the new system of taxation. He said: "Present conditions make this joint resolution possible, and the insular treasury can henceforth dispense with the revenues accruing from Porto Rican customs."

Several other lengthy speeches were made. The resolution passed at 12:45, and was signed by Governor Allen at 1 p. m.

This action of the assembly is considered to be the most important taken by it since the inauguration of Governor Allen.

Moffat's Fighting Days Over

San Francisco, July 5.—The fight between Jack Moffat of Chicago and George Gardner of Lowell, Mass., yesterday, came to an end in the third round, when, for the third time, Moffat's left arm failed. The fight up to the third round was slightly in Gardner's favor. The accident to Moffat's arm will undoubtedly end his ring career.

Trackmen Return to Work

Portland, Me., July 5.—The strike of the track and coal men of all the lines of the Maine Central railroad is at an end, an agreement having been reached with the railroad management, and the men have returned to work. The terms of the agreement are not given out. The strike began on June 11.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. ### Drift Of Opinion.

☞It is a great pity that the city's shade trees are being killed or spoiled in looks by the gas mains and electric wires. The city has none too many shade trees, and those which have been set out in recent years should be protected against everything possible. —Brockton Enterprise.

☞An English clergyman who invited Mrs. James Brown Potter to give two recitations from the chancel of his church in order to increase the attractiveness of the service, thought it necessary to say in introducing her that the stage is a greater moral power than the pulpit. In that church, we have no doubt. It couldn't help being with a clergyman holding such views of his profession. — New Bedford Standard.

☞The scorching days of last week, severe enough in town, fell heavily upon the officers and men of the First Brigade of the Massachusetts militia in camp at Framingham. It is one more argument for the holding of these militia encampments either earlier or later in the season. This year the discomfort of the First Brigade was intensified by a long march to a sham battlefield and back again, and the spectacular routine of "Governor's day" was carried out, although the mercury stood at almost 100 in the shade, and at many degrees higher on the bare and sun-swept parade ground. —Boston Journal.

☞Memory should be worked during the heated term so as to recall the coldest winter days ever experienced, days when every breath we exhaled turned into an icicle, cracked and broke off making a sound like the crash of breaking glass as it fell upon the pavement. This will prove more cooling than watching the thermometer, drenching the throat continually with ice water, asking everybody you meet "Is it hot enough for you today?" and indulging in meteorological profanity. Another good aid to keeping down prespiration and overcoming the sensation of torridity is to read stories of Arctic discoveries, and to banish from the mind thoughts concerning people you hate. The proper trend and employment of the mental faculties during hot weather has much to do with mastering the secret of how to keep cool.—Kansas City Times.

Open House.

At the Cochato club, Braintree, on the Fourth, the members kept open house. A string band, three pieces, in the afternoon and a full orchestra in the evening furnished excellent music. The tennis tournament during the day will be settled later between Henry L. Patten and E. Stanwood Hollis. Elaborate fireworks were appreciated in the evening by 1000 people. Dancing concluded the program of the day.

—The Clan-na-Gael held a big picnic at Oak island on the Fourth, and the Boston Caledonian club had athletic games as West Roxbury.

FOURTH IN QUINCY.

The Usual Number of Fire Alarms.

Three of the Four Were False.

Yacht Race, Base Ball and Other Attractions.

The Fourth of July, 1901, has passed into history. For another year young America must refrain from the use of fire crackers. The tin horn has been put safely away, or more likely smashed, so that by no accident shall the small boy again obtain possession of it and use it as a lung tester to the great discomforture of those with sensitive nerves. It was a "glorious" Fourth an ideal day as to weather. It was not without a sigh of relief that many awoke this morning at the thought their property had escaped or that they had got off scot free from burnt fingers. There were others, however, who could not do this, and they will remember, not without a pang of pain, as they glance at their bandaged fingers, that it was not so glorious a Fourth as it might have been but for that fire cracker that exploded a moment earlier than they thought.

The Fourth in Quincy was unusually quiet, especially the night before when all sorts of devilry is expected. An effort was made on the part of Chief Hayden and his half hundred or more special officers to keep things quiet until after midnight. In a way they succeeded but occasionally some one would touch off a cannon cracker that would make the ears tingle and the windows rattle.

In City Square there was a band concert in the evening and thousands congregated in and about. Others sought out friendly or social organizations that kept open house, each trying to amuse himself as taste desired.

The fire department was ready to answer to calls should any come, and it was generally expected that they would have several runs during the night. The relief steamer was on duty in the engine house at Wollaston to answer to alarms from that section and Atlantic. This left Steamer No. 1 at the Central fire station. It was not until 1.55 Thursday morning that the first alarm sounded.

FIRE ALARMS.

The alarm from Box 63 then was for a fire in the unoccupied building near the Atlantic depot. The flames were issuing from the windows when the alarm was sounded. It was badly burned inside. The fire was set by the boys.

The second alarm came at 6.15 A. M. and was from Box 42. This also proved to be false alarm.

The next alarm came in from Box 61 at 3.15 P. M. This also proved a false alarm.

The fourth and last alarm was from Box 49 and was sounded a little after 11 o'clock Thursday night. This proved to be a lively blaze in a barn on Bunker Hill avenue that was being used by Thomas Carson as a store house for his furniture. The building was owned by Frank Amet. The fire had made good progress when discovered and it was practically destroyed by the time the department arrived. The nearest hydrant to the burning building was on Willard street nearly 2,000 feet away and it was necessary to use the supply of hose carried by two wagons to reach the building. The fire was undoubtedly caused by someone who desired to celebrate the Fourth and did fnot care whose property was destroyed.

The loss is estimated to be $30.

About 1 o'clock on the morning of the Fourth special officers discovered that a building in the rear of the Norfolk Downs depot used as a machine shop had been set on fire. The officers extinguished the blaze without sounding an alarm.

There were a few arrests during the night. Seven was the number, of which six were for malicious mischief. The seventh man answers to the name of Charles Lindelow, and he will have to answer to two complains; one for rescuing a prisoner, and the second for assault on an officer.

MURDER CHARGED.

Themost serious thing to happen was along about midnight, when an Italian who lives on Newcomb street entered the police station. Blood was flowing from a wound in his cheek. He declared that he was in bed and that a man entered his room and approaching the bed said: I am going to shoot you. He then drew a revolver and shot him in the cheek. "Here is where the ball entered" he said, "but I don't know here it came out." The Italian was excited.

Dr. Welch was called and dressed the wound, but could find no evidence that he had been shot. It later developed that someone threw a lighted firecracker in his room, and it exploded in his face.

While Dr. Welch was at the station house, Officer Curtin came in looking like a wreck. His helmet was smashed and he had a cut on the back of the head that bled profusely. It appears that while on duty near Cranch hill he had arrested a man and the gang had pitched onto him, not only rescuing his prisoner but using him rather roughly. After having his wound dressed he pluckily returned to his beat and soon after returned with Charles Lindelow, whom he locked up as one of the parties who had assaulted him, and who had assisted in rescuing the prisoner.

Constable Shea, who was on duty in City Square, got into a squabble with a motorman, which resulted in the latter giving the constable a blow in the solar plexus, which knocked him into the street. No arrests were made.

A MYSTERY.

The next thing of an exciting nature came late in the morning. This was the finding on the shore of Neponset river at the foot of Newbury street, Atlantic, of some man's clothing. The clothing proved to be that of an employe of the Boston Elevated railroad. The pockets were turned inside out and contained nothing by which to identify who they belonged to. The cap however bore the number "019 Guard."

The Elevated railway people were communicated with, and from them it was learned that the owner of the uniform was Arthur Follensby and that he resided on Pemberton way, Mattapan. It was at first thought that he had gone in bathing and had been drowned. Follensby turned up alive and well later at South Boston with a new uniform. It is supposed that he must have gone in bathing and left his old clothing by mistake due to excitement of the "night before." The police of Station 11 came to Quincy later in the day and carried off the clothing found.

A gang of night before the Fourth celebrators attempted to rescue Charles Nelson from Officer Bradley at Brewers corner at an early hour Thursday morning. Nelson had been arrested for drunkenness and was being taken to the police station. A large gang followed on and attempted to take Nelson away. Inspector McKay and Officer McAloon joined the crowd and there was some sharp work for a few minutes, during which some of the gang got more than they bargained for. Welson was landed at the police station.

Wollaston outdid itself in its celebration of the Fourth. There were brilliant displays of fire works on the Heights, Plains and Park. Wollaston Park was an ideal spot for beautiful attractions. The most noticable feature of Loring's fireworks was the setpiece "Our Band." Beautiful sky rockets, pin wheels, etc., were enjoyed by the friends of William Atkins, Edward Chase, Savillion Foss and Charles A. Jameson. On the Heights and at Shunk's news stand, balloons and sky rockets in abundance were set off. Perhaps the most elaborate display was that of Frank W. Waterhouse.

Holiday Picnics.

The Swedish Methodist church picnicked at Merrymount park, and turned out 200 to 300. Rev. Otto Anderson made a patriotic address. Games and refreshments were enjoyed.

The Finnish Congregationalists also picnicked at the park and were accompanied by a band.

The Swedish Baptist church went to a new place, having their picnic near the city bath house at Quincy Point.

Hingham Celebration.

Several Quincy people were noticed at the celebration at Hingham on the Fourth. There was a parade including floats, the fire department, etc. At 12 M. there was a service for the flag on the common with music by Martlands band and 500 school children. Secretary Long and Gen. W. W. Blackmar made addresses. Band concerts and fireworks came later.

Dustin—Safford.

At the residence of Mr. Charles R. Safford of Clive street, Atlantic, a pretty home wedding occurred on Tuesday, July 2, the contracting parties being Miss Myra Safford, a popular teacher in the public schools of Brockton, and Prof. Dana M. Dustin of Tabor Academy, Marion, Mass.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Brickett of Marion in the presence of a few friends and relatives. Miss Gertrude Hall played the wedding march from Lohengrin. The parlors were very prettily decorated with pinks, roses and honeysuckles. After the ceremony the wedding guests adjourned to the lawn when a dainty lunch was served al fresco.

Mr. and Mrs. Dustin then left for three weeks' trip through New Hampshire.

Funeral of Mr. Bradley.

The funeral of John I. Bradley, who was killed by the cars in New Hampshire Tuesday afternoon was held this morning from St. John's church. What's the use of making your summer miserable working over a red hot coal stove, when for a small expenditure you can own a Blue Flame Oil Stove and be cool and comfortable when you are doing your cooking. These stoves use common oil and burn as clear and clean as gas. Don't smoke your pans up either, and costs but the fraction of a cent an hour to run.

Now here's your chance to practice economy, as well as being up-to-date. You wouldn't part with a blue flame stove for ten times its cost, if you owned one and couldn't replace it.

INQUEST OVER PARK

The Judge Reserved His Decision —Cahill Arraigned.

An inquest on the death of George W. Park of South Quincy, whose body was found floating in the Neponset river at Neponset June 15, was held Wednesday morning in the Dorchester municipal court before Judge Joseph R. Churchill, says the Herald.

Upon request of Asst.-Dist.-Atty. John D. McLaughlin, who conducted the hearing for the government, the inquest was private. Capt. Dyer of police headquarters was present to look after the interest of the police department.

Among the prominent witnesses heard were Mrs. Park, the widow; Miss Gavin, a clerk in the water department at the Quincy City Hall, and who was probably the last person to see Park in Quincy before he came to Boston on the afternoon of June 10; Mr. Sullivan, manager of McGeary's liquor store on Federal street; John Sweeney, a bartender, who saw Park in company with Cahill and another herdic driver making the rounds of several saloons in the vicinity of the South Terminal station on Monday night, June 10, and the young men who found the body in the river.

Judge Churchill reserved his decision. Cahill was arraigned in the Dorchester court this morning.

Train Robbers Hemmed In

St. Paul, July 5.—A special from Great Falls, Mont., says: The three men who held up the Great Northern trans-continental west-bound express, near Wagner, Wednesday afternoon, and secured $70,000, will probably be captured. Sheriff Griffith, with a posse of 20 men, surrounded them yesterday afternoon at Buck Allen's ranch, about 40 miles south of Wagner. It is probable they will not be captured without a severe fight, and at the latest advices Sheriff Griffith had not made the attack.

Killed By Shot From Cannon

Newark, N. J., July 5.—Mrs. Emma Ryley was instantly killed yesterday while seated at the window in her home. # COOL BY THE SEA.

Crowds Spent the Fourth at Houghs Neck.

The Fourth of July was a great day at Houghs Neck and was free from accident or serious devilry. The holiday itself was cool, but the people wore their thinest clothes and would not acknowledge it was too cool.

The electric cars were run on 15-minute time, and on most of the trips ran two cars, so that excellent service was given.

The event of the day was the race of the Quincy Yacht club, and crowds gathered on the lawn in front of and adjacent to the Great Hill House.

The new steamboat line was not in operation, but should be in a few days.

Nearly everybody entertained company and there was withal considerable life.

Wilson's orchestra furnished music for the dance at the Casino, under the direction of Prof. Kaplan.

There was also dancing at the Fensmere pavilion.

On the evening of the Fourth many cottagers had fireworks.

Takes Mr. Cassidy's Place.

The important department of construction and repair at the Boston Navy Yard has lost the services of Mr. Gilbert L. Kirby, draughsman-in-charge, the brainiest man in the architectural division, and Naval Constructor Baxter's "right bower" in all matters pertaining to inventions, improvements of devices and plans for routine structural repairs to ships, says the Journal.

For some time the bureau of construction and repairs at Washington—under Rear Admiral Hichborn (retired) and Rear Admiral Bowles, lately appointed his successor—has been observing Mr. Kirby's work here, and the outcome is the selection of him as draughtsman-in-charge at the bureau. The position is the most advanced in the profession for a civillian, and means for Mr. Kirby an increase of pay from $6 a day to $8.

Mr. Kirby was with Constructor Baxter at the Mare Island yard when Admiral Dewey's fleet was fitted out for the Spanish war. His work at that time drew very favorable comment from the bureau. When Mr. Baxter came to the Boston yard he sent for the man who had assisted him through so much difficult and famous work, and Mr. Kirby has been here ever since. He has a wide reputation for knowledge of the internal construction and fittings of vessels of all types, especially ships of the new navy.

At Washington Mr. Kirby will take the place left vacant by the transfer of Mr. A. B. Cassidy to the Fore River works at Quincy.

Picnic.

There is to be a picnic at The King's Daughters' and Sons' Home for the Aged Norfolk County, July eighth, (Monday). The train leaaves the South Terminal Boston, for Pondville, where the Home is situated, at 12.27 P. M.

All interested are invited to be present as this will be a good opportuntiy to see the plans for remodelling the house. Work is to be commenced soon.

Light lunch is to be served by the King's Daughters of Foxboro and the proceeds from same are for the Home treasury.

Fire at Randolph.

Three unoccupied buildings were burned at Randolph on the Fourth; in the early morning the C. O. Marston building and the railroad building nearby, and in the evening the Niles building on Pond lane.

Fire In North Weymouth.

Weymouth suffered from a $1500 fire the night before the Fourth, the large barn of Dr. Putnam on Commercial street, North Weymouth, being destroyed.

TODAY'S COURT.

The usual day after the Fourth rush of business greeted Judge Pratt when he opened court this morning.

Charles H. White was arraigned for the larceny of a horse from Mr. Shaw at Milton. He was held for the grand jury.

Charles Lindlow was arraigned for assault on officer Curtin and for attempting to rescue a prisoner at Quincy. Cases continued until next Tuesday.

Pasquali Armitti was arraigned for assault at Quincy. Case continued until July 11.

John Furningham, Joseph McCarthy, John Gallagher, John J. Ford and James Sullivan were fined $3 each, and Charles Nelson and John Kane $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

John T. McDonnell and Horace M. Bunker of Weymouth, John Dorr and Melville Clark of Randolph were fined $3 each for drunkenness.

Charles Johnson was fined $2 for behaving in a disorderly manner in the public streets at Quincy.

Daniel McInnes was fined $5 for assault on officer Curtin at Quincy.

Constance Hermanson was fined $15 for assault on Daniel Ahearn at Quincy.

Frederick H. White and James McTiernan were arraigned for violation of the city ordinance at Quincy. Cases continued until July 15.

William Bugley and Charles Danahey were fined $15 each for malicious mischief at Quincy.

William McNair was fined $3 for violation of the town by-laws of Weymouth.

Gone to Scotland.

Mrs. John Kennedy of South Quincy and her little girl, Helen, of 20 Pleasant street, sailed on the Commonwealth on July 3d, to her place of birth, Dalbeatie, Scotland, which she left twenty years ago. She is a member of the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor and a member of the Companions of Foresters of America in which societies she has held prominent positions. A large number of her friends went on board the boat and gave her a Godsend and wishes for a jolly good time.

Mrs. John Gorman, of 85 Water street, South Quincy, sailed on the Commonwealth on July 3d, to her place of birth, Kirkcudbrightshire, Scotland. She left her home some twenty years ago which time she has spent in Quincy. Mrs. Gorman is a member of the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor and a member of the Companions of the Foresters of America. She has the best wishes of a large number of friends and all wish her a good time.

Mary (Evans) Morris.

The sad news of the death of Mrs. Mary Morris has reached us this week. She died on Sunday morning last, at Alamosa, Colorado, where she went some eighteen months ago for her health. She was a daughter of Mr. John Evans, very popular and much beloved in this city. Her funeral will take place tomorrow (Saturday) from her father's residence on Copeland street at 2.30 o'clock.

Pan-American Points.

Every visitor to the Pan-American Exposition is more than pleased, and even surprised at the wonderful display provided by the Exposition management.

Not only are the buildings beautiful in line and color, but the stupendous electrical illuminations which at night decorate the great structures are most dazzling in effect.

From New England the lines of the Boston & Maine are the most direct to Buffalo. The service by this line is not only the quickest, but is the most complete and also the shortest. The route through Northern Massachusetts known as the Hoosac Tunnel or Deerfield Valley route is one of the most charming and picturesque in the country, and the rate to the Pan American city or Niagara is exceptionally low. For tourists from Boston & Maine territorry a particular advantage is the absence of a transfer across the city of Boston, for Buffalo trains depart from the North Union Station.

The General Passenger Department of the Boston and & Maine Railroad, Boston has gotten out an attractive illustrated pamphlet on the Pan American Exposition, which is sent free for the asking.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

CAREER OF HOSHI TORU.

Former Japanese Minister Was the Tom Reed of Japan.

Like Okubo, a Japanese reforming minister of the interior, assassinated in 1878, Hoshi Toru, the former Japanese minister at Washington, has fallen a victim of a strong wave of political feeling agitating his country, says the New York Herald. Japan is just now passing through something of a crisis, and the unrest prevailing in national and municipal politics has cost the country the life of one of her ablest statesmen.

When the Marquis Ito formed his new party cabinet last October, Toru Hoshi was chosen by him for the post of minister of communications. Within a few weeks, however, Hoshi Toru thought it necessary to resign his portfolio in consequence of persistent attacks impugning his administrative integrity. He was selected by the government majority in the lower house of the diet to be its leader.

As a parliamentarian he proved his strength in the stormy scenes that marked the first sessions of Japan's national legislature. He has been termed the Tom Reed of Japan, for he was a speaker whose firm hand guided the assembly and saved it from chaos. During the war with China he was chairman of the budget committee providing the ways and means, and he was largely responsible for the new commercial treaties of Japan. He, however, himself came into collision with the dominant sentiment, and in 1894 he was expelled after making a stubborn fight amid roars of abuse and vituperation. Subsequently he was appointed minister at Washington, a post which he resigned in 1898 after his reelection to the house.

At Washington he was one of the most hospitable of the diplomatic corps, and the residence of the Minister and Mme. Toru Hoshi at the legation is remembered for the charm which emanated from the social graces of host and hostess. An only son, Hiharu Hoshi, then between 5 and 6 years of age and a child of much promise, was the light of the domestic life of the legation at that time.

While in the United States Mr. Toru Hoshi adopted the western usage in writing his name. In Japan the family name comes first, and hence in official titles the form Hoshi Toru is that generally followed. Born in 1850 at Tokyo, he passed through many hardships in his early years. He studied law in England and in later life made himself a special authority in the international branch of jurisprudence.

DOWIE AND HIS WINGS.

Gorgeous Creations Worn by the General Overseer of Zion Church.

One pair of wings has every angel
Who cleaves the air of heaven remote,
Yet Dowie fastens four winged winglets
Upon his queer Elijah coat,
But why he needs them in his dominion
Is merely a matter of a pinion.
—"Fly Time Fancies."

Many and strange are the vagaries indulged in by John Alexander Dowie, otherwise Elijah II and overseer of the Church of Zion, but perhaps the most startling of all is the addition of two pairs of wings to the garb of the prophet, says a special dispatch from Chicago to the New York Evening Journal. When he delivered the sermon in which he vociferously declared that he was not a paranoiac, he wore four pinions, and as he called upon his congregation of 400 to say if he were or were not he was answered back with loud yells of "No!"

The general overseer turned his back to the audience and furiously flapped the gorgeous wings. The wings are about 18 inches long by 8 inches wide and are shaped like those of the grasshopper. Two are black, lined with purple silk. The others are gorgeous creations in purple, orange and white, the colors of the Zionites.

During the services Dowie strutted up and down the platform, now and then turning suddenly, causing the wings to flap violently. Dowie said that the laws of the church should be obeyed even if they contradicted the laws of the state. He called John D. Rockefeller a thief and said he intended to make war on the trusts.

Music For Antarctic Explorers.

A lady member of the Baxter family, so well known in connection with the industrial development of Dundee, where the steamship Discovery was built, has presented Commander Scott, R. N., with a pianola and a quantity of music for the entertainment of the members of the exploring party during their adventurous voyage to the antarctic regions, says the Cardiff Western Mail. Pianoforte music has not heretofore formed any part of the explorers' equipment, fear of frozen fingers presumably being the reason, but with the pianola all such reasons disappear, and the exploring party will now be able to enjoy the best music without any misgivings.

Smart Engagement Rings.

According to the smart jewelers, the favorite engagement ring of the day is a pear shaped stone, preferably a diamond, the setting almost invisible, the circlet very thin. If a colored stone is chosen instead of a diamond, the accommodating jeweler will surround it with the tiniest of diamonds, making a brilliant line of white fire, but the individual stones so small as to have the effect rather than the appearance of gems, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. A row of five diamonds, encircled with many rubies, is also a favorite engagement ring.

Curfew In the United States.

NEW BISHOP IN OFFICE

Formal Installation of Rev. William H. O'Connell

OVER A HUNDRED PRIESTS

Took Part In Impressive Ceremonies In a Portland Church—Entire Clerical Body of the Diocese Give Token of Jurisdiction by Kissing Ring

Portland, Me., July 5.—One of the most impressive ceremonies that ever occurred in this city took place at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, when Right Rev. William H. O'Connell was formally installed as bishop of th diocese of Maine.

Very Rev. Administrator M. C. O'Brien of Bangor presented to the bishop the holy water, which he blessed and returned, and in turn blessed the incense. The procession, numbering more than 100 priests, led by the bishop, then proceeded down the aisle.

The bishop was clad in purple robes, the flowing train being borne by two boys, while two other boys bore the lighted candles, book, crozier and mitre, symbolic of episcopal authority.

As they advanced to the sanctuary the priests, after genuflecting before the high altar, retired to seats that had been reserved for them. When all were seated the bishop advanced to the foot of the altar, and was vested with the pontifical robes and mitre and took the crozier in hand. He remained standing while the Te Deum was sung.

At the conclusion, Very Rev. M. C. O'Brien sang the antiphon, "Protector Noster," and prayers for the occasion.

The bishop then seated himself upon the throne, while the entire clerical body of the diocese came forward and kissed the episcopal ring, in token of jurisdiction. After all had kissed the ring, the bishop returned to the altar and sang the antiphon and prayers in honor of the patron of the church.

Right Rev. Denis M. Bradley, bishop of Manchester, then delivered the sermon of the people, and he was followed by the late administrator to the diocese, Rev. M. C. O'Brien, who addressed Bishop O'Connell, conveying to him the welcome of the clergy and people of the diocese. Then standing on the steps, the bishop himself read his address to the people.

SHELL BROKE IN TWO

Bradford Crew Dumped Into River In Regatta of Amateur Rowers

Boston, July 5.—With perfect weather conditions and the largest gathering of interested spectators in many years, the 15th annual championship regatta of the New England Amateur Rowing association, held on the Charles river yesterday, was unusually successful.

Only one accident marred the regatta. During the double scull shells, junior, in which three clubs weer entered, the Bradford Boat club shell parted amidships on the home stretch, breaking in halves, and precipitating the men into the water. They clung to the wreck and reached the shore.

The schedule was a long one. Interest centered in the single sculls, in which there were seven entries. Charles H. Lewis of the Wachusett Boat club Worcester was easily the winner.

The race did not develop great speed Lewis' time being 10:37 1-2.

The eight-oared contests were hotly contested. There were two of these. The junior was won by the Millstreams, making the distance in 9:15. The other was won by the Riversides, in 8:59.

John M. Francis of the Laureate Boat club, Troy, won the single scull shells, intermediate, in 10:39.

Frank B. Green of the Jeffries Point Rowing association rowed over the course alone in the single sculls, senior, no competitor having appeared.

In the four-oared shells, three entries, seniors, the Millstreams claimed that they were fouled at the turning stake by the Jeffries Point crew, and finished second to the Shawmut Rowing club. The Millstreams' protest was sustained, and, as the other clubs would not repeat the race, they went over the course alone, taking the prize.

Practical Training For Moran

Boston, July 5.—Broken world's records strewed the track at the Charles River park last night, when James F. Moran had finished his two-hour journey on his bicycle. In that time he rode 70 miles, 787 yards, a longer distance than any rider had ever reached before in the same period. Moran lost distance through an accident to his pacing machine, but rallied nobly after he had lost, and recovered the lead from Stinson. Moran is in the best condition, apparently, of the four riders, as each two hours of riding is really training for him, and as the race nears the end he goes faster. The men are now in the following order: Moran, Stinson, Champion and Nelson.

Pennsylvanians Not Afraid

Henley, July 5.—It is understood that Leander proposes to attempt to outrow Pennsylvania in the regatta today before reaching Fawley court, believing that the Americans have not the staying qualities to stand the punishment of a hot start. When these reports were communicated to Coach Ward, he said: "It makes little difference where Leander makes her spurt, Pennsylvania will be rowing all the time. We can take our medicine at the start, in the middle or at the finish. We have been rowing and not talking, and we are not going to talk until the flag falls at the finish."

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

No one needs to be told to try to cure a cough. But any one will be glad to be told of a means of cure which will be thorough and lasting. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a medicine which can be confidently relied on to cure diseases of the organs of respiration. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis and bleeding of the lungs. It cures when nothing else will cure, and the local physician says: "There is nothing more that we can do."

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

The dealer, tempted by the little more profit paid by less meritorious medicines, will sometimes try and sell a substitute when the "Discovery" is asked for. No substitute medicine will satisfy the sick like "Golden Medical Discovery." It always helps. It almost always cures.

"Two years ago a severe cough started on me and I was also bothered with catarrh," writes Mr. F. Skjod, of Danewood, Chisago Co., Minn. "I could not sleep nights, as the cough was worse at night. I tried several cough medicines, but to no avail, until a year ago, when I got so bad I could not breathe through my nose at times. I then tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. After taking eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and at the same time using Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, I am a well man. I can thank Dr. Pierce for my good health, and will recommend his medicines to any one suffering from the same trouble."

TO SAIL THE INDEPENDENCE.

Ex-Mayor Adams to Have Full Charge of Cup Defender.

It is reported upon good authority, says the Globe, that ex-Mayor Charles Francis Adams, 2d, of Quincy, will have full charge of the yacht Independence during the series of races between that boat, the Constitution and Columbia under the auspices of the Newport Yacht Racing Association.

Mr. Adams expierence on former cup defenders and his well-known ability as a yachtsman, gives the Boston contingent great hopes. Mr. Adams is generally conceded to be one of the cleverest amateurs in this country.

Quincy people will watch the races with more than usual interest now that it is known that her townsman will probably be one of the skippers.

ON A NEW CLEW.

Herdic Man Discharged in the Park Case.

But Police Have New Light on Murder.

Looking for Man Who Made Deposit of Money.

Capt. Charles W. Hunt of Station 11 and Special Officer Loughlin are now hard at work searching for two men in connection with the killing of George W. Park says the Journal. One of them will be charged with the murder and the other as an accessory. The man who is said to be the principal in the affair went to a South end liquor saloon Tuesday night, June 11, at 9.30 o'clock He gave the proprietor nearly $150 to keep for him. The proprietor says that the man called the next day and got $10. Later he came and got $8, then $10, then $2, then $5, and then $20.

Finally, on June 17, two days after Park's body was found floating in the Neponset river, the man came into the store just after 2.30 P. M. The proprietor gave him the balance of the money $80.

The man then disappeared and has not been seen near the liquor store since. The police of Station 4 have been asked to assist in arresting the two men one of whom is said to live in that precinct.

The officers say that the herdic driver wanted as the man who committed the murder was seen around the South Station district last Saturday.

Herdic drivers who know the man wanted, say he is in New York State at work as a driver of a wagon. The police believe that he is in hiding in this city.

Capt. Hunt and Officer Loughlin worked all day tracing clues as to the location of the men wanted. An arrest is expected every minute.

Francis Cahill the herdic driver who was arrested a week ago charged with knowledge of the affair was discharged in the Dorchester Court Friday. Capt. Hunt and Officer Loughlin asked Judge Churchill to nol pross the case Judge Churchill did so.

Cahill then left the court room. Afterward Capt. Hunt said to the Journal man:

"We allowed Cahill to go as he is willing to tell all he may know about the affair.

"We had an interview with Cahill this morning when he came from the jail.

"We allowed him to go because he has an invalid wife and five children depending on him for support. He has no connection with the case anyway we are now satisfied."

Capt. Hunt has 22 witnesses who testified at the inquest before Judge Churchill. He reserved his finding in the case. The police feel that they are on the right track because Park had nearly $200 when he left Quincy on Monday, June 10, and that the man they want left nearly $150 with the liquor dealer referred to. This was the next day. The police state they have witnesses to prove that Park left a saloon near the South Station with this man at nearly 11 o'clock on the night he disappeared. Capt. Hunt is now satisfied that Park was murderd and robbed on the Boston side of the Neponset bridge.

Probate Court.

At probate court this week the will of George W. Park of Quincy was allowed, and Mrs. Matilda B. Park appointed executrix; also the will of Ellen Dunican of Quincy, the executor being Michael Dunican.

Administrations were granted on the estate of A. Moreton Swallow of Quincy, Frances E. Swallow administratrix, bond $150,000; on estate of William Boyd of Quincy, Ellen F. Boyd administratrix, bond $1,000; on estate of Nathaniel H. Moore of East Milton, Susan E. Moore administratrix, bond $1,000.

Castle Square Theatre.

A revival of the famous emotional drama "East Lynne" will make the Castle Square Theatre attraction the coming week and the great popularity of the play will without doubt again be demonstrated. The opportunities afforded in "East Lynne" for Miss Eva Taylor, as Lady Isabel, will make her appearance in this play a matter of unusual interest to the patrons of this theatre as the character has been considered a test of emotional dramatic ability for a generation. The play has not been given a performance at this theatre in two seasons and several changes have been made in the cast of the last presentation, the leading characters having been assigned as follows: Sir Francis Levison, Edmund Breese; Archibald Carlyle, Charles Mackay; Lord Mount Severn, J. L. Seeley; Richard Hare, Stanley Kent; Mr. Dill, John T. Craven; Edward, William J. Hasson; Officer, Warren Cook; Willie Carlyle, Little Pearl Young; Lady Isabel Vane, Madame Vane, Eva Taylor; Barbara Hare, Leonora Gnito; Miss Cornelia Carlyle, Leonora Bradley; Joyce Hallijohn, Maye Louise Aigen; Wilson, Caroline Frances Cooke; Susanne, Sadie H. Gallonpe. Chocolate bon bons will be given the Monday matinee patrons until further notice. "Peaceful Valley" is announced at the Castle Square for the week beginning Monday, July 15.

Keith's Theatre.

Lovers of art and music have an opportunity offered them at Keith's Boston theatre at the present ime that is not of frequent occurenec in the popular price theatres. The combination is the notable production of living pictures and the regular summer engagement of the Boston Symphony Orchestra players, under the direction of Max Zach. Nothing approaching the living pictures, either in beauty of design or attention to detail has ever before been offered in this country, and the frequent changes of subjects warrants their continuance almost indefinitely. The musicians are offering seasonable programs of light music, and the ballads sung by Marion P. Littlefield, the accomphshed soloist, are of a similar character. These features in themselves are worth much more than the price of admission charged at Keith's, aside from the admittedly strong vaudeville shows that are given in conjunction with them.

AT THE SIGN OF THE SKULL.

It's "Gallop and go!" and "Slow, now, slow!"
With every man in this life below,
But the things of this world are a fleeting show.

The postchaise Time that all must take
Is old with clay and dust;
Two horses strain its rusty brake,
Named Pleasure and Disgust.

Our luggage totters on its roof
Of Vanity and Care,
As Hope, the postboy, spurs each hoof
Or heavy eyed Despair.

And now a comrade with us rides,
Love, haply, or Remorse,
And that dim traveler besides,
Gaunt Memory on a horse.

And be we king or be we kern
Who ride the roads of Sin,
No matter how the roads may turn
They lead us to that inn.

Unto that inn within that land
Of silence and of gloom,
Whose ghastly landlord takes our hand
And leads us to our room...

It's "Gallop and go!" and "Slow, now, slow!"
With every man in this life below,
But the things of this world are a fleeting show.

IN GRANADA

The Story of a Soulless Child.

BY MADELENE YALE WYNNE.

"Pepita," said I, "do tell me a story."

"Senora Maria Madalena, would you like to hear about Seraphita? She was born in Granada. That was 100 years ago. She was born in a high place. Her mother was of a great family, and her father was great, too, but he was very wild, and Seraphita was the prettiest thing that ever was born in Granada. Everybody said so, and her mother used to think that the sun rose on the east side of her little bed and set on the west.

"The days ran merrily till Seraphita was 4 months old. Then she died. Her mother had so much heart grief that she lost her wits. For one whole day she sat, cold and still, without a tear, and then she cried aloud and began to tear out handfuls of her smooth black hair, and it was a great pity, for her hair was black and long and glistened like satin. She was called the satin haired. But she forgot how beautiful she was, and she would not eat anything or even sleep.

"Two nights after Seraphita died and was lying as white and beautiful as an angel, with wax candles at her head and feet and with a white flower in her hand, her mother went quietly into the room and sent the old nurse who was watching over Seraphita away. Then she closed the door and threw herself on her knees and prayed so hard that her prayers could not get up to heaven, for they were more like curses than prayers, and, Senora Maria Madalena, it is not good to pray like that. One must not send up prayers that are not fit to go to heaven, for then St. Peter shuts the gates of heaven, and the prayers go wandering up and down in the great spaces of air, where there is no one to answer them.

"The devil, who is everywhere but in heaven, came to her and asked, with a very sweet voice, for he can use any voice he likes, 'What is it that Seraphita's mother is praying for?'

"'I want my child back. I want her in my arms that are so empty and my heart that aches so.'

"And then the devil told her. I do not know exactly how he told her, but he made her know that he could give Seraphita back to her just as she had been, with her rosy cheeks and her black eyes and her pretty black hair, which was going to be like her mother's. He could do this, only he could not give her soul back. She must be always without a soul.

"And Seraphita's mother talked with the devil, for her wits were gone, and she did not know right from wrong, and she promised anything if he would only give her baby back to her again, even without any soul. And the devil very politely said he did not want anything to be given to him. He was glad to give the child back so long as she did not ask for the soul.

"And then while the mother looked at Seraphita the pink came into the baby's cheeks, and she smiled, and then, because her joy was so great, the mother cried out loud, and her voice could be heard way down in the street. Then everybody came running in to see what was the matter, and the father was so happy he carried Seraphita again to the church, and they had another ceremony, and this time he paid even more gold, and there was a great festa in Granada.

"You see, nobody but the mother knew that only Seraphita's body was there, that she hadn't any soul and never could have one; only the mother knew, and she could not be happy.

"She grew very thin, and her smooth satin hair turned white on top just where the devil had laid his hand, so she wore a veil, even in the house, and she hid her eyes as if she was afraid, and she prayed day and night. Nobody knew what she prayed, because she did not dare to tell even her husband.

"By and by she grew so afraid and sad because Seraphita somehow didn't seem to her any more like her own child. She was like a beautiful wax doll, but she was not wax, and she looked just like herself to everybody else, only to her mother she seemed strange, and she could not get the warm love back into her heart, even though she pressed Seraphita to her bosom night and day.

"The little baby grew in spite of that, and she grew prettier and prettier all the time. Everybody loved her except her mother, and that was just what the devil wanted.

"The day Seraphita was a year old her mother could not bear it any longer, and she went to her priest and confessed to him all about it, and then very soon she died, because she had kept her secret so long it had just burned her heart out.

"After that, no one knew how it happened, but pretty soon everybody began to whisper and look queerly at Seraphita when the nurse carried her into the street, and her father seemed troubled, and he talked with the priest and wanted to pay some more money to the church, but they wouldn't have any more ceremonies for Seraphita, and the priests tried to make the people stop talking. What they said was 'nonsense.' But it was not nonsense, and so they went on talking among themselves, and they would take their own children out of the way when Seraphita was old enough to play about.

"So she grew up all alone except for her father and her nurse and the priest who went to live in the house, which showed that the church thought there was something in it, else why should a priest go and live in the house?

"One day when Seraphita was out walking she came across some little boys who were stoning a black kitten to kill it, for everybody knows that black cats belong to the devil. And Seraphita ran right in among the flying stones, and not one of them hit her, for the devil held his hand between her and the stones, and she caught up the devil's kitten and hugged it tight, while the stones fell at her feet, and the boys cried out: 'Devil's brat! Devil's cat!'"

"Pepita," said I, "she seemed to me to have been a very nice, soft hearted little girl."

"Oh, no, Senora Maria Madalena! You see, black cats belong to the devil, and if she had had any soul she couldn't have taken one in her arms.

"She carried it home, and she used to feed it, and she had to hide it away, because, of course, nobody wanted to have a devil's cat around, and the cat would run and jump into Seraphita's arms whenever she came near, but it would fly like mad and its hair would all stand on end when any one else came around, which shows, does it not, that something was wrong? And another thing showed that all was not right with Seraphita; the priest began to teach, and she learned faster than any child should. There was an evil spirit that whispered the words into her ear, so that she did not have to study.

"She had power over horses, too, and if she just put her lips to a horse's ear he would turn and rub his nose on her face. You see, horses have no soul, and they knew that Seraphita hadn't any.

"And, besides that, she always looked very old and grave when anybody was near, but when she was alone in the fields or in the woods she would laugh out loud, and they could hear her talk with the birds, for she knew bird language, and she would lean over the water and talk to herself or to the fishes. Oh, it was true, she had no soul!"

"Well, what became of her?" I asked as Pepita paused to emphasize her statement.

"She grew up so beautiful that strangers would stop in the street and look at her as she passed, but of course everybody soon found out all about her, and then they would not look at her—at least they would not look her in the eye—unless they had a charm on."

"Do you mean that she had the 'evil eye?'"

"Oh, yes! Why, she could make any one have bad luck just by looking at them, and she could make flowers grow and blossom and be more colors than any other flowers. She knew she had the 'evil eye,' for she never went anywhere or visited the sick or the poor, though she had plenty of money. She used to send the priest with food or clothes. You see, she knew."

"And what became of poor little Seraphita?"

"Why, you see, when she was about 20 years old she was very ill again, and she lay in a trance for three days. The doctors wouldn't go near her, and her own old nurse had died, and they couldn't get any one to take care of her till finally the priest sent to the convent for one of the sisters. She was a very good woman, and she went to the house, and, creeping on her hands and knees so that the devil could not get hold of her, she went right into the room and prayed all night. Her prayers went straight up to heaven, and she prayed that Seraphita might die and that before she died her soul should be given back to her.

"And, Senora Maria Madalena, just as the sky began to grow pink in the east and the white mist blew across the vega and the birds began to call what do you think happened?

"A beautiful white dove flew into the window and alighted on Seraphita's breast, and, laying its bill close to her mouth, it breathed a soul into her, and then the dove just vanished, and Seraphita was dead.

"Then, because God had been good to him and had given Seraphita a soul again, her father built an orphan asylum and called it after her, 'The Seraphita,' and you can see it over there, with the sun shining on it. It looks like gold."

"It is a pretty story, Pepita, but do you believe she had no soul?"

"The senora knows I am English on my father's side, but my mother was Spanish."

"So you are half Spanish and half believe it. Is that so, Pepita?"

"Yes, senora."

The Nightingales.

The father of Florence Nightingale was William Shore, who assumed by letters patent the surname of Nightingale in 1815. The name, together with the family property, came from old Peter Nightingale, against whom Arkwright, inventor of the spinning jenny, brought in 1776 one of his actions for infringement of patent rights. Lea Hurst, the home of the Nightingales in Derbyshire, is only two miles from Cromford, where Arkwright set up his mill and the adjacent manor house of which he purchased from Nightingale.

Lettice Fairfax will be Richard Mansfield's leading woman during the coming season. This will not be the lady's first experience with the eccentric and volcanic, though marvelously talented, Mansfield. She was a member of his company when "The First Violin" was produced, and he is said to have liked her work well enough to feel warranted in offering her an engagement for another year. Miss Fairfax was unable to accept owing to previous arrangements, and now she will come back to a better position. The leading female roles of "Monsieur Beaucaire" and "Herod" will be assigned to her. When Miss Fairfax was here before she gave no evidence of the possession of extraordinary ability, though reporters from the other side of the water justify the hope that she has greatly improved. By the way, it is now said that Mr. Mansfield's main reliance during the coming season will be Booth Tarkington's "Monsieur Beaucaire," and that "Herod" will only be occasionally used. Certain it is that the latter play was not an overwhelming success in London, where it was presented at Her Majesty's theater by Boerbohm Tree.

Miss Adelaide Thurston will be starred next season by Frank J. and Claxton Wilstach in a new play, "Sweet Clover," by Marion Short and Pauline Phelps. Miss Thurston was chosen by Charles Frohman to impersonate Lady Babbie in "The Little Minister" in the territory which Miss Maude Adams did not visit. During two seasons this young actress was received with considerable favor in this play. Although a young woman, she has played many parts. Her first engagement was in "Alabama." Afterward she was Bossie in "A Texas Steer," following which she played a season as leading ingenue at the Grand Opera House, Pittsburg. In the stock company she played such roles as Bess in "The Charity Ball," Kitty Ives in "The Wife," Dora in "Men and Women," May Standish in "Pique," as well as her first portrayal of Corey Preston in "Alabama." Miss Thurston had two excellent offers to appear in New York productions, but she was so greatly pleased with the play "Sweet Clover" that she refused them. Claxton Wilstach will personally conduct Miss Thurston's tour, while Frank J. Wilstach will continue as business manager for Miss Viola Allen.

Mr. J. W. Albaugh of Baltimore is popularly regarded as a rather shrewd theatrical manager. He has dabbled in vaudeville with success and has managed to make money with a stock company in Baltimore. But Mr. Albaugh is not always right in his estimates of matters theatrical. A short time ago he is reported to have declined an offer to establish a stock company in a western city on the ground that such an organization could be made to pay in only one place in the United States—Baltimore. This is amusing when we consider that not only do stock companies pay in other cities, but that they pay well enough to warrant the employment of leading people, such as May Buckley in St. Paul, Robert Drouet also in St. Paul, Mary Hampton in Cleveland, Valerie Bergerie in Providence, Katherine Grey in San Francisco, Bertha Creighton in Portland, Jane Kennark in Kansas City, John Mason in Chicago, Maud Odell in Montreal, Jessie Bonstelle in St. John and Eva Taylor in Boston.

James R. Keene, the well known New York millionaire sportsman, has purchased of General Joseph C. Breckinridge 232 acres of unimproved land in Kentucky for $20,000. The land is located near the Castleton stud of Mr. Keene and will be used as a part of that breeding establishment, giving it a total acreage of 845.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 7—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Religion and patriotism.—Rom. xiii, 1-7.

Piety and patriotism should go hand in hand. Our religion should be patriotic. Our patriotism should be religious. Religion includes the performance of every duty that devolves upon us in every relation of life. The relation to the state, to the government, is a very important relation of life. The Christian has no more right to ignore or to neglect his duty to the state than he has to treat in a similar way his duty to the church or to the home. Christ taught both by precept and example that civil duties should be performed. He paid taxes to the Roman government and declared that men should "render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's" as well as unto "God the things that are God's."

Paul in writing to the Romans exhorts that "every soul be subject to the powers that be." Reference here is to the civil powers. In a time of tyranny and oppression the apostle still urges the importance of obedience and respect to the civil government. This should be the attitude of Christians toward governments everywhere. This cannot mean, however, that there can never be an occasion when "the powers that be" should be resisted. If they go beyond their rights and privileges, they should be resisted. All powers delegated to man are limited. Children should obey parents as parents, but not as sovereigns; wives are to obey their husbands as husbands, but not as tyrants and oppressors; citizens are to respect and to obey rulers as rulers, but when they go beyond their legitimate bounds as rulers and attempt to exercise powers not delegated to rulers there is no law of God that demands that they should be obeyed.

Paul's reasons for this attitude toward human governments are many and comprehensive: 1. "For there is no power but of God. The powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever, therefore, resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God." 2. Human governments are for a good purpose and hence must be sustained. "For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil." "He is the minister of God for good to thee." 3. This attitude toward human government is a conscientious duty. "Ye must needs be subject not only for wrath, but also for conscience sake." For these causes Christians are not to refuse to pay "tribute to whom tribute is due, custom to whom custom, fear to whom fear, honor to whom honor."

In what better way can we commemorate our Independence day than by dedicating ourselves more fully to the love and service of our country. It needs the love and service of every Christian. Great problems are before us. The ship of state is sailing through troublous seas. Let us give our best thought and effort to its welfare. Being Christians, let us recognize the fact that it necessarily follows that we should be good citizens.

BIBLE READINGS.

Neh. ii, 1-5; Ps. xxxiii, 10-22; li, 18; cxlvii, 20; Prov. xiv, 34; Math. xvii, 24-27; xxii, 15-21; xxiii, 37; I Tim. ii, 1-3; Heb. xi, 8-16.

Soul Wrecks.

The saddest wrecks in this world are soul wrecks. Many who set out joyously on the voyage of life, with brightest hopes and prospects of attaining a career of usefulness, happiness and honor, are wrecked amid the temptations and snares that beset them and never reach the goal or haven of their hopes. Some may attain what is called success in a worldly sense—that is, they may attain wealth or distinction or some other object of ambition, but it is often through nefarious devices and at the sacrifice of honesty and honor. Success attained by such means is common, but those who have attained it often awaken to the momentous fact that they have paid a fearful price for it and have wrecked their souls.—Lutheran Observer.

Our Neighbor.

A man must not choose his neighbor; he must take the neighbor that God sends him. In him, whoever he is, lies hidden or revealed a beautiful brother. "Thy neighbor" is just the man who is next to you at the moment. This love of our neighbor is the only door out of the dungeon of self.—George MacDonald.

Quiet Usefulness.

The maelstrom attracts more notice than the quiet fountain, a comet draws more attention than the steady star, but it is better to be the fountain than the maelstrom and star than comet, following out the sphere and orbit of quiet usefulness in which God places us.—Dr. John Hall.

Giving Up For Christ.

Giving up for Christ is an enriching process. Whatever we lay down here in order to please and honor our Master will be laid up to our account yonder. Our God is a faithful trustee; He keeps His books of remembrance. He will reward every one according as his work shall be.—Dr. T. L. Cuyler.

The Light of Conscience.

Do the right and fear no thought
That another may express;
They your conscience have not taught,
And your lives may never bless.
Do what conscience says is right,
Then life's safest rule is yours,
And you follow in the light
That forevermore endures.

Men will differ and may change,
And if man you seek to please
You may often think it strange
That it is no path of ease.
For no matter what you do
Some will think it is not right;
So to your own souls be true;
Then you'll follow God's own light.

AN UNKNOWN QUANTITY

Opinion of Yachting Experts Regarding the Independence

A CHANGE IN THE DESIGN

Of Cup Challengers and Defenders Likely to Result If the Crowninshield Production Should Win—Test of Relative Merits Comes Today

Newport, R. I., July 6.—Preparations are complete for the great race today between the Constitution, Independence and Columbia. All three boats are fit, and their managers, captains and crews are anxious for the fray.

It can be safely said that there is more interest in this race than in any yacht racing contest that has ever before taken place between American boats. The Independence is an absolutely unknown quantity. She is regarded by many well-known and experienced yachtsmen as an experiment. Should she win over the two Herreshoff boats, many experts say that this would put an end to the big single stickers as cup defenders, so wide is their departure from the original yacht idea. However, it would be a triumph for her designer, whose sole idea in producing the Independence has been to bring out the fastest racing craft possible.

Then, too, the interest in today's race is widespread and intense because, should it proceed from start to finish without accident, it will be the first real test of the Constitution. She has thus far started in only two races. In the first she suffered a slight mishap herself. In the second her rival, the old Columbia, came to grief, and the contest was declared off. So, as a matter of fact, her speed qualities are as yet untried.

The only known quantity is the Columbia. Some say that in her the limit of speed has been reached, certainly she is fast, and certainly she is well handled. At all events, she is a most admirable trial horse.

There was a bit of excitement in the bay yesterday afternoon when it was thought that the two new boats were having a little brush while out on trial spins. They came together on the same tack, while close hauled, and for 14 minutes went on in thorough racing style. But the sharps could get no reliable line on the abilities of the two boats.

The series of races which begins today is the first big event under the auspices of the Newport Racing association. It is said that plans are already laid to make this the big racing organization of America, and to develop the Newport course. It is not altogether impossible that in the future this will be the scene of international races.

"WERE SIMPLY OUTROWED"

But Pennsylvania Men Put Up Strong Bid For the Henley Cup

Henley, Eng., July 6.—To the disappointment of all the Americans at Henley the Leander Rowing club defeated the crew of the University of Pennsylvania in the final heat of the Grand Challenge cup. The Leanders won by a length, time, 7m. 4 4-5 s.

"It was a grand race," said Coach Ward of the Pennsylvania crew, as the Leanders crossed the finish line. "We were simply outrowed and have no other explanation to make." It certainly was the best and most exciting tussle ever seen at Henley.

Now that the struggle is over, it is confessed that Pennsylvania has given some anxious moments; but nothing more is heard of any necessity of altering the rules governing the regatta. It is regarded as quite natural that the challenge should be repeated next year, and the idea meets with the greatest satisfaction. Leander's victory is almost universally conceded to have been due to superior method, rather than superior strength.

Mr. Lehmann, in The Daily News, says: "We won in a race in which the visitors displayed gallantry and determination worthy of the most unqualified praise. After this there can be no further discussion of styles. The English, based on long experience and tried in hundreds of races through a period of many years, has again secured victory. We all felt that the Americans were the best foreign crew who ever tried conclusions with us, and it has certainly added to the pleasure of our victory to have prevailed over so plucky, a determined and chivalrous a foe." Lehmann's words fairly represent all the comment in the London newspapers.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. ## SERIOUS STABBING AFFAIR

Desperate Negro Fought His Way Through a Crowd With a Knife

Boston, July 6.—As a result of a barroom row in Roxbury, George H. Guptil was stabbed in the left side, and the wound is serious. The disturbance in the saloon attracted attention from the outside, and when James Goodman rushed out of the door he found his progress blocked by the crowd. They pressed upon him, and soon there was considerable confusion. Goodman made strong efforts to get clear of the throng, some of whom wished to detain him.

Goodman drew a knife and began to fight for a pathway. Guptil was in the way, and he received a knife thrust in his left side, which caused a deep and dangerous wound. Seeing the disposition of Goodman the crowd parted, but the police arrived just in time to catch him.

Guptil was taken to a doctor's office near by, and he was in such a weak condition that it was not considered safe to move him. Goodman is a negro, 55 years of age.

Accordingly, it was agreed that Cahill should become a government witness, and the court was asked to dismiss the case, which was immediately done. Upon the evidence now at hand the police have set out to make two more arrests.

RESIGNATION OF DAWES

Comptroller Aspires to the Senatorial Toga

TO CAMPAIGN IN ILLINOIS

Prompt Action Has Been His Principle In Dealing With Banking Institutions In Difficulties—Arguments on Monetary System Widely Quoted

Washington, July 6.—Charles G. Dawes, comptroller of the currency, has tendered his resignation to the president, to take effect Oct. 1 next. In answer to an inquiry, Mr. Dawes said:

CHARLES G. DAWES.

"I have resigned because of my intention to be a candidate before the people of Illinois for the United States senate. It would not be possible for me during the next year to make a canvass for the senate, and at the same time administer to my own satisfaction the important and responsible office I now hold. I am influenced solely in this action by what seem the plain proprieties of the situation."

Mr. Dawes' term of office would not have expired until Jan. 1, 1903.

Mr. Dawes entered the office of comptroller of the currency Jan. 1, 1898, succeeding James V. Eckles, and was immediately confronted by the situation in the Chestnut Street National bank of Philadelphia, which was one of the most complicated ever confronting a comptroller. He found it necessary in the interest of the creditors of the bank to oppose the general plan of a reorganization committee, formed of prominent citizens of Philadelphia, and for a time he was severely criticized therefor. His plan was followed, however, and it is now recognized as having saved to the creditors of the bank a lien upon other property, which was not contemplated by the reorganization committee. He frequently expressed himself as in favor of prompt action when convinced that the public interests required action at all, and acted on this principle, notably in the recent case of the Seventh National bank of New York.

One of his first orders, after entering office, stopped the practice of the employment of national bank examiners for the private examination of banks. Early in his term he made a ruling levying a second assessment upon stockholders of insolvent banks where the first assessment had been less than the law authorized, and he established the practice of rebating to stockholders such portions of the prior assessment as was determined by further liquidation to have been excessive under the law. This ruling changed the long established practice of the office and was upheld by the courts, practically without exception. Comptroller Dawes also organized a system of consolidation of insolvent banks in the last stages of liquidation in the interest of economy, so that at the present time 37 receiverships are being administered by two receivers, with greatly reduced expenses. He also has uniformly hastened the liquidation of insolvent banks.

Upon entering office the fag ends largely of the national bank failures of the 1893 panic were still undisposed of. During the last four years he has collected $25,000,000 in cash from these assets, which covered every description of property. One of the most prominent features of Comptroller Dawes' administration has been his annual reports to congress. He came to office at a time when the monetary system of the country was a subject of general interest and the arguments he advanced in his reports became the subject of widespread discussion by the press and financial journals of the United States and England.

During his term he prepared a very complete list of statistics relating to banking in the United States. Owing to the passage of the law of March 4, 1900, the national banking system of the country has greatly increased. During his administration he has created 785 banks. The number of national banks now under his supervision is 4064, having assets of $5,630,794,387.

Killed by Firecracker

Cumberland, Md., July 6.—Andrew Kirkpatrick was walking along the street Thursday night, when some one stepped up behind him and ignited the fuse of a giant firecracker, which he carried under his arm. ## SWAMPED RESCUER

Danvers Couple Lose Lives by Drowning at Baker's Island

Salem, Mass., July 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Upton of Danvers were drowned at Baker's island, Salem harbor, yesterday. They were members of a party from that town, who went to the island for a day's outing. Mr. and Mrs. Upton went to the eastern side of the island to fish. Mrs. Upton lost her balance and fell into the water. Fred Hutchinson, who was fishing near by, dived into the water to save Mrs. Upton. He succeeded in reaching her, and was making good progress toward the land with his burden, when Mr. Upton also lost his balance on the rocks and, in falling, struck both the others, who were in the water below.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Upton clung to Hutchinson for safety, and, to prevent being drowned himself, he was obliged to shake them off. He was then pulled ashore by a companion. Both Mr. and Mrs. Upton were dead when their bodies were recovered. Mr. Upton was a shoe cutter by trade, and leaves a son 11 years old, who was on the island at the time of the accident. The victims were each about 50 years of age.

Sunday Baseball Playing Upheld

New York, July 6.—County Judge Lent at White Plains yesterday rendered a decision reversing a decision of a Yonkers judge. Complaint had been made before the city judge of Yonkers that on Sunday, June 16, the defendants violated the laws by playing baseball. They were convicted and fined. They took an appeal to the county court, and in his decision Judge Lent said that he could see no more reason for prohibiting the playing of a game of ball, which is carried on without noise, than there is for prohibiting one from riding in a wagon or trolley car.

Washington, July 6.—President and Mrs. McKinley left Washington last night for their former home at Canton, O., where they are to spend the remainder of the heated term, except that the former may visit the Buffalo exposition and run on to Washington for a few days. Mrs. McKinley showed unmistakable evidence of her recent severe illness in the thinness and pallor of her face, but she boarded the train without any material assistance, and appeared to be in a contented and cheerful state of mind.

Still Out of Sheriff's Reach

Helena, Mont., July 6.—A special from Glasgow states that two posses are in pursuit of the Great Northern train robbers. A ranchman named Walsh met the robbers yesterday. ☞It is said that the fortune of a Standard Oil magnate will be drawn upon to place the Seventh National Bank of New York city on its feet, and prevent any loss to depositors. Considering the vast amount of wealth represented in the Board of Directors, it would be rather a shameful proceeding to permit the patrons of the institution to suffer from ballooning business management.—Lynn Item.

☞A comforting reflection in these days of sizzling, sweltering heat is that a large part, it may be the larger part, of all discomforts are bound to disappear with the growth of good manner." Then we shall have to wait, we fear, a long, long time. Good manners in public are not sufficiently common, nor are they growing common fast enough, to justify the belief that they will in themselves drive away much of the prevailing evil that has resulted from thoughtlessness, carelessness, selfishness—all of which are bad manners, and very bad. Good-hearted people even are likely to manifest extremely bad manners oftentimes, especially in crowds. And the evil, we should say, is increasing, not abating.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞When the list of great patrotic speeches is being made up, don't fail to include the informal, off-hand talk by Secretary John D. Long to the Massachusetts club on Tuesday. It was too hot for oratorical effort but nevertheless oratory was never more powerful than on that occasion, because there was so much of truth in the simple language that was used. He was supposed to talk about the navy and its power and achievements, but what he really talked about was the nation and its achievements, as much the pride and glory of the least known civilian as of the men whose names have been prominent in war or in peace. It was a strong appeal to the power of the people expressed not only in feats of armed forces but in the affairs of the community and the home which are the vital factors in the real national triumph.—Haverhill Gazette.

ITALIAN ROW.

Razors Were Used and Blood Flowed Freely.

There was a small-sized Italian riot on Water street last night, as a result of which Nichola Tocci received two bad cuts on the head and face. He passed the night at the police station as did also Gaetano Antonelli and Antonio Cidrone one of whom it is believed did the cutting.

The three men got into a row on Water street near the corner of Franklin street, a little after 8 o'clock. In a few minutes there was a rough and tumble fight during which the door in William St. Pierre's bicycle store was smashed in.

It was then that several telephones were sent to the police station. Captain Hanson was as usual the only officer on duty, and the patrol wagon being hung up for repairs (?) and the police signal system grounded (?) it was not without some trouble that Captain Hanson was able to get officers to send to the scene. Officer Murray was taken off his beat in City Square, and with Constable Johnson went to the scene.

Meanwhile Tocci had received a cut from a razor or bottle that extended from the corner of his left eye almost to the base of the skull and one from the eye to the chin.

He was taken to the office of Dr. Padula where twenty stitches were required to close the wounds. Antonelli went to the physicians with Tocci and had a small cut over his left eye attended to.

After Tocci had been sewed up he was so weak from loss of blood that he had to be carried to the carriage by Officer Murray. He and Antonelli were taken to the police station.

A little later Cidrone was arrested on Presidents avenue by Officer Murray. Cidrone threw something away just before he was arrested. A razor was found in his pockets but there was no blood upon it.

Cidrone also had a cut upon the top of the head and from the fact that all three men received cuts it would seem as if all three men had been armed with razors or bottles and that they had used them freely.

All three appeared in court this morning.

Tocci's story of the affair was that he and a friend were coming along Water street on their bicycles. When near the corner of Franklin street, Cidrone started toward him and pushed him. Four men then pitched into him and Cidrone drew a knife. Two held him and Cidrone cut him with a knife or razor and some one hit him on the head with a bottle.

Dr. Welch who was called to assist Dr. Padula in dressing the wounds says that Tocci will be disfigured for life and that it was a dangerous wound inasmuch that had the cut on the face been a little deeper it might have severed a large artery. The cut on the top of the head was cut through to the bone.

Cidrone denied cutting Tocci with a razor or knife. He claims to have attempted to separate the crowd when he was knocked down and kicked. Cidrone also denied having a knife although Officer Nicol found the knife where he had thrown it.

NEW CHAMPION SWIMMER.

Benjamin Koehler Goes Hundred Yards In Fifty-two Seconds.

Benjamin Koehler of South Bend, Ind., is a world's champion swimmer, having established a new record for the 100 yard event, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. He accomplished the feat at the games of the Turners held at Fort Wayne the other week, swimming the distance in 52 seconds, which is eight seconds faster than the best previous record, which was made by T. Meadham at Sydney Dec. 4, 1892. On that day the famous Australian in still water at the natatorium of that city and in seven turns made the 100 yards in one minute.

Koehler not only broke the record for the 100 yard event, but he also cut all records from 50 yards up. Koehler has for several years been recognized as one of the foremost swimmers of America and for three years has held the 100 yard championship of the Turners of the United States. In establishing the new record of 52 seconds Koehler forges ahead of such famous swimmers as Derbyshire, Haggerty, Renear and Schaeffer.

Koehler is an all round athlete and for several years has been known as one of the best football players of the country. Last fall he played half back for the eleven at Greensburg, Pa. He is this season left fielder for the South Bend Greens. Since he was a boy he has been a member of the South Bend Turn Verein classes and for the last few years has been a member of that society.

HELEN KELLER'S SPEECH.

She Talks at Commencement Exercises of a Deaf and Dumb Institute.

Miss Helen Keller, the blind and deaf Radcliffe undergraduate, who is spending the summer in Nova Scotia, was one of the speakers at the commencement exercises of the Halifax Institution For the Deaf and Dumb the other evening, says a Boston dispatch to the New York Sun. She said:

"Dear friends, I am glad to be with you. I do not at all feel as if I were in a strange country, for I have been familiar with the name and the story of Evangeline's land from earliest childhood, and when I knew that I was at last to visit Nova Scotia my heart overflowed with pleasure. This is one of the unexpected joys which meet us around the corner of the street of life. I do not know whether you understand what I am saying or not, but you must feel how glad I am to be here.

"I am deeply, earnestly interested in the condition of those who, like myself, cannot hear. I understand the peculiar difficulties and discouragements that beset your path, the obstacles that you must overcome before you can enter into your rightful opportunities, and we can and must make them stepping stones to the attainment of your ideals. I think we can accomplish anything that we undertake if we earnestly persevere."

MEDAL FOR AN AMERICAN.

Conferred on A. M. Blennus For Saving Thirsty Ladysmith.

Embassador Choate has informed the state department at Washington that a South African war medal has been awarded to A. M. Blennus, an American citizen, in recognition of the valuable service rendered by him as driver of the engine connected with the water supply of Ladysmith during the siege of that town.

Mr. Choate adds that the British foreign office requests that the medal be forwarded to Mr. Blennus at 216 West Thirty-fourth street, New York city.

At the height of the burgher investment of Ladysmith a shell from the Boer trenches burst near the engine connected with the waterworks of the town. There was no duplicate engine, and things looked very dark for the garrison, for it seemed as though the water supply would be cut off. The British officers all supposed that the engine was irretrievably damaged, but Mr. Blennus, with what he found in a heap of scrap iron, succeeded in repairing it, his feat resembling that described in one of the stories in Kipling's "The Day's Work."

THE RICH ON CARNEGIE GIFT

They Think It Will Hurt the Social Prestige of Scotch Universities.

In regard to the Carnegie gift of $10,000,000 to the Scotch universities, James Ewart, professor of English history at the University of Edinburgh, who arrived at New York by the steamship Etruria the other day, says:

"The lower classes of the Scotch people—that is, sons of well to do tradesmen, mechanics and the like—welcome Mr. Carnegie's gift in that it will give the long desired opportunity to receive the best instruction in all branches of learning at a nominal fee that the universities can bestow.

"The upper middle classes and the aristocracy, however, are bitterly opposed to the endowment, their only excuse being, so far as I can see, that they think it will tend to lower the prestige and even morals of the university to that of the common board school. It is a ridiculous supposition. The fact of the matter is the whole scheme is too democratic to be welcomed by the rich."

Bread Out of Wood.

Professor Dr. van t'Hoff, a Berlin chemist, is of the opinion that before long the synthesis of albumens will be accomplished with the help of the enzymes, or ferments, which play so important a part in animal and vegetable life, writes a Berlin correspondent. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

FORESTERS PICNIC.

A Tug of War Contest One of the Features.

Rain this morning somewhat interfered with the union picnic of the Foresters of America at Merrymount Park. The courts were to parade at 10 o'clock, but this was delayed until after 11 o'clock. At that time the line was formed on Hancock street in front of Wilson's hall. There were about one hundred in line, these included representatives of John Erickson and Adams courts of Quincy, Roger Wolcott of East Milton, North Pole of Everett. Some of the paraders wore the quaint uniform of the order and made an attractive appearance.

Theodore Hermanson was chief marshal and he was mounted on a charger. The courts were escorted by a squad of police and the Columbus band. After marching through the principal streets they proceeded to Merrymount park where a series of sports were held.

One of the chief sports will be a tug of war between teams from John Erickson court of Quincy and North Pole court of Everett for a valuable trophy.

The Big Show.

Main's circus, which exhibited in this city yesterday afternoon and last evening, is one of the best circuses that has ever been seen in Portland and the crowds of people that thronged the tents at both performances were highly pleased.

A fine programme was carried out and every part was done in a manner that elicited much applause. The performers are artists and the horses were about the handsomest that have been seen in any circus. There were many new features that were entirely out of the ordinary, but which were very well received. Prof. Dockrill with his 63 horses on pedestals and pyramids, formed one of the most interesting events of the show.— Kingston Free Press.

The Corning, N. Y., Democrat of May 11 says of the New Fashion Plate Show, which gives two performances in Quincy on July 12, as follows:

"The parade, which took place shortly before noon, was in reality a brilliant affair, the cages, chariots and costumes worn by many knights and their ladies being entirely new and made of the most costly material.

"As a general thing the street pageant can be considered a criterion of what is to be expected of the performance, and if Mr. Main fulfils this old saying our people will surely get their full money's worth.

"The new Main shows this season, have so far received nothing but highly flattering criticisms and has fully upheld Mr. Main's seventeen years reputation for giving nothing but highly meritorious performances. Everything connected with the aggregation is new this season and many of the novel features were secured during Mr. Main's sojourn of fourteen months in Europe, where he went in quest of novelties. The stock is certainly the finest ever seen in this city."

The tents for the circus will be erected on grounds between Canal and Coddington streets, near the centre of the city.

Officers Installed.

The officers of Ladies' Auxiliary to Div. 12, A. O. H., of Braintree were installed Tuesday evening by County President Eliza Sheahan of Quincy, and suite. The evening was devoted to speechmaking vocal and instrumental music, as follows:

Vocal solo, Miss Kate Fitzsimmons.
Piano solos, Miss Kittie O'Brien.
Vocal solos, Miss Gertrude Berry.
Address, Miss Eliza Sheahan of Quincy.
Address, Miss Catherine Heavey of Randolph.

Ice cream and cake were served during the evening.

Many invited guests were present from Quincy, Randolph, Franklin and Weymouth.

The committee in charge of the affair were Mrs Patrick King, Mr. Patrick Dignon, Mrs. Thomas Kelley, Mrs. Horace Burgess and Mrs. John Condon.

—Paul Revere, the famous Revolutionary hero was an inventor, and was the first in this country to refine and roll copper. The concern he founded in 1801, the Revere Copper company still exits at Canton, Mass.

A PHOSPHORESCENT METAL

Mineral Found That Is of a Very Puzzling Nature.

A great deal of speculation has been caused by the discovery, about 60 miles from Boise, Ida., of a mineral which has illuminating power. The discovery was made by George F. Ayres, a well known man of Boise, in one of his mines. At the time he did not think much of the matter and therefore paid no attention to it. The farther he went into the mine, however, the brighter the light became, until after a few feet had been worked it was not necessary for him to use a lamp. It was then that he took some of the mineral to Boise and had it examined by assayers.

All assayers to whom it was shown declared that they never heard of it before and were unable to say what it was. T. L. Williams of Boise, who has an interest in some of Mr. Ayers' mines, says in an interview:

"We will go ahead and try to put it to some use and even at the present time are reasonably sure of success. If it does come out as we expect, the mine will be more valuable than we ever believed.

"There is a large body of the deposit, and the farther we go in the stronger becomes the light. Another thing that we are convinced of is that if it can be made practical it will be a perpetual light, for in the throwing off of its rays there does not appear to be any waste of the mineral."

Coated With Liquid Air.

The department of agriculture has been working recently upon what seems to be a very interesting discovery—namely, that all objects in nature are covered with a very thin coating of liquid air. The discovery here referred to is said to have practical usefulness. It is found that a soil which has been deprived of its normal proportion of carbonic acid may be recuperated in this respect by simply turning it over and exposing it to the air, so that the needed molecules may settle upon it.

Marconi's Latest.

Marconi now announces that his wireless telegraph apparatus can be installed in a portable shape for use by an army in the field. In a lecture before the Society of Arts in London he said: "It is now possible to construct a portable apparatus for army purposes. I have made a complete installation on a steam motor car, with which I have easily communicated over 30 miles. Such an appliance would have been of use to the besieged garrisons in South Africa and China."

The festive mosquito, the pest of the summer and the insect which communicates yellow fever, malaria and cholera, has a new foe, an antidote which does away with the sting of its venom and which may prove deadly to it. Naphthalene is the destroyer, and, although the drug has before been known as a poison, it has never been regarded as an "antiskeet" remedy. Dr. Voges, director of the national board of health at Buenos Ayres, South America, is the authority who has found naphthalene to be the best known insect liniment.

A Golf Disease.

With the golf season comes the discovery of a new complaint with which amateur golfers are threatened. This complaint is known as the "golf tendon" and results from the overexertion occasioned by amateur golfers' efforts to excel in the sport imported from Scotland. Several cases in which amateur golfers have been temporarily crippled owing to the prevalence of "golf tendon" have already been discovered. The crippling of the golfers is the result of unskillful players placing too large a portion of their weight on the plantaris tendon in their legs.

A Plea For Bacteria.

A bacteria infested age may breathe freely again. French investigators have put guinea pigs through a thorough course of sterilization with fatal results, and the inference is that an unsterilized world somehow has in it elements of vitality that cannot be put away with impunity. The inquirers took 27 guinea pigs, put them in disinfected cages, fed them with sterilized food and allowed them to breathe only sterilized air, and 19 of the 27 died.

To Combine Hotel and Hospital.

A novel experiment, but one which would seem to be at least worthy of a trial, is about to be entered upon by a few Chicago physicians. Five of the foremost physicians and surgeons of that city are preparing to build a large private hotel and sanitarium at a cost of $400,000. The projected establishment is to be provided with an ample staff of attending physicians as well as with a corps of nurses.

Partinium.

A new metal composition has been made that is proving very valuable in the manufacture of bicycles, automobiles and carriages. It is known as partinium and is composed of wolframium and aluminium. It is said that the addition of wolframium to aluminium greatly strengthens the latter metal without increasing its weight. It is a French discovery and is principally used in that country.

An Electrical Triumph.

Forty thousand volts were successfully transmitted over 140 miles with a loss of not over 5 per cent from the power plant on the Yuba river and used in propelling the electric railway cars in the city of Oakland, Cal.

THINKS GLASS AGE NEAR

Famous French Scientist Makes an Interesting Prediction.

ALL THE WORLD IN GLASS HOUSES

Day Not Far Removed, Says Jules Henrivaux, When Vitreous Materials Will Play Preponderating Role. Houses In Which Dust Cannot Collect Nor Spiders Spin Their Webs.

According to M. Jules Henrivaux, who originated the famous Palais Lumineux, or palace of light, at the last Paris exposition and who was until recently director of the great glass manufactory of St. Gobain, in France, glass will ere long come to play such a great part in the world's economy that the next age is likely to be distinguished as "the age of glass."

M. Henrivaux is an enthusiast on glass. He believes it to be the material of the future. He does not pretend that the world can look for glass cannons or glass men-of-war or glass greyhounds of the ocean, nor does he contemplate the substitution of vitreous machinery for that now employed in various processes of manufacture, but he does claim that glass is the best substance known for every kind of structural purpose and especially for dwelling houses. In short, if the visions of M. Henrivaux are realized, says the London Daily Express, all the world will be living in glass houses before long.

The point of the idea is found in the inexhaustible supply of the materials from which glass is made, in its adaptability to all shapes and forms, its durability and its cleanliness. With regard to the second point, it is obvious that glass can be shaped, colored and decorated to an extent of which no other material is capable, and it is upon this aspect of the idea that M. Henrivaux lavishes his imagination.

There are six ways in which glass can be manipulated. It can be cast into window panes, paving stones, panels, etc. It can be molded into cornices, slates, wall decorations and even statues. It can be blown into bottles, tumblers, vases and all the utensils comprised under the name of "glassware." It can be blown and ground into crystals, lenses, prisms and other objects of art and utility. It can be drawn into the finest threads and made into pipes, baskets and dress materials. It can be turned into mosaics and enamels and can be brought into the closest imitation of most of the precious stones.

Imagine, with M. Henrivaux, the construction of a glass house. The foundations and the walls would be constructed of a variety of glass recently invented called "stone glass," which has already successfully withstood the severest tests. When crushed, it gives a resistance three times as great as granite. When subjected to heat or cold, it is found less sensitive than steel. When subjected to friction, it shows less wear than porphyry. Shock, as of a hammer blow, it resists to a degree 22 times as severe as that which would fracture marble. The test of tension has practically no effect on it whatever.

The walls, then, would be built of glass, held together by angle iron, so as to permit of a hollow space through which pipes could pass (the pipes themselves being glasswork) conveying hot air, hot and cold water, gas, electric wires, drains and everything needed for the health and comfort of the inhabitants. Stairs and balustrades, ceilings and wall decorations, mantelpieces and fireplaces would all be constructed of glass. Some of M. Henrivaux's conceptions in the way of decorations, in which the glass is made opaque or tinted with brilliant colors or made silver and golden or arranged in prisms and crystals with facets like diamonds, are perhaps too fanciful to be taken seriously, but through them all there runs the same enthusiasm, the same belief that glass, as Thiers once said of Louis Napoleon, is capable of anything.

Chairs and tables in the new glass age will be made of vitrified material, toughened to the strength of oak and mahogany. Cooking utensils, plates and cups and saucers will be made of the same substance. Even knives and forks will have glass handles, if not glass blades.

The new glass house will be absolutely clean and practically indestructible. The whole of its surface can be washed from the top story to the basement without a trace of humidity being left. Dust cannot collect on its polished face, and the spider will find no place on which to hang its cobwebs.

They have already begun to pave the streets of Paris with glass, and it is found that the substance, while practically indestructible, is admirably suited to the feet of both men and beasts, and as it neither holds nor makes any dirt it is absurdly easy to clean. Its only fault is that it somewhat increases the noise of the traffic, but even this might by and by be overcome.

The question of cost has not been left out of account. Glass can be made out of almost anything amenable to the influence of fire. The stone glass, to which reference has already been made, is manufactured mainly from what have hitherto been regarded as waste substances. The slag heaps which disfigure mining and iron districts are all convertible into glass. Evidently the days of bricks and slates are numbered.

Among the several states and territories Oklahoma shows the largest percentage of increase of population, according to the census of 1900.

CONSUMPTION CONGRESS.

Open Air Treatment Will Receive Considerable Attention.

The British congress on tuberculosis, which will be held in London from Monday, July 22, to Friday, July 26, is attracting widespread interest and attention, says The Lancet.

The public is very quick to take up any new theory or method of "cure" of tuberculosis, especially the pulmonary variety, which may be introduced and all the more if it be injudiciously lauded by the lay press. This unfortunately not infrequently happens, and therefore a congress of genuine investigators is of real importance, as the proceedings will tend to set in their proper place the therapeutic measures which have not fulfilled the hopes at one time expressed for them and to bring more into prominence those which extended experience has shown to be successful. The "open air" treatment of tuberculosis will thus receive considerable attention, and naturally the much disputed influence of climate will be carefully discussed.

Twenty years ago heredity was considered one of the main ætiological factors in tuberculosis. The discovery of the pathogenic bacillus by Professor Koch greatly reduced the importance of heredity, and some authorities would seem to go so far as almost to discard it. This, however, is carrying bacteriological views to the extreme. The bacillus alone is obviously not the sole cause of the disease, otherwise the human species would long ago have become extinct. The exact nature of the second ætiological factor (there may be several) we are not as yet acquainted with. Certain terms are employed concerning it which are somewhat vague, such as "suitable pabulum" or "deficient resistance," and probably heredity plays no inconsiderable part, although not so important a one as was originally thought, in conferring on the offspring of tuberculosis parents a diminished power of resistance to the attacks of the bacillus.

An overpowering predominance of opinion, however, points toward infection as the most powerful agent in the spread of the disease, and while the medical profession can do much toward lessening the mischief by observation of the habits of their patients and careful tuition the carrying out of the hygienic instructions rests mainly with the sufferers themselves.

MASON AND DIXON LINE.

Plans and Appropriations to Restore It.

The monuments of the Mason and Dixon boundary line between Pennsylvania and Maryland have suffered severely from the attacks of vandals, and they will soon be replaced with cast iron markers.

Rapid progress is now being made on the relocation of the line, says the Baltimore Sun. The eastern portion was originally marked by stone monuments at equal distances of one mile. Many of these stones have been removed or destroyed. The western portion, owing to the great difficulty at that time in the region traversed by the line, was marked by wooden posts, cut on the spot, and secured in place by mounds of earth or stone piled around them. These posts have disappeared, but some of the mounds remain. Many of them have been destroyed by cultivation of the ground. It is believed, though, that enough of them can be recovered to enable the relocation of the boundary with precision.

The Pennsylvania legislature has appropriated $7,000 to reset and repair the boundary monuments and the Maryland legislature $5,000. Dr. W. C. Clark of Baltimore is co-operating with Secretary of Internal Affairs Latta of Pennsylvania in directing the work.

ANGORA GOATS IN MAINE.

They Are In Great Demand For Clearing Scrubby Pastures.

C. E. Libby, a farmer of Burnham, Me., has gone into the Angora goat business on a somewhat extensive scale, says the New York Sun. He is the original importer of the animals into Maine, and now they may be found in many places.

The first lot of 500 which he received from Mexico only a few weeks ago has been sold so rapidly that he has only a few left. A fresh invoice is expected shortly. They were brought to Burnham by rail and were 20 days on the passage, and yet of the very large number received only three died from the effects of the journey.

The demand for the Angora among the farmers of Maine seems to be for the clearing of scrubby pastures and bush country, and as this little animal is capable of eating a great quantity of twigs and bushes he will doubtless prove a boon to the farmers, as the cost of keeping is small and the returns from mohair are large.

Reindeer For Food.

It is stated that a strenuous attempt is being made by some enterprising Norwegians to popularize reindeer flesh as an article of diet in Europe. The experiment of raising the animals in large numbers for slaughtering purposes will be fairly tried, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. They expect to find profitable markets in France and Belgium and will even endeavor to induce beef eating Britons to purchase the article.

The shirt waist man is experiencing the usual persecution suffered by all pioneers in a good cause. It will be noticed, however, says the Baltimore American, that the shirt waist woman is not flying into print to accuse him of unseemly grasping at her feminine privileges.

CUP YACHT CAPTAINS.

Sketches of Men Who Sail the Great Racing Machines.

RHODES, HAFF AND SYCAMORE.

Unusual Qualities Required to Command In a Contest For the America's Cup—Knowledge of Sailing Technicalities Is Necessary.

Now that the great racing machines built to compete for the America's cup are in trim for the preliminary races it is interesting to take a glance at the men who are directly responsible for the ultimate defeat or victory of the craft—the captains.

The skipper is the most important personage on board a racing yacht. To his knowledge of seamanship, to his understanding of the technicalities in sailing regulations and to his nerve and quick wittedness are due whatever glories may accrue to a vessel's name.

One of the best known yacht racing captains in the United States is Uriah Rhodes, who will manage the wheel of the Herreshoff built Constitution when she meets Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock II. Captain Rhodes sailed the Defender when she was the trial boat of the Columbia. He is a sailing master of many years' experience and a man of fine physical proportions. He is noted among the members of the fraternity for his silence and reserve.

Captain Rhodes was before the mast on the sloop Atlantic when she tried for cup honors with the Puritan and the Mayflower. He served as mate on the Volunteer, and since then he has been on many different vessels.

Captain Rhodes became widely known in 1898 when he took command of the Defender, and when W. Butler Duncan announced that Rhodes would command the Constitution there was general satisfaction in American yachting circles.

Captain Edward Sycamore, who commands the Lipton yacht, made his first appearance in international yachting when, in conjunction with Captain Cranfield, he had charge of Earl Dunraven's Valkyrie.

Captain Sycamore was born in 1856 at Rowhedge, England, and went to sea when but a boy. In 1890 and 1891 Sycamore commanded the Heathen Chinee and Babe, the crack English two and a half ton boat of that season. He won 36 first and 2 second prizes for the owner.

In 1892 Sycamore took command of Admiral Montagu's 40 rater Corsair, winning 25 prizes, including the Queen's cup, in one season. The admiral afterward built the Carina, which Sycamore also sailed. In one of the races at Cowes Emperor William of Germany sailed on the Carina and presented Sycamore with a diamond scarfpin.

Henry C. Haff, known in yachting circles as Hank Haff, is skipper of the Independence. He is a native of Islip,

CAPTAIN EDWARD SYCAMORE.

N. Y., and is about 70 years old. He is strong and vigorous, however, and is capable of getting the best out of a boat, as he was in 1887 when he commanded a cup defender.

Captain Charles Barr, who managed the Columbia when she defeated the Shamrock I in 1899, is still the Columbia's skipper. He is a native of Gourock, Scotland. He will hold the wheel of the Columbia during her races throughout the summer.

California Jockey Club Lease.

President T. H. Williams of the California Jockey club has renewed his lease of the Oakland track for a term of ten years, with the option of an additional term of seven years at the expiration of the present term.

WRESTLING

The many American wrestlers are threatened by a number of formidable rivals who have recently appeared on the horizon. These new opponents are none other than several of the heavyweight pugilists who have found the circles of fistiana rather dull.

Sailor Tom Sharkey was the first deserter from the ranks of the Queensberry devotees, and his fate at the hands of Tom Jenkins, the Cleveland mill worker, is now ancient history to the sporting fraternity. Bob Fitzsimmons and Gus Ruhlin have been in the glare of the public searchlight of late by reason of their stated intentions of joining the performers on the padded mat.

Fitzsimmons has always had more or less of a reputation as a wrestler aside from his pugilistic renown and should be able to make a good showing with the best of them. Ernest Roeber, former world's champion wrestler, acted as Bob's instructor during the Cornishman's training operations. Roeber taught Bob all the holds and grips, and the long legged, freckle faced ex-champion knows how to put them to scientific and effective use.

CYCLING

William C. Stinson is one of the stellar figures in the cycle racing world. His work in the past has bordered on the sensational. From present indications he will give Johnny Nelson a hard tussle for the middle distance championship.

Stinson is holder of the world's hour record. For a long time it was the ambition of many cyclers to cover 40 miles in 60 minutes. It remained for Stinson to accomplish the feat. In October, 1900, at Brockton, Mass., Stinson pedaled 40 miles 330 yards.

Stinson recently defeated Johnny Nelson and Jimmy Michael in a motor paced race at the Charles River track, near Boston. He has also lowered the colors of Archie McEachern, the Canadian champion, and Burns Pierce, the Nova Scotia farmer, in a 25 mile paced race.

Stinson has a busy season mapped out for the coming few months. He will meet all the middle distance cracks behind motor pace.

NEW YORK'S HOT WAVE

Agony Greatest Among the City's Poor.

HEAT TERRIBLE FOR CHILDREN.

Dorothy Dix Describes Scenes of Suffering Where Child Heroines Guarded the Threatened Lives of Wan and Wasted Babies—Tots Fought For Bits of Ice.

A brazen sky that spanned the earth like a fiery furnace, the agony of dumb brutes that dropped dead by the wayside, strong men suddenly stricken down and robbed of vitality and consciousness, the quick rumble of wheels and the clang of the ambulance bell, and over it all the wail of a little child—that is the way I should write the history of Tuesday, July 2, says Dorothy Dix in the New York Journal.

Terrible as the heat was for all in New York, it was most terrible for the children. It is always they who suffer most. Rich people gathered up their precious darlings and fled with them to cool forest shades or wind swept sea sands. The poor could only watch their little ones fade and wither, like blighted flowers, under the pitiless sun, and as I made my way down through the narrow, crowded streets in the tenement district of the east side I marveled that romancers should so long have set their most pathetic scenes amid snow and ice and depicted cold as the climax of human suffering.

It is the burning heat of summer that is hardest on the poor. Here was a tragedy of universal, inescapable suffering to which the bitterest winter weather could offer no parallel. Every house, you would think, must have emptied its human hive into the street. The pavements were packed with men and women, half dressed, desperately hugging the little strips of shade thrown by the buildings and panting, sweltering, gasping for a breath of the fiery hot air that came, laden with evil odors, up the street.

Children, sometimes with but a single garment on, played about, and fought with each other over the chippings of ice that were broken off of a piece being carried into a butcher shop. In one place a dead horse, already swollen and hideous, lay on one side of the street, and brutal little boys were running and jumping on the poor carcass. Just opposite a woman had fainted and fallen on the sidewalk, and about her had gathered in an instant the curious, cormorant street crowd, the women fanning her and chatting in polyglot tongues.

Looking up at the rows of houses you saw that the fire escapes swarmed with mere babies, pushed out there because it was cooler than in the room where the mother was perhaps cooking dinner or washing clothes. Down on the pavement many of the smaller children—the little ones, 2 and 3 years old—too weak and languid to even move, had crawled into the shadow of a friendly dry goods box or fruit stall, or sprawled across some doorsill. And I noticed that the men and women passing in and out stepped by them with rough tenderness. In almost every block was a woman, weary looking, hollow eyed from the lack of sleep, pacing up and down, up and down, like a sentry on his beat, hushing a fretful baby on her breast.

From one house a frantic father and mother rushed out. The man had a baby in his arms, its little head hanging limp and lifeless over his arm. The child had been sick for several days and had dropped under the heat. All night it had wailed feebly, and the mother had exhausted all her love and skill in trying to soothe it. When morning came, she had to cook the family meal, and laid the baby on the bed. Suddenly the piteous little moaning ceased, and when she turned in to see what was the matter she could not rouse the child. It had collapsed, and the heat had scored another victim.

This is the final terror of summer in the tenement. To build a fire in the stove is like stoking a thrice heated furnace. It makes the one little room in which often a whole family eat, sleep and live a veritable inferno, in which year after year, during the hot weather, a frightful and heartbreaking slaughter of the innocents takes place.

The one thing that charity has been able to do to ameliorate the sufferings of the children of the poor has been to build a number of recreation piers jutting out into the water and swept by cooling breezes, and during the hot weather these are crowded. Early in the morning, before the gates are opened, a long line of patient mothers are waiting for admission, and all day long they come, bringing their little children for a few hours' respite from the stifling tenements.

Such pathetic little creatures as so many of the babies are too! So white and so wan, too feeble to even cry a good lusty cry and with little hands no bigger than a monkey's paw, yet the anxious mothers hang over them with as much love and solicitude as if they were the prize baby in a baby show and question each other wistfully to know if they don't think that already the cool air is beginning to do the little one good.

The outer edges of the recreation pier are lined with women with babies in their arms, and there are solid phalanxes of perambulators, but, of course, the majority of the children are larger, and these play among themselves or bring along an old toy or two, which they enjoy with that singleness of heart that belongs to little ones whose pleasures are few and far between.

One of the touching phases of the scene is the presence in overwhelming number of the little mothers of the east side. They are not there, as their years entitle them to be, to run with the wind or enjoy the merry romps. They are weighted down with responsibility, care burdened, keeping a watchful eye upon the little brothers and sisters they are sent to mind.

I talked with one little mother, 9 years old, with her yellow hair in two rigid and uncompromising pigtails behind her ears and an air of worldly wisdom and maternal experience that sat quaintly upon her. In her arms she hushed the most wizened and hideous little creature one could imagine—a tiny bundle of skin and bones with little legs no bigger than a man's finger. Up and down, with that peculiar caressing, soothing, undulating movement that only comes with much experience in handling babies, she moved the little bundle of humanity, while with her foot she kept a rickety perambulator in motion.

"They are twins," she announced exultingly, "and they are 6 weeks old. I've got five others, all boys, to look after, and it keeps me busy. I'm the oldest."

"What is that you give them to eat?" I inquired, gazing at the peculiar looking fluid in the bottle one of the twins was imbibing like an old toper.

"It's oatmeal and tea. We've raised all of them on it," she responded.

"Do you like to come down to the pier every day?" I asked.

"It doesn't make any difference whether I do or not," she answered, with the fatalism of the poor. "I've got to get these twins through this summer."

"Wouldn't you like some soda and candy?" I suggested, and for the first time a childish light came into the little mother's eyes. I conducted her to where the messy sweets were sold and left her imbibing soda, the wabbly baby's head hanging over her shoulder.

STORY OF ALBERT JOHNSON

Famous Street Car Magnate's Early Days as a Car Driver.

The late Albert L. Johnson, better known as Al Johnson, was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1862, says the New York Press. He and his brother Tom, now mayor of Cleveland, came to Cleveland when Albert was 21 years old and engaged in street railway enterprises with a shrewdness that made them both wealthy. They had been interested in street railways in Indianapolis with W. H. English, once candidate for the vice presidency of the United States, and gained their original capital in that partnership. In Cleveland the Johnsons inaugurated a new era in local street railways. Tom was the financial and Al the operative manager. Al Johnson drove street cars himself, and old timers remembered how he went through the streets driving a team of white mules to his street car daily, rain or shine, for years.

When he became famous as a tallyho driver, he boasted that he learned to drive on Cleveland street cars. The brothers remained the controlling factors in the Big Consolidated company until about ten years ago, when they sold out and transferred their talents to the east.

Mr. Johnson went to New York from Cleveland ten years ago and, with P. H. Flynn, constructed the Nassau street railway in Brooklyn. During the great trolley strike in that city in 1895 he advanced the wages of his men, and when the second strike occurred, in July, 1899, after the sale of the Nassau system to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, Mr. Johnson aroused some criticism by contributing $500 to the strike fund.

Although directing large interests, Mr. Johnson found time for pleasure and recreation. He was fond of baseball and once owned a club in Cleveland. He was famous as a whip and later became an enthusiast on the subject of automobiles.

SALUTATION OF CUBAN FLAG

A Sentiment For Having the New Maine Perform This Office.

It has been suggested that when the United States government gets ready to withdraw from Cuba it will desire a war vessel in the harbor of Havana to salute the flag of the new republic as it rises over Morro Castle in token that this nation's trusteeship has ended and that its island ward is able to do business for herself.

For this detail it is thought that a certain sentiment might attach to the new Maine if she can be got ready for the purpose, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Post. The fact that she replaces the old Maine, whose destruction did more than any other one thing to bring on the war of 1898, would make her a sign of the dawning era of new and better things. At the navy department it is said that no official consideration has been given to the project, but it seems to meet with a great deal of favor when discussed in an informal way.

Swiss Town to Abolish Fuel.

The town of Davos, writes a Swiss correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch, is considering a bold scheme for the abolition of all the ordinary forms of fuel. It is proposed to erect an extensive electric plant at the confluence of two large mountain torrents, whose united waters will supply the necessary motive force. A large firm of Swiss electricians has been studying the problem for over a year and has obtained the concession of the forces of the torrents alluded to. The same firm has bought out new electric heating and cooking apparatus especially designed for the scheme. The first cost of the installation is estimated to be 8,500,000 francs. Already electricity is not only used for lighting and motive power, but is adopted in many villas for cooking and heating and in one of the largest bakeries. The idea is to do away with all contamination of the air by the use of fuel.

HONEST ABE, U. S. M.

A DAILY TRIP WITH THE RURAL MAIL CARRIER.

He Hears Many a Tale of Woe Along the Route and Is Always Ready to Give Those In Trouble His Unofficial Advice.

[Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.]

The Widow Taylor was on the watch for me the other day, and as I handed her three or four letters and observed that she was looking five years younger than last fall she blushed and chewed the corner of her apron and said:

"Thankee, Abe, but I want to speak to you very seriously."

"Officially or privately?" I asked.

"Privately."

"All right. It's one thing to speak to me as representing the postmaster general, the administration, the United States and the constitution and another to ask my advice as a private individual representing nothing in particular. Let her go."

"THROW 'EM DOWN, WIDOW, AND THROW 'EM HARD!"

"You won't say a word to nobody?"

"Not to a living soul."

"Nor laugh at me?"

"Not even a grin."

"Then I could get married to six different men if I wanted to."

"Gee whiz, but you don't tell me!"

"It's a fact, Abe, and I wanted your advice about it. I put an advertisement in The Matrimonial Guide a few weeks ago, and I got over 50 answers. Six different men fell in love with me before they had read the advertisement half through. Three of them have never loved before, and they can't eat or sleep for thinking of me. The other three are widowers, and, while they can eat and sleep, I am never out of their thoughts. What shall I do about it, Abe? I can't marry the whole six, you know."

"They all love you?"

"They do."

"And you love them?"

"Y-yes—that is, I guess I love one as much as another. I've tried to make up my mind, but I can't."

"Widow Taylor," said I as I noticed her blushing cheeks and dimpled chin, "why in grass didn't you give me a hint that you might be persuaded to marry again?"

"How could I?" she asked as she hung her head."

"Mebbe you couldn't, being that you are hardly more than a young gal, but if you had it would have been a heap better. It's not too late as it is, however. Go right into the house and set down with pen and ink and give them six men the marble heart. Throw 'em down, widow, and throw 'em hard!"

"But how can I do it, Abe? How can I wreck six human lives?"

"You can do it because you've got to. I've got a cousin who's just come out here from New Jersey. He's a widower with $6,000 in cash and a patent washing machine that sells like hot cakes. He's gentle, loving, big hearted, and he's able to take a bridal tour to Niagara Falls. I'll send him out here Sunday, and he'll fall in love at first sight and ask you to be his'n within two hours. He won't want you for your farm, and you won't want him for his $6,000, but it will be for yourselves alone."

"Oh, Abe, but you are so good!" she said as she looked up with clasped hands.

"It's my business to be good, widow. Run along now, and wreck six human lives."

"Won't it be awful?"

"Not a bit. Just slaughter 'em one by one as calmly as if you was clubbing frogs, and then curl your hair and get ready for Sunday. That's all, widow, and no thanks are due me. Always willing to oblige and always have a relative or two on hand who are on the lookout for a good thing."

I knew that Farmer Winters had been laid up with rheumatism, and I didn't expect to see him, but he was out at his letter box as I drove up, and after I handed him his mail he said:

"Abe, have you had any private talks with Mr. McKinley lately?"

"Not very lately. We've both been purty busy, you know."

"Do you expect to see him soon?"

"In a few days, I guess."

"I hope you will. You know Joe Smallman, over on the crossroads, of course? I've always thought he was a decent man, but two weeks ago his dog killed one of my sheep, and he refused to pay for it; said the wool of the sheep got in his dog's teeth and prevented him from biting tramps. I threatened a lawsuit, and what d'you s'pose he's doing now?"

"Can't say, I'm sure."

"Well, he's going all over the township telling people that I'm down on William McKinley and intend to bolt the ticket, and he's made some folks believe it. Abe, did you ever hear the likes of that?"

"I never did."

"The idea that I'd be down on the president after the way I opened barrels of hard cider for him last year and kept up such a yelling for three months that nearly all my teeth fell out! Abe, you don't believe a word of it, do you?"

"Not a word," said I.

"And I want Mr. McKinley to know I'm all right and still his friend. If these stories reach him, he'll naturally be worried. I want you to see him, Abe. I want you to sit right down with him as man to man and tell him that Joe Smallman is lying about me out of spite. He's been a farmer himself, and he knows all about dogs killing sheep. I'd write him a letter, but I don't happen to have any ink in the house, and I know you can talk better'n I can write anyhow. Can I depend upon you, Abe?"

"You can. The very first time I see the president I'll fix it all right with him. Just keep quiet and you'll come out all right."

I didn't find Farmer Miles at home, but his wife was at the gate with a piece of rhubarb pie and a glass of milk for me, and as I ate and drank she said:

"Abe, you know a heap, don't you?"

"Of course."

"Well, I want to tell you something. I s'pose you know that our Sam was engaged to Jim Agnew's gal, Alice?"

"For sure."

"And that they had a quarrel two weeks ago because a lightning rod man made eyes at her and she didn't box his ears?"

"Just so."

"Well, they broke off the engagement in their madness, as lots of lovers do, and after two weeks Sam thought he'd go over and give her a chance to say she was sorry and make up. He was going across lots when Agnew's old bull tossed him sky high and almost broke his back. He's been in bed for ten days and won't be out for ten more, and Alice hasn't sent no word that she's sorry. It looks as if she wasn't going to give in, don't it?"

"It certainly does."

"And if she don't, and there's a marriage, can't Sam collect damages?"

"Who from?"

"From old Agnew, of course. Has a man got a right to keep an old bull around to throw his daughter's lover 30 feet high and then walk on him after he comes down? I say he hasn't. I say that if the marriage don't come off Sam has got a suit for $10,000 damages, and we'll sell the farm and use every cent of it to get him justice. Ain't I right, Abe?"

"It looks like it, but don't rush things. You have asked for my official opinion, and I don't want to make no mistake about it. Seems to me I've seen a case like it in the agricultural bureau reports, and I'll look it up and tell you later. That pie can't be beat, and the milk goes right to the spot, and you keep Sam and the old bull out of the same lot, and we'll all come out all right."

M. QUAD.

SEPARATED YEARS AGO

Lorillard and Wife Reunited at Dying Man's Bedside

SOCIETY HAD BEEN PUZZLED

Over the Mysterious Trouble Between the Tobacco King and His Beautiful Wife, Which Arose at the Height of Their Social Prestige

New York, July 6.—In the shadow of death, the separation that has existed for years between Pierre Lorillard, millionaire sportsman, and his wife, who was the beautiful Miss Emily Taylor, has ended.

She was summoned to the Fifth Avenue hotel by her son, Pierre Lorillard, Jr., and remained all night at her dying husband's bedside.

Society has never learned why Pierre Lorillard, a prince of good fellows, and his beautiful wife separated. She was a noted belle, and, after her marriage, the millionaire tobacconist placed her in a luxurious home in the social center of the city, and after the splendor of the entertainments over which she presided exceeded all others.

Mr. Lorillard at this time bought Ochre Point at Newport and erected there a cottage, marvellous in design, which he afterwards sold to Cornelius Vanderbilt. Later, Mr. Lorillard bought a magnificent estate on the Ramapo hills and founded the aristocratic colony of Tuxedo.

Suddenly, at the height of social prestige attained by him and his wife, he sold his Fifth avenue residence and went abroad alone. To Mrs. Lorillard was left the home in the Ramapo hills.

Mr. Lorillard is 68 years old, and his health has been failing rapidly for 10 years. He has suffered from Bright's disease of the kidneys, and had recovered from several attacks before he was stricken during race week at Ascot. He was the principal heir of Peter Lorillard, and acquired the latter's tobacco business, which he greatly developed.

He is the only American breeder that ever won the English derby. He achieved this distinction in 1881, when his horse, Iriquois, bred on the famous Rancocas stock farm, carried off the "blue ribbon" of the English turf.

Dowieites Strike a Snag

Chicago, July 6.—Twenty-one disciples of John Alexander Dowie visited Evanston last night, and, despite the efforts of the police force of 30 men, a mob of 1000 people drove them out of town. Several days ago four of Dowie's missionaries were egged and driven out of Evanston, and last night's visit was intended to convert the people of Evanston and show them the error of their ways. The instant the Dowieites began their meeting last night, they were assailed with eggs, vegetables and other missiles. Several of the Dowieites were knocked down, and both men and women were liberally bespattered with eggs and mud.

Possibility of Peace

Pittsburg, July 6.—There is reason to believe that something of importance, touching upon the interests of the striking sheet steel and hoop mills, will develop here today. It is broadly hinted that a peace conference has been held secretly in New York between J. P. Morgan, C. M. Schwab and others high in the United States Steel corporation, with P. F. Smith and J. J. Garrett of Pittsburg in attendance. It is strongly suspected that local labor leaders were yesterday in telephonic conference with the New York people.

Storm Brought Relief

New York, July 6.—A severe thunderstorm swept over this city yesterday afternoon, and brought with it comfort to millions of heat-stricken New Yorkers. The temperature fell 15 degrees in less than two hours, and over two inches of rain fell. Some of the sewers burst, flooding the streets in various localities, and, in many cases, stores and residences. Lightning struck several buildings, but no serious damage was done.

Captain Not to Blame

St. John, July 6.—The marine court which has been investigating the wreck of the steamship Lusitania, Captain McNay, which went ashore on June 26, holds that the disaster was due to an unknown and erratic current, which threw the ship 13 miles out of her course. The court has restored the captain's certificate, owing to his excellent handling of the passengers after the wreck.

Boy Murderer and Suicide

Albany, July 6.—Raymond Albers, 13 years old, last evening shot and killed Emmanuel Koehler, aged 12, and then hanged himself. The boys were playmates, and, according to statements of neighbors, had quarreled. Albers is the son of a painter, and Koehler the son of a minister of the gospel. The cause of the quarrel is not known.

Public Bequest of Millions

New York, July 6.—The metropolitan museum of art is made the residuary legatee of the late Jacob S. Rogers, whose will has been filed for probate at Paterson, N. J. The museum will probably receive between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000. The will was made June 2, 1892.

To Have One Big Order

Buffalo, July 6.—The national board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in America voted yesterday to proceed at once with a plan whereby the order in America will affiliate with the branches of the order in Great Britain, Australia and other colonies of the British empire.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Bad Weather and Labor Agitation Have Caused Interruption

New York, July 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Development of fresh labor troubles is a feature of the week that has made for conservatism in many directions, but throughout the country jobbing and retail lines are busy, and are handling goods at prices which yield fair profits. There is a reflection of this activity in the continued improvement in the textile markets in the east, and the uneasiness over the money market does not extend beyond the ranks of speculators in stocks.

So far as the steel strike is concerned, it is significant that it is a struggle to compel the recognition of the authority of the Amalgamated association in the sheet steel mills, heretofore non-union.

Crop reports continue gratifying, much good having been done by rains in the middle west. Railroad earnings for the past half year show a gain of 10.4 percent over last year, and 28.2 percent over 1899.

Manufacturing has been interrupted by the elements and labor agitation. Numerous prostrations from heat caused humane employers to close mills during the most distressing hours, while the sheet and hoop workers were ordered to stop work until certain disputed points were settled.

Footwear shops in New England are active on fall lines, but local jobbers are less busy, and orders from salesmen on the road are light. Prices are steady, with an upward tendency in heavy single soled shoes.

Woolens and worsteds are selling better, and raw wool is taken more freely. Cottons are in better domestic demand, but prices are held above bids of shippers to China, and sales in the brown goods division have decreased. Manufacturing as a whole is unusually active for the season.

Staple products are quiet, speculation being restricted by depressing weather, and the lengthy holidays at most of the exchanges prevented new commitments. News from the west was full of promise as to the growing wheat yield, causing a further decline in prices. Corn steadied somewhat, because of reported injury from heat and drouth.

Secret Service to Investigate

Washington, July 6.—An officer of the secret service was detailed yesterday to assist in investigating the theft of money at the San Francisco mint, upon the telegraphic request of Director of the Mint Roberts, who is at present in San Francisco.

San Francisco, July 6.—Cashier Cole and Chief Clerk Dimmick of the mint were suspended from duty yesterday, pending the outcome of the investigation into the mysterious disappearance of the $30,000 in gold coin from the cashier's working vault.

Treasurer Told a Queer Story

Lincoln, Neb., July 6.—According to a report filed with the state auditor by Examiner Robinson, Treasurer Norlin of Kearney county is short in his accounts $10,457. The examination followed the alleged assault and robbery of Treasurer Norlin in his own office at Minden, and an attempt at the same time, according to Norlin, to burn the courthouse.

Carrie Had Ride In Patrol Wagon

St. Louis, July 6.—Mrs. Carrie Nation's threat to wreck the saloon of Cheim Brothers last night resulted in her arrest. She was conveyed in a patrol wagon to the police station, but was released after being informed that if she created another disturbance she would be locked up. Mrs. Nation was on her way to Crawfordville, Ind.

To Curtail Coal Production

Hazleton, Pa., July 6.—Orders were received here yesterday to work the collieries in the Hazleton region but three days a week for the remainder of the month. This will make it unnecessary for the United Mine Workers to carry into execution their determination to cause a general suspension of operations in order to curtail the output.

Eight Were Recaptured

Guthrie, Okla., July 6.—Ten of the most desperate prisoners in the federal jail here overpowered the guards yesterday, and escaped. The prisoners armed themselves with pistols found outside the cell doors. Officers and citizens were soon in pursuit, and all but two were recaptured and locked up.

Vatican May Investigate

Mexico City, July 6.—A number of prominent Catholics have sent a message to the pope relating to the recent alleged scandals here and attacking priests who have been publicly accused. It is believed that the Vatican will send a personal representative of the pope to make an investigation.

Tampered With Wine

Pomeroy, O., July 6.—Stephen A. Kay is dead and seven other boys are dangerously ill from drinking wine containing belladonna. The boys, whose ages range from 14 to 16 years, secured several bottles of wine, and in attempting to mix in alcohol, got a bottle of belladonna by mistake.

Yellow Metal From the Klondike

Seattle, July 6.—The steamship Dolphin arrived from Skagway yesterday with $800,000 in gold. One million dollars of gold was shipped from Dawson by way of St. Michaels June 29.

Saunders, of Boston, one of the most prominent leaders of the House in the session of the legislature just closed, has been appointed by Mayor Hart to the responsible position of chairman of Boston's board of election commissioners, with a salary of $4,000 a year. ### The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

AN ECCENTRIC MILLIONAIRE

Career of Jacob S. Rogers, the Famous Locomotive Builder.

Jacob S. Rogers, famous builder of locomotives and one of the wealthiest citizens of New Jersey, who died in the Union League club in New York city, was one of the most eccentric characters New York has known. If his often expressed wishes are followed, there will be no funeral ceremony. Having few intimate friends and fewer relatives, he felt that any show of grief because of his death would be hypocritical, and he despised hypocrisy.

Secretive to a remarkable degree, Mr. Rogers never let it be known, even approximately, how much he was worth, says the New York Herald. Many estimated his wealth at $80,000,000. More conservative persons divided that amount by ten. Jacob S. Rogers, who was born in 1824, succeeded in 1856 to the locomotive business his father, Thomas Rogers, had built up in Paterson after constructing the first locomotive made in America. Jacob Rogers retired in 1891, leaving the management to R. S. Hughes.

Mr. Hughes died two years ago, and then Mr. Rogers astonished the world, and Paterson in particular, by announcing that he would close the Rogers Locomotive works when outstanding contracts were filled. Remonstrance meetings were held, and Mr. Rogers was asked to reconsider. It was pointed out to him that he would throw 2,000 men out of employment. His reply was characteristic.

"I have paid them for their work," he said, "and I am under no obligation to them. As for Paterson, I care nothing. The works are mine, and I will close them."

And he did. Then it was proposed to Mr. Rogers that he should sell the works. His requirements were so great, however, that no offer was made. Next Mr. Rogers asked the courts to name a receiver for the Rogers Locomotive works. This was done, and the receiver sold them to Elliott S. Smith and F. P. Holran of New York city for $602,000.

Mr. Rogers said that he had at that time never sold anything but locomotives and butter, and he told the truth. He invested in securities and did not sell them. If the securities were forced to a ficticious value, Jacob Rogers paid no attention. He bought much real estate that has increased in value, and he has never sold. That is why the extent of his fortune is a mystery.

At Pompton he owned a stock farm of many hundreds of acres, where he raised blooded cattle, thoroughbred horses and maintained extensive game preserves. Butter making was his hobby. He sold the product of his dairy at 40 cents a pound—never varying. When the demand for it grew, he was offered a larger price. His reply was that butter such as he made was worth 40 cents a pound and no more.

He never married, and his only relatives are said to be nephews and nieces, sons and daughters of a brother. Mr. Rogers was possessed of many habits which excited comment in Paterson. He was very close mouthed about his personal business. The only confidence in that regard that he is said to have intrusted to a friend was that the profit on a single locomotive was $1,000.

UNIVERSITY BOAT RACE.

The English Stroke Won, Says Expert Nickalls.

Vivian Nickalls, the rowing expert, writing in the New York World about the university boat race on the Hudson, says:

The big race was one of the most magnificent exhibitions of pluck and skill that I ever witnessed. Cornell's long English stroke won. I felt sure it would before the crews had gone half a mile from the start. Cornell has the long body swing for the catch and an almost equally long swing of the body back at the finish that Courtney learned when he brought his crew to Henley in 1895. The Cornell crew, Yale and Harvard all row the English stroke.

Columbia's splendid crew are as plucky a lot of men as ever rowed together. It is an honor to know such men. They were well together and rowed well all the way. With all deference to Hanlan, who, as everybody knows, is a magician with the sculls, the crew rowed too much like eight scullers, doing the work with the arms and legs and not enough with the body swing. Had the style of stroke in the two boats been exchanged Columbia would have beaten Cornell by a larger margin than that of the winning crew.

The tide is so much swifter at Poughkeepsie that a comparison of the other day's 18m. 53 1-5s. with the 23m. 15s. of Yale at New London is hardly fair. I should like to see Yale and Cornell race.

Comparing the Cornell crew with Oxford or Cambridge of this year, I still feel that our home crews are the faster. The men are older, stronger, better watermen, and they have mastered the long body swing that brings success.

Shorter Hours of Labor.

Three of the largest shoe manufacturing firms in Plymouth county have agreed to ask their employees to work but 54 hours a week during the summer, says the Boston Advertiser. Two of these firms have decided also to follow the same schedule throughout the year.

To Be Taken With a Grain of Salt.

Let none worry about the salt trust. We can economize on salt, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. One of the largest and healthiest persons in the world grew up without it and has an aversion for it. Ella Ewing, the Missouri giantess, eats no salt.

Summer Music.

To the lover of music who is also fond of the drama, there can be no more pleasing remembrance and souvenir of his favorite play than a piece of good music bearing the same title. The march we offer you now was written especially for the great production of "Betsy Ross" and the catchy march melodies will capture your fancy. It is dedicated to the members of the "Betsy Ross" societies throughout the U. S., and is intended to perpetuate the memory of the maker of the first American Flag. "The Lamb That Strayed From The Fold," by Harry Davis and Sidney Carlton, is a new ballad by writers in a new field. Both of these gentlemen are newspaper men and writers of reputation, and their initial effort in the song line promises to be immensely successful. The author of that most charming and popular of waltz song, "Grace O'Moore," has just completed a new and beautiful melodious waltz song, entitled "Rosabelle," We do not hesitate to predict "Rosabelle" will catch the popular fancy, for it has all the elements of catchiness. At Tony Pastor's cosey theatre one evening recently, Miss Louie Dacre, a favorite English music hall artist who writes and composes all her own songs, introduced a cute song. The opening strains of the chorus in the "Oh! Oh! Oh!" song caught the house at once, and it is now whistled on the streets everywhere. Miss Dacre assures us that the melody is an international hit and is heard everywhere in London as well. Lacalle, the famous bandmaster, did not dream that his new march would spread around the country as quickly as it has. In the big Decoration Day and Police Parades in New York City, "Hurrah Boys" by Lacalle, and "On Duty" by Rosey, divided the honors in popularity, each being played by the bands in line over 20 times. Now all the big vaudeville singers are using a fine vocal arrangement of the march, and it is this stirring and popular march song which has just been published. The above publications are issued this month by Jos. W. Stern & Co., the "House of Hits" who are also agents, for the celebrated Clark's "Neverwet," waterproof strings for all instruments. They will be pleased to send their illustrated music catalogue free, upon application to their main offices, 34 E. 21st Street, New York.

TWENTY ODD YEARS AGO.

I've wandered to the theater; I've been to see the great show;
I've listened to the same old jokes we heard long years ago.
The villain died the same old way; his death was hard and slow;
The last act saw his finish, Tom, like twenty odd years ago.

The heroine, she suffered, Tom; you should have heard her weep;
Her hair is golden in its hue, for peroxide is very cheap.
She found the missing will, though, Tom; she always did, you know,
When we went to the theater some twenty odd years ago.

The jokes were just the same ones, Tom, about the ma-in-law,
Likewise the goat, the stovepipe and the female suffrage jaw,
And, yes, they sprung one about the good old baldheaded row;
It sounded as it used to, Tom, some twenty odd years ago.

The hero struts about the stage and hoarsely whispers, "Ah,
I see it all!" And then the crafty villain mutters, "Bah!"
The play is just the same, dear Tom; the plot it thickens so
It looks the same as when we went some twenty odd years ago.

The soubrette is the same, dear boy; she has the same old wink;
Her cheeks are just as radiant; they have the same soft pink.
She's billed as "Little Tottie" now, and, say, she doesn't show
Her age as much as when she played some twenty odd years ago.

—Baltimore American.

Spoken Without Thinking.

"I shot this tiger myself lately."

"That so? Why, there's an ear missing!"

"What! I hadn't noticed it! I'll get it exchanged at once!"

That Was Different.

"Mr. Binks," said the fond New York father to the youth who had just asked him for his daughter's hand, "I never can trust my daughter's happiness in the keeping of a man who wears a made up tie."

The youth did not flinch.

"Well, you see," he remarked with an air of easy nonchalance, "I can't tie the old thing because my fingers are always so stiff from cutting off coupons from pa's copper stocks."

"She's yours, my boy," cried the happy father, "and never let me see you wear any other tie than a made up one!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Exposition as an Educator.

"So you've been to the Pan-American exhibition, eh?"

"Yes, and it's a fine show too. I always like to go to expositions because, you know, they're such great educators. Why, a week at one of them kind of shows is worth more'n a whole blame college education."

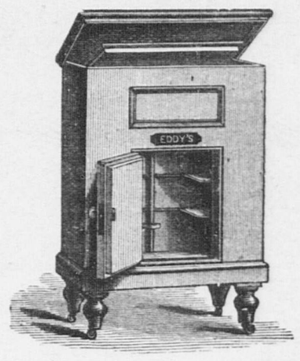

"I've heard people say so. What does Pan-American mean, anyway?"

"Pan-American? I dunno. I didn't see any special exhibition of pans. Oh, I guess it's jist a fancy name some fellow thought of to make it different from the rest."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Fifty-Year Roofs.

The best roof that can be put on a house is one made of terne plate, commonly called by roofers and dealers "roofing tin." It is best because it is light; does not burden the structure with great weight. It is best because it is adaptable to any position or condition. It is best because it is fire proof and weather proof. It is best because it lasts a life time, when properly made and properly applied.

There are other reasons for declaring it the best—reasons that are more forcefully expressed by the faults of other forms of roofing—fragile, tile and slate, inflammable shingle, perishable gravel, etc.

But there are many kinds of roofing tin and to say tin is the best roofing presupposes the use of the best. This best terne plate is M F Roofing Tin—first made in England more than fifty years ago by the most skillful blenders of metals in Wales, and latterly brought to America and improved by the American tin plate manufacturers.

In this country the process gained its name and its fame.

The letters M F are an abbreviation of Most Favored, a name that suggests its familiar use and enormous product. This terne plate is most famed because it is all that a roofing plate should be or can be. It has the heaviest possible coating of rich tin and new lead, applied by repeatedly hand dipping the carefully selected "black plates." "Black plate" is the technical name for the sheets which are produced by a series of manipulations from iron or steel. "Black plate" forms the substantial, rigid body of the roofing plate. The American Tin Plate Company by its untiring efforts to utilize modern improvements in iron and steel making in the manufacture of roofing tin has succeeded in producing black plates which excel the plates that used to be made by the now obsolete process.

The coating of tin and lead is so thick and so thoroughly amalgamated with the iron base that no moisture can penetrate. It makes M F roofing Tin practically rust proof.

This is the reason M F Roofing Tin has frequently lasted more than half a century under the most trying circumstances.

As an instance of the durability of M F Roofing Tin we mention the well-known business building of Demmier Brothers, Pittsburg, which was covered with M F in 1859 and is as sound to-day as ever.

There is a block of buildings in Warren street, Boston Highlands, covered with M F Roofing Tin more than thirty years ago that has to-day just as sound roofs as when they were first laid.

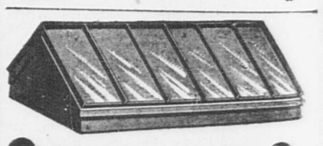

All along the Atlantic coast are cottages covered with M F half a century ago. Contact with this sea air is the severest test a tin roof can be given.

Instances innumerable could be cited, and reasons for using M F Roofing Tin be given without number. But the very fact that this brand and process has survived more than half a century's trade competition is evidence of its worth and durability.

The history of M F Roofing Tin is fully set out in a very handsome booklet, "Under an M F Roof," which also contains directions for laying a roof and for making estimates of quantity of tin required for any size roof. A copy of this useful book may be had free from W. C. Cronemeyer, agent of the American Tin Plate Company, Carnegie Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

ENDEAVORER'S BIG DAY

Services In Many Sections of Cincinnati

TEN THOUSAND VISITORS

Are Now In the City and Many More Are Expected to Arrive—Evangelistic Meetings Well Attended—Old Officers of Corporation Re-elected

Cincinnati, July 8.—The Endeavorers made Sunday a busy day. From morning until evening and during almost every hour of the day there were services in some part of the city. The day opened with three meetings of one hour each, held in three of the largest churches in the city.

The various pulpits about the city were occupied in the morning by the visiting ministers, whose topics were "Twenty Years of Christian Endeavor." The attendance in all cases was large. The afternoon was devoted to three evangelistic meetings in the Music Hall auditorium. These meetings were classified for men, women and children. The attendance at all was large. At the men's meeting Rev. W. P. Hall of New York spoke on "Christianity as a Profitable Investment." Mr. Hall's address was strong, and at its conclusion he called upon those who would accept of a partnership with Christ to remain after the meeting for further service, and many accepted the invitation.

The meeting for women became a temperance meeting. It was conducted by General Secretary Baer. The burden of the remarks was upon temperance, not only in the use of intoxicating drinks, but tobacco as well. The attendance at this meeting was the largest of the three evangelistic sessions.

The children's meeting was led by the new field secretary, Clarence E. Berman of Lancaster, Pa. Treasurer Shaw and Miss Kate H. Haus of St. Louis addressed the children, warning them particularly against cigarets and bad reading. The wife of President Clark spoke of the Junior Christian Endeavor and its accomplishments for young people.

At the conclusion of the big Music Hall auditorium rallies, three special meetings were held in the Central Christian church, the Ninth Baptist church and the Second Presbyterian church, all in the central part of the city. The meetings were large and enthusiastic.

At the business meeting of the United Society of Christian Endeavor (the corporation), the report of Treasurer Shaw showed that the total receipts for the year ending June 1 were $11,020; expenses, $10,864; balance on hand, $150. Among the general trustees elected were Rev. J. M. Lowden, Providence, and S. B. Capen, Boston. Rev. C. B. McAfee was elected to succeed the late Dr. Babcock. The following officers were then re-elected by the convention:

Francis E. Clark, Boston, president; William Shaw, Boston, treasurer; John W. Baer, Boston, general secretary, and F. H. Kidder, Boston, auditor. A new position of field secretary was created, and Rev. Clarence E. Eberman of Lancaster, Pa., was elected.

It is estimated by the local committee that there are at least 10,000 visiting Endeavorers in the city, and many more are expected today. The attendance will not reach the limit the local committee had made provisions for, but President Clark is much pleased with the results.

Many Sent to Potter's Field

New York, July 8.—There was a cleaning up of the morgue in this city yesterday, after the hardest two weeks' work the attendants had ever experienced. During last week 250 bodies were sent to the morgue, and 191 bodies were removed to the potter's field, the last being taken away yesterday. No religious services of any kind were held at the morgue chapel over the bodies of the heat victims which were taken to the potter's field, and no services were held when the bodies reached the burial grounds.

To Contest the Rogers Will

New York, July 8.—The Journal and Advertiser says: Executors of Jacob S. Rogers' will decided yesterday to have the battle between the heirs and the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York for the locomotive builder's $8,000,000 fought out in the prerogative court at Trenton. This step was taken, said one of the executors, because of the expected litigation over the will. The estate will probably be tied up for some years.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

PROHIBITION A FARCE

Maine Clergyman Gives Auditors a Few Points to Consider

Hallowell, Me., July 8.—At a largely attended temperance mass meeting held here last evening, Rev. Wilbur F. Berry was the speaker. He spoke of the local conditions of the rum question, and pitched into public officials with vehemence. He said, in part:

"Some men say that the elimination of the saloon will hurt business. Here in the city of Hallowell, for instance, from $37,000 to $40,000 worth of liquor is drunk every 12 months. This money, if the saloon were eradicated, would go into legitimate channels, be deposited in the savings banks or contribute to the happiness of the homes or the business prosperity of the community.

"Eight persons in Hallowell have a license to sell liquor in open defiance of the law. These eight persons are seceding against the constitution of the state. It is the duty of the mayor, the aldermen and the city marshal to see that all laws are enforced. These places could not run without the consent of the marshal. The saloon will employ every artifice to remain. It will attempt to bribe every bribeable person who has any authority in the suppression of the liquor traffic.

"Down in the corner saloon less than one week ago young Farnham, without mental vigor, was decoyed, and that night he was laid down on the cold ground with nothing but twigs as a covering to sleep his last long sleep. That is what the saloon is doing for Hallowell. The life of that poor boy was stamped out, and yet the authorities have allowed this state of things to go on for years. An official who fails or refuses to do his duty is a coward and a traitor to his trust. It is time for the people to awake to a realization of the existing conditions."

Frank A. McClench charged with manslaughter, in causing Farnham's death by the alleged selling of liquor to him, was admitted to $2000 bail Saturday night by Judge Hall.

An Unexpected Inspection

New York, July 8.—Proof of their fidelity to the principles of unionism was required yesterday from delegates to the Central Federated union. A man who could not display the tag with the union stamp on the majority of articles of wearing apparel made himself liable to blacklisting. The test was sprung on the delegates without warning. President Fitzgerald appointed an inspector to investigate the apparel of each of the delegates present. The delegates turned hat bands out, loosened their collars and presented those parts of their coats, waistcoats and shirts which bore the blue label of union made goods. The inspector reported that all had complied with the rule.

Jealousy and Bad Temper

New York, July 8.—Edward Luthy, 43 years old, a bookmaker on race tracks, who lived with his wife and four children by a former husband, killed his wife by shooting her in the head last night, after she had taken refuge on a fire escape to escape his fury. Then he shot himself. Dozens of pedestrians saw the woman killed. Jealousy and a quarrel growing out of a delayed dinner is supposed to have been the cause of the tragedy. Luthy's condition is serious. He claims that his wife shot at him first.

Strikers' Opinion Divided

Reading, Pa., July 8.—A general meeting of striking shop hands of the Reading railroad has been called to consider a promise made by Acting President Welsh that the terms of settlement made by President Baer will be carried out to the letter. The advisory committee refused to order the men to return to work today, as proposed by Mr. Welsh. The employes will first vote on the proposition as to whether they will accept the terms, on which question opinion among the men is divided.

Von Hohenlohe's Death

Berlin, July 8.—In a telegram to the members of the family, Emperor William has expressed his deepest sympathy in the death of Prince Von Hohenlohe, which occurred on Saturday. Messages of sympathy have also been received from a number of other European crowned heads. Two sons of the former imperial chancellor, his daughters, a son-in-law and several grandchildren have arrived in Ragatz, Switzerland, where he died.

Wreckers Had a Hard Job

New York, July 8.—Wrecking steamers Merritt and Rescue arrived yesterday from Matanzas, bringing into port the United States transport McPherson, which went ashore Feb. 4, about 11 miles west of Matanzas, Cuba. The wreckers have worked nearly five months on the transport. Many times the holes in the bottom were stopped only to work open again by unfavorable weather.

Robbers Too Much For Posse

Anaconda, Mont., July 8.—Special dispatches from staff correspondence of The Anaconda Standard on the ground are to the effect that there is now little hope of the sheriff's posse overtaking the men who held up the Great Northern express train at Wagner, Mont., last Wednesday. The pursuers have been outwitted, and the robbers have eluded them.

Five Americans Killed In Germany

Berlin, July 8.—William C. Smith, C. H. Felten, John Waldron, William Waldron and John Smith, Americans, have succumbed to injuries received in an accident to a train bearing Barnum & Bailey's circus at Beuthea, Upper Silesia. Five injured men are in a dangerous condition in a hospital.

TOBACCO KING IS DEAD

Pierre Lorillard Passes Away at New York

A SHREWD BUSINESS MAN

Who Greatly Enhanced a Fortune Left Him by His Father—Was a Notable Figure In Society, Turf Events and Yachting Circles

New York, July 8.—Pierre Lorillard died yesterday afternoon at the Fifth Avenue hotel, where he was taken from the Deutschland when that steamer arrived from Europe, July 4. The members of the family present at the bedside when the end came were Mr. Lorillard's daughters, Mrs. Tailer and Mrs. Kent, and their husbands, and Pierre Lorillard, Jr., and wife, and also Pierre Lorillard, 3rd.

PIERRE LORILLARD.

The following statement was published by Dr. Kilroe, the attending physician, a few moments after the death of the patient: "Mr. Pierre Lorillard passed quietly away at 2:10 p. m., surrounded by the members of his family. He succumbed to acute nephritis."

Mr. Lorillard's recent severe illness dated from June 20. He was in England and went to his lodge at Ascot, hoping to see his horse, David Garrick, win the gold cup. He was stricken with an uraemic chill, and was sick for a week. He was advised to come to America, and boarded the Deutschland, but his condition became graver each moment. Dr. Kilroe told him that he did not think he would live to get to New York, but the magnate insisted that he would. It has never been thought that he could recover since his arrival.

Pierre Lorillard was the eldest son of Peter Lorillard, architect of the fortune which made the family name famous. He inherited much of the business ability of his father, and marked success attended the commercial enterprises which he planned and executed. At the death of his father he received about $1,000,000 and an interest, jointly with his brothers and sisters, in the great tobacco house of which his father had been the head.

He at once purchased from his brothers a controlling interest of the house, and, by shrewd management, greatly increased his fortune. He built a handsome residence at Fifth avenue and Fifty-sixth street, and entertained in princely manner. In 1874 he became interested in the turf. His first great horse was Parole, and with Iroquois, in 1881, he was the first American to win the classic English derby. He was also an enthusiastic yachtsman, and once raced his Vesta across the Atlantic. He founded and controlled at the time of his death the fashionable resort at Tuxedo. He was nearly 68 years old. He is survived by a wife, a son, Pierre Lorillard, Jr., and two daughters, Mrs. William Kent and Mrs. T. S. Tailer. He leaves a large fortune.

Various estimates have been made of the value of Mr. Lorillard's estate, and, while its exact value at the present time is not known, it is believed that it is more than $25,000,000. As long ago as 1884 it was said that it was from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

London Opinion of Lorillard

London, July 8.—The morning papers contain long obituaries of Pierre Lorillard. The general sentiment is expressed by The Daily Telegraph, which says: He will stand out as the man who opened up the possibilities of the British turf to his fellow countrymen, as the man who dealt the death blow to those narrow minded, insular persons resenting the intrusion of the Star Spangled Banner among the silks and satins of the British race course.

Priest In Prison

Mexico City, July 8.—The arrest and imprisonment of Father Icaza, a parish priest of the church of Santa Catarina, has created a profound sensation. He is accused of grave crimes against women. The trial is bound to open up various lines of investigation into church discipline and conduct of the clergy.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

Two Sources of Profit.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the share holders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3 000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. A limited amount of stock will be sold at $500 per thousand shares and pro rata down to 100 shares.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞ The dogs of fashion now wear rubber boots and mackintoshes in rainy weather. Shirt waists will be in order next. How nice it must be to be somebody's pet little doggie.—Boston Globe.

☞ "Earn your own living," is a good motto for the boys and girls who graduate from our public schools and colleges. Of what benefit is an education if no practical use is made of it? The most useful men and women to the world are those who had to struggle to secure an education. There are those who entertain the idea that education and certain accomplishments will support them, regardless of effort upon their part. This illusion is soon dispelled when life and its realities confront them. Don't depend on your parents, boys and girls, for a living, but carve out your own destiny.—Barnstable Patriot.

☞ I have noticed that some people deliberately walk across a street when either an electric car or team is coming along, and they usually walk slowly, with often a sarcastic smile as they see the motorman or the driver check speed to allow them to get out of the way. There are often narrow escapes from accidents from such fool-actions. I cannot understand the feeling that animates such folks, for they run narrow chances of getting injured, and it is hardly likely that they could collect damages for they wilfully expose themselves to danger. The law takes the common sense view that people must exercise due caution, and it is not cautious to knowingly step in front of a moving vehicle even though the driver might have time to stop if he used great exertion. Passengers on railway cars who let themselves fall off do not get damages from the corporation yet the people who make life a burden to electric car employes and drivers of horses act as though they expected to get a fortune if they should be run over.—Lowell Sun.

☞ One of the petty annoyances to which newspaper men in Taunton and the rest of the world, I suppose, are subjected almost daily, is the request to "roast" somebody. A man loses his job and very frequently he comes to me or my fellow workers with a request to "roast" his boss. Men quarrel over about any old thing, and a majority of those involved will come to the newspapers to rub it into every body involved, except the man who makes the request, who, let him tell it, is the only blameless one of the whole outfit. As a mattter of fact, the pencil pushers are not posing as prize fighters, and I for one do not have any ambition swelling in my breast to settle all the disputes that men get into, so that these plaints will pass unnoticed, unless I should out of self-defence, and in a spirit of justice, decide to roast the man who asks for such an uncharitable act from me. Few of these men are willing to have their names appear, but want to fight it in ambush and leave the newspapers to take the whole responsibility for whatever injustice may be done in the meddling.—Taunton Herald News.

MARRIED.

LEHRA—JOHNSON—In Quincy, July 6, by Rev. John A. Bernhard, Mr. John Lehra to Miss Hilma Johnson both of Quincy.

☞ A Chicago newspaper wants the scientists to turn their attention to means of preventing poisoning by poison ivy—a plant which the paper considers a great menace. And yet, there are probably millions of people in this country who have not the least idea of what it looks like.

☞ Those persons who are saying that this is the hottest summer for years are reminded that the summer is not half gone yet, and further that very few are competent to express an opinion on that point. Not one person in one hundred is able to give intelligent account of the course of the weather of last summer, as compared with other summers, and scarcely anybody can tell what was the peculiarity of the summer—if there was any peculiarity—of ten years ago.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ A search of the trunks of a young woman student at the University of Nebraska resulted in the discovery of twenty-four pairs of kid gloves of various sizes, four pairs of mittens, twenty-five handkerchiefs, ten veils, four fountain pens, seven pocket-books, a varied assortment of stockings and a considerable number of other articles. The authorities are in doubt whether to look upon her with scorn as a thief, with pity as a kleptomaniac or with admiration as a collector.—Beverly Times.

☞ Judge Stone of Cleveland had granted an injunction, which is called temporary, but the term of it is not limited, against certain striking machinists, forbidding them to do most of the acts in which men on strike are apt to engage, in order to prevent others from taking their places. They are forbidden to picket or patrol the vicinity of the work of the plaintiff the Cleveland Punch & Shear Company) to guard the company's gates or the streets leading to the shops, to interfere in any manner either at the shops or their homes, with the men now working, or to intimidate their relatives or families. Such legal prohibitions are unfortunately necessary although they ought not to be. They simply enforce the practice of good citizenship. But it has come to pass that when a body of workmen go on strike, they act as if they thought that they thereby acquired rights and privileges which they did not have while at work. They undertake to take charge of the business they have abandoned, to put the property under surveillance, to deny other men's right to labor to be disorderly in the public streets to threaten women and children and to engage in other practices wholly incompatible with personal liberty and public order. This is intolerable.—Boston Herald.

The Reis' Matter.

The Selectmen of Weymouth have issued a warrant for a special town meeting to be held next Saturday evening, to see if the town will ratify the action of the selectmen, wherein they employed counsel to assist in criminal prosecution of George J. Reis for the embezzlement of the money of the town.

Also, to see if the town will refer the whole matter to the Selectmen, with full power to commence suit, or to make a settlement.

The town auditors are still at work on the books of the water department and the alleged shortage of Supt. Reis is now put at $8200. It has been found in looking over his accounts that the pay-roll and supply accounts have been raised several thousand dollars in a year and one-half.

It has also been found by the auditors that Supt. Reis has during the past few months put back several hundred dollars. His accounts for April were found to be correct in every detail and it is believed that he had used the town's money for his personal ends and had endeavored to pay it back without being detected.

Supt. Reis will have a hearing at the Quincy court tomorrow morning and his friends are talking about making restitution to the town for the amount alleged to have been taken, and it is now thought that Reis' counsel will ask for a further continuance in order that an expert accountant may be put at work upon the books and the exact amount of the shortage be found.

Funeral of William Morrison.

The funeral of William Morrison was held this afternoon from his late residence on Elm street. Rev. James Todd, D. D., conducted the services. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

—The number of deaths reported to the Boston board of health last week was 247 as against 204 the corresponding week last year.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

MORE ARRESTS.

Alleged to be Part of Gang that Assaulted Nicola Tocci.

Donati Celuci, Luigi Cadlerelli and Antonio Cadlerelli, three of the four Italians who it is alleged made the assault on Nicola Tocci at the corner of Water and Franklin streets on the night of the Fourth of July were arrested and brought into court this morning. All three men were evidently in the fight for all of them dislayed marks of cuts on the face and hands. There is not much doubt but what it was a general fight and a wicked one in which knives and razors played a prominent part and Tocci received the worst of it. The cases against the three men were continued until next Monday. Reports from Tocci this morning is that he is in a serious condition.

Sporting Notes.

At South Quincy Saturday the South Quincy's defeated the Hillsides of Medford by a score of 28 to 2.

At Norfolk Downs the home team defeated the Blake & Knowles team of Boston by a score of 20 to 6.

The Squantum Yacht club held its second race Saturday off the club house in a good easterly sailing breeze. The Maud crossed the line first at the start but was overhauled by the Peacock. The latter had lost considerable time by failing to round the first stake boat and having to return and do so. She however picked up her lost ground and led the procession until the end defeating the Maud by two minutes and the Olande five minutes. The judges were: Frank McNamara and Hamilton Flood.

The Hostess entered the race of the Mosquito fleet at South Boston Saturday in the 25-foot cabin boats but withdrew before completing the course.

The Hostess has been taken out of class L and will hereafter race in the 25-foot open class.

The Cleopatia will sail in class L with the Tacoma, Problem, Dauntless and Circe.

Funeral of Mrs. Morris.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary, wife of Mr. Thomas T. Morris, who died at Alamosa, Col., June 30, was held Saturday afternoon from the home of her father, Mr. John Evans on Copeland street and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, assisted by Rev. Edward Norton. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston; the bearers being from John A. Boyd Camp, Legion of Spanish War Veterans, as follows: Frank Pierce, Harry Matthews, George Wardwell, Griffith Roberts, Lewis Jones and Michael Gunderson.

We, the undersigned, wish to extend to the many kind friends in Alamosa, our heartfelt thanks for their kindness and sympathy to our dear one, and especially to Rev. and Mrs. McLeod, King's Daughters and Camp No. 21, Woodmen of the World.

Thomas T. Morris,
Mr. and Mrs. John Evans and Family.

The Old Clock.

Once more the clock on the M. E. church, West Quincy, is heard striking the hours. Many of the people in the vicinity have missed the familiar sound for more than a year; therefore it was a pleasant surprise on the Fourth to hear the voice that has so long been silent.

The familiar voice is heard again
Of the old M. E. church bell,
Warning us all of the passing hours
Of time. May we use them well.

TODAY'S COURT.

Joseph Cain was arraigned for assault on Henry J. Matthews at Quincy, May 12. Case continued until Tuesday.

The continued case of Peter J. Barry for non-support at Quincy was called and he was discharged.

CITY BREVITIES.

A Local Budget With the News in a Nut Shell.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Bernasconi are visiting relatives at Barre, Vermont.

Mr. Frank Barnes and daughter have returned from a visit at Middleboro.

Mrs. William Gassett of Faxon road is spending the month of July at North Hampton.

Mrs. Charles Crane of Greenleaf street has returned from two weeks visit in Maine.

The Squantum cars have introduced a 10.30 car in the evening on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

T. F. Linnehan, D. H. C. R., of Brockton will visit Quincy Court of Foresters this evening.

Cherries are very plentiful this year and not withstanding the quantity are of fine flavor sweet and juicy.

It is reported that the line of steamers between Boston and Houghs Neck will be put in operation Tuesday.

There will be no meeting of the City Council this week. There will be an important meeting next week, however.

Edson Loud and wife of New Jersey spent last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Loud of Washington street.

Mr. Wilson Marsh, wife and two sons, left last week for a ten days' trip to the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo.

D. H. C. R., F. F. Peach of Brockton will visit St. Francis Court of Foresters of West Quincy tomorrow evening.

Miss Pauline Hatch of Boston is spending the summer in one of the cottages on Appleton street belonging to Mrs. C. E. Chase.

Although the weather the greater part of Sunday was damp and muggy, there was a heavy travel on all lines of the street railway.

Mrs. James Mears has returned from her visit to Milford, Mass., and has gone to her old homestead at Houghs Neck for the summer.

People have begun to go away for the summer. Every day some family leaves town. The Ledger would be glad to receive these items.

Mr. Wallace Cook, wife and daughter of Bennington street have gone to Provincetown on the Cape, for a two months' rest and change.

Mrs. James B. Pollock of New York has arrived for a six weeks' visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Penniman of Pleasant street.

Mr. McClure who recently moved from Squantum street to Appleton street, moved into his new house this week on the corner of Appleton and Squantum streets.

Miss Lillie A. Hicks has had her cottage on Spear street very tastily painted by Mr. John Hersey. It is one of the prettiest places on the street the lawn and shrubbery being kept in perfect order.

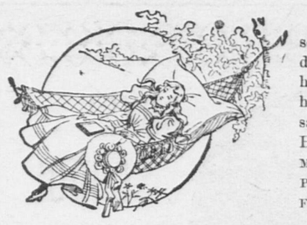

J. H. White of Atlantic, has this to say about Saturday's race: "The Constitution did not make the speed credited to the Independence, in like conditions, yet her showing in the race was a stern reality to the other two boats."

The new raft, which was launched July 4th at Atlantic, is a great improvment on the raft of last year, which was destroyed during the winter. The men of Webster street spared no effort in making this raft as near perfection as possible, and the many swimmers appreciate it.

Benjamin Jilbert has severed his connection with the Old Colony Street Railroad company. He will be greatly missed for he was one of the most obliging conductors employed by the road. Why does not the company favor the old and faithful men instead of the new help? Then there would be fewer accidents and better satisfaction.

Edward Dunn, the popular conductor who recently was transferred from the Squantum line to the line between Neponset and Quincy, has returned to his former position, and the news is hailed with joy by the patrons of the Squantum line. Mr. Dunn has the gift of remembering where everybody wants to alight and if they have bundles or not

Owing to the gloomy weather there were very few contestants in the yacht race of the Squantum yacht club, Saturday. Orlande, Maude and Peacock were the only boats of the second class which finished. The latter led until the home run when the Maude came in two minutes ahead of the Peacock and five minutes ahead of the Orlande. There was a slight east breeze blowing, and the times for the boats were not up to expectations.

DRESS AND FASHION.

PRINCESS AND EMPIRE STYLES IN DAINTY SUMMER GOWNS.

The Tyranny of Fastenings—Button Backs the Latest Mode In Bodices and Shirt Waists—New Foulard and Muslin Toilets.

Clothes are certainly fascinating this season, with the picturesque effects of the empire and the dainty grace and chic of the princess styles in the lead. But, though they give the impression of one's being well dressed without any special effort, in reality our gowns need a great deal of putting on and much care.

We are all suffering from the tyranny of fastenings. We used to button our dresses down the front or, perchance, hook them, and there was an end of it, but now that bodices are being buttoned or fastened up the back the woman who is her own maid experiences many an unhappy quarter of an hour. Even if the bodice is secured in front there are usually lacings or fastenings at the side, and the collar band is a thing by itself, for it closes not in front with the rest of the gown, but at the back with almost impossible hooking. No more ingenious devices for killing time could well be found than the buttoning, hooking and pinning that go with a trimly turned out ensemble.

For a slender figure, svelte, yielding and graceful, is the French gown of the first sketch, a blue and white foulard with herringbone a jour in white silk, yoke of thick guipure threaded with satin ribbon and boa of silk muslin edged with chantilly lace.

The popularity of foulard is unbounded perhaps because it adds decided utility and wearableness to its beauty.

This costume illustrates, too, the decorative value of openwork herringboning as applied to skirts. To the plain skirts of moderate length this tasteful stitchery imparts a particular cachet. There is no doubt, then, as to the creation being of the immediate moment, although those who are economically inclined to the renovating of last year's possessions may make it a valuable ally. A skirt, for instance, with a narrow front width and wide back looks exceedingly well with the herringboning carried up either front seam and also center back, but it is on the skirt of many seams that this ornamentation is at its best.

Fine book muslin with the popular ring spot, plaited to princess form and trimmed with black chantilly lace, composes the summery black and white toilet of the second sketch. The inner vest is of chiffon. A bow of black velvet gives an effective finish to the corsage, and the elbow sleeves show the latest fashion for an afternoon gown.

Empire in line and empire in trimming are many of the newest models, but a sort of glorified empire which has been evolved by appropriating all the charms and none of the disadvantages of the historic model.

Gay little postilion back coats of pompadour silk or cretonne are a French fancy to be worn with the popular thin muslin gowns.

Little black velvet bows are used to hold up the hair at the back of the neck.

SUBSTITUTES FOR COAL.

Some Devices Used to Lessen the Fuel Bill.

Many substitutes, more or less ingenious, have been brought into requisition to keep the contents of the coal cellar above low water mark.

One of the most useful of these various devices has been the employment of bath brick soaked in oil. The brick is first broken into pieces about the average size of the lumps of coal used for domestic purposes and then placed for a considerable time in a pail of common paraffin or petroleum until it is thoroughly impregnated with the oil. It is then placed on the fire with a pair of tongs in the usual way, and has been found to burn longer and cost less than coal.

As the pieces of brick burn out, or, rather, the oil with which they are soaked is consumed, they should be removed and replaced by fresh pieces while the first lot are being allowed to cool before resoaking.

Cinders have also been dipped in oil and used two or three times over, and these also effect a saving, though not so great as when bath brick is the absorbent material.

Old newspapers and magazines pressed into small bundles very tightly and fastened in that condition with wire have contributed their share toward economizing the coal bill, and paper served in this way is said to take as long to consume as coal itself. The only drawback to its employment is the great amount of ash which it creates.

Pieces of cocoanut shell are valuable stimulants to a dying fire, and orange peel should never be thrown away, but kept dried and used for the same purpose, as it contains a large quantity of a vegetable oil which blazes merrily.

Will Make All Meat Tender.

W. T. Bryan, a Cincinnati electrician, claims that the evil of tough meat can be eradicated by electricity. Selecting a piece of meat, he cuts it in two and submits one-half of it to a treatment by "electrolysis"—that is, he inducts into it a current of electricity that permeates every atom and disintegrates the "connective tissues." The two pieces are then cooked in precisely the same manner and their merits compared. Whether the "untreated" piece turns out to be good, bad or indifferent, the other is always a toothsome morsel, fit for an epicure or an invalid. The electricity, it is claimed, leaves no taint and does not lessen the nutritive quality of the meat. In fact, it tends to destroy impurity. It is said that this process may be applied to any meats or vegetables.

Sun Spots and Explosions.

Abbe Moreux, the director of the observatory at Bourges, France, declares that the explosions of fire damp in mines are caused by the spots on the sun. According to the abbe's theory, fire damp explosions follow the same laws as cyclones, earthquakes and other abnormal manifestations of heat and magnetic disturbances, all of which follow closely on the appearance of well defined sun spots. These spots are in reality overheated portions of the sun's area, says the abbe, which, reacting on the earth's temperature, generate great quantities of electricity.

The Immensity of Space.

A photographic plate exposed to the heavens in a large telescope for any considerable length of time shows nothing but a continuous blur of light, indicating that the photographic eye sees beyond the reach of human vision such a multitude of suns that every part of space is filled.

Chemically the apple is composed of vegetable fiber, albumen, sugar, gum, chlorophyll, malic acid, gallic acid, lime and much water. Furthermore, the German analysts say that the apple contains a larger percentage of phosphorus than any other fruit or vegetable. This phosphorus is admirably adapted for renewing the essential nervous matter, lethicin, of the brain and spinal cord. The acids of the apple are of signal use for men of sedentary habits whose livers are sluggish in action, those acids serving to eliminate from the body noxious matters which, if retained, would make the brain heavy and dull or bring about jaundice or skin eruptions and other allied troubles.

French Chemist's Discovery.

The eminent French chemist, Mr. Armand Gautier, has reported a discovery to the Paris Academy of Sciences which may prove of great hygienic value. He has found that finely powdered volcanic stones treated by boiling in water at a temperature of 250 to 300 degrees Celsius yield a liquid identical in composition with the ordinary sulphur water of mineral springs, except that it is stronger than the latter.

Would Eat Food Raw.

Professor Byron Tyler of Chicago has just propounded the remarkable theory that the main cause of all the ills to which flesh is heir is the eating of cooked food. He claims that cooking destroys the life principle in food and that the only way to be healthy is to confine one's eating exclusively to certain nuts and cereals.

Take Time to Breathe.

The doctors advise all persons that have to lean over their work, as in writing, sewing or studying, to stop work now and then, sit back in the chair and take 10 or 12 deep breaths. This is especially important for school children, and the wise and considerate teacher will make it a part of the daily exercise.

A TWO STORY DWELLING.

Plans For a $2,500 House Both Pretty and Convenient.

Below will be found plans for a two story frame dwelling house that will be found to make a handsome as well as a comfortable home.

The elevation shows that it is of handsome exterior design, the wall surfaces well broken with windows and angles, and the arrangement of the two piazzas is particularly happy.

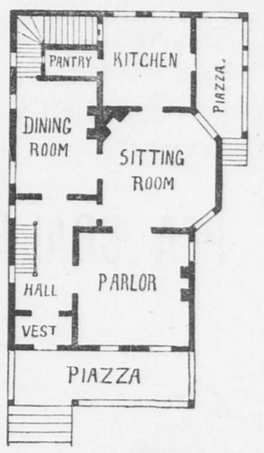

The house may have a brick or stone foundation and a 6 foot 6 inch cellar. The first story is 10 feet 6 inches high, and the second 9 feet high. The arrangement of the first story is convenient and artistic. The large parlor, which is 15 feet wide by 16 feet long, is connected with the sitting room by a broad door, which would make them both easily available in case of large gatherings. The sitting room is little smaller than the parlor, as it measures 14 by 16, and its connection with the 12 by 16 dining room adds the latter to the suit which might be pressed into service. From all three rooms doors open into a hall 16 feet long and 8 feet wide, from which the staircase ascends.

In each one of the four principal lower rooms—parlor, sitting room, dining room and hall—are fireplaces, which add much to comfort and coziness of appearance on chilly autumn evenings or during the dampness and frost of the early spring. But the "crowning glory" of this house from a housewife's standpoint is the kitchen. It is large enough (11 by 12) and is so arranged that there is plenty of room for three tables. The range and sink are in good locations, and the whole is well lighted by two windows and, if desired, a glass door opening on the back porch. The pantry, which measures 4 feet 6 inches by 8, is at the left of the range and easy of access to the cook or serving maid.

The second story is no less conveniently arranged. It contains four chambers six closets, bathroom and hall, all of good size and well lighted. One of the chambers has a door leading to a tiny balcony—a delightful adjunct to a sleeping room on summer evenings and hot nights.

Going still higher is a commodious garret, in which a servant's room might easily be fitted up.

The estimated cost of building is $2,500.

Paper Wood.

Paper wood is as hard as wood itself, is susceptible of brilliant treatment, is vastly lighter, perfectly adjustable and absolutely fireproof. The erection of skyscrapers necessitated a very serious study of fireproofing treatment of wood, and the result is that paper is coming very largely into use in all cases where woodwork has to be used. It is particularly adaptable for ceilings and is becoming popular for that purpose.

A Good Polish For Wood.

The best preparation for cleaning picture frames or restoring furniture is a mixture of three parts of linseed oil and one part of spirits of turpentine. It not only removes scratches, but restores wood to its original color, leaving a luster upon the surface. It should be applied with a woolen cloth and then rubbed when dry with a silk cloth.

Comparatively cool weather prevails almost over the entire country east of the Mississippi river, and in the Ohio valley region temperatures are considerably below the average. The lower temperatures are expected to continue for a short time at least. Throughout New England rains have fallen, but to the west the weather still remains remarkably dry. Generally fair weather will prevail in New England, except showers are probable on the coast.

FRIENDS ARE HOPEFUL

That Independence Will Yet Make a Fine Showing

MET WITH BAD DEFEAT

Lagged Sluggishly Along and Was Seven Miles Astern When Constitution and Columbia Crossed the Line —Evidently a Failure In Light Wind

Newport, R. I., July 8.—Sunday was a day of satisfaction on board the yachting champion Constitution, of resignation on board the Columbia, and of contemplation, but still of hopefulness, on the Boston yacht, Independence, so badly defeated in Saturday's race.

On shore, however, every one discussed the race from all sides, but principally with reference to the unexpected showing of the Independence. It seemed to be the general opinion among those yachtsmen who watched the race closely that the sluggishness of the Boston boat was due to some extent to the uncertainty of the wind some little time after the start, and that the true worth of the yacht was not brought out.

On board the Boston boat not a man was cast down, the overwhelming defeat being attributed solely to hard luck. Said one of those on board during the race: "We know that the Independence can sail, and sail fast, for we have seen her do it, and we believe that on Saturday ill luck attended her from the very start."

Captain Haff is quoted as expressing similar views to Mr. Lawson when the latter came aboard Saturday night, after the race, and last night all hands on the Boston yacht were looking forward eagerly and confidently to today's contest, when, over a triangular course, the Independence is expected to show her great reaching powers, provided, of course, there is any kind of a breeze.

Considerable ballast was taken out of the Independence yesterday afternoon, as was also some furniture, apparently to make her a little more tender for the breeze in today's race. On Saturday she appeared to be too heavy and acted very stiff, it being hard to get a lift on her.

An unqualified victory for the Constitution; an overwhelming defeat for the Independence; a most commendable showing for the old champion—the Columbia—is the record of the first day's contest of the big sloops in the Newport Yacht Racing association series.

From the firing of the starting gun which sent the yachts off to windward in a light easterly breeze, the Constitution led her rivals. At the turning buoy she was a little more than two minutes in advance of the Columbia, while the Independence was hull down to leeward. But it was on the run home that the new Herreshoff yacht showed her greatest strength, beating the Columbia over eight minutes in the 15 miles down the wind, and, when the new champion of America swept across the line, the Boston boat was over seven miles astern.

Owing to the lightness of the wind, there was no brilliant or dramatic scene to chronicle. The race lacked the charm that attends a scupper breeze, but it was, nevertheless, full of interesting, if not exciting events.

The chief interest of the contest was the failure of the Independence to meet the expectations of her adherents. That she was a failure in the weather conditions that prevailed Saturday cannot be gainsaid. At no time during the contest to windward did she show any weatherly qualities whatever. She did not point so high as her opponents, nor did she, even for a brief interval, demonstrate that she possessed a fraction of that speed which she seemed to have shown when sailing by herself.

That she may be vastly improved is possible, but that she profoundly disappointed her friends cannot be concealed, for in light winds her excellence was chiefly supposed to rest. When she got fairly out into the open sea she pounded heavily in the southeast swell, and the more she pounded the more she seemed to lose headway. So far as pointing went she was just as good as her competitors, but general sluggishness was her fault.

So far as the Constitution's success was concerned it was no more than was expected of her by those who have watched her keenly since her launch. Handled splendidly, and with rare judgment, but not in the least better than Columbia, her superior size and bigger sail plan told. Whether the Columbia will beat the Constitution in hard weather remains to be proved.

The Columbia was sailed in a most meritorious manner from start to finish. The way her sails were set, the smart shifting of them whenever a shift became necessary, the skilful maneuvers of those in charge of her, to keep up with the more powerful boat, Constitution, in the beat to windward, and the very creditable success that attended these efforts are part of the praise that will always attend the meeting of these two yachts and their able skippers.

On corrected time, Constitution beat Columbia 9 minutes and 49 seconds, over the whole course.

Plague Rumor Denied

Rio Janeiro, July 8.—There is no foundation for the rumor that a bubonic plague scare exists in this city. Four cases of the disease have been reported, but all were brought from Oporto. The general sanitary condition of this city is excellent.

Hundreds Poisoned

Ardmore, I. T., July 8.—Seven hundred persons were poisoned at Ada yesterday by drinking lemonade. Three children are dead, and many seriously ill.

THE COMMERCIAL ISSUE

The Chief Stumbling Block In the Path of Ministers at Pekin

Pekin, July 8.—The minister of one of the great powers told the representative of the Associated Press yesterday that a leading cause for the present apparent deadlock was the fact that various committees had taken to themselves too much authority in dealing with the Chinese, and had made certain promises which other ministers afterward found it impossible to accept. Another factor of considerable importance, he said, was the commercial factor, involving the right of each government to make its own treaties with China, and the application of the most favored nation clause. In his opinion, the first difficulty can be overcome shortly, but the commercial difficulty must be eliminated or it is likely to prove a definite stumbling block.

Roosevelt Strong In the West

Chicago, July 8.—"Theodore Roosevelt is the choice of the people in the west for the Republican nomination for president three years hence." In an extended interview, Governor Yates gives this as his conservative judgment, as the result of his recent trip, during which he went as far east as Buffalo. The fact that the chief executive of the banner state of the west booms the cause of an eastern man as the occupant of the White House is in itself a matter to make his declaration one of unusual interest to the people of the nation at large.

Storm of Amphibious Animals

Ithaca, N. Y., July 8.—All Ithaca is suffering from a frog pest after the recent heavy rains. A train which left for Auburn late last night had difficulty in working its way, the tracks becoming so slippery from the ones killed that the wheels would not take hold of the rails. Traffic on a branch of the Ithaca Street railway has been impeded. The little animals have invaded houses and destroyed many gardens. It is thought that the frogs came down during the very heavy rains of Saturday.

Boers Accused of Barbarism

London, July 8.—The Daily Mail gives prominence this morning to mail advices from Vlakfontein, which attribute to the Boers inhuman atrocities that the censor would not allow to be described by cable. "A couple of Boers," says the correspondent, "who were armed with Martinis, walked around among the dead and dying. Some they turned over to see if they were dead. If it were otherwise, then one of the Boers shot them as you would shoot an ox. I saw four killed in this way."

"Inquisition Law" Illegal

Fort Scott, Kan., July 8.—A jury of business men took four minutes to find one of the state's new liquor laws, passed as a result of Mrs. Nation's crusade, unconstitutional. It was the "inquisition law," which authorizes county attorneys to summon and examine witnesses touching their knowledge of the violation of the law. Dan F. Campbell, an attorney, who was summoned, refused to testify, and was arrested. The jury acquitted him, though he admitted the charge.

Kissing Bug Again

Waterbury, Conn., July 8.—The kissing bug is on a rampage in Connecticut. Miss Susie J. Fisher, a Meriden girl, is dangerously ill of a bite of a big one recently. It has resulted now in blood poisoning and other complications. Miss Dressler of New Britain has an arm terribly swollen by the poisoning bite of one which attacked her Eaturday night.

Journey Caused No Setback

Canton, O., July 8.—A quiet, restful and pleasant day was reported at the McKinley home last night. Mrs. McKinley's condition continues favorable, and she has experienced no relapse as the result of the trip from Washington.

George Blackburn of Lynn, Mass., aged 45, committed suicide by asphyxiation at a Boston hotel.

COULDN'T BE BUDGED

Tugs Make Ineffectual Attempts to Get the Old Dominion Afloat

Greenwich, Conn., July 8.—Notwithstanding the efforts of four wrecking tugs, the Joy line steamer, Old Dominion, is still fast aground on Blue Fish reef, off Parsonage Point, at Rye.

At no time since the boat struck in the fog, at 2 a. m., Saturday, has there been the slightest indication that she was being freed from her perilous position, and at low tide it appeared that she was aground her full length of 250 feet. When the tide was high, at 2 a. m., and again at 3 p. m., yesterday, strenuous efforts were made by the tugs, but, in spite of the fact that the cargo had been removed and the boat lightened in every way, it was not possible to budge her an inch, and, as the tide fell, the work was temporarily abandoned until pontoons can be brought into use in a last attempt. If this fails, it is believed that the Old Dominion will have to be abandoned for a wreck.

Captain Burke of the steamer was again asked last night regarding the manner in which the accident happened, in spite of a statement that his craft was beached to save the lives of her passengers when she was in a sinking condition from striking a rock, but he persisted in his claim that such was not the case, but that the Old Dominion went aground through the failure of the fog horn on Captain's island to give warning of the danger. The boat lies but a little over a mile from shore.

Narrow Escapes From Death

Fall River, Mass., July 8.—J. Foreham fell into the Seaconnet river from a bridge yesterday, and, after he was pulled out two doctors worked over him for an hour, and he was revived. Five small boys started out on the Seaconnet river yesterday in a small rowboat. The boat capsized and spilled them all into the water. Several boats put out to their assistance, and they were all rescued in an exhausted condition.

Strike Won't Come Off Today

Holyoke, Mass., July 8.—It was decided yesterday by the Holyoke paper makers, after one of the most exciting and largest meetings in the history of the present industrial agitation in the trade, not to strike today. Instead, the operatives are to report for duty as usual, coincident with the operation of the new schedule adopted a few weeks ago.

Police Suspect Kidnapping

Lewiston, Me., July 8.—Miss Carrie Dunn, a pretty 16-year-old girl, who has been employed as a governess in the home of Walter Bailey since November last, is missing, and the police are working on the theory that she has been kidnapped. The young lady left the Bailey home last Wednesday evening, and since that time has not been seen.

Alleged Theft of Diamond

Worcester, Mass., July 8.—John W. Hampton, arrested in Boston, is locked up in this city, charged with the larceny of a diamond valued at $400 from a jewelry firm here. Incidentally, Hampton borrowed $2800 from Mrs. A. J. Clough, which will have to be accounted for.

Short Fall Caused Death

Fall River, Mass., July 8.—Mrs. Lizzie Bean was killed yesterday by falling down stairs, over the tracks of the Consolidated road. In descending the stairs the woman's feet became caught in her skirts, and she was thrown down four steps. She soon expired.

A Blaze at Lynn

Lynn, Mass., July 8.—A fire started in a pile of leather on the fourth floor of William Porter & Son's building last night, and before it had been extinguished a loss of $4000, almost entirely by water, had been caused to the stock.

Cocking Main Interrupted

Providence, July 8.—A raid was made upon a party of cock fighters in a barn on the outskirts of this city Sunday morning. Eight arrests were made. The captured ones were fined $10 and costs.

Drowned In Ledge Pond

Fall River, Mass., July 8.—JosephIgo, 13, while walking through a ledge, was thrown into a small pond by a sudden caving of the ground. He was drowned while companions were in search of help.

Deputy Sheriffs' Big Haul

Lewiston, Me., July 8.—Deputy Sheriffs seized 44 barrels and 22 half barrels of beer and ale at the lower Maine Central station late Saturday night. The name of the owner is unknown.

Responsible to God—and His Father

Pottsdam, July 8.—Speaking yesterday, on the occasion of the entrance of Prince Eitel-Frederick, the emperor's second son, into the camp of the First Guards regiment at Pottsdam, his majesty said: "The noblest task is the defense of the fatherland. The noblest weapon is the sword, and the noblest uniform is the uniform of the Prussian soldier. Responsible only to God and his father, so may my son follow his path through life."

Gloucester Schooner Run Down

New York, July 8.—Steamer Menominee, Captain Lucas, which arrived in port last night from London, collided with the fishing schooner Lucille of Gloucester, Mass., during a dense fog, when nine miles off Nantucket shoal lightship. Captain Seamen of the Lucille and the crew of 18 men were picked up and brought to New York on the Menominee. The Lucille was a vessel of 71 tons.

Jessie Morrison Sentenced

Constitution a Marvel In Light Weather

Easily Won Over Columbia and Independence

The Latter Beaten by Over an Hour In a Thirty-Mile Race

Newport, July 9.—If the victory of the Constitution over the Columbia and the Independence in the first of the three-cornered races on Saturday was significant and definite, her winning yesterday may well be characterized as overwhelming, and the defeat of the Independence as positive and almost hopeless.

The approach of evening again found the committee boat anchored far out in Narragansett bay, alone with the catboat which marked the other end of the finish line, tediously waiting for the Boston boat to cross, while her rivals were well up the harbor on the way to their moorings.

The new Herreshoff boat had beaten the Columbia by nearly half an hour over the 30-mile course, while the record against the Independence was over an hour. She came very nearly travelling around the triangle while the Crowninshield creation was covering two legs of it. Yesterday's race establishes the new Bristol sloop as a record-breaker in light airs. She has accomplished what yachtsmen considered impossible in thus beating the Columbia, while her performance has put the Independence entirely out of the running in conditions like those of yesterday. What her showing may be in heavy weather is still a matter of conjecture, as it is with the Independence, but the experts are now almost ready to accept any achievement of the Constitution without surprise.

Of all the conquests in the history of the renowned races for the America's cup that of yesterday is the most remarkable. Not only of the races proper, but also of those incident to the selection of a cup challenger or a cup defender, the Constitution has proved herself the best light weather craft of this generation. The Volunteer, Vigilant, Defender and Columbia have in the past achieved wonderful and glorious things in the cause of defending the cup, but the Constitution caps the climax.

The wind was light from the southwest at the start and there was a long and greasy ground swell from the southward when the start was made. The first leg of the triangular course of 30 nautical miles was a dead beat to windward of 10 miles, the course being southwest. There was haze and dampness and an unpromising outlook generally, but the Constitution overcame every obstacle that offered in the way of flukes and doldrums, and sailed with tact and skill, winning the first leg by 10 minutes and 37 seconds over the Columbia. That great yacht never before had such a humiliating experience.

On the next leg, a reach of 10 miles, with only a gentle zephyr blowing on the starboard beam, with a fine reaching jib-topsail set to woo whatever airs might come her way, she sailed faster than the wind, and by rare skill and superior ability worked herself through what seemed an almost inextricable tangle of humidity and haze, greasy ground swell and dead calms to another extraordinary achievement. She rounded the leeward mark eight minutes and 42 seconds ahead of the Columbia.

And then, with a triumphant shake of her big reaching jib-topsail, not her ballooner, and again scurrying faster than the wind, which never during the racing day exceeded the force of a six-knot air, made the crowning record of her history by sailing over the 10 knots in 49 minutes and 46 seconds.

Then came the cheering and the notes of acclaim from whistles and syrens in honor of the greatest boat that ever sailed a fast light weather race. What she may do with topmast housed is quite another narrative. She is up to this time superb in light airs. But a stronger breath may conquer her.

Mention should be made of the valiant efforts the old Columbia made to escape from the hoodoo of greater merit on the part of the Constitution. That she lost was owing to the same reason that the Defender lost in the last contest. She was outclassed as a vessel, not that she had a crew of less ability.

The same apology for the bad defeat of the Independence may with greater truth be asseverated. The Independence was not handicapped by her personnel, but simply by her inability to sail fast under the conditions that prevailed. She made a fairly good start, and she experienced no particular bad luck. In fact, in the reach to the second mark, she had the greatest bit of luck in her life, as she made faster time over the leg, to the tune of 2 minutes and 25 seconds, than the Columbia. That is the only satisfactory episode connected with the race of the Independence. In two trials in light weather she has not proved to be anywhere near her rivals. What may happen in stronger breezes cannot be predicted.

The Constitution beat the Columbia 28 minutes and 8 seconds, corrected time; and the Independence 1 hour, 18 minutes and 31 seconds, corrected time.

VILLAGE BADLY CHARRED

Co'ebrook, N. H., Suffers a Loss of Property to the Value of $150,000

Colebrook, N. H., July 9.—The fire which for hours yesterday fed on the business portion of this town has entirely ceased in its spread. Heavy showers that fell Sunday night probably saved the entire village, for the embers, some of large size, were carried far and wide and would have ignited buildings for miles around the blazing area proper had not roofs and vegtetation been soaked by the rain.

The fire started in the barn of T. J. Hall, but from what cause may never be known. Before force enough to conquer it had arrived, the fire had gone both ways on the street, jumping from the barn to an adjoining store which was one of a block used for business purposes. Almost before the villagers knew it the fire was beyond their control, and it was nearly 12 hours later before the danger was over. In the meantime $150,000 worth of real estate and personal property had made fuel for the fire. Several persons were burned on the hands or body in trying to get property out of the way.

Pythians' Figures Were "Off"

Hartford, July 9.—Insurance Commissioner Schofield has made public the report from the investigation of the Connecticut insurance department of the Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias. It shows the assets on Dec. 30, 1900, to be $334,855.86, and the liabilities $560,123.20, making a deficit of $225,267.34, and a difference of $451,075.32 in the amount reported by Pythian officials. The report of the actuaries, however, absolves the present officials of the order from blame.

Cambridge Breathes Easier

Cambridge, Mass., July 9.—The gila monster, which has kept indoors all North Cambridge at night for three weeks while he roamed at large, was captured yesterday afternoon by J. L. Dyer. A small dog was playing about in a vacant lot when his noise and capers routed out the gila. The "monster" is about 18 inches long and looks like an enlarged lizard. There is said to be a difference of opinion among scientists as to whether the gila has a poisonous fang.

Despondency and Suicide

Fall River, Mass., July 9.—Francis H. Holmes, aged 35, killed himself yesterday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Taylor. Holmes took a small bottle of poison from his pocket and began drinking from it. Mrs. Taylor grabbed the bottle. Holmes then drew a revolver and shot himself dead. Despondency over a nervous disease was the cause.

Bruce's Long Service Ended

Lynn, Mass., July 9.—At a meeting of the school committee last evening, Frank J. Peaslee of Revere was elected superintendent of schools for Lynn, in place of O. B. Bruce, who has served the city as superintendent of schools for 21 years. The selection is the result of a long contest on the question of securing a new superintendent.

Wanted on Murder Charge

Boston, July 9.—Detective Wakefield of the New York police department came to Boston last night to get the Chinaman, Sue Dong, who is wanted in New York for murder in connection with the affair of last September which has resulted in the conviction of one Chinaman and the indictment of several others.

Leap From Car Caused Death

Chelsea, Mass., July 9.—Miss Elizabeth Dunnels, aged 38, was aboard a Boston bound Lynn car last night. She was sitting on an end seat, with her cape in her lap. When it fell into the street she sprang to the ground to recover it, and received a concussion of the brain, and died an hour later.

Burned Out For Second Time

Waltham, Mass., July 9.—The large barn of Byron Bradstreet on Lowell street was burned this morning with its contents. A nearby house was damaged to the extent of $800. Mr. Bradstreet's loss is $35000. This is the second barn he has lost through a presumably incendiary fire.

Strike of Steam Fitters

Worcester, Mass., July 9.—Nearly 50 union steamfitters went on strike yesterday, their demands for an 8-hour day and a minimum wage of $3.25 having been ignored. One-third of the steamfitters are out. The employers will refuse to take them back at other than the old wages.

Friends Are Anxious

Saco, Me., July 9.—Edward Lees, a fisherman, who had $150 in his pocket on July 4, has disappeared, and his relatives fear that ill has befallen him.

Rarebit Defeats Canadian

Revere, Mass., July 9.—Jimmy Michael won the 25-mile motor-paced cycle race here last night from Archie McEachern by three laps in 41:51 1-2.

HE LOOKS LIKE BLONDIN

Murder Suspect Under Arrest In New York Town

TELLTALE MARK ON ARM

And Other Characteristics Lead to Belief That Much-Wanted Man Is In Custody—Boston Police Take Immediate Action on the Information

Middletown, N. Y., July 9.—A stranger, who is believed to be Wilfred Blondin, alleged to have murdered his wife at Chelmsford, Mass., recently, was arrested yesterday afternoon at Grahamsville, Sullivan county.

The arrest was made on a warrant sworn out by John Galbraith, a farmer, who thought he recognized a striking similarity between the man and the published descriptions of Blondin. The stranger is now being held to await the arrival of officers from Boston.

The prisoner denies his identity, claiming that he is Fred Hemlock. He acknowledges, however, that he was born in Boston.

People who have seen him declare that he has the characteristics of a French-Canadian. He seems much depressed over his arrest, and is constantly watched for fear that he may commit suicide.

The stranger came to Grahamsville a week ago in search of work, and was engaged to do a hostler's duties about a hotel. A comparison of the points of the prisoner with the published description shows them to be almost identical, even to the India ink marks on the arms.

Boston Officer After Him

Boston, July 9.—The information of the supposed capture of Blondin reached the headquarters of the state police just after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the shape of a message stating simply that Blondin had been found through a circular giving his picture and description, sent out by the state police some weeks ago, and that he would be held pending action by the Massachusetts authorities. The police at once sent back to Grahamsville a message that an officer would start for New York at once. State Officer Donovan was immediately instructed to go to Grahamsville, leaving at 6 o'clock last night.

No Peace Without Independence

London, July 9.—The British government has issued further South African correspondence concerning the peace negotiations, which conclude with the text of the proclamation of Messrs. Schalk-Burger and Steyn. This proclamation affirms that Mr. Kruger and the Boer deputation abroad made satisfactory reports; that peace would be worthless without independence; that no peace should be accepted whose price was the national existence; and that in the interest of the colonial brothers the war would be vigorously prosecuted.

Went on Reef In a Fog

St. John's, July 9.—The British steamer Delmar, Captain Williams, from Dundee, is ashore on the east coast of Newfoundland, a mile from the wrecked steamer Lusitania. The Delmar was caught on a reef in Black Head cove during a fog. She struck amidships. Her bow and stern are free, and the crew are hopeful of floating her. The vessel is in no great danger, and the crew remain by her.

A Tariff League Bugaboo

Washington, July 9.—Acting Secretary of State Hill had his attention drawn yesterday to a report to the effect that Austria, Germany and Russia had formed a tariff league directed against the United States, and that Italy and France were likely to join the league. Mr. Hill regarded it as having no basis of fact.

Trailers Give It Up

Butte, Mont., July 9.—A special from Malta says all hope of capturing the Great Northern train robbers has been abandoned. One by one the men who accompanied the authorities in the chase to the southward have returned, and the general opinion appears to be that the robbers have made good their escape.

Plague Among Steamer Stokers

Marseilles, July 9.—Since the arrival here Sunday of the French steamer Laos, from Yokohama, with 15 cases of the bubonic plague among the Arab stokers, two deaths have occurred on board. As yet, no cases have developed among the passengers or the remainder of the crew, aggregating 317.

Accident to Passenger Train

Columbus, O., July 9.—A Pan-Handle passenger train was "sidewiped" by a switch engine just outside the Union station here yesterday. Twenty-five people were injured, seven of them being so badly hurt that they were unable to proceed on their way west with the train.

Young Girl Conquered Burglar

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 9.—At Griffithsville, Minnie Waddell, 12 years old, shot a burglar as he was entering her home during the absence of her parents, and then stood watch through the night over him. The burglar, who will die, has been identified as Walter Morris.

Two Sources of Profit.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the share holders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. A limited amount of stock will be sold at $500 per thousand shares and pro rata down to 100 shares.

New Advertisements Today.

Wanted—Good Solicitor and Collector.
Socialists' Meeting at Quincy Woods.

Good Afternoon.

The damp east wind and rain today made it cool enough for a grate fire. A great change from last week.

It will be noticed by an article in another column that Thomas H. McDonnell of this city has been elected president of the Central Florida and Gulf Coast Railroad Company. Mr. McDonnell is a gentleman well known and much respected in this vicinity, and the large experience he has had in the granite and other business well qualifies him for the important position to which he has been elected.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞ They are now touring Mt. Washington in automobiles that make the trip up the mountains in less than two hours. The flying machine will come next.—Boston Globe

☞ Score another victory for the American army mule. New Orleans now ranks as the second exporting city in the United States, and this has been brought about mainly through the shipment of mules from that port during the past year.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ The people of western Missouri and eastern Kansas are holding daily meetings in every church and praying for rain. Why not hold a Baptist picnic instead? There's nothing like a whole lot of handsome, helpless young women clad in lovely summer dresses to bring on a roaring, pouring rain out of a seemingly clear sky. Plenty of dainty gowns and airy, fairy millinery, forms the best rainmaker yet discovered.—Boston Herald.

☞ Thomas A. Edison's recent advice to a young man who queried of him advice as to success "Don't watch the clock," deserves a place in the rules of any young man who is ambitious and striving for success in any line. Don't be a time-server. Remember that you are working for something more than a stipulated sum for a certain number of hours. Keep your employer in your debt by doing a little more or a little better work than is actually required of you and sooner or later there will come a day of reckoning when you will get your pay.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ Postmaster-General Smith proposes to enforce the regulations upon second-class mail matter more strictly in the future, and will shortly announce a ruling that will right a decided wrong and will add to the revenue of the department enough to place it upon a self-supporting basis. There is no reason why newspapers and magazines doing a legitimate business as periodicals should be molested in the least in the enjoyment of their privilege under the second-class rate, and if the book publishers and the managers of advertising schemes are cut off they have no reason to find fault, for they have enjoyed their graft long enough.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ It is to be noted that the interest accounts of Europe against the United States is steadily diminishing, because Americans have been using their surplus wealth during recent years to buy back their own securities. The process by which this comes about is, of course, indirect and not perceived by the average man. It represents, none the less, one of the strongest currents in the financial and business world, for four years past. The great railroad corporations in particular are observing the fact, that, whereas their payments of interest on bonds and of dividends on shares of stock a few years ago went in large proportion to foreign holders, they now go in the main to people living in the United States. The absorption of our best American railway and other standard securities by American investors has been quite widely disturbed, but it has been particularly noticeable in the case of great financial and fiduciary institutions like the principal insurance companies. Furthermore, the very process and policy of railway amalgamation has of itself created a large and determined demand for railway securities in this country on the part of the interests seeking to control specified properties for the sake of bringing about their absorption, or else their operation in harmony with other companies. Our trade balances for the past four years have aggregated about $2,400,000,000,—a sum about equal to the total of the balances in our favor for the preceding twenty years. Nothing could better illustrate the almost revolutionary nature of the change in America's financial and economic relations to Europe.—From the Review of Reviews for July.

TAUGHT A LESSON.

Charles Lindblow Pays Heavily for Interfering With an Officer.

Charles Lindblow, the man who it is alleged, made an assault on Officer Curtin on Granite street, and who it is also alleged attempted to rescue a prisoner was given a hearing before Judge Pratt this morning. Officer Curtin's story was that he arrested Charles Johnson at Swithin's corner and started with him toward the police station with the crowd following on behind. When near Fort hill Lindblow came up and struck him in the ear and tried to get Johnson away.

Lindblow testified that he put his hand on the officer's shoulder and wanted him to let Johnson go. He denied striking the officer. Some one kicked the officer and kicked him at the same time.

Lindblow has several witnesses all of whom testified that they were in the crowd but did not see Lindblow strike the officer. The court imposed a fine of $5 for assault and $25 for attempting to rescue a prisoner.

At a meeting of the directors held at the office of the Eastern Banking Co. 43 Milk street, Boston, June 8th, the following officers were elected:

Secretary and Treasurer, Samuel Clifford.
Executive Committee, Thomas H. McDonnell, Charles C. Loring, Edward Page.

Socialist Meeting.

"Let the Nation own the Trusts" will be the subject of H. Gaylord Milshire of Los Angeles, Cal., at the grand meeting held under the auspices of the Socialists next Sunday afternoon at Quincy woods. Other speakers will be Mayor Coulter of Brockton, Representatives Carey and McCartney, Winifred Porter and Dr. Howard Gibbs. A band concert will be given at 11 o'clock and the speaking will commence at 2 o'clock. Refreshments will be served. This gathering is similar to the gathering held two years ago at Belamy grove only on a much larger scale. A small admission will be charged to defray expenses.

Will Lose an Eye.

The 4-year old son of Charles Johnson of 12 Station street, met with a painful accident Sunday. He with other children were playing when a stone thrown by a companion struck him in the right eye. Dr. Ash was called and sent the boy to the Eye and Ear Infirmary. He will lose the sight of his eye. The habit among boys of throwing stones is a dangerous one and should be discouraged by parents.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

Frank E. Sproat of Allegheny, Pa., has invented a clamp for carrying brick which comprises essentially a turn buckle engaged by oppositely threaded shafts. Of these shafts one terminates in a grip and the other in a clevis. A bar is pivoted in the clevis and is provided at one end with a grip and at the other end with a handle and a loop.

The bricks are arranged side by side. By means of the oppositely threaded shafts the device is adjusted to pick up a certain number of bricks. The handle bar is lowered, and the grips are slipped over the sides of the two end bricks. When the device is lifted by the handle, the grips firmly clutch the end of bricks.

The Byproducts of Charcoal.

Modern chemistry has devised marvelous ways of making charcoal so that many valuable byproducts are obtained. The process as conducted by the Germans, the masters of the art, is so simple that it is a wonder that it was so long in developing. Put into a retort a few cords of hard wood, beach or oak, and you get not only charcoal, but tar, raw wood vinegar and methyl alcohol, or wood alcohol.

Japan's Economical Progress.

English reports indicate that the influence of Japan is continually increasing in the east. The Japanese people as well as the government are making energetic efforts to become economically independent of foreign aid by developing the resources of their country, creating transportation lines, establishing manufactories, etc.

May Build Houses of Cement.

The construction of cement houses is under consideration in Pittsburg, where the millions of tons of furnace slag produced every year could thus be utilized.

Oil For Fuel In San Francisco.

Fourscore of the large business concerns of San Francisco, manufacturing plants and street railway lines, are now using California oil for fuel instead of coal.

A Very Strong Silk.

The Syrian silk thread is exceptionally strong, this being due to the excellent quality of the Syrian mulberry leaf on which the worm feeds.

Why We Feel Hungry.

The sensation of hunger has not been easy to explain. The new theory of a German physician is that it is due to emptiness of the blood vessels of the stomach, and it is pointed out that hunger is appeased with the rush of blood to the stomach following the taking of food and beginning of digestion. In many anæmic patients, who have no appetite when the stomach is empty, the blood vessels of the stomach are really congested instead of being empty.

Acres of New Fuel Found.

Near Rio Grande City, Tex., thousands of acres of fuel, extending to an unknown depth, have recently been discovered. Though there is a disagreement as to what the substance really is, the better opinion is that it is clay highly charged with natural gas. The mineral when broken into small pieces ignites quickly and gives out a strong flame that lasts for a long time.

With a view to preventing accidents at level crossings and collisions in the neighborhood of railway stations a very ingenious mechanism has been tried in France. It consists essentially of a huge hook or catch made of iron, which is connected with a lever at the station by means of a wire, through which a current of electricity passes. When it is lying in its place, the train passes over it quite easily, but as soon as it is raised it catches a lever which is attached to the engine.

The lever thus caught causes an air valve on the engine to open automatically and applies the brakes at once, so that the whole train is brought to a standstill within a very short distance.

In foggy weather the use of such an apparatus cannot be overestimated, as it is calculated to prevent a train running into another which happens to be delayed at a station.

Clay as Track Ballast.

Gravel and broken stone are both being superseded to a considerable extent on numerous western railroads by clay. Its use as ballast is probably the latest employment of this immensely common constituent of the earth's surface.

THE BIGGEST YET.

Seven Masted Steel Schooner to be Built by Fore River Co.

The biggest thing in the sailing craft line ever attempted, says the Record, has just been begun at Quincy Point, where the Fore River Co. have laid down the plans for the seven-masted schooner which they will build for T. W. Lawson and others of this city. The vessel, designed by Crowninshield, is of handsome design and the usual railers at such craft, who have seen the model, are now as positive that she will be a success.

There are only two six-masters afloat, fore and aft rigged, and their utility has been demonstrated.

They, however, are built of wood, whereas this new leviathan of the deep will be constructed of steel. In fact, nearly every feature of her will be a radical change from the rules laid down by ship builders, and many there are who maintain that the whole affair is an experiment.

To begin with, she will be 395 ft. over all or about 80 feet—a down east coaster's length, — longer than the Percy, the larger of the two six-masters.

She will be 50 ft. beam, which will give her the lines of a great yacht. The ordinary schooner is rarely more than four times longer than her breadth. Here will be a craft eight times longer.

Her moulded depth will be 24 ft. 6 in. and she will have a draft, loaded of 26 ft. 6 in., or little more than the Percy. This will be when loaded with 8,500 tons of coal or a third as much again as a load for the Percy.

So it will be seen that the hull, naturally tender from such dimensions, will have to be strengthened and this is just what will be done; and when completed the vessel will be wonderfully strong. Braces innumerable will render her stiff. Then her spars will be much less lofty than one would suppose.

They will be 155 ft. from deck to truck, and the lower masts 105 ft. of the height, will be of steel while the 50 ft. topmast will be of Oregon pine.

The vessel will be ready for sea in eight months and will cost sparred and canvased, $25,000.

The model of the vessel reveals the fine lines of the clipper. These great schooners have demonstrated their ability in off shore service and it is hinted that the old time supremacy of Boston and Salem clipper ships will be revived in the new fore-and-afters.

The vessel building will embody every new wrinkle of Marine architecture. The steel plates will be from half to an inch in thickness. These will be placed with scientific precision, so that all strains will be equalized. The material used in her will weigh 2,000 tons, and her displacement will be 10,000 tons. The frames will be of channel bar steel and will be of nine-inch-stuff. The decks will be of steel, and everything excepting the cabin fittings will be of metal of some sort. The three deck houses will be of metal.

In the construction the thick plates will be the upper ones, tapering to three-quarter inch at the bilges and half inch at the bottom.

The sails of the vessel will not be abnormally large, although, of course the total area will exceed any ever put on a sail craft of any sort.

The ship will have both steam and electric apparatus. The engine room forward will contain new appliances for handling the great sails and anchors, and the electric lighting plant will be ample. Improved steering gear will be installed.

The cabins will be models of elegance.

While the ship is primarily intended for the coal-carrying trade there is possibility that she may later embark in the foreign account.

The Proposed Canal.

The employes of the State board of harbor and land commissioners have established headquarters at Campello, from which they will work north and south on the survey of the proposed canal from the mouth of Weymouth Fore river in Quincy to Fall River, the terminus. The work will be conducted under the general supervision of Henry B. Wood, assistant engineer of the board. The survey of the northerly part of the route, which will be known as section No. 1, will be directed by Eugene E. Pierce, and will include Avon, Holbrook, Randolph, Weymouth and Braintree, to the mouth of Weymouth Fore river in Quincy. The southerly part, or section No. 2, will be surveyed under the direction of Prof. Arthur B. Butterfield, and will include the Bridgewaters, Raynham, Taunton and intervening towns to Fall River, the terminus.

Report must be made to the legislature by Jan. 15, 1902. This is a survey for which the legislature appropriated at its last session $10,000.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

Union Picnic of L. O. L.

The annual picnic of the Orangemen of Boston and vicinity will be held at New Downer Landing on Friday, the 12th inst. This will be the two hundred and eleventh anniversary of the battle of the Boyne, which is held annually by the Orangemen in almost every country in the world. The celebration this year is of unusual importance to the Quincy Orangemen as it is the first time the celebration has been held in this vicinity.

The members of Bay View lodge will assemble at Orange hall at 6.30 A. M. and proceed to the depot, headed by the Quincy City Band and take the 7.12 train to Boston and join in the Boston parade. The lodges will assemble at Copley square at 8 A. M., and parade to the station and take the 9 A. M. train to Quincy. Arriving at Quincy the procession will again form in line, parade over the following route: Right resting on Hancock street to Adams Academy, counter march to Washington, to Revere road, to Miller Stile road, to Elm, to Hancock, to City square, where electric cars will be taken to grounds. Arriving at the grove the lodges will proceed to the theatre where they will be received by the State Grand Master, Henry M. Storms of Braintree; after which addresses will be given by invited speakers. Commencing at 1 o'clock a number of sports will take place.

Band Concert.

There will be a band concert at Loring's on Wednesday night. The rumor that the concerts will be changed is without foundation. The failure of the Quincy street railway to keep the band concert evening as Saturday does not necessarily interfere with Mr. Loring. He proposes to continue his concerts on Wednesday evenings. Quincy people should willingly patronize the best band and patronize it for the fact that he first selected that evening. Loring pays for his own band and it is only injuring the car company to continue with their concerts the same evening. The Quincy band will soon see that it is for their interest to change to their former evening. This is indeed a mean piece of busines on the part of the car company. Tom.

Death of a Veteran.

John Trainor, a well known citizen of West Quincy died at his home on Bryant avenue, Monday night, aged 84 years. Mr. Trainor met with a slight accident on the morning of the 4th. He stepped on a pebble and fell, injuring his hip. His heart which was weak, also received a severe shock which resulted in his death.

Mr. Trainor has resided in Quincy many years. He was a veteran of the civil war, having served as a private in Company B, 47th Mass. Vol. Infantry. He leaves two daughters. Funeral services will be held from St. Mary's church, Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, and will be attended by Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., of which he was a member.

Laid at Rest.

The remains of Mrs. Laura G. Smith, who died at Atlantic, were interred at Floral park cemetery, Pittsfield, N. H., on Monday, the service being conducted by Rev. G. E. Lovejoy of the Congregational church. Mrs. Smith was a native of Pittsfield, where her earlier years were passed. She was a music teacher in the public schools of Fitchburg and Quincy, Mass, up to within a few months of her death. She leaves a daughter, an aged mother and a married sister.

Presented Diplomas.

The Sunday School of St. Mary's church has closed until September. Monday the Sunday school held a festival at St. Mary's hall and the graduates were presented diplomas by the pastor, Rev. A. F. Roach. The operetta "Cinderella" which was given with so much success a few weeks ago was repeated for the benefit of the Sunday school children who did not have an opportunity to witness it before.

TODAY'S COURT.

George Bailey was arraigned for disturbing the peace at Randolph. Case continued until Wednesday.

The continued case of Charles Lindblow for assault on Officer Curtin and for attempting to rescue a prisoner, was heard. He was fined $5 for assault and $25 for attempting to rescue a prisoner.

The continued case of Cain for assault on Henry J. Matthews at Quincy was heard and he was fined $5.

The case of George J. Ries for larceny at Weymouth, was again continued until July 16.

—Myriads of tiny toads, not much larger than a blue-bottled fly, have made their appearance at Provincetown this week. Some contend that the creatures were bred there others that they rained down. They appear in such quantities, the old residents say, "Never see anything like that afore."

☞"When you get off the car face to the front and avoid accidents." This bit of sensible advice appears in red letters in the street cars now, and when it is heeded there will be fewer minor accidents in alighting.

AGAIN CONTINUED.

Ries Case Goes Over for Another Week.

The continued case of George J. Ries, former superintendent of the Weymouth water works, for the alleged larceny of $1,800 dollars from the town of Weymouth, came up in the district court again today and was further continued until July 16. The bail remains the same at $6,000. In default he was committed to Dedham. The object of again continuing the case was to await the action of the town at the special town meeting to be held next Saturday evening

A Gigantic Enterprise.

When this 20th century was ushered in people wondered what great events could occur that would equal or rival in importance those that had taken place in the last 100 years.

A startling beginning has been made, however, that promises great results. It is of a commercial character.

The grouping together and strong combination of railways and steamships into one vast croporation is the first great event of the new century. Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, James J. Hill and John D. Rockefeller are credited with having acquired control of the Northern Pacific steamship company and the Washington & Alaska steamship company. These, with the Leyland and the Glen line and the railroads they control, will enable them to take passengers and merchandise from New York to Tacoma, Hawaii, Manila, Singapore and London back to New York. The connections that can be made with foreign countries are obvious.

Mr. Morgan seems to possess some of the qualities which made the elder Cornelius Vanderbuilt so successful. The old commodore was noted for "carry his point." He did not succeed without a great struggle, and once said "I never cared for money; all I ever cared for was to carry my point." Mr. Morgan has carried his point.

The money for such an enterprise is easily raised in these days. Formerly the projectors would have been obliged to seek foreign assistance.

The route indicated will cover over 24,000 miles, or nearly as much as the circumference of the earth.—Boston Globe.

☞ The war that is being waged against mosquitoes by the owners of Long Island and New Jersey summer resorts is said to be quite effective. In places that have been sadly infected by the pests it is found that by trimming the trees, clearing away the underbrush and sprinkling crude petroleum on every pool and damp place the mosquitoes have almost wholly disappeared. If New Jersey and Long Island can thus get rid of mosquitoes, there is hope for the rest of the country.—Brockton Enterprise.

Roberts May Succeed Dawes

Washington, July 8.—The only name mentioned here in connection with the office of comptroller of the currency, to succeed Mr. Dawes, is that of George E. Roberts of Iowa, the present director of the mint. At present, Mr. Roberts is in San Francisco.

—Bananas with puple leaves and seedless fruit have been introduced into British conservatories.

—The presents which the Sultan usually gives away are made in a special workshop at Constantinople, employing about fifty men.

—Charles Spenser of Boston was tatooed by the sun, Friday, while resting in his bathing suit on the beach near his camp, at Nantasket. His feet and legs were buried in a pile of seaweed, and when he awoke they were decorated with strange and artistic devices. Up to his knees a blended lace work of snakes and water plants had been tattooed by the artist Sol.

—Another man who has attempted to live high on a low salary has come to grief. You have got to cheat somebody to do it, and if you think that you can do it without disaster you are cheating yourself.—Boston Globe.

—Native beauties of Manila freely attended American balls, and the flirtations with army officers are said to be fully up to the standard of this country. The trouble is really over.—Beverly Times.

—Ex-Gov. George S. Boutwell and Mrs. Boutwell celebrated quietly yesterday, the 60th anniversary of their wedding, which occurred July 8, 1841, in Hollis, the home of the bride. Her maiden name was Sarah Adelina Thayer.

☞ Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a phys cian. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

IN CHERRY TIME.

Cherry Pie, Pudding, Dumplings and Other Delicacies.

The Morello cherry is the best for all cooking purposes, being fleshy and full of flavor and best retains these conditions after heating.

Cherry Pie.—A toothsome pie may be made by lining a deep pie dish with rich crust, brushing this over with the white of an egg to keep the juice from seeping through. Fill with good, ripe, stoned cherries, spread with bits of butter and sweeten well with sugar, adding a shake or two of flour from the dredger. Put on a top crust, making an incision for the steam to escape, and bake.

Cherry Batter Pudding.—Butter thickly a pudding dish that will hold a pint and a half, fill nearly full with ripe, stoned cherries and pour over it a batter made with three eggs, one cupful of milk and four tablespoonfuls of flour. Beat smooth and light, adding a pinch of salt. Cover the mold and boil one hour and a half.

Steamed Pudding.—Cream together the yolks of three eggs and a cupful of sugar, adding a quarter of a pound of butter, then add a cupful of milk and a cupful and a half of flour, with a large teaspoonful of baking powder. Fold in the whites of the eggs, which have been stiffly beaten, and a quart of stoned cherries, pour into a buttered mold and steam one hour.

Following is a delicious sauce to be eaten with either of the above puddings or with any fruit puddings or dumplings: Cream together a quarter of a pound of butter and four tablespoonfuls of sugar; add the yolks of two eggs and beat well. Simmer a few moments in a farina boiler, take from the fire and whisk into it the stiffly beaten whites.

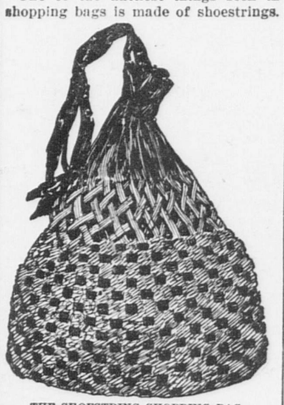

Cherry Dumplings.—These are very good if made of pie crust, having for shortening half butter and half lard—no baking powder. They may be made into individual dumplings, or the dough may be made into one roll. Use for filling ripe stoned cherries and no sugar. They are to be eaten with cream and sugar or the above sauce.

Frozen Cherries.—Stone a quart of rich, ripe cherries, adding to them a cupful of sugar. Let stand four hours. Make a rich custard by heating a quart of cream to boiling point. Beat 12 eggs without separating. Beat until very light; now pour the heated cream to which has been added sugar in a gentle stream, whisking constantly; cool and freeze. When nearly done, remove the dasher, add the cherries and beat until finished.

Cherry Jam.—Weigh and stone perfectly sound, mellow cherries, strain the juice from the stones and put into a granite preserving kettle with the cherries. Heat slowly, and when they reach the boiling point allow them to simmer 15 minutes; add sugar in proportion of three-quarters of a pound to one pound of unstoned fruit; cook slowly until they jelly. Put away in jam pots, with a paper over the top. If the flavor is liked, some of the stones may be crushed and the flavor extracted by steeping, then straining into the cherries before cooking.—Table Talk.

Natty Bag For Shopping.

One of the nattiest things seen in shopping bags is made of shoestrings.

THE SHOESTRING SHOPPING BAG.

A silk or satin lining is the foundation. Over it goes a network woven from imported mohair shoestrings. The exterior of the bag is so strong that it will wear out three or four linings. This bag is considered the most appropriate thing to carry with a tailored suit, and, better than being fashionable, it has such stretching qualities that Santa Claus himself might go a-shopping with it.—Good Housekeeping.

Crochet and Laces.

Once again coarse cotton crochet has come into favor, and a delightful addition it makes to the borders of sheets, toilet covers, tablecloths and the like. And crochet insertions and edgings do charming service as trimmings for summer blouses, cotton gowns and children's washing frocks.

Nowadays, when lace collecting may be counted as a fashionable luxury, a coffer for storing the fragile treasures is an essential and, with a delicately embroidered cover, makes a charming ornament for the boudoir.

The Princess Muslin Gown.

A good way of making a muslin gown is unlined and worn over a princess dress of white glace silk, fastening down the back. Such a princess dress may, of course, do duty under several muslin gowns, and the simplest way of making these is with a yoke of lace, a slightly gathered bodice, a belt of glace and a skirt with tucks on the straight flounce.

FAMOUS WAR DISPATCH

The Subject of Controversy Between Naval Officials

CLAIM OF CROWINSHIELD

Says He Was Author of Order to Dewey to Capture or Destroy Spanish Fleet—Secretary Long Differs, and Gives His Version of the Matter

Washington, July 9.—Rear Admiral A. S. Crowninshield, chief of the bureau of navigation, yesterday issued a formal statement to the effect that he was the author of the famous dispatch to Admiral Dewey, ordering him to proceed from Hong Kong to Manila and there capture or destroy the Spanish fleet.

Admiral Crowninshield states that he wrote the dispatch in the White House, and submitted it to both Attorney General Griggs and the president, and that the only change made in the dispatch as he wrote it was the addition of either the word "capture" or the word "destroy."

The dispatch, according to Admiral Crowninshield, then was handed to Lieutenant Whittlesley, who took it to Secretary Long, and after the latter had signed it, sent it to Admiral Dewey. In conclusion, Admiral Crowninshield says that whatever credit comes from having given the order belongs to the president and Secretary Long.

Secretary Long said upon this subject: "My recollection is entirely distinct. Immediately upon the declaration of war I had conferred with the president about an order to Dewey to attack the Spanish fleet at Manila.

"On Saturday morning, April 24, I went to the White House, sat with the president on a sofa in the corridor and earnestly advised the sending of such an order. But for Admiral Crowninshield's statement I should have said unhesitatingly that I had with me the dispatch which had been prepared in his bureau of navigation, and that, the president approving, I returned to the navy department and sent it in to the bureau of navigation to be put in cipher.

"I then went out to drive. As I drove out between 11 and 12 o'clock, I remember passing Admiral Crowninshield. As to what transpired at the White House at the meeting which he describes, I, of course, have no knowledge. It seems to me probable that the president, after his interview with me, sent for some of the cabinet and Admiral Crowninshield, and took up the dispatch, which, according to my recollection, had already been prepared, and gave it final consideration. Probably also there had then come in Dewey's dispatch of the day before advising us that he had been ordered to get away from Hong Kong."

Fishermen May Fight

Vancouver, B. C., July 9.—Last night 1500 Japanese fishermen, fully armed, started for the salmon fishing grounds, followed by 600 white fishermen, who struck yesterday. There is a possibility that a clash will take place between the two bodies of men. The threatened trouble in connection with the salmon canning industry reached a climax yesterday. The fishermen and the canners have been unable to agree on the question of wages, and the fishermen have declared a strike. The canners then employed Japanese to catch salmon.

More Free Benches Wanted

New York, July 9.—There was a riot in Madison Square park yesterday, caused by the refusal of two men to pay for the use of reserved chairs. A large crowd became so threatening toward those in charge of the chairs that the police reserves were called out. The two men who resisted were arrested for stoning a policeman. The board of estimates yesterday agreed to give $20,000 to the park department to provide more free benches.

Free Field For Matchmakers

London, July 9.—Bryant & May announce that an agreement has been made to acquire the business of the Diamond Match company of Liverpool for £480,000. The Liverpool company is one of the subsidiaries started by the American company, and, by the purchase, Bryant & May acquire a free field here.

Ambassador's Son Kills Himself

Syracuse, July 9.—Fred B. White, only son of Andrew B. White, ambassador to Germany, committed suicide at his home here yesterday by shooting. Prolonged ill health and exhausting nervous disease is given as the only possible explanation of his act. He had appeared to be in usual health during the day.

Court Decision Against Strikers

Cleveland, July 9.—Judge Wing in the United States circuit court issued a sweeping injunction here yesterday, enjoining the Iron Molders' union from picketing the premises or interfering in any manner whatsoever with the business or the employes of the Otis Steel company.

Explosion In Powder Works

Santa Cruz, Cal., July 9.—Three explosions at the powder works yesterday completely wrecked one mill and resulted in the killing of W. R. Darling and serious injury of Joseph Maynard, employes. It is not known what caused the explosion.

Kilbourne Will Be Nominated

Columbus, O., July 9.—Delegates and visitors are assembling here for the Democratic state convention. All concede that Colonel James Kilbourne of Columbus will be nominated for governor.

INVESTIGATION ORDERED

Governor of a Philippine Province Said to Have Been Indiscreet

Manila, July 9.—The United States Philippine commission has ordered H. P. Whitmarsh, the governor of Benguet province, to come to Manila and submit to an investigation, owing to the allegation that he has been using his position to his personal advantage in acquiring land and mining rights from the natives. He is at present charged with indiscretion and violation of his instructions. The commission particularly instructed Governor Whitmarsh to cultivate the friendship and protect the interests of the natives, who suffered from Spanish extortions and exploitations.

Colonel Duval, of the Forty-eighth regiment, which formerly occupied the provinces of Unich and Benguet, and Dr. Kieffer, the regimental surgeon, who was prominent in the civil administration of the province, complained of Governor Whitmarsh's methods of administering his office. The commission is inclined to attribute the feeling existing to military opposition to civilian authority in Benguet. Voluntary statements made by natives to Commissioner Worcester, while on a visit to Benguet, formed the basis of the investigation. General Bell has forwarded similar allegations to Manila.

The Endeavorers' Convention

Cincinnati, July 9.—Another beautiful day greeted the thousands of Christian Endeavorers who are assembled here in their 20th annual convention. The sudden change in the weather Sunday brought several thousand more visitors to the city. Many meetings were held, and all were large and enthusiastic. The Music Hall auditoriums were in use during the morning, noon and evening.

To Protect Her Interests

New York, July 9.—A sheriff's jury in the supreme court, Brooklyn, yesterday declared Miss Anna K. Gilman, half sister to the late millionaire tea merchant, George F. Gilman, insane. The proceedings have been taken in order that her interest in the estate of her half brother might be protected. Miss Gilman, who is 63 years old, is now confined in a private asylum in England.

Lost Money as Bondsman

Chicago, July 9.—Abraham Mitchell, a coal dealer, was declared a bankrupt in the United States court yesterday. His indebtedness was $258,747. the greater part of which was liability on the bond of Charles W. Spaulding, former treasurer of the University of Illinois. Since Spaulding's sentence to prison, four of his bondsmen have sought relief in the bankruptcy court.

Gives All to Widow

Cincinnati, July 9.—Mrs. Philip Armour of Chicago, through her attorney, yesterday declined to take one-half of the estate of her brother, Frank Ogden, who died recently in Cincinnati. Mr. Ogden left an estate, which, by his will, was to be equally divided between his wife and sister, Mrs. Armour. By the latter's generosity, the whole estate will go to the widow.

No Concessions to Strikers

Newport News, Va., July 9.—President O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists had a conference yesterday with Superintendent Post of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company. Mr. Post informed him that the company would make no concessions whatever. The strikers, thereupon, voted to stay out until their demands are granted.

Islands In Storm's Embrace

Port au Prince, July 9.—A violent storm of wind and rain has been raging for three days past over the southern part of Hayti and San Domingo. Fourteen persons have lost their lives and several sailing vessels have been wrecked. A large region has been inundated. Telegraphic communication is completely interrupted with Santo Domingo.

Mayor Denounces Injunction

Milwaukee, July 9.—The feature of yesterday's session of the Glass Bottle Blowers' association was the statement by Mayor Rose that "the mere fact that a cheap injunction had been issued by a cheaper court commissioner will not justify the world in condemning Milwaukee as being in sympathy with the movement against the striking machinists."

Salary Considered Inadequate

Washington, July 9.—The resignation of James G. Stowe, United States consul general to Cape Town, has been received at the state department. The resignation was based on the utter inadequacy of the salary of $3000. The cost of living in South Africa, even under normal conditions, is exceedingly high.

Shortened His Prison Life

Watertown, N. Y., July 9.—William Reed has escaped from the Eastern reformatory at Napanock. He was sentenced from this city to 20 years for abducting and criminally assaulting an 11-year-old girl. Reed barely escaped lynching on being brought here. He had two years more to serve.

Prospect of Good Crops

London, July 9.—The viceroy of India telegraphs that the rainfall has been generally sufficient for agricultural purposes. The total number of persons employed on the relief works is 585,000.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, July 10.
Sun rises—4:16; sets, 7:22.
Moon rises—11:58 p. m.
High water—5:39 a. m.; 6:15 p. m.

Moderate temperatures have continued east of the Mississippi river. There have been showers and thunderstorms in the Atlantic coast states. Generally fair weather with moderate temperatures will continue in New England. On the coast the winds will become light to fresh east to northeast.

A FATHER'S AWFUL DEED

Used a Revolver to Send His Three Children Into Eternity

Halifax, July 9.—Sydney Locke of Lockport arose from his bed yesterday, partly dressed himself and then entered the room where his three children, Ruby, Howard and Erminie, were sleeping. He carried with him a 44-calibre revolver. Without a word he placed the muzzle of the revolver at the head of Ruby, aged 14, and fired. In an instant the revolver was placed at the forehead of Erminie, aged 8, his favorite child. Both died instantly. Howard, aged 11, who was in a bed by himself, attempted to escape, but his father was on him in a moment, and the little fellow, too, went down. He was also fatally wounded, and died an hour afterward.

Locke was a loving father, but for months past he has been mentally depressed. It was thought he was improving, but the awful deed shows that he was rapidly growing worse. Locke is 40 years of age, and a municipal councillor for Lockport. At one time he conducted a large gent's furnishing business. He has been placed in custody, pending the action of the authorities.

Codicil Makes Big Changes

New York, July 9.—The Journal and Advertiser says: All the precautions of Jacob S. Rogers to disinherit his relatives may go for naught, by reason of an error—intentional or otherwise—he made in his will, but which, according to lawyers, must stand as it reads. The error appears in the codicil, dated Oct. 2, 1900. The codicil reads: "I hereby further will and bequeath to my nephew, Theodore B. Rogers, Jr., son of my brother, Theodore B. Rogers, the sum of seventy-five thousand thousand dollars." Thus the codicil gives to his nephew $75,000,000, or about 10 times the amount of the estate.

Forced to Abandon Vessel

Halifax, July 9.—The captain and crew of the Norwegian bark Henry arrived at Sydney on the steamship Bonavista yesterday. About 25 days ago the Henry sprang aleak. Every effort was made to save her, but the crew were forced to abandon her. The 15 men put off in small boats, and experienced all kinds of hardships before being rescued.

What the Heat Did

New York, July 9.—The official reports to the bureau of vital statistics of deaths from heat for the week ending July 6 show that the actual number in the five boroughs of Greater New York was 999. For the borough of Manhattan and the Bronx the number was 699; for Richmond, 12; for Queens, 24, and for Brooklyn, 264.

Old Consular Agent Dead

Washington, July 9.—The state department has received information of the death from sunstroke of Robert O'Neil Wickersham, vice and deputy commercial agent of the United States at Castellamare di Stabia, Italy. He had been in the consular service since 1879.

Eat and Run.

There isn't a man who would be seen running through the street munching a piece of pie. Why not? Because it would mean dyspepsia and stomach trouble? Not at all; but because it wouldn't look well. As a matter of fact many a business man snatches a lunch in such a hurry that he might as well take it on the run. That is one reason for the prevailing "stomach trouble" among men of business.

There is a certain remedy for diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It is Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The worst cases of dyspepsia and catarrh of the stomach have been cured by this medicine. It cures where all other means have failed to cure.

"I took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for stomach trouble," writes Clarence Carnes, Esq., of Taylorstown, Loudoun Co., Va. "It did me so much good that I didn't take any more. I can eat most anything now. I am so well pleased with it I hardly know how to thank you for your kind information. I tried a whole lot of things before I wrote to you. There was a gentleman told me about your medicine, and how it had cured his wife. I thought I would try a bottle of it. Am now glad I did, for I don't know what I would have done if it had not been for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness. They stimulate the sluggish liver, and cleanse the system of impurities. They should always be used with "Golden Medical Discovery" when there is need of a laxative.

BLONDIN OR HEMLOCK

Momentous Question Settled by a Detective

PRISONER IS INDENTIFIED

Suspect Claimed to Have Worked In Connecticut and His Statement Is Verified by Former Employer—Answered Blondin's Description

Boston, July 10.—Chief Wade of the Massachusetts state police received a message last night from Officer Dunham, who went to Grahamsville, N. Y., that there was nothing to warrant the holding of the man, as he did not answer the description of Blondin.

The Boston Journal has the following special from a staff correspondent at Grahamsville, N. Y.:

"I think it is somewhat doubtful if the man under arrest here is Wilfred Blondin, who is wanted in Boston on the charge of murdering his wife, whose body was found in the Chelmsford woods several weeks ago. I saw the suspect and had a long talk with him. He stoutly denies that his name is Blondin. He answers the description of Blondin to the letter, but, as I have never seen Blondin, I cannot positively identify him.

"The suspect is a very bowlegged man, has a dark moustache, a square-cut chin and is about 5 feet 5 inches tall. There were India ink marks on his left arm. The printed description of Blondin says the much-wanted man weighs 160 pounds. This suspect is not so heavy by about 10 pounds, I should judge. But if this man if Blondin, the past month of worry and travel would remove all superfluous flesh.

"All the townspeople who have seen the stranger say that every particular of Blondin's description, with the possible exception of weight, fits him exactly, and consequently every body believes that the man is really Blondin."

Is Not Blondin

Putnam, Conn., July 10.—Fred Hemlock, who has been held at Grahamsville, N. Y., on suspicion of being Wilfred Blondin, murder suspect, is well known here. Hemlock has lived in Putnam the greater part of his life, and his mother is at present an inmate of the county home. The son has from time to time worked about the local livery stables as a hostler, although he has not been steadily employed. M. F. Joy, manager of a livery stable here, and a town constable, states that he knows the man perfectly, and is confident of his identity with the Fred Hemlock of Putnam, as he recognizes all the points of the description, even to the ink marks on his arms. Mr. Joy says that he has employed Hemlock at times at the stable, but that, on account of the latter's roving disposition, he has not kept steady employment. Hemlock's movements are, however, known at Putnam up to about three months ago, when he disappeared, and was heard from in New York a short time later. Since that time nothing has been known of him until his arrest at Grahamsville.

Weaver on Stalwarts' Ticket

Philadelphia, July 10.—John Weaver, the regular Republican nominee for district attorney, yesterday accepted the nomination. He was nominated by what is known as the "stalwart" faction of the local Republican party, District Attorney Rothermel having been refused a second nomination by the party leaders. Mr. Rothermel at a recent "town meeting" was nominated as an independent candidate.

Bert Glenn Was a Woman

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 10.—In the trial yesterday of Ellis Glenn, who is charged with swindling, E. J. Byers positively identified her as "Bert Glenn," who boarded at his house and posed as a real estate and mortgage dealer. Glenn, he said, had apartments with his son for a year. He always supposed Glenn to be a man.

Thieving Official Disgorges

Minden, Neb., July 10.—Alfred Norlin, county treasurer of Kearney county, was arrested last night on a charge of robbing the county treasury and setting fire to the court house on the night of June 27. After his arrest Norlin made a full confession, and took the officers to a cornfield where a box was found containing $6775.

Plumbers Return on Old Basis

Syracuse, July 10.—The lockout of the journeymen plumbers by the members of the Master Builders' association came to an end yesterday, when the master plumbers withdrew their signatures from an agreement to lock out their men unless certain terms were acceded to. The journeymen will return to work on the old basis.

Disaster Overtakes Pleasure Party

BULLET IN HIS GROIN

Excursionist Badly Wounded by Stray Shot Fired In Practice

Boston, July 10.—Brother Louis, sacristan at the Mission church, Roxbury, was probably fatally wounded while standing on the upper deck of a Nantasket steamer, bound down the harbor, yesterday afternoon, by a bullet from a rifle, presumably in the hands of a soldier at practice at the range at Fort Strong on Long island, about 600 yards from which the steamer was passing. An operation was performed at the Massachusetts general hospital, by which the bullet was removed from the groin.

Brother Louis and Brother Terence were standing together when two bullets struck the steamer, one going through a three-inch stanchion, and the other striking Brother Louis in the side, ranging downward, but stopped in the groin.

The soldiers at Fort Warren practice at the targets on Long island, and, while it had been thought that the danger of stray bullets going across the harbor was slight, the precaution of having a signalman indicate by flags when a vessel passed across the line of vision beyond the line of fire, had been taken. The signalman yesterday, Private Rogers, did his duty, according to the officer in charge at the targets. The bullet was a Krag-Jorgensen, making the claim positive that it was fired from a military rifle.

Had Cancer on His Tongue

Boston, July 10.—At the Eliot hospital on Monday an operation for cancer, from which he had suffered many years, was successfully performed upon Rear Admiral Bunce, U. S. N., retired, entailing the removal of nearly the whole of his tongue. The admiral rallied finely afterward. He is expected to be able to leave the hospital in a week. He will not be wholly deprived of the power of speech.

Drowning Due to Fright

Everett, Mass., July 10.—Eddy Osborne, 11 years old, was drowned in the Mystic river yesterday in an attempt to swim across after jumping out of a boat which he and a companion had taken without leave. The owner of the boat was on shore, and his threat to tell the police caused the lads to take to the water. The distance, to the opposite shore was too much for Osborne.

Gasolene Wrecked Building

Boston, July 10.—An explosion of gasolene occurred about midnight in a one-story building on Dudley street, occupied by an Italian, completely wrecking the structure and breaking the windows in two or three neighboring houses. Two Italians are missing, but, while the ruins are being searched for their bodies, it is by no means certain that they were in the building at the time.

Anchored Off Nantucket

Regardless of bad weather, several parties have ventured out and taken a trip around the battleships. The squadron's stay will probably last about 10 days.

Children Down With Smallpox

Pawtucket, R. I., July 10.—Examination shows that two of the three suspicious cases examined here yesterday are smallpox, the victims being Alice Bergeron, aged 11, and Aurore Noireux, aged 12. Another case was reported late last evening, which is considered to be smallpox. All the sick children are pupils of St. John's parochial school.

Lawyer Charged With Larceny

Boston, July 10.—Francis L. Brown, a lawyer of Dumont, Col., was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with the larceny of money by false pretenses from the New York Central railroad in April, 1900. Burton, the police say, falsely claimed that he was injured in a railroad wreck on that line in 1900.

BALLAST NOT CHANGED

Jibs, Spars and Rigging on Independence Fixed Over

BETTER SHOWING EXPECTED

When the Boat Has a Chance to Sail In a Strong Breeze—Adherents Believe She Will Surprise Those Who Think Her Chances Are Hopeless

Newport, R. I., July 10.—None of the big racing boats moved out of the harbor yesterday. It was intended to take the Constitution out for a short spin in the afternoon to try out a couple of new jibs, but a threatening squall came up from the west and it was decided that the boat had better remain at her moorings.

It was rather expected that a little ballast would be taken out of the Independence yesterday, but it was decided to make no changes until after today's race, at least. The jibs of the Boston boat were fixed over a bit, and the sailors were kept busy on spars and rigging until nightfall.

On the Columbia there was practically nothing to do, and the men had a day of rest.

The managers and crew of the Independence are still undismayed by the showing their boat has made thus far, and are as full of hope and courage as ever. They feel that their craft has had an unusual run of hard luck in finding all the soft spots possible in the two races in which she has sailed. They know that the boat has sailed fast in a good breeze, and they believe that she will yet surprise those who have condemned her as a hopeless candidate for cup honors. It is admitted that she has shown surprising weakness as a light weather boat, but her admirers are hoping for a good club-topsail breeze to give her an opportunity to redeem herself.

In discussing Monday's remarkable performance, Mr. Duncan said that he thought his boat had all the advantage there was of better winds, and he did not believe the Constitution could beat the Columbia by any such margin under ordinary conditions. When asked if he considered that the race settled the future of the Independence, He said "Not by any manner of means. It is impossible to tell what she may do under better conditions. Give the boat a chance. She has not had a really good trial yet, and will surely do better than she has."

Shamrock II Leads In Trial

Rothesay, July 10.—In the first five miles of the racing trial between the Shamrocks yesterday, both yachts apparently sailing for all they were worth, the challenger beat the Shamrock I. The challenger had just come out of dock, where her hull was cleaned, and showed immensely improved form. The yachts beat out past Cubrae in long tacks, Shamrock II kept opening out until her lead was increased to nearly a mile. Reaching up the Firth, the yachts were both hopelessly becalmed and the trial was abandoned.

Good Afternoon.

This is a great year for rambler roses. And how handsome they look, everywhere!

The Lynn Item says: "After all said and done they haven't enforced the liquor law in Maine vigorously enough yet to drive the sea serpent up this way." We guess the Editor hasn't read the Ledger.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞All the railroad officials of the northwest agree that the wheat crop of this year will break the record.

☞New York has now 60,000 telephone stations which rank it as the largest of the world's city telephone systems.

☞That long hot wave had 980 victims in greater New York. This is a terrible record, a greater death roll than that of many a battle, and, indeed, on our side, in the entire Spanish War.

☞Andrew Carnegie still has $280,000,000 to give away in public benefactions.

Mr. Carnegie himself is authority for this statement, which he made recently at Skibo castle to a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce committee.—Herald.

☞Occasionally, as in the case of the so-called "J. Wade Hampton," a soldier of fortune, with no particular genius and ability, will thrive for a season and delude men and women who are credited with the possession of more than ordinary common sense.—Boston Journal.

☞Wayne MacVeah said things like this in his Phi Beta Kappa oration the other day: "There can be no reverence for law where laws and lawmakers are bought with money." He is called a pessimist for saying them. And yet a paper of the dominant party in Mr. MacVeah's own state asserts and nobody contradicts it, that over a million dollars has been paid in bribes to the members of the legislature this year. If a man must be a pessimist to draw attention to such goings-on then this country needs a lot of pessimists. —New Bedford Standard.

☞Outside of Boston the rule of a five cent fare of street railways is certain to be almost universal throughout the state. The railroad commission's attitude on this question is simple and deserves to be generally understood in order to avoid disappointments, on the one hand and to have public support on the other hand. What the commission is doing is, in effect to hold that a street car ride between the central points in two adjoining towns or cities, over one line without a transfer may be had for a single five-cent fare. On the other hand, this five-cent fare does not entitle the patron to a further ride beyond, by a transfer check.—Daily Advertiser.

NEW PRINCIPAL.

Frederick W. Plummer of Winchendon Elected.

The directors of the Woodward Institute for Girls held an important meeting Tuesday afternoon and elected Frederick W. Plummer, principal of the Murdock school at Winchendon as principal of the school to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Small.

Several hundred applications have been received by the directors for the position but they disregarded these and selected one who was not a candidate.

The Murdock school at which Mr. Plummer has taught for the past four years is an endowed school with about the same fund as the Woodward Institute the only difference being that it is co-educational. Mr. Plummer has the strongest endorsement of every place in which he has served as teacher and he has been universally popular both in and out of his schools.

Mr. Plummer is a native of Danville, Me., where he was born March 7, 1867. He fitted for college in the Auburn, Me., High school and was appointed a cadet in the United States Military Academy at West Piont by Senator Dingley in 1886, resigning in 1887. He is a graduate of Bates college, class of '91.

He was for two years principal of the Winthrop, Me., High school, one year as sub-master of the Lewiston, Me., High school and three years as sub-principal of the Lynn English High school which position he resigned to go to the Murdock school. In 1992 he married Miss Nellie E. Nowell of Topsham, Me. He is described as a man of commanding appearance, six feet in height, and weighs 225 pounds. He is a member of the Masonic and Odd Fellows fraternities.

Supt. Parlin announces that the fall term of the Institute will open Monday, Sept. 16. Quincy born girls holding certificates from the grammar schools will be admitted without examination to fifth class or first year of the regular course. Pupils of average ability who are regular in their attendance should be able to complete the required work in this course in four years.

Girls eligible by birth who have completed, satisfactorily, the work of the VII grade of the grammar schools will be admitted without examination to the sixth or preparatory class.

For the benefit of others desiring to enter the school examinations will be held at the Institute building on Sept. 12 at 9 A. M.

The Wireless Telegraph.

The rapidity with which Marconi's discovery of a method of telegraphing without wires has developed a commercial value is phenomenal. So short a time ago, the process was regarded as merely a curious experiment with limited possibilities. Today transatlantic steamships pick up messages from the shore which they are approaching at a distance of fifty miles or more, lightships on the coast of Europe take messages from ships at sea by the hundreds and send them on. England's great navy is fitting out with the apparatus, and before long every lighthouse along the coast will be similarly equipped. Already its value in saving life and property has received practical demonstration.

Thus far, the use of this invention has been restricted mainly to telegraphing across water spaces, either from ship to ship or between ship and shore. If this were its limitations, it would yet have a wonderful value. But its adaptation to land telegraphy for commercial purposes cannot be lon delayed, and when that point is reached no limit can be placed upon its possibilities. The removal of all wires would seem to be in sight, unless as in the case of the telephone in this country, the improved process were to fall into the hands of monopoly and be held back from popular use. With the wireless telegraph established in operation there would be no break in communication by reason of storm or other accident, and cities, countries, continents would be brought more closely and surely in touch than ever before.

The wireless telegraph now stands as the conspicuously great discovery of the twentieth century. — Boston Post.

—The new king and queen of England are prohibitionists in dealing with the public sale of drink on their great Sandringham demesne, embracing nearly eight thousand acres. Should sickness arise, where wine or brandy is ordered by the doctor a permit for the same may be secured from the village vicars, each of whom has in his hands a sum of money provided by the king to treat necessitous cases in any required way.—Daily Advertiser.

—They say there is to be but half a crop of peaches in Delaware and Maryland, and that the potatoes are running small. What have we then, to fall back upon?—Boston Globe. Banana peel.—Boston Advertiser.

Miss Mira L. Brown of Wollaston is spending the summer months in Connecticut.

Mrs. John Livingstone and Miss Abbie Livingstone have gone to Milford, N. H., for the month of July.

Mayor Hall left this morning for a week's vacation trip. During his absence it will be acting Mayor Gray.

Vacations in the police department commence next Saturday. Officer David J. Barry goes then for a two weeks' rest.

The Assessors are hard at work figuring out the tax rate, and meetings are held every morning at their office in City Hall.

Miss A. Ruth Keegan, clerk at E. H. Doble & Co.'s store, left today with Brookline friends for a two weeks' visit to Old Orchard.

Work on the new power station of the Electric Light Co., at Brackett's wharf, is progressing rapidly. When completed it will be a model plant in every way.

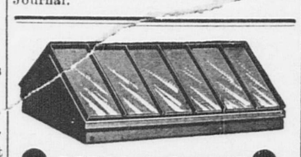

About 400 feet of the Metropolitan sewer on Greenleaf street has been completed. The main street is now being opened up and the greater part of it will be impassable for carriages for some months.

The Actual Cost.

Twenty-five thousand regulars and 12,000 native soldiers will eventually be the American garrison of the Philippine Islands — about half the force of the army of occupation when the war was on.

Including the bluejackets and marines of the squadrons, who were available from time to time for land duty the United States had in the Philippines during the height of the conflict with Aguinaldo about 70,000 officers and men. Between 60,000 and 65,000 of these were soldiers of the regular and volunteer service. It is amusing now to turn back to the doleful prophecies of mortality with which our Philippine adventure began. A Boston newspaper went so far as editorially to predict that one-half of the American troops who went out to Manila would never return; that the climate would cut them off like grain before the sickle. But the official figures of the Adjutant General's office to June 1, 1901 show that the total loss of our army from all causes was in the regular service 42 officers and 1292 enlisted men; in the volunteer service 33 officers and 1,217 enlisted men, an aggregate for the whole United States army of 75 officers and 2,509 enlisted men.

Nearly half as many persons were slain by the hot wave in New York last week. Many a single battle of the Civil War cost the United States more soldiers. Our Philippine adventure is a serious problem. It would be worse than folly to belittle it. But the military cost, as such things go in the stern though necessary work of warfare has not been great. — Boston Journal.

Precious Stones.

A report received at the Treasury Department from George W. Mindil the Government expert to the New York Custom House, on precious stones, shows that during the fiscal year ended June 30, last the aggregate value of precious stones and pearls passed through his office as $21,919,053. This amount largely exceeds the total of any other year in the history of the country and exceeds by over $3,000,000 the entire importations of the four years ending in March, 1896. Mr. Mindil states that the placing of precious stones in their rough or native state upon the free lists has established a new mechanical industry in America and now nearly one-half of the precious stones sold in this country are cut and polished here.

School Committee.

This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a phys cian. JOHN WANAMAKER,

THE FIRST CAMERA.

SOME TROUBLES OF THE AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHER.

Taking Portraits at Home—Arrangement For Lighting a Sitter In an Ordinary Room—An Easy Method of Making a Dark Room.

One of the most interesting features of amateur photography is the taking of portraits. This work is of two kinds—the out of door snap shot portraiture that is often very successful, so far as the "likeness" goes, but always lacks the fine balancing of light and shade, and the artistic finish of a portrait that is taken where the amount and the direction of the light can be controlled.

For the majority of amateurs the light that comes from the ordinary house window must be utilized.

The trouble encountered here is that a north window in a dwelling house admits too small an amount of light, while the direct sunlight of a south window is as bad as are out of door conditions. The strong light of a sunny window may be made to serve the purpose of the portrait taker.

A dark cloth is pinned across the lower sash, before which the sitter is placed, either back to the curtain or with the side of the body toward it, according to location of the camera. In front of the upper sash of the window is constructed a hood. The framework of this is of strips of wood put together in the form shown in the illustration. The curved pieces can be made of barrel hoops.

This framework is made to hang up on books against the window casing. It is covered with white cloth to reflect the light down upon the sitter. Over this is put a cover of black cloth, that the light may not come through and strike the lens of the camera.

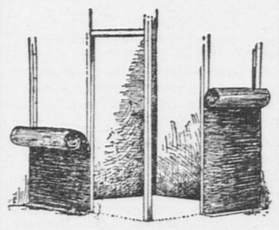

White and black paper will answer as well as cloth. The camera must be placed high enough on the tripod or the hood be brought down low enough so that no light from the upper sash may fall upon the camera lens. If the camera is placed directly in front of the window, the cloth covering the lower sash will form the background of the portrait. If the sitter sits with his side toward the window, a background should be hung from the side of the hood, coming down behind the sitter.

If at any time the light is too strong, a square of white muslin can be pinned across the base of the hood above the head of the sitter. This will diffuse the light somewhat and temper it. With these suggestions the amateur ought to be able by experimenting to reach a successful method of portrait taking in his own home. Some experimenting is necessary, since in no two houses are the conditions of light and windows exactly the same.

The want of a suitable dark room robs amateur photography of a great deal of its pleasure. A dark room big enough for all necessary purposes can easily be constructed in the corner of a stable, shed or unfinished chamber after the plan shown in the accompanying cut.

Mark off a square in the corner of the space to be utilized and set up five strips of 2 by 3 inch lumber in the manner shown. Put a "header" across between two strips for a doorway and cover all the rest of the wall space with black tarred paper, tacking it on as shown in the illustration, lapping the second piece over the edge of the first.

For a door make a frame out of strips of board, putting a brace from the inner corner at the bottom to the outer corner at the top, to keep it from sagging, and cover the frame with the tarred paper. Hinge one side to an upright strip and tack on small strips inside so there will be no cracks left about the edges of the door when it is closed. Put up a broad shelf about two sides of the dark room, with a few smaller shelves above to hold chemicals, plates, paper and trays, and the dark room is complete.—Webb Donnell in Household.

The Latest Tailor Made Suits.

Tailors are returning to browns and shades of fawn, and there is still a tendency to large collars, which should either be of washing fabric, such as lace, or else heavy embroidery.

Two Sources of Profit.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the share holders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. A limited amount of stock will be sold at $500 per thousand shares and pro rata down to 100 shares.

Odds and Ends of Science

The chief engineer of the marine department of Canada declares that Lake Erie is in danger of becoming so shallow as to offer serious obstacles to navigation. He has returned to Ottawa from a tour of inspection of the upper lakes and states that Lake Erie is lower than was ever known to be the case before.

This condition is due, he thinks, to a series of dry seasons, to the drain made by the power development works at Niagara falls and to the fact that dredging the Tonawanda canal has made it easier for water to escape from the lake.

He considers it imperative that the United States government adopt remedial measures at an early date or else navigation upon its present basis will be seriously interfered with.

Light From Smoke.

A Belgian engineer named Toblansky of Altorff is said to have just discovered a means for turning smoke into light. His apparatus collects the smoke, no matter from what fire, forces it into a filtered receiver, where it is saturated with "hydrocarbure" and turned into a brilliant light. By means of this invention, which the Belgian papers are all busy discussing, an ordinary kitchen fire can be made to produce a light equal to that of 50 Becs Auer.

Drinkable Gold Produced.

Potable gold, long sought by the alchemists of old as the true elixir of life, has been produced at last, and a patent for it has just been granted by the government. It is a drinkable preparation and is declared to be a literal renewer of youth, giving strength and restoring shattered nerves.

The board of trusetts reported the permanent fund of the association as $84,100, invested in interest bearing bonds. The application of the American Religious Educational society to affiliate with the National Educational association in their work of research was laid over for one year.

He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

A RUSSIAN PROPOSITION

To Vacate Recent Increased Dnties Levied by Her

POLICY RESPECTING SUGAR

Must, However, Be Reversed by America Before Decisive Action Can Be Taken—Suggestion Cannot Be Acted Upon by Secretary Gage

Washington, July 10.—Another important exchange has occurred between the Russian government and the United States relative to the tariff. The Russian minister of finance, M. De Witte, has proposed that Russia will vacate all of the additional duties levied on American goods since the imposition of the sugar differential, if the United States will vacate its action on the sugar differential.

The proposition was the direct result of Secretary Hay's note of about two weeks ago. In that note, Mr. Hay pointed out that the action taken as to petroleum was not new, nor was it meant to have any connection with the previous action of the government on sugar. This appears to have reconciled the Russian officials in their view that the petroleum order was only another step in the policy previously taken respecting sugar.

Accordingly, M. De Witte's response was communicated to Washington. It is not long, but it is quite to the point. It makes no further issue as to the petroleum order. The chief attention is given to sugar, and the specific offer is made to vacate immediately the increased duties which Russia has levied, if the United States will vacate its action on sugar. This would amount to re-establishing the status quo which existed before the United States took its initial action relative to Russia.

The Russian proposition was duly communicated to Secretary Gage, who has responded promptly that, as the sugar differential question is now before the courts, it is not possible for him to avail himself of the Russian suggestions. Thus the matter stands.

The reductions which would have resulted under M. De Witte's tender are those affecting cast iron wares, manufactures of iron and steel, boiler works, tools for artists, factories and workshops; gas and water motors, motors and dynamos, sewing machines, portable engines, not including threshing machines; fire engines and other machinery of iron and steel; also, white resin, galipot, brewers' pitch and bicycles.

The increased duties on iron and steel goods followed after the imposition of the sugar differential, while those on bicycles and resin followed the increase on petroleum.

M. De Witte's proposal was to take off all of the increased duties. In the course of his letter, it is stated that the second retaliatory move on bicycles and resin was not due to the American action on petroleum, although it had so appeared in the original Russian note, but that it related back to the American action on sugar.

This is thought to be the result of Secretary Gage's reply to Russia to the effect that its action in increasing the duty on American bicycles and resin was a violation of our treaty with that country.

Terrible Work With Rifle

Douglass, Ga., July 10.—Jake Devoss, a negro laborer on James McKinnon's plantation, was working a team of mules yesterday when the mules balked, and the negro got a rifle and shot both of them dead. Devoss' wife expostulated with him, and he shot her, inflicting a wound which may prove fatal. James McKinnon and his brother, Charles, attracted by the shooting, started for the scene. Charles McKinnon was instantly killed by the negro, and James McKinnon was probably fatally wounded. Devoss escaped to the swamps.

Endeavorers' Rallies Concentrated

Cincinnati, July 10.—The fourth day of the conference of the Christian Endeavor society was a light one. The three big Music Hall rallies were concentrated into two meetings. This same arrangement, in all probability, will hold good during today, and the third meeting will be dispensed with. Auditoriums Endeavor and Williston are amply sufficient to accommodate the Endeavorers. Five of the prominent speakers are absent, owing to illness.

Her Prison Life Begun

Eldorado, Kan., July 10.—Jessie Morrison was taken to the penitentiary at Lansing yesterday to begin her five years' sentence for the murder of Mrs. Castle. Miss Morrison was accompanied by her father, Judge Morrison, and her brother. At the home of the Morrisons a pathetic scene was enacted, when the aged father, step-mother, brothers and sisters cried bitterly as Miss Morrison kissed them good bye.

The Reading Road's Decision

Philadelphia, July 10.—Acting President Walsh of the Reading railroad announces that the strikers having failed to take advantage of the offer made by President Baer and the supplementary promises issued by Mr. Walsh, they will not now be regarded as employes, and efforts will be made to fill their places.

Scooped by Customs Authorities

New York, July 10.—A fine gold chain, 1180 feet long, which was wound around the waist of Isaac Gutman when he arrived here from Europe in May, was sold at auction yesterday by the customs authorities. With it was sold a gold watch chain. The two articles were sold for $925.

PLANS FOR REORGANIZING

Will Not Prevent Investigation of Seventh National Bank Affairs

New York, July 10.—Bank Examiner Raynor says that he has not yet completed his report on the condition of the Seventh National bank. District Attorney Burnett was in consultation yesterday with W. S. Ball, his assistant, who was designated to examine into the affairs of the bank. Mr. Burnett, after his conference, said:

"I do not care to say at this time whether or not anything has been discovered by Mr. Ball of a criminal character in the manipulation of the affairs of the Seventh National bank. Nothing will be done until the investigation is completed. The investigation will be continued by this office, despite what the board of directors may do. Whether or not the bank is reorganized the work of investigation will go on, and I have written to the department of justice in Washington stating that an expert accountant be designed to assist Mr. Ball in this work."

Mr. Burnett said further that if he discovered evidence of any criminal act on the part of the officials of the bank which caused its failure he would proceed against those responsible, whether or not the bank was rehabilitated and settlements made with depositors.

Boxer Outrages Reversed

Washington, July 10.—The Chinese government has filed a claim for indemnity to the amount of $500,000 on account of alleged outrageous treatment of Chinese at Butte, Mont. It is charged that some of them were killed, others lost their property, and nearly all were ruined in business, and many of them were driven out. The claimants number several hundred. It is declared that the city council of Butte upheld the rioters and the boycotters; that the state court, upon appeal, decided in language so unjudicial as to be itself a subject of complaint.

Charged With Causing Disaster

Paterson, N. J., July 10.—Abraham Rittenberg, who kept the stationery store in which the explosion of fireworks wrecked a building and cost 17 lives, was put on the stand at the inquest yesterday. He told of having powder and other explosives in quantities in addition to the fireworks. When he stepped from the stand and left the room a policeman served him with a warrant, charging him with being responsible for the disaster. He was arrested.

Fair Increases Postal Receipts

Washington, July 10.—The monthly statement of the gross postal receipts for June at 50 of the largest postoffices shows a net increase of $209,786 or 5.6 percent for the 50 offices over June of last year. The biggest increase was 50 percent at Buffalo. Nine offices showed decreases for the month. The largest decrease was 25.5 percent at Dayton, O.

Hollander Said to Have Resigned

San Juan, P. R., July 10.—J. H. Hollander, treasurer of Porto Rico, left here yesterday for New York. Insular Secretary Hunt says Mr. Hollander will not return to Porto Rico, and Mr. Hollander, when questioned on the matter, remained silent. It is reported here that Mr. Hollander has resigned his position of treasurer.

Kansas Suffering From Heat

Topeka, July 10.—The hot weather in Kansas continues with no immediate prospect of relief. Corn is fast shriveling up, the oat crop is worse than a failure, and hay is scarcer than for years. In western Kansas the conditions are better than in the eastern part, this being directly opposite to the usual state of affairs.

A Valueless Verdict

Albany, July 10.—Coroner Plantz yesterday rendered a verdict relative to the death of William J. Walsh, who was shot and killed in this city during the United Traction company's strike by a soldier. The verdict recites the fact connected with the case, but does not place the responsibility for the affair upon anyone.

Wages to Be Increased

Columbia, Pa., July 10.—Notice has been posted in the four rolling mills of the Susquehanna Steel and Iron company that on July 22 the wages of puddlers will be advanced 25 percent a ton, and the wages of the other employes raised proportionately.

Cubans Reject Electoral Law

Havana, July 10.—The Cuban constitutional convention yesterday rejected the commission's project for the electoral law by a vote of 13 to 12. The Conservatives claimed that the law as proposed was too radical in many respects.

Contractors Must Get to Work

Havana, July 10.—Captain of the Port Young has informed the contractors who have undertaken to raise the wreck of the United States battleship Maine that unless the work is begun immediately the contract will be annulled.

Six Hundred Were Spilled

Jacksonville, Ills., July 10.—During an entertainment given by the show "Streets of India," last night, the amphitheatre collapsed, throwing about 600 persons to the ground. Eight persons were more or less injured.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, July 11.
Sun rises—4:17; sets, 7:22.
Moon rises—12:19 a. m.

Temperatures have risen generally throughout the country, except in New England and the Rocky mountain region. Maximum temperatures of 100 degrees or more occurred in Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and northwestern Missouri. The weather will be fair in New England. On the coast the winds will be light easterly.

GOTHAM'S CHAIR RIOTS

Have Resulted In Park Commisioner Bowing to Public Opiuion

New York, July 10.—The demonstrations against the reserved park chairs, for the use of which a fee is charged, were continued in Madison Square park yesterday. A mob took the police by surprise, and began a wholesale destruction of chairs. The attendant in charge was swept from his feet and carried down with his property. The police charged with drawn clubs and several men were arrested.

Late last night Park Commissioner announced that, owing to the storm of opposition which had arisen, he would revoke the chair privileges in the parks granted to Oscar F. Spate. This action by Mr. Clausen was the direct result of the public indignation and rioting which has followed the effort to introduce pay seats in the city parks. Clausen declares that he will purchase all of Spate's chairs now in use and reserve them for the use of women and children in the parks.

President Clausen says that when he granted the privilege of renting chairs it was with the distinct understanding that the matter was entirely experimental, and might be discontinued at any time.

May Become Totally Blind

New York, July 10.—Rev. Mr. Keller, who was shot at Arlington, N. J., by Thomas G. Barker, is preparing for another surgical operation, the result of which may either slightly ameliorate his present condition or leave him totally blind for life. Splinters of bone that were driven toward the muscles controlling the surviving eye by the impact of Barker's bullet have begun to cause so much trouble that another operation must be employed to remove them. The right eye was removed entirely, and Mr. Keller now has no muscular control whatever over the left eye.

As to Colonial Dames

New York, July 10.—A decision was handed down by the supreme court yesterday in the case of the Colonial Dames of America against the Colonial Dames of the State of New York and others. The action of the lower court, permitting the defendants to call themselves any kind of Colonial Dames, which was the point at issue, was affirmed.

Charged With Child Murder

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 10.—Charles Dunn, an aged and wealthy lumberman, suspected of having killed Alice Cothrell, aged 10, whose body was found in a cistern beneath Dunn's residence at Waller, was arrested yesterday, charged with the murder of the girl by choking her to death. An attempt to assault the girl had been made.

Strikers Overcome by Japs

Vancouver, B. C., July 10.—The Japanese are now in control of the fishing situation on the Fraser river. It was a bloodless victory, due to the clever tactics of the victors. About 3000 Japanese spent the night in fishing. The union strikers were simply overawed by force of numbers.

Serious Stabbing Affray

New York, July 10.—Montague Jacobs, a theatrical manager, was taken from the Murray Hill theatre to Bellevue hospital yesterday, suffering from a serious stab wound in the abdomen. William Lavelle, a scenic artist, was arrested and held on the charge of stabbing Jacobs.

Plans Are All Laid

Columbus, O., July 10.—The McLean-Kilbourne element at the district meetings yesterday secured control of all the committees, and will accordingly have everything their way at the Democratic state convention. They were so strongly in the majority that there was no friction.

Dominican Headquarters In America

Montreal, July 10.—Arrangements are in progress for transferring the administration of the Dominican order in Canada and the United States from France to this continent. An ecclesiastical province will be created in America.

BRYAN IS TURNED DOWN

Ohio Democrats Agree Not to Mention His Name

Trampled Upon and Spoiled During Demonstration In Kilbourne's Honor Johnson and McLean Men Divide Honors on Political Issues

Columbus, O., July 11.—The Democratic convention yesterday nominated this ticket: For governor, James Kilbourne; lieutenant governor, Anthony Howells; judge of the supreme court, Joseph Hidy; clerk of the supreme court, Harry B. Young; attorney general, M. B. McCarthy; treasurer of the state, R. P. Alsbire; member of the board of public works, James B. Holman.

The convention convened here under peculiar circumstances. All the more conservative elements had combined in the preliminaries against the friends of Mayor Johnson of Cleveland, but the combination was not maintained after the committees were selected. The contest was in the committee on resolutions, and on both national and state issues. The Johnson men won on their favorite views on state matters, and the McLean and Kilbourne men on national issues.

There was no reaffirmation of the Kansas City or any other platform. There is no mention of previous platforms or of Bryan.

The nomination of Colonel Kilbourne was appropriately called one of "spontaneous combustion."

It was currently reported that Johnson desired the nomination of Monnett as attorney general, and that the McLean men wanted Monnett defeated. The defeat of Monnett was so decisive as to be a feature of the convention. Monnett as attorney general had brought suits against the Standard Oil company and other corporations to cancel their charters under the anti-trust laws. He had sought a third term nomination from the Republicans on the issue that he should be retained in that office to continue these prosecutions. After his defeat for the third nomination, in 1899, he supported Bryan in 1900 on the anti-trust issue, and canvassed Ohio and other states with Bryan.

In the alleged stampede "for principles rather than men," the most striking turn of the convention was in regard to Mr. Bryan. The most bitter things had been said of his leadership in the committee on resolutions, where it was insisted that his name should not be mentioned, and that there should be no reference to either of the national platforms on which he made his campaigns. After this plan had been agreed upon, one of the 21 members of that committee offered a minority report, reaffirming the Kansas City platform, and expressing confidence in Bryan. He received only six votes from the 950 delegates on his substitute for the preamble.

A few moments after the platform was adopted one of these six delegates called attention to the fact that pictures of other Democrats were displayed in the hall, and none of Bryan, as heretofore. He started to carry a small banner, with Bryan's picture on it, to the platform. The aisles were ordered cleared, but the picture did not reach its destination. It was trampled under foot and spoiled during the wild demonstrations when Kilbourne was escorted into the hall.

While it is generally believed that the marching clubs did not know they were walking over Bryan's picture, yet there was much comment after the convention that the picture was not treated worse than had been the old standard-bearer himself by the committee on resolutions and the convention.

Members of the committee on resolutions said that several hours were spent in denouncing the Chicago and Kansas City platforms, and the leader who stood on them. The platform causes much comment over what it does not say, as well as over what it does say.

Unusual interest is being taken in the selection of members of the state executive committee by the state central committee since the convention concluded its work. The state central committee adjourned until July 20, without selecting its chairman or secretary.

There are all sorts of rumors about the senatorship, for which the convention endorsed no one as the Democratic candidate to succeed Senator Foraker. The names of John R. McLean and Tom L. Johnson are most prominently mentioned in this connection. Both have strong friends on the state central committee. The meeting of July 20 will be watched with much interest by those who are interested in the party machinery. Some say that "the gold Democrats" got back this year, but that other "isms" were adopted that will cause as much trouble as "free silver and populism."

HOTELS ARE FAVORED

By a Decision Regarding Serving of Food With Liquor on Sundays

Boston, July 11.—The police lost quite an important hotel case yesterday, in an attempt to secure a conviction under the order that food must be served with liquor ordered by Sunday guests. Judge Dewey held good the contention of the counsel of the proprietor of the Hotel Hawthorne, J. H. Wiener, that the acceptance of the customary sandwich on Sunday when liquor is ordered is sufficient to conform with the law. The decision is interpreted to nullify the regulation of the police board that food must be ordered on Sundays and other restricted occasions before drinks can be served.

Judge Dewey said that the law does not permit the sale of liquor without food on certain days, and that the police know this. An order for liquor on these days is an implicit order for the food when the food is served before the liquor is brought forth, and is subsequently charged and paid for with the liquor.

In this case two waiters and the hotel proprietor were arrested last Sunday by police officers in citizens' clothes, who claimed to have ordered liquor with which only a sandwich was served. It is understood that this was the first case since the Sunday order went into effect in May.

Damages Asked For Quarantine

Bangor, Me., July 11.—P. D. W. McKinnon, proprietor of the Queen City hotel, and J. F. Pickard, have petitioned the city government for damages resulting from the smallpox quarantine at the Queen City hotel last month. Landlord McKinnon claims that his business suffered greatly, and he asks that such compensation be given him as the city government thinks reasonable. Mr. Pickard claims to have entered the house after it was quarantined, not knowing of the existence of smallpox there, and his business was seriously affected. He asks that the city pay him at least $300.

'Twas a Long Job

Arctic Centre, R. I., July 11.—The defunct Warwick Institution for Savings yesterday paid its last dividend of 40 percent, thus closing the affairs of the bank, after a long period of uncertainty. Interest to the amount of over $200,000 was regularly paid to the depositors for eight years. Ninety-seven percent of the principal has been returned to those interested at the time of the collapse of the bank.

Alleged Bribery

Chicopee, Mass., July 11.—Ex-Alderman Thomas J. Dillon was bound over in the police court yesterday to the grand jury to answer to a charge of attempted bribery. It is alleged that Dillon attempted to solicit $3000 from T. W. McCarthy, an applicant for a liquor license, and an agent for a brewery, to use for influencing the vote of License Commissioner Murphy in his favor.

Death Hovers Over Brother Louis

Boston, July 11.—Brother Louis, sacristan of the Mission church, who was wounded from a stray bullet from the practice range at Fort Strong, while standing on the upper deck of an excursion steamer, is rapidly sinking. Lieutenant Hatch has made a detailed report to the department of the east, and for the present the target practice at Fort Strong will be discontinued.

Boston Doctor Was Right

Blackstone, Mass., July 11.—The difference of opinion between Dr. Morse of the state board of health and Dr. Shea of the Boston board of health on the question of a case of smallpox, here, was settled yesterday by a consultation of three other physicians, who upheld the theory of Dr. Shea that it is not a case of smallpox. The quarantine was therefore removed.

Twenty Returned to Work

Clinton, Mass., July 11.—Twenty-five stone layers engaged on the rubble masonry at the Wachusett dam of the metropolitan water board, struck yesterday for an increase of pay and a shorter day's work, but upon being informed that their demands would not be granted, all but five returned to work. The men are receiving $3 for 10 hours' work.

Death Due to Drowning

Brattleboro, Vt., July 11.—The body found in the Connecticut river at Vernon a few days ago was exhumed yesterday at Hinsdale, N. H., and positively identified as that of James J. Griffin of Brattleboro. The physicians found that a wound on the head was only slight, and it is probable that death was due to drowning.

Doings in the Philippines

Manila, July 11.—Goynechea, formerly inspector of the native police of Manila, has been arrested, charged with embezzling from the police benefit fund.

The mobbing of two friars by the Filipinos at Calastae has been followed by a demonstration against a friar who was preaching a sermon in a church at Cebu.

Fifty more insurgents have surrendered to Colonel Wint in Albay province.

Riotous Spanish Strikers

Seville, July 11.—Martial law has been proclaimed here, owing to the turbulence of the strikers. A mob paraded the streets, hurling stones promiscuously. The streets are now patrolled by troops.

Beer Prisoners Decamp

Bermuda, July 11.—Three Boer prisoners escaped from the detention camp on Darrell's island last night. They swam to the mainland, and have not yet been captured.

HANDICAPPED BY FOG

Yachts Also Had a Dead Calm to Contend With

RACE IS DECLARED OFF

Constitution Was Far In the Lead When the Contest Was Abandoned —Working of Pumps Indicates That the Independence Is Leaky

Newport, R. I., July 11.—The third race between the Constitution, Columbia and Independence came to an inglorious end late yesterday afternoon in a dead calm and the thickest kind of Atlantic fog. There was little time to form judgement on the relative speed of the three boats, for in less than half an hour after the start the boats ran into the fog, and at no time after that could all three be seen at one time.

A little over an hour after the start the Constitution withdrew and came back to the city. The Columbia and Independence stood on for the outer mark, which they rounded with the Columbia about a mile in the lead. The wind, however, died down almost to a calm, and the leading boat could not finish in the time limit. The race was, therefore, off, and will be sailed over today. At the time the Constitution withdrew she was leading the Columbia in the beat to windward by nearly a mile, and the Independence by nearly two miles.

The feature of the day was the magnificent navigation of Captain Barr of the Columbia. In a fog so thick that it was at times impossible to see from one end of the finish line to the other he brought his boat sure and true to the outer mark and rounded in magnificent style. Another feature was the remarkably close start, only four seconds elapsing between the first and last boats to cross. The Independence, the last boat to cross, was only seven seconds behind the starting gun.

Harry Johnson, one of the bowsprit men of the Independence, was on the the end of the bowsprit when a towline parted well inboard, the end striking him on the right leg below the knee, inflicting a deep gash and knocking him off the spar. He managed to save himself by catching the rigging. The inboard end of the hawser struck Mate Clayton Haff on the knee, but broke no bones, although he will probably be laid up for several days.

Regarding the alleged leaking of the Independence, Captain Haff laughed at it, but, nevertheless, the yacht was pumped out three times yesterday.

Marshall's Men Return

New York, July 11.—Ten of the American trapshooters who went abroad seven weeks ago and won every match in which they took part while in England and Scotland, returned to this city yesterday. The returning party was headed by Thomas A. Marshall, the captain. A match was at once arranged by the New Utrecht Gun club, to be shot under the same conditions as the match against the Englishmen.

Good Afternoon.

Our citizens need have no fear of taking harbor excursion now, as the rifle practice on Long Island has been stopped by Lieut. Hatch.

As long as we can annually sell Europe $739,000,000 worth of our farm products, as we did in 1900, there is no danger of any material falling off in our prosperity.

Quincy girls should keep an eye on their "best young man," as the Hawaiian islands girls, who are considered as being heiresses, handsome and well educated, want to become the wives of ambitious young Americans who would care to immigrate.

It is not surprising that Rogers heirs should be springing up on all sides to claim a share in the $8,000,000 estate left by the eccentric builder of locomotives. The more alleged heirs there are, the more lawyers will get a whack at the will, which is to be contested.

"Better late than never" is applicable to the action of the Pennsylvania legislature in appropriating $1,500 to suitably mark the grave of Gen. Samuel Meridith who gave $25,000 to help support Washington's army at Valley Forge and who was the first Treasurer of the U. S. The grave is in Wayne county.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞Pension Commissioner Evans will show a surplus of $5,000,000 for the fiscal year just closed and, of course, that will be charged up against him as a criminal offence by those who are trying to force him out of the position.—Boston Journal.

☞If it is true, as reported, that the gang of robbers that recently held up a Great Northern train has been cornered and will be captured soon, it will do more than would tons of moral teaching toward suppressing the train-robbing industry.—Boston Herald.

☞A trolley outing party consisting of First Assistant Postmaster-General William M. Johnson, his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson and Miss Kate O. White, all of Hackensack, N. J., is expected to reach Boston this evening. The party left New York Tuesday forenoon and journeyed by trolley to Mt. Vernon, New Rochelle, Mamaroneck, Port Chester, Stamford, South Norwalk, Bridgeport and New Haven, arriving at the latter place Tuesday evening. The trip yesterday took them through Wallingford, Meriden, New Britain, Hartford and Springfield. Today the party will go to Indian Orchard, then to West Warren, Worcester, South Framingham, and at Watertown square will take the shortest route to Boston. Great indeed, is the omnipresent and expanding trolley.—Herald.

☞Up to this time the south has received very little of the foreign immigration. It has gone west or remained in the north near the point of debarkation. It is to be expected, however, that a greater number of homeseekers will find their way into the south henceforth. Foreigners who at first went west because they were given to understand that life and property was not safe in the south, having learned better, are now beginning to drift in this direction. Southern industries are being built up and capital is finding profitable employment in this section. This will all call for an influx of white immigrants, who will come in and grow up with the country. Meanwhile, the south's population will continue for a long time to come to be made up of those whose ancestors were Americans.—Savannah (Georgia) News.

Persons who have visited the Pan-American exposition have noted an exhibition of rubber substitute or "raw rubber" as it is called, made from corn. It is said to be an almost perfect substitute for the product of the rubber tree. Corn oil is the raw material and it is put through a vulcanizing process. The product is said to closely resemble Para rubber, both in appearance and utility. It can be used, say the manufacturers, for all grades of sheet rubber, bicycle tires, rubber boots and shoes, waterproofing linoleum, etc. It is even claimed for it that it is superior in one respect to the real rubber in that it does not crack. It is cheaper than imported rubber. The uses to which Indian corn is now being put are multifarious. Every part of the plant is utilized. If to the others is added rubber in its various forms corn will be king indeed. —Barre Telegraph.

☞President and Mrs. McKinley doubtless find that notwithstanding all the pomp and glory of living in the nation's "White house" after all "there's no place like home, sweet home."

☞It is another triumph of the present administration that the credit of the United States stands higher than that of any other nation. The Pacific railroad debts, principal and interest, have been settled with but a small loss from the full amount due.

Officers Installed.

County President Daniel Reidy and staff installed the following officers of Division 4, A. O. H., Wednesday evening at St. Mary's hall, West Quincy.

President, Patrick Kelliher.
Vice President, William P. Barry.
Recording Secretary, Jeremiah Hinckley.
Financial Secretary, Dennis Creedon.
Treasurer, John M. O'Brien.

Delegations were present from other Quincy Divivsions and from Hyde Park, Milton, Randolph, Dorchester and Boston.

After the meeting an adjournment was made to Foresters hall where refreshments were served and there was vocal and instrumental music, recitations and addresses by visiting members.

Handsome Girls Want Husbands.

Miss Rose Davidson, who is to represent Hawaii at the Pan-Amemican Exposition says:

"The Hawaiian islands are full of beautiful women who are willing to become wives of ambitious young Americans who go to Hawaii to make their fortunes.

"Bright American men can get the best wives in the world in the islands," she asserted.

"Many of these island girls are heiresses. They have been well educated and are up to date in every way. They want American husbands and they hope an immigration of eligible men will start soon."

TODAY'S COURT.

Richard Good and Charles O. Donnell were arraigned for assault on Officer Butler at Weymouth. Case continued until next Wednesday.

William E. O'Brien was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued two weeks.

Walter H. Remington was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Rose Leary was arraigned for malicious at West Quincy. Case continued until Saturday.

The continued cases of Melvin Clark and John Gallagher were called and they paid fines of $3 each.

Mrs. Edward Walsh was arraigned for assault on Russell Pitts at Quincy. She was found not guilty and was discharged.

—Just at present decidedly strained relations exist between the Milford daily papers—Journal and News—and the Board of Selectmen. Three weeks ago the Selectmen in the interest of economy, voted to print the warrants for town meetings in one paper only at a time and to select that one by lot.

The first drawing gave it to the Weekly Gazette whereupon the two dailies agreed not to give their readers a single word about the town meeting. The agreement was lived up to, and both dailies refused to print any local mention of it.

CARD OF THANKS.

Miss Maria Morrison of Elm street, wishes through this medium to extend her sincere thanks to all those kind friends who assisted her during the illness and death of her father Mr. William Morrison.

Quincy, July 11. 1t

MORE VETOES.

Mayor Hall Disapproves of Nine More Orders.

In his hurry to get away on his vacation Mayor Hall did not forget to put his stamp of disapproval upon several of the orders that passed the City Council at its last meeting. A large number of orders were passed at this meeting calling for the expenditure of nearly $50,000. Some of these orders passed the Council by a bare majority vote, President Bryant ruling that was all that was necessary, in spite of the City Charter which distinctly says that all orders involving an appropriation of more than $300 shall receive a two-thirds vote.

The orders vetoed by the Mayor are nine in number and include six sidewalk orders.

Installation at Wollaston.

Last evening D. D. G. M., J. H. Cooper and suite, installed the following officers of John Hancock Lodge, No. 224, I. O. O. F:

N. G.,—George A. Wardwell.
V. G.,—J. F. Bubert.
R. S. N. G.,—J. S. Butters.
L. S. N. G.,—O. B. Plumer.
Warden,—J. P. Thomas.
Conductor,—F. A. Gardner.
R. S. V. G.,—George Haskins.
L. S. V. G.,—B. H. Sherwood.
O. G.,—George Walsh.
I. G.,—Charles Anderson.
R. S. S.,—H. W. Battison.
L. S. S.,—G. Sutermeister.
Chaplain,—H. D. Black.
P. G.,—C. F. West.

A collation followed the installation, at which interesting remarks were made by D. D. G. M. Cooper, Grand Marshall Hunt, Grand Warden Hunt, N. G. Patterson and P. G. Orne of Mt. Wollaston Lodge.

Many visiting brothers were present, and a very enjoyable time was had.

"I Want to be an Angel."

Dr. Francis Wayland Parker, who at the convention of the Society of Religious Education in Detroit on Sunday, declared it was folly for children to stand up and say or sing, "I want to be an angel," is the head of the Chicago Institute in Chicago. Doctor or "Colonel," Parker, as he is better known in Chicago, is famous over the world for his original views and methods on subjects of education. He has long been an advocate of common sense in educating children and his friends at the convention were not surprised when he took the stand in his speech against the theme of one of the best-known Sunday school hymns. He declared that young persons should be taught more practical desires than to become "angels." Such expressions were silly, he said.

Colonel Parker was not the only noted educator who expressed himself on the question of Sunday school hymns at the convention. Professor L. H. Jones of Cleveland also expressed some original views. The idea of both speakers was that practical ingenuity should be instilled into the minds of children. Merely to want to become an angel without working for it was too easy, the speakers thought.—Chicago Tribune.

Base Ball.

The West Quincys meet the Waverlys of South Boston on Saturday, on the West Quincy play grounds. The Waverleys are one of the strongest semi-professional teams in the State. West Quincys beat them at a picnic a year ago for a purse of $50, by a score of 3 to 2, so a good game may be looked for.

Mr. F. J. Daveron has resigned as manager of the West Quincys, and Matthew Morrissy was elected to fill the vacancy.

The West Quincys have been fortunate in securing Reardon, late of the Bangors, to do the pitching for the rest of the season.

Hottest Yet.

All Chicago's records for hot days went to smash yesterday afternoon when the mercury in the weather bureau thermometer went bubbling up to 101 degrees and showed a disposition to do even worse.

Yesterday was the hottest ever experienced since the weather bureau was established in 1871. The nearest approach to it was July 16, 1887, when the mercury went up to 99.8 degrees.

—With plenty of money and popular with friends who do not know the history of his past life, Bunco King John Reed is said to be living in London, Eng. Within a few weeks a Boston man claims he has seen him there, and talked with him, and Reed, he says, never looked better in his life or was more contented with his lot.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

CITY BREVITIES.

A Local Budget With the News in a Nut Shell.

It looks as though warm weather had returned again.

Henry A. Weeden is home from the South for a brief visit.

These are the kind of days when the city bath house is popular.

Mr. Albert H. Sayward and family are at Post Island, Quincy.

Miss Esther Swift, formerly of Wollaston, is spending the summer at Falmouth.

Miss Hattie May Mitchell of Brook street, Wollaston, starts today for Onset, Mass.

The Wollaston town brook which has not been running for several weeks is again flowing.

The work laying the twenty-four inch drain on Willard street is nearly completed.

The New England Telephone Company is putting in more underground wire in City Square.

The Universalist Sunday School picnic to Highland Park today, filled two large special cars.

Mr. Charles R. Sherman is moving his dry goods from Merrill's block to the post office building.

A large sewer pipe is being laid from the main sewer on School street through the Edwards estate.

Mr. Arthur E. Benson, a dealer in bicycle sundries has moved to an apartment in the Wollaston hotel.

The members of the Atlantic Methodist church held their yearly picnic at New Downer Landing yesterday.

Mr. H. Y. Follett and Mr. John Barber of Wollaston have gone to the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

Mr. L. F. Loring of Wollaston has returned from a two weeks' house party given by friends in Springfield, Mass.

Mr. Gilbert Shunk, the popular newsdealer of Wollaston, returned yesterday from a short business trip to Providence.

Miss Mabel Woods of Malden, a schoolmate of Mrs. Henry Hallett of Myrtle street, is visiting her this week.

Mr. Edward Price and family of Madison street, have returned from a week's visit with relatives in New Jersey.

Mrs. R. R. Freeman of Grand View avenue, Wollaston, accompanied by her children has gone to Woodstock for two weeks.

It is probable that at the meeting of the City Council next Monday night an adjournment will be taken until September.

The band concert at Loring's corner last evening showed a marked improvement over former ones. A large crowd turned out.

Walter Blake of Webster street is taking a short vacation. Mr. Blake has won no little popularity for himself as promoter of the boys' brigade at Atlantic.

At least the horses are glad that hot days are again coming; they can wear their pretty and most becoming bonnets. Why not invent an umbrella for the poor beasts of burden, to be held over their heads on rainy days?

It is said that over $500 is to be laid out in the cause of making Botolph street one of the most attractive streets of Atlantic. Walker street was to have new curbings, but no sign of improvement in that line has appeared as yet.

The Sunday school picnic of the M E. Church, Atlantic, was held Wednesday at New Downer Landing Park. The number was not so large as anticipated on account of the change of the day from Tuesday to Wednesday. However the outing proved an enjoyable one for all.

Grocers' Outing.

The Old Colony Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Union annual outing will be held this year at Providence, Wednesday, July 31. A special train will run as follows:

Quincy 7.45 A. M., Quincy Adams 7.49, Braintree 7.55, South Braintree 8.00, via. Whitman.

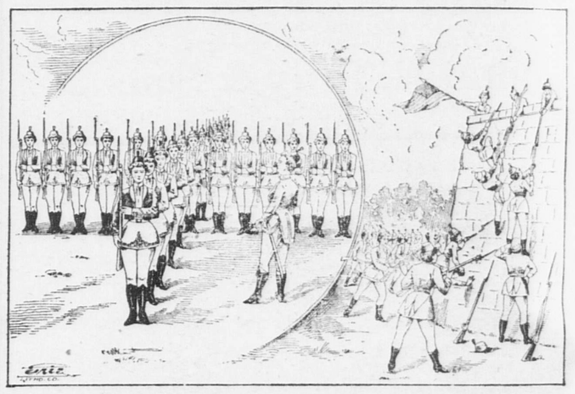

During five days of last week 191 bodies were sent to the Potter's field in New York city and buried unknown and unattended save by the paid employes of the morgue. No service was rendered over their graves and no mourners stood by its side. What tragedies of life were closed in those graves no one can tell.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞When you want a modern, up-to-date physic, try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. Price, 25 cents. All druggists.

Plymouth-Provincetown Excursions

The first fortnight's passenger traffic of the season on the Bay Line has demonstrated more emphatically than ever the ever growing popularity of this steamboat excursion route from Boston to Plymouth and Boston to Provincetown. It is a summer steamboat route which appeals most forcibly to all classes of tourists in search of that species of enjoyment which embodies inspiration and education with all the exhilaration of an ocean voyage.

This season the Bay Line has two new boats, both strictly first-class staunch, commodious and seaworthy in every respect. The Cape Cod, which last year ran between this port and Provincetown now runs to Flymouth, making the trip down along the picturesque South Shore to Pilgrim land in just three hours. Once there the passengers are allowed two and a half hours for dinner and a tour of the quaint old town, before the whistle sounds at 3.30 for the return trip, which lasts usually a little over three hours. Her sister ship, the Martinique makes the longer voyage to Provincetown in three and three-quarters hours, allowing an hour and a quarter on shore, and starting at 3 o'clock homeward bound.

Both boats leave Bay Line Wharf, 410-430 Atlantic avenue, Boston, every day at 10 o'clock. The music of the Bay Line band is one of the distinctively enjoyable features of these excursions. There is ample stateroom accommodation on each steamer and also a splendid promenade deck.

Statler's Hotel.

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of this famous hotel found in another column.

When we were in Buffalo a few weeks since the editors to the National Convention were given a grand banquet in the big dining hall.

Statler's hotel is near the Exposition and is one of the wonders of Buffalo. It is but three stories high, yet it is the largest hotel in the world, having 2,100 rooms and it makes it possible for a person of moderate means to visit the Pan American. You get a neat, clean room, good meals, promptly and nicely served and every needed accommodation for $2 per day which includes breakfast and evening dinner. The dining rooms accommodate 1,200 people. Excursions of 500 and more people go there and are swallowed and go unnoticed while so systematic are the details of the management that there is no hitch, and each one is fully cared for.

—The steel rail pool has formally agreed upon $28 a ton as the price for the coming year. This is $2 a ton higher than that agreed upon last fall.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

MILTON.

Miss Lucy Eaton and Masters Ralph and Roy Eaton have gone to Maine.

The annual picnic of the Mission of Our Saviour church will be held Aug. 8 at New Downer Landing.

But slow progress is being made on the sewer on Adams street west of the railroad tracks as the trench is being made through a ledge of rock. Nearly every foot opened has to be blasted.

The Sunday morning services at the Mission of Our Saviour church have been discontinued until September. The Sunday evening services will be held as usual.

Ladies' night will be observed at the Unquity club next Wednesday. An attractive program is being arranged.

The regular meeting of the Unquity club was held Monday evening.

The annual picnic of the East Milton Congregational church was held last Saturday at Nantasket.

Lawn Party.

The young people fortunate enough to receive invitations to the lawn party given by Miss Mabel Lovejoy at her home on Butler road Wednesday afternoon, had a grand good time. The grounds were prettily decorated with flags in honor of the occasion and from 4 to 7 o'clock the twenty or more present did nothing but enjoy themselves.

In one corner was a tent beneath whose folds was Miss Lizzie Forrest, who looked very attractive in her Gypsy costume. From her the young people learned their future and it is hardly necessary to say Miss Gypsy had nothing but pleasant things to foretell. Croquet and other games were indulged in and late in the afternoon refreshments of cake, fruit and ice cream was served. There was also some fine music, Miss Margaret Brown rendering several violin solos, in which she was accompanied on the piano by her brother Byron.

Shipping Granite to Europe.

The Journal says the most important event in the granite industry ever contemplated in this country has been arranged to take place next month when Mr. John L. Goss, owner of the extensive quarries on Crotch and Moose Islands, Stonington, in conjunction with Mr. W. S. White, manager of Booth Bros. and Hurricane Island Granite Company will ship the first cargo of granite ever sent from this country to Europe.

The importance of this innovation to the granite industry of Maine and New England can scarcely be estimated for it marks an era in this great business, and on its success depends a great deal. In fact, should this enterprise prove satisfactory it means the revolutionizing of the granite trade in the United States.

The question of shipping granite to Scotland, which is akin to sending coals to Newcastle, in a figurative sense has been carefully studied. A man was sent to England and Scotland to study the conditions and to report the probable results of such a shipment.

The report was favorable for an American shipment, and, therefore, the August cargo.

The conditions that make this move on the part of American granite manufacturers possible have been brought about through natural causes — the playing out of the famous Scotch granite quarries operated for centuries as the source of supply for England, Scotland and Ireland.

The most famous of these quarries is at Aberdeen, Scotland, where the best building stone of Great Britain has for centuries been quarried. Into the structure of the great cathedrals of Great Britain the Government houses and the palaces of the aristocracy, Aberdeen, or Scotch granite has entered.

England has become somewhat alarmed over the scarcity of building stone, and has been importing granite from Sweden and Russia, and arrangements have been made by importers of granite to delve into the granite mountain of Newfoundland for a supply for England.

At present, in England all pieces of granite under 40 cubic feet sell for $1.15 to $1.25 foot and all sizes above that at $2.25 cubic foot.

The first shipment, which will be divided equally between the Crotch Island (Stonington) granite and the Hurricane Island granite will be from 2,000 to 3,000 tons, and will be sent direct to Liverpool, England.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

—An American corporation with $3,000,000 capital will open an American hotel in London next summer. The "American plan" may become as popular over there as the "European plan" is over here.—Herald.

The North Pole.

The leader of the expedition in aid of Peary, Mr. Robert L. Bridgman, leaves today for Cape Breton, where he will take the relief steamer Erik to Greenland. This is the fourth of these expeditions, as planned, and it is expected to be the last. When it returns, late in the fall, it may have as a passenger the man who has hoisted the American flag at the North Pole.

Lieutenant Peary, when he left here four years ago, planned to advance upon the Pole by annual stages, maintaining a base of supplies which should be replenished each summer and pushing his depots of provisions farther north with each year's advance. When his lines should be established, he purposed making a "dash for the Pole." This "dash" he is supposed to have made, or to make this summer.

The first two relief expeditions were successful. Peary was seen two years ago, at which time he had made what he considered satisfactory progress. The last expedition has not been heard from, and it is thought that the Windward, the vessel in which the supplies were sent, and which carried also the explorer's wife and child, must have been caught and locked in the ice. The present expedition will, it is hoped, bring back definite news, and probably the entire personnel of the exploration.—Post.

Target Practice Must Go.

No wonder that much excitement prevailed over the wounding of Brother Kirchner by a stray bullet sent from the rifle of some soldier engaged in target practice at Fort Strong, Long Island. When passengers on a harbor excursion steamer run the risk of injury and death from random shots that can kill at the distance of a mile, the public may well insist upon prompt, permanent and thorough reform in methods of target practice in the interest of the safety of a whole community.

The need of providing against any further continuance of dangerous conditions which have already prevailed much too long, is too obvious to need enforcement. The military authorities on Long Island may well express sincerest regret at the occurrence and do all in their power to preclude the possibility of its repetition.—Boston Globe.

Two Sources of Profit.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the share holders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. A limited amount of stock will be sold at $500 per thousand shares and pro rata down to 100 shares.

UNIQUE INVENTIONS

A writer in the New York Herald describes a very novel automatic and perpetual calendar constructed by M. Albert Jagot, a well known amateur artist. It indicates the days, weeks, months, years and even the leap years.

The mechanism is quite as complicated as that of a watch or clock, yet in view of the results attained it is really very simple. The apparatus is wound like a clock and consists mainly of a disk, five wheels containing altogether 96 teeth, nine levers and three weights. One of these weights serves as a counterpoise, and of the remaining two one must be wound once every fortnight and the other only once every year.

There is not a wheel or tooth in the instrument which has not some distinct duty to perform, and all the parts have been so deftly arranged that there seems to be no reason why they should not continue to work until they are actually worn out. One of the wheels, indeed, is designed to do service uninterruptedly for 300 years, and special pains have been taken that each weight shall be as strong and as durable as possible and that the loss of efficiency through friction shall be reduced to a minimum.

New Peril For Burglars.

Burglars may be interested to know that a new terror awaits them. A revolver has been invented with a miniature searchlight attachment which enables the householder to fire with deadly accuracy in the darkest room.

A Life Saving Cabin.

A "life saving cabin" that detaches itself from a sinking ship and is itself completely equipped for navigating the ocean is the ingenious idea of a British sea captain.

Think Strike Would Be Useful

Paris, July 11.—A meeting yesterday of delegates from the various labor corporations, summoned by the federal committee of miners to discuss the advisibility of an eventual strike of all the miners of France, adopted a resolution expressing complete agreement in regard to the useful effects of such a strike.

☞ Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

A MEMENTO OF ARMENIA

Claims Against Turkish Government Settled at Last

LUMP SUM OF $95,000 PAID

State Department Will Distribute It Among Claimants at Its Discretion —Minister Leishman Completes Task Begun by His Predecessors

Washington, July 11.—The state department has received the amount of the American indemnity claim against Turkey, $95,000, through the American legation at Constantinople.

The money was paid by the Turkish government to Mr. Leishman, our minister at Constantinople, was by him placed in the Ottoman imperial bank and drafts remitted for the account. These drafts have just reached Washington. As is always the case, the claims in the aggregate considerably exceed the amount of the indemnity actually paid, but our government has expressed itself as satisfied with the payment. It assumes full responsibility for the distribution, the Turkish government paying down a lump sum of $95,000, and leaving it to the state department to distribute among the claimants at its discretion, and after its own fashion. It is stated that as soon as the department officials can prepare their list they will communicate directly with the claimants.

The claim which Turkey has at last paid is of long standing. It arose from the destruction of American property, chiefly that of missionaries, in Armenia, in 1893. United States Minister Leishman is the man who has effected a settlement of this account, he having informed the state department of Turkey's intention to pay in the second week of June last.

This notification was not taken too seriously in any quarter, since similar promises had been made to four American diplomatic representatives at Constantinople before Mr. Leishman was transferred to that post, but Mr. Leishman was confident and the tone of his advices such that Washington officials were really encouraged to believe that the sultan had at last found the means to satisfy his financial obligations. This hopeful feeling was not based entirely on Mr. Leishman's report, as the sultan had recently satisfied the indemnity demands of France, and made the first payment on a cruiser to be constructed by the Cramps.

In President Cleveland's administration Minister Terrell presented the Armenian indemnity claims of the United States, and received assurances from the porte that they would be paid. His successor, Mr. Angell, went to Constantinople especially to collect the indemnity. He only got promises. Then Mr. Angell, Mr. Strauss' successor, secured the personal assurance of the sultan on three different occasions that the money would be forthcoming. While Mr. Strauss was in this country on leave of absence, the sultan denied having given any positive assurance on the subject, and Mr. Strauss declined to return to Turkey.

Mr. Griscom, the American charge of affairs in Mr. Strauss' absence, made a practice for several months of calling at the sublime porte every Saturday and asking when the money would be paid. He got promises, but no definite information. Then came the visit of the battleship Kentucky to Smyrna, on her way to Manila, and the alarm of the Turkish authorities, who made haste to announce that the indemnity would be included in the payments to the Cramps of Philadelphia for a cruiser which they contracted to build for the Turkish navy.

But the demands of the United States were not satisfied in that or any other way, and the state department sent Mr. Leishman from Berne to Constantinople to try his hand with the sultan. Accordingly, he should have large credit for the settlement of the indemnity, though the very effective efforts of Messrs. Angell and Strauss, his predecessors, should be heavily acknowledged, as they put the matter far on its way.

The state department officials feel the greatest satisfaction at the settlement of these claims. Secretary Hay had been told by diplomats skilled in the ways of Oriental diplomacy and experience in the political conditions of southern Europe, that he never would be able to collect them. Not only was there extreme difficulty in bringing any pressure to bear, because of the remoteness of Turkey, but America had to contend with the jealousy of the great European powers, most of whom had claims against Turkey vastly larger in amount than ours, and whose total was beyond the ability of the Turkish government to meet.

Richmond Strike Collapses

Richmond, July 11.—The machinists' strike in the Trigg shipyards collapsed yesterday. There were about 130 strikers, and all for whom there were places returned to work. They asked for a nine-hour day, but the concession was not made.

Forger Admits Guilt

New York, July 11.—Lawrence Curtis, former manager of Kirke La Shelles' theatrical agency, who was indicted for forging Mr. La Shelles' name to a check for $2500, pleaded guilty before Recorder Goff yesterday, and was remanded for sentence.

A Defeat For Boers

London, July 11.—Severe fighting, according to a dispatch to The Daily Express from Lourenzo Marques, has taken place between Machadorp and Lydenburg, the Boers being defeated with at least 50 killed.

CONDUCTOR'S ERROR

Caused a Railroad Collision and the Loss of at Least Sixteen Lives

Kansas City, July 11.—Sixteen persons are dead, two probably fatally injured, and a large number of others less seriously hurt, as the result of a head-on collision between passenger and fast livestock trains on the Chicago and Alton railroad, near Norton yesterday.

The passenger train was travelling in three sections on account of the heavy Epworth league business to San Francisco. The wrecked train was the first section and contained no leaguers.

Conductor McAnna of the freight train, east bound, had been ordered to meet the second section of the passenger train at Slater, the next station east of Norton, but apparently overlooked the fact that the first section, which was 55 minutes late, had not passed. The head brakeman on the freight, who was about four cars from the engine, says Conductor McAnna assumed the throttle on leaving Marshall, and was running the engine when the collision occurred. The trains met two miles west of Norton on a curve surmounting a high embankment.

Government Policy Upheld

London, July 11.—At a pro-war meeting here yesterday, the British army generals were cheered, and the names of Henry Labouchere and other Boer sympathizers were hissed and hooted. The stock exchange was practically deserted for the meeting. The lord mayor presided. A resolution expressing complete confidence in the South African policy of the government and protesting against the unjust attacks of the opposition was adopted in the midst of wild scenes of enthusiasm.

Will Enjoy Freedom

New York, July 11.—The Boer refugee, David Stephen Du Plooy, who escaped from Bermuda, and was held by the immigration officials as a stowaway immigrant, was released yesterday by the board of special inquiry. A fine of $10 was paid by Charles D. Pierce. No weight was given to the fact that Du Plooy had been a prisoner of war. R. Von Schramm assured the board that there was no danger of Du Plooy becoming a public charge.

Backed by Empress Dowager

Shanghai, July 11.—A new Boxer movement is being started, according to Chinese intelligence from Sian Fu. Fu Chul, the heir apparent, with other members of Prince Tuan's family, have gone to join Prince Tuan on the borders of Mongolia, and there are strong indications that Prince Tuan is preparing to march against the foreigners with the tacit approval of the empress dowager.

Higher Wages For Forty Thousand

Youngstown, O., July 11.—At the wage conference here yesterday between representatives of the Amalgamated association and the Republic Iron and Steel company, the wages for puddlers were advanced from $4.87 1-2 to $5.25 per ton. Finishers were given an advance of about 5 percent. The increase dates from July 1, and affects about 40,000 employes.

Nothing More Until November

Washington, July 11.—With the reply of Secretary Gage, pointing out the impossibility of accepting Russia's proposition on the tariff controversy, pending a decision by the court, it is expected that there will be no further active negotiations on this question until the United States court renders its decision in November.

Winona's Owners Bring Suit

Chatham, N. B., July 11.—The owners of the Gloucester fishing schooner Winona, which was run down and sunk off Newfoundland by the steamer Ripligham, have libelled the steamer for $13,600. An effort is being made to have the evidence of the officers taken here, so as not to delay the steamer's sailing.

End of Endeavorers' Convention

Cincinnati, July 11.—The 20th international convention of the United Society of Christian Endeavor was brought to a close here last night. The convention from beginning to end was a brilliant success. Both President Clark and Secretary Baer expressed themselves as highly gratified.

Given Indeterminate Sentence

Chicago, July 11.—Dr. August M. Unger and F. W. Brown, convicted of complicity to defraud insurance companies in connection with the death of Marie A. Defenbach, were yesterday sentenced to the penitentiary by Judge Tuley on an indeterminate sentence.

Warning of Alleged Plot

Chicago, July 11.—Mayor Harrison received a letter from Harvey, Ills., yesterday warning him to leave the city at once, as there was a plan on foot to shoot him Saturday night. The authorities are investigating the matter.

THE MARQUAND FAILURE

Partially Due to Attempt to Secure Control of a Railroad

New York, July 11.—Frank S. Smith, assignee of the firm of Henry Marquand & Co., says it is true that certain stocks held by the firm for customers have been re-hypothecated. He further says that to some extent the firm's difficulties were caused by an attempt to secure control of the Pittsburg, Shawmut and Northern railroad. Marquand & Co. were employed as agents to sell the bonds of the road, and were to have 40 percent of its capital stock for floating the bonds.

"The firm which wanted possession of the road," said Mr. Smith, "reported that the bonds had been sold and handed over $5,000,000 to the railroad. The money was spent in construction. But, instead of selling the bonds, they had hypothecated them, and raised the money in loans so they could get possession of the majority of the capital stock. I cannot tell whether or not the firm had permission from their customers to hypothecate these securities.

"I mention this matter simply as an instance. There was nothing in the deal that was not absolutely in good faith. The firm had a perfect right to dispose of the bonds as they saw fit, so long as they furnished the corresponding funds to the construction company.

"This the firm has done, and there is no misunderstanding between those concerned in that regard. The firm agreed to sell $6,000,000 worth of bonds for the railroad. While it did not dispose of all, it did dispose, to the best of my knowledge, of $3,000,000 worth."

Examination Still Going On

New York, July 11.—United States District Attorney Burnett says that nothing definite has been developed as yet from the examination of the books of the Seventh National bank. "Accountant Moxey of the treasury department is in Topeka," said Mr. Burnett. "As soon as I can reach him, I shall request him to come on here at once and assist Mr. Ball in his examination of the accounts of the bank."

Another Rebuff For Dowieites

Chicago, July 11.—Followers of John Alexander Dowie made an attempt to convert the citizens of Evanston last night and failed, as on former occasions. They visited the place in greater force than ever before, there being fully 200 of them. As on former occasions, eggs and vegetables were quickly evident in the proceedings and the "Dowie guards" and those whom they were trying to protect were soon spattered and battered. The chief of police ordered the Dowieites to withdraw, but met with a refusal. The crowd meanwhile was growing ugly, and Mayor Bates ordered out a fire engine. The steamer turned a four-inch stream on the Dowieites, and they went over like tenpins, and were finally driven from the town.

Almost Given Away

New York, July 11.—The massive terra cotta building with white stone facings, known as the Catholic Church of St. Rose of Lima, together with the equally ornamental pastoral residence adjoining, were sold at auction yesterday for $35 for the benefit of the city. The material used in the construction of the church and residence must have cost in the vicinity of $100,000. This and other buildings offered by the auctioneer represented those condemned for the approach of the new East River bridge.

London, July 11.—A yeomanry trooper, in a letter describing the Vlakfontein affair, May 28, when the garrison of that town, on the Johannesburg-Durban railroad, had 174 men put out of action by the Boers under General De Larey, adds that the British, the night after the fight, discovering that the Boers were surrounding their camp, were obliged to retreat, leaving their tents standing and their wounded behind them.

Financial Collapse Imminent

London, July 11.—Mail advices received here from Moscow report that two well-known banks are in the last extremities, their paper being quoted at a third of its nominal value. The advices also say that the failure of these banks will certainly result in the ruin of many commercial houses.

More Evidence Against Miss Glenn

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 11.—C. M. Mayhew and George Hoover testified in the Ellis Glenn case yesterday, and were positive that the defendant is the "Bert" Glenn they had known as a man. The court made Miss Glenn remove her hat and heavy veil, so witnesses could see her.

Ex-Bandits Turned Loose

St. Paul, July 11.—The state pardon board yesterday approved the parole of Cole and James Younger, who have been in the Stillwater penitentiary for 25 years for complicity in robbery and murder during the raid of the James gang on the Northfield bank.

What War Tax Yielded

Washington, July 11.—A statement prepared at the internal revenue bureau shows that the total receipts from the war revenue act from July 13, 1898, the date the act went into effect, to May 31, 1901, amounted to $310,053,363.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Sun rises—4:18; sets, 7:21.
Moon rises—1:06 a. m.
High water—7:45 a. m.; 8:15 p. m.

The hot wave continues throughout the west, and has extended eastward through the Ohio valley. The disturbance which visited the Texas coast yesterday morning passed into the interior with increased energy, and, as far as reported, without causing serious damage. Another disturbance on the North Carolina coast has caused northerly gales from Cape Henry to Cape Hatteras, with rain. It will be generally fair in New England. On the coast the winds will be fresh and mostly easterly.

IT'S AN ILL OMEN,

Thinks the wife, to have the wedding ring slip from the finger. "Something is going to happen."

Something is happening. That ring could hardly be pulled from the finger when it was put there a few years ago. Now it slips off by its own weight. How thin the fingers have grown! And the fingers don't grow thin alone. How thin the face is and how thin the once plump form. Almost unconsciously the wife has been fading and wasting away. The strength given to children has never been regained. Drains which should have been stopped have been neglected.

That is a common experience with women, unless some friend has shared with them the secret of the strengthening and healing power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, dries the drains which undermine the strength, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes the baby's advent practically painless and gives vigor and vitality to nursing mothers.

"Words cannot tell how grateful I am for your kind advice and good medicines," writes Mrs. John Cooke, of Hastings, Northumberland Co., Ontario. "I have been in poor health for four years back and this spring got so bad I could not do my work. I went to the doctor and he said I had ulceration and falling of the internal organs, but thought I would try your 'Favorite Prescription.' I took five bottles and three of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one vial of Dr. Pierce's Pellets, and I can safely say that I never felt better in my life."

COLUMBIA THE WINNER

Led Constitution by Less Than Five Minutes

INDEPENDENCE WAS THIRD

Surprised Yachtsmen, However, by Coming In but Two and a Quarter Minutes Behind the Constitution—Led Her Rivals For a Few Minutes

Newport, R. I., July 12.—The Columbia won yesterday's race in fine shape, with the Constitution second, and, to the amazement of all yachtsmen, the Independence a remarkably good third. The Boston boat sailed an exciting race with the two Herreshoff yachts and led the Constitution at the outer mark, only to be beaten by her a little over two minutes on the run to the finish before the wind.

The breeze yesterday was much stronger than on previous days, which apparently accounts for the fine showing of the Lawson yacht, and again the Independence sailed the 15 knots to windward without her jib-topsail, and seemed to hold higher, at the same time footing just as fast.

The result of yesterday's race leaves the question of the supremacy of the three 90-footers delightfully uncertain, the Independence being not so slow after all, while the Constitution has yet to prove her unquestioned superiority to the other two yachts in anything except very light airs. The hopes of the Boston contingent have, therefore, gone upward, and the experts are trying to figure what the "scow" boat will do when it blows still a little harder.

The race itself was very exciting, especially when a little less than an hour after the start the Independence, by keeping near the Narragansett shore, forced the Constitution about, and for a few minutes was the leading boat in the race.

From that point to the turning buoy the fight between the two new yachts was one of the hottest contests seen for many years. With the mark about eight miles dead to windward, the two flyers battled for the lead. Three times did the Herreshoff yacht attempt to cross the bow of the Crowninshield boat, only to be beaten back and forced about.

Captain Haff kept the Constitution right under his lee and was able to maintain this commanding position through the speed and pointing ability of the Boston boat, even with one less sail, the Herreshoff boat carrying, as usual, her baby jib-topsail.

On and on sailed the rivals, the leaden hull of the Independence being always on the sunny side of the milk-white Bristol yacht. While they battled, however, Captain Barr of the Columbia saw his chance and took advantage of this contest between the other two yachts to slip out to windward and thus reaching the mark nearly four minutes ahead.

Astern of him was the Independence and Constitution, each striving for the buoy, the Boston boat giving blow for blow and luff for luff in every case, and finally swinging round with the Constitution's bowsprit right over her taffrail. Two seconds after, the Constitution also turned.

On the run home both the Herreshoff boats pulled away from the Independence, but the gain was comparatively small, and not at all discouraging to the followers of the Boston boat.

Shrouded in a dense canopy of fog, the Columbia swept across the finish line, Three minutes and forty-two seconds after the Constitution, and right astern, not nine miles or even seven, as on previous occasions, but less than half a mile, sailed the Independence, defeated but not humiliated. Little wonder, after such a race, that the three crews cheered each other, and that the Independence tars nearly split their throats.

The Columbia, on corrected time, beat the Constitution 4 m. 37s, and Independence 6m. 52s. The Constitution beat the Independence over the course 2m. 15s., corrected time.

Captain Haff said last night that, after the Independence has been properly tuned up, she can beat either of the other boats in any kind of a breeze. He further said that she has not yet been thoroughly tried out in equal conditions. The present series of races has so far only afforded opportunity to find out what was the matter, but since the faults have become known there has been no time to remedy them.

Lawson Will Try Again

Newport, R. I., July 12.—The Newport Herald says: Thomas W. Lawson said to a personal friend that it was his intention to build another 90-foot racing yacht next season. He will enter the Independence in every race possible this year, and use her as a trial horse for the new boat, and, if the America's cup should go across the water he would challenge at once. Mr. Crowninshield will be the designer of the new boat. He intends to get the weak points of the Independence, and improve on her in the new boat.

CAPTAINS AT FAULT

For Unsatisfactory Conditions Existing In New Hampshire Guard

Concord, N. H., July 12.—The annual report of Brigadier General Elbert Wheeler of Nashua, Inspector general of the New Hampshire national guard, contains this statement:

"From my personal observation and the reports of the officers assisting, I am unable to credit any general advance in the condition of the brigade as a whole. The detailed reports and table of comparative standing show gains in sundry directions, but these appear to be offset by less satisfactory conditions elsewhere. It should not need to be repeated that the state rightfully expects a distinct advance by the body as a whole and by every unit therein. The real responsibility for such shortcomings as are apparent lies almost entirely with the captains of companies, some of whom lack either the ability or disposition to properly direct their commands, or are lacking in elements of character essential to influence men of the right kind to enlist under them, and do the necessary work to gain and maintain efficiency."

Assessors' Valuation Questioned

Manchester, N. H., July 12.—The controversy between the Amoskeag Manufacturing company and the city of Manchester was again brought to public attention yesterday by the filing of a petition for an abatement on $2,280,000 of the company's valuation. The assessors taxed the company's property on a valuation of $6,280,000, which the company claims is exhorbitant and disproportionate to other valuations fixed by the board.

Enjoying Sea Breezes

Clifton, Mass., July 12.—Mrs. William J. Bryan and her three children are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Creelman at one of the Crowninshield cottages at Clifton. Mr. Bryan is lecturing in the south, and Mrs. Bryan says she does not expect her husband to come east. She and her children have been the guests of Dr. Gardner at Block Island, and arrived here yesterday.

Hindered by Bad Weather

Nantucket, Mass., July 12.—The heavy weather and fog have delayed the maneuvers of the North Atlantic squadron, now in Nantucket waters. As soon as the weather will permit, boat drills will be practiced every afternoon. The camp will be broken up every few days at a moment's notice, and the crews will be timed on breaking camp and returning to their respective ships.

Whisky, Revolver and Suicide

Taunton, Mass., July 12.—The body of a man, evidently a German, about 60 years old, five feet in height, very bald, weighing 200 pounds and well dressed, was found in the woods off Somerset avenue yesterday afternoon. A revolver and an empty whisky bottle laid beside the body, and a bullet hole was found over the ear. It is evidently a case of suicide.

But Faint Hope of Recovery

Boston, July 12.—The condition of Brother Louis of the Mission church, who was shot by a spent ball from off Fort Strong, Tuesday afternoon, remains unchanged, and the doctors hold out but slight hopes of his recovery. He is fully conscious and makes no complaint, and is anxious that no one should be held responsible for his misfortune.

Infantry at Kennebec Arsenal

Augusta, Me., July 12.—Word has been received here that a part of the Twenty-seventh United States infantry of the department of the east has been ordered to Augusta, to be stationed at the Kennebec arsenal. This is the first definite assurance that a military post is to be established in Augusta.

Arrested on Bigamy Charge

Bridgeport, Conn., July 12.—Frank D. Churrier of Fitchburg, Mass., was arrested here yesterday on information from the police of that place on a warrant charging him with bigamy. He confessed and consented to go to Fitchburg without requisition papers.

Jeff Davis' Widow Sick

Portland, Me., July 12.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis, wife of the former president of the Confederacy, is quite sick at the Columbia hotel in this city, where she came a few days ago to spend the summer.

Cities and Towns Are Growing

Washington, July 12.—A census office bulletin concerning the urban population of the country shows that 28,411,698 people in the United States live in cities and towns of over 4000 population. This is 37.3 percent of the entire population, a gain of almost 5 percent since the census of 1890.

Heat Causes Explosion

Denver, July 12.—A dynamite magazine near the Grant smelter exploded yesterday. Two Italians were killed and several hurt. Windows a quarter of a mile away were shattered. The damage is estimated at $5000. Extreme heat is supposed to have caused the explosion.

Killed From Ambush

Benten Harbor, Mich., July 12.—Peter Smith, a farmer, was murdered while driving a binder in his rye field yesterday. The assassin secreted himself behind a shock of grain and deliberately shot Smith in the back.

Alleged Attempt at Poisoning

Hampton, N. B., July 12.—James Campbell, aged about 20, was brought to jail here yesterday on a charge of attempting to poison his father by putting strychnine in sugar.

END OF FREE SILVER

As a Rallying Cry For the Democratic Party

OHIO CONVENTION'S ACTION

Believed to Foreshadow a General Modification of Views—Kilbourne's Success Will Indicate That Bryan Is a Negative Factor In Party Plans

Washington, July 12.—The action of the Democratic state convention of Ohio is of far-reaching importance. Ten years ago, when the national Democratic organization, under the leadership of Mr. Cleveland, was pronounced for the gold standard, the Ohio Democrats spontaneously declared for free silver, and Governor Campbell, their candidate for election, in speaking of the campaign expressed his willingness to "chance it" on free silver.

In the upheaval of 1896, Ohio was one of the first states to swing into line for free silver, largely under the leadership of John R. McLean and the Cincinnati Enquirer. In fact, nearly all the Democrats of prominence in Ohio of that period were for free silver.

About the only man now prominent in Ohio Democratic politics who at that time expressed his disbelief in free silver was Tom Johnson. He mounted the platform at the Chicago convention, after Bryan had been nominated, and announced that, while he should support the ticket cordially, he made no secret of his opposition to the leading issue of their fight. But his case was exceptional. The Ohio Democracy remained loyal to Mr. Bryan and his followers throughout the first administration of McKinley. When they met in 1897, the year after the presidential election, they specifically endorsed the Chicago platform and quoted anew its silver plank. As the first Democratic convention to speak after Mr. Bryan's defeat, their action then foreshadowed the necessity of another trial of the silver issue. These Ohio men prove trustworthy, and Wednesday's action is considered by political observers equally significant and decisive. It is doubtful if in the history of the country a case can be found of a more complete party turn about.

If Kilbourne runs through it will prove that Bryan is a negative factor in Democratic plans. The action of the Ohio Democrats clearly foreshadows that in the next Democratic convention it will be extremely conservative both in platform and candidates if present indications count for anything. The south is particularly desirous always of electing a Democratic president, and it will go into the next Democratic convention with a view to selecting somebody who will catch the independent vote of the old-time doubtful states in the north.

Probably this overturn within the Democratic party will come more slowly in states like Massachusetts and Vermont than in places where, like Ohio, it always stands a certain chance of success.

It is not expected here, among political observers, that Kilbourne will be elected in Ohio. Republican majorities in that state for the last 10 years have averaged 50,000.

Over Three Hundred Slain

Berlin, July 12.—The Cologne Gazette publishes a dispatch from Seoul, Corea, saying that bloody conflicts have occurred on the island of Quelpart between the Roman Catholic missionaries and their pupils and the populace of the island. Fifteen of the natives and about 300 of the mission pupils are reported to have been killed during the encounter. The governor of Quelpart, says the dispatch, says the trouble was the fault of the pupils, and arose from their support of the tax collectors in levying illegal taxes upon the natives.

Sued For $100,000 Fee

Chicago, July 12.—Dr. Emma N. Warne, who brought suit against the estate of the late Francis T. Wheeler to collect a medical fee of $100,000, lost her case in the probate court yesterday. For three years before he died Wheeler became so helpless that Mrs. Warne testified that she was compelled to remain with him almost continuously. For this service she claims the aged millionaire promised her she would receive $100,000 when he died, but he failed to mention her in his will.

Blondin Again

Middletown, N. Y., July 12.—The report reaches here that a mysterious stranger, who is said to bear a striking resemblance to Wilfred Blondin, the man suspected of murdering his wife at Chelmsford, Mass., is travelling about in Chenango county. He spends most of his time in the woods, subsisting on fowl, eggs and fruit which he manages to pick up on farms.

Good Afternoon.

Blackberries are ripe and berry pies are in order.

Young man go West, where good farms in Osage Indian reservation are sold at $1.25 an acre.

Mr. Herbert L. Brigham left yesterday to find Mr. Peary, who he thinks has found the North pole.

The heavy rain last night makes the lawns look green and beautiful this morning. But, O my! How it cracked the cherries and made them rot. How Kansas, where it has not rained a drop for three months, would have enjoyed it.

Lincoln, N. J., known as "the woman's town," because the first council of the place was composed entirely of women, and equal suffrage prevailed at its elections, has just been sold under the auctioneer's hammer. The town hall, a schoolhouse, a statue of Abraham Lincoln and precisely 1400 building lots brought altogether, $16,000.

One of the most inspiring as well as appropriate pieces played by one of the bands in the Orangemen's parade this morning as it passed through City Square, was "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean." No matter what the occasion may be, "Old Glory" always waves proudly at the head of the procession, and how proudly, also does the man walk, who has the honor of being the color-bearer.

Nebraska's Governor says there's no bull fighting in South Omaha. After witnessing the performance, he said: "The most brutal thing I saw done was when a gorgeously arrayed individual threw a sheet over the bull's horns and brushed away the flies." Well, well! If the Omahans are willing to pay money to see just that little far-fetched suggestion of a bull fight, what wouldn't they do to witness the genuine thing, as we did for thirty minutes, when in the city of Mexico, a few years ago.

Quincy has a Revere road named in honor of Paul Revere and other towns likewise honor his name. Arlington is now agitating the naming of a road after him, Mrs. Marion MacBride having asked that Vine street, Arlington Heights, be called Paul Revere road as this is the road over which Paul Revere passed on his famous ride to Lexington. This picturesque street winds over the hill from the Foot of the Rock on Massachusetts avenue to a point beyond the new car house at Arlington Heights, where it enters Massachusetts avenue again and sweeps on to Lexington beneath wide spreading elms till the Lexington green is reached.

Among the lovely roads about Boston there is none lovelier than this old road which Paul Revere took when he left the old turnpike for a short cut across country to the home of the men who gave their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to the cause of freedom. New England may not compete with some sections of this country in development, but she holds for all the country the shrines of colonial days, and the Paul Revere road will be known throughout the land as the historical road of wondrous beauty over which Paul Revere passed.

—The largest church edifice in the world is St. Peter's, in Rome, which will accomodate 54,000 persons. St. Paul's in London, will hold 25,000.

At that time she spent over two years in Arizona, exploring the region of the cliff dwellings and unearthing many valuable relics of a prehistoric race. # SEVERE STORM.

Police Station Takes Fire From Live Wires.

Quite a heavy storm passed over Quincy Thursday, and a large amount of water fell. It commenced to rain shortly after 3 o'clock. This was accompanied by thunder and lightning. The later however was not very near and the only damage done was to burn out some of the wires leading to the police station.

As night drew on the rain increased and a high wind prevailed. It rained hard until late in the night and the wind did considerable damage to gardens. Nearly everybody who had corn growing awoke this morning to find it blown down.

About 8.30 Thursday night one of the private signal wires entering the police station blew down and became crossed with an electric light wire. The heavy current entered the police station burning out the wires and setting the annunciator on fire. Capt. Hanson who was on duty threw water upon it but that did not have much effect and it looked at one time as though the aid of the fire department would have to be called.

The electric light station was communicated with and linemen came down and cleared the wires. It was a narrow escape for the old station.

ORANGEMEN'S DAY

Annual Commemoration of Battle of Boyne.

Union Picnic at New Downer Landing.

Parade in Quincy, followed by Addresses and Sports.

The annual union picnic of the Orangemen of Boston and vicinity to commemorate the two hundred and eleventh anniversary of the battle of Boyne is being held at New Downer Landing today. Locally it is quite an important event as it is the first time a celebration of this kind has been held in this vicinity.

Orange was the prevailing color in City Square during the morning and scores of ladies wearing this color were about. For the most part the ladies were gowned in white and wore bows of orange with long streamers of the same color.

The lodges met in Boston early this morning and marched from Copley square to the Terminal station where special trains were taken for Quincy.

The first train arrived at 9.30 and was followed fifteen minutes later by a second special train.

A line of procession was formed on Hancock street, the right resting near the Adams Academy. The parade moved at 10 o'clock over the following route Hancock street, Washington street, Revere road, Millers Stile road, Elm street, Hancock street to City Square where special cars were taken for the grove.

There were nearly 500 men in line and with their showy uniforms and handsome silk banners they made a fine show. The order of parade was as follows:

Sergeant Goodhue.
Squad of Police.

Chief Marshall,
George Stewart.

Chief of Staff,
Andrew Stewart.

Cambridge City Band.

Covenant of Peace,
Royal Black Knights 55 men.

Arriving at the grove they were received by the State Grand Master, Henry M. Storms of Braintree who addressed the members briefly. Other addresses were made by well known members of the order.

A series of sports were held this afternoon commencing at 1 o'clock.

Memorial Day at Camp.

The members of the Edward Hewiston associates, who are at Camp Durrell, Friendship, Maine, have had a good time the past week yachting. Camp drill, games, hunting, etc., are filling up their day's program considerably.

Camp Durrell is situated on Moody island, originally Crotch island. The name Moody is given in honor of the donor, who presented it to the Y. M. C. A., only as camp grounds.

Sunday was memorial day at the camp, and the boys observed it with reverence. At the morning services the boys joined in heartily. They seemed to fully appreciate and understand the meaning of such an occasion.

The order of services:

Prayer,—Dr. L. B. Wright.

There will be a meeting of the committee for the Constitution fair at the John Adams birthplace on Saturday, July 13, at 10 o'clock.

Henry J. Mathews has been appointed an inspector for the Massachusetts Highway Commission and will begin his duties at once.

Many fond fathers are to take their "young hopefuls" to the circus tonight. No! they don't care an acorn about it, themselves; simply going for the boy's sake. Now let us all smile.

Mrs. Francis A. Dalrymple, accompanied by Miss Grace L. Bishop, of Beal street, Wollaston, is visiting her former home in Grafton. After a stay in Grafton they intend to visit other neighboring cities.

Herbert F. Tucker, a well known Quincy young man has opened a fish market on Washington street near Arnold street. Mr. Tucker has had ten years' experience in the business and he asks a share of public patronage.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Eaton left yesterday at 1 o'clock for the Philippine islands where Mr. Eaton is to teach in the Manual training school. They will remain in San Francisco one week. He has signed to teach for three years.

Mr. William J. Dunham, employed as meat cutter by R. E. Foy & Co., South Quincy market, had the misfortune to drop a meat axe on his left foot yesterday afternoon, cutting a deep gash, requiring several stitches to close the wound.

The Fore River Engine Co. has decided to dispense with the narrow guage railroad and appurtenances and is now laying tracks of the ordinary size throughout the yard. They have procured a full sized engine which is now on the grounds ready for work.

Mr. Joseph Keith, the genial assistant chief electrician at the Fore River Engine Works, has returned from a short visit to Newark, N. J. He has brought with him his wife and family. Mr. Keith is so well pleased with Quincy and its surroundings that he has decided to become a resident.

CRUISER DES MOINES

Struck by Lightning—One Man Injured.

During the thunder shower Thursday afternoon a bolt struck the Cruiser DesMoines building at the Fore River plant. Daniel Perkins who as at work on the outside of the ship received a shock. He was thrown down onto a pile of iron which cut a deep gash over his eye and knocked out several teeth. He was attended by the emergency doctor at the works and later sent home.

The Circus.

The severe storm Thursday night flooded the lot on Canal street upon which Main's circus was to pitch its tents. This made it necessary to change the location to River street, off Washington street. The storm also prevented the circus arriving in town until 10.30. City square was full of people waiting to see the parade.

Shortly after two o'clock the parade made its appearance, and it certainly verified all that has been said about it by our exchanges. It was a monster pageant, resplendant with handsome silken costume, bright new trappings, and many novelty features that had never before been seen in Quincy. Immediately after parade's return to the grounds, the afternoon performance was put on, and as we go to press the immense city of white tents is comfortably filled with delighted auditors.

At 6.30 this evening the free open air exhibition will be given, the principal feature being the thrilling high dive by the girl with the auburn hair. The doors will open at seven o'clock this evening in order to allow visitors to inspect the menagerie, the magnet of which is the four baby cub lions which were born Decoration Day. The performance will begin at eight o'clock sharp.

Our lady patrons can see pictures of these styles in our Paper Pattern Department as the August DELINEATOR, just received, contains several illustrations of this newest effect.

OUR GOLFERS ABROAD.

American Experts Now In England to Wrest Honors.

W. J. TRAVIS AND MISS GRISCOM.

National Champions Have a Hard Problem Before Them—Handicaps to Be Met—Comparison of Transatlantic Cracks.

Golfers throughout the whole United States are awaiting with interest the result of the matches to be played in England by visiting Americans. Walter J. Travis, amateur champion of the United States, and Miss Frances E. Griscom, woman champion, who recently arrived in Liverpool, will meet most of the best players of Great Britain during the next few weeks.

WALTER J. TRAVIS.
[Amateur champion of America.]

The departure of the champions was a great surprise to American golfing folk. International golf, so far as 1901 is concerned, was thought to be absolutely dead. England and America have not met in actual golf combat since Vardon and Taylor exhibited their skill on various of our courses.

Travis' invasion of Great Britain offers the first opportunity for a contest between our leading amateur and the best nonprofessional abroad. H. H. Hilton, who for three successive years has maintained his supremacy over all other English amateurs, will be a hard nut for Travis to crack—if indeed he can crack it. Other Englishmen eligible to meet Travis are John L. Low, Robert Maxwell, John Graham, Jr., Horace G. Hutchinson, A. R. Aitken and Charles Hutchings.

It is not difficult to obtain a line on the comparative merits of transatlantic leaders in golf. That players of the first class from this side might meet success on the other side in individual play is not to be denied, but their getting along very far in a national tournament is open to doubt. While Travis is a great golfer, yet it is a question whether his standard is high enough to carry him through a series of games with the English and Scotch cracks.

The evidence seems to be against Travis. While it is not held that the A1 foreign players could give him odds, it appears to experienced men on both sides of the Atlantic that there are at least 50 stick manipulators in England, Scotland and Ireland who would stand an even chance with the American champion.

Findlay S. Douglas, who is thought by many to be the finest golfer in the United States, and if it were not for his weak putting undoubtedly he would be the present champion, would have to run the same gantlet in a British championship as Travis—that is, he would find 50 players entered, any one of whom would be liable to beat him in a match.

The longer time that golf has been played on the other side has brought players nearer together, so that a championship meeting means a number of matches of the keenest description. While it is true that men like Hilton, Low and Maxwell stand out from the rest, they have no walkover.

MISS FRANCES GRISCOM.
[Woman champion.]

Experience is a factor which tells as strongly on the other side as on this, and one finds the same men prominent in each year's national meeting.

Miss Griscom will be able to make a good showing against her foreign opponents. She obtained her primary instruction in golf on the famous Scotch links of St. Andrews. Her career as a golfer has taken her over most of the courses in England and Scotland

HOUGHS NECK.

New Arrivals at Quincy's Popular Resort.

The season at Houghs Neck is well under way and taking everything into consideration it has been up to the present time the most successful season it has had for years. In years past with high fares on the street railway, and a poor street the casual visitors have not been many. This year however, the street railway is giving excellent service and the street leading to the beach is one of the best in the city which invites people to travel this way.

The steamboat line has not been put in operation as yet although it was expected that regular trips would be commenced this week.

W. H. Burr and family of Brockton are at their cottage on Island avenue.

J. P. Lewis and family of Brockton are on Great Hill.

There is not the excitement at the yacht club this year, as but few races are being held.

W. H. Shaw and family of Braintree are in their cottage on Great Hill.

Frank Taintor and family of Newton are at the Anchorage.

The beach is having more transient visitors this year than ever before which is largely due to the free transfers on the street railway.

Mrs. Fannie Taylor has built a new cottage on the Hill.

There are more catch penny places at the beach this year than ever before. It is doubtful if they all make a living.

Mrs. Twissing of Boston is in the Taylor cottage on Great Hill.

J. T. Sullivan and family of Boston are in a cottage on Bell street.

Nearly all of the regular summer residents have arrived and there are but few vacant cottages.

John Lautz and family of Jamaica Plain are on Great Hill.

The new cottage of Frank Whall of Boston on Manet avenue is completed.

E. N. Thayer of Holbrook is at the Cochato cottage.

Perley Glass is in the Woodbine cottage.

Edward McLane of Roxbury is at the Linden.

A. D. Albright and family of Dorchester are on Great Hill.

W. H. Burnham and family of Ashmont are in the Arbutus cottage.

E. B. Farmer and family of Cambridge are in the Arlington cottage.

Spain Must Pay.

Spain bows gracefully to the inevitable in assuming full responsibility for the payment of her Cuban and Philippine bonds and in preparing to refund them into an easier and more regular form of security.

Up to the Treaty of Paris it was a fond Spanish dream that America would assume liability for these obligations. She was a rich country, she could afford to; Spain was a poor country and could not. This was the Spanish line of reasoning, but it did not convince our Commissioners. Both the Cuban and the Philippine debts were incurred by Spain in her effort to crush the native insurrections. She issued bonds, took the proceeds and spent the money to buy arms and ammunition and supplies for the purpose of killing off the Cubans and the Filipinos, and stifling their aspirations for a larger liberty than she would grant. It would have been strange irony of the great American republic to make itself answerable for the price of baffled tyranny. Of course, our Government refused, and, of course, its reply was final.

But for a time Spain and Europe generally could not or would not understand. A great many of the Cuban and Philippine bonds were held by French German and English capitalists, and they very much preferred to look to Washington for their money rather than to Madrid. In fact, one of the European Governments actually tried to force upon Secretary Hay a list of the bonds held by its subjects, but Col. Hay was too sharp and quick, and refused to see the papers or to listen to the memorial.

Now Spain, recognizing the real situation, is moving to pay her war debts herself. It will not be difficult, for the loss of her colonies has really been a blessing in disguise to the Spanish Government. Spanish administration, with its intolerable cruelty, its blind selfishness and hopeless mediaevalism, has made the colonies a heavy drain upon the resources of the kingdom, instead of contributing to its riches and its strength.

Spain may not know it even yet, but she is far better off than when one of her mines blew up the Maine's forward magazine at that fatal buoy in Havana Harbor.—Boston Journal.

—The plan of the Central Pacific railroad to cut off 107 miles by crossing Great Salt lake involves a great engineering problem. The lake has to be crossed at a point where it is thirty-two miles wide, trestle work being necessitated for the whole distance, except two miles across the rocky promontory point. The view afforded passengers over the new route will be novel and picturesque.

National Finances.

The financial condition of our government at the close of the last fiscal year is eminently satisfactory. The annual expenses of the national administration have been for the last year or two exceedingly large when compared with past experiences and it should be possible in the years that are to come to make a sensible reduction in this annual outgo. We shall need a larger army than was thought necessary in the past and the naval expenses of the nation will probably for all time in the future assume even greater creative proportions. This is one of the penalties of the change that has taken place in our national policy; but with wise statesmanship, even these increases should not form a burden that would be sensibly felt by our people and in the years that are to come there ought to be a very material decrease in the enormous sum that we have each year voted as pensions for those who have performed military service either in the army or the navy.

The net national debt—that is, the debt after deducting available monetary assets—is only a trifle over 1,000,000,000. Thus our entire net debt is not much larger than the sum which the British government has been compelled to pay in carrying on its war in South Africa, or than the sum that was paid by France as a war indemnity to Germany after the close of the disastrous struggle of thirty years ago. Compared with the other great nations of the world, the national debt of the United States is a small burden to carry particularly when it is taken into account that the productive powers of our people are both in the aggregate and on a per capita basis, greater than those of the inhabitants of any other country. This is not, or should not be, a counsel for extravagance, for the reason that one part of our industrial success is to be found in the fact that our people have been compelled to contribute but a relatively small part of their earnings to defray the expenses of government. We have made great industrial advances because we have been able to devote so large a proportion of our annual earnings to the peaceful operations of business and have not had the tax collector take from us, as has been the case elsewhere, a large, and in some instances constantly increasing part of our individual earnings.—Boston Herald.

Money and Minds.

We are told that "if the fashion among men of wealth continues, even the Schurmans will not have the opportunity in another generation of sneering at the failure of America to produce great men in the sciences and arts." Manifestly this authority thinks that the gift of God can be bought with money, and that, given liberal endowments, there will be no more difficulty in producing intellectual giants than in producing horticultural giants. A man, having money enough, can build a hothouse in which he can raise mammoth cucumbers to an absolute certainty. But all the intellectual hothouses in Christendom, backed by illimitable wealth, give not a particle of assurance that they will raise mammoth minds. These enormous endowments have inestimable value, but it is the value of diffusion of the development of ordinary and average minds, and not the forcing of the extraordinary ones. They will give to young men and women of moderate gifts the chance to make those gifts more valuable, but those who are to stand on eminences above all their fellow men will owe their distinction to something which no university can give, however richly the millionaire may bestow his endowments.

There is a very real sense in which great men are born and not made. In the enthusiastic bragging over the generosity of rich Americans to colleges, it is as well to remember and to be subdued by this truth.—New Bedford Standard.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Tracy was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued until July 26.

George L. Shaw was arraigned for drunkenness at Braintree. Case continued until July 26.

The case of James Sullivan for drunkenness was called and he was defaulted.

Elijah Phillips was fined $3 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

—The Taunton aldermen have given permission to the police officers to wear straw hats while on duty during the hot weather, and the New Haven authorities have gone still farther and given permission for the wearing of shirt waists and straw hats both of which orders are in the line of reason. The dignity of the force will not suffer at all in effectiveness by a little consideration for the comfort of the officers.—Haverhill Gazette.

—On July 2, the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals presented over 400 teamsters and herdic drivers with straw hats to protect their horses from the terrible heat.

—An old house has been discovered in Lisbon which dates back from the great earthquake of 1755. It is thought that a whole street of buried houses lies in a line with the one discovered.

Not Good Law.

Judge Dewey's decision in the case of the Commonwealth vs. the Hotel Hawthorne, John H. Wiener, proprietor, has stirred the officials of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society to outspoken objection.

Through the court's opinion it is now possible for a man to enter a cafe on Sundays or holidays and order a drink, without mentioning food, and get it. The only essential is that the waiter shall bring him eatables with the drink. The fact that food is set out, even when it is not called for, is sufficient to cover the law according to this, the latest judicial opinion.

The Total Abstinence people, however, are indignant at this alleged "letting down of the bars." Two of the vice-presidents, Henry H. Faxon and B. B. Johnson, have a joint statement setting forth their objections to the present condition of affairs.

Lawn Tea.

On Wednesday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Brown gave a very pleasant lawn tea in honor of their guest, Miss Hazel Call of Portland, Maine. They were assisted in serving by Miss Adelia Greenleaf of Providence, R. I., Miss Ethel Milkins of Lynn, Mass., Miss Litta Perkins of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Esther Brown of this city. Various games and vocal and instrumental music made it a very enjoyable occasion.

To Meet the Deficiency.

The Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias on Thursday decided that the most expedient way of meeting the deficiency of $500,000 in the treasury of the endowment rank is to raise the insurance rate to the maximum prescribed by the National Frational Congress. Immediately following this vote a resolution was introduced to expel Mr. Hinsey from the Supreme Lodge.

While this discussion was going on Mr. Hinsey tendered his resignation and the Supreme Lodge, seeing an easy way out of its dilemma, accepted the resignation.

Accident.

There was much excitement Tuesday afternoon at Wollaston when Patch's ice team started down Belmont street. Evidently the horses were frightened by a blast and they went down the hill at full speed. At the corner of Beale and Belmont streets, the team struck two trees breaking them down and smashing the harness and one of the front wheels. The damage was repaired in short order. What was amusing, was to see the driver of the team pursuing the animals.

—The world is full of interesting things if you know where to go to find them. Take the case of Professor Dexter of the University of Illinois. He has studied the effect of weather on morals, and finds that the desire to fight rises with the thermometer, but stops at 85; wilts after that as the mercury rises. Assault cases are therefore commoner in summer than in winter. Drunkenness, however lessens with summer and increases with the coming of cold. Suicides are at a maximum on bright days with a high barometer, and increase as the wind rises.

Washington, July 11. — Secretary Hitchcock today received a telegram from Assistant Commissioner Richards of the General Land Office, in charge of the opening of the Oklahoma lands, saying the registration plan is working successfully. Secretary Hitchcock estimates that 100,000 people could be registered easily by July 26, the last registration day. There are lands for only about 13,000 people.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

Witnesses Have Rights.

The New York supreme court in setting aside a verdict obtained in a rather sensational trial of a suit against a member of the Gould family, has put on record a sentence that deserves to be famous. It is to the effect that even witnesses in the courts have certain rights of privacy in confidential matters, which lawers are bound to respect; and that when a witness is examined as to former escapades which have nothing to do with the case, a verdict obtained by such methods may be vitiated by the higher courts. This declaration against the needless bullying and insults directed by cross examiners against witnesses will be received with profound admiration and approval by the general public. If courts generally will act upon it by protecting witnesses gratuitous and unnecessary blackguardism, much good will result.—Boston Advertiser.

Use For Lately Found Metals.

A number of newly discovered metals are now used in the arts. Thorium and cerium, which are worth $400 a pound, are used in the manufacture of fireproof curtains. Vanadium, worth $600 a pound, is used in colored glass and certain aniline dyes. Uranium, which costs $90 a pound, is much more extensively used in the manufacture of glass and porcelain. The hardest metal known is iridium, which is used for the points of gold pens. It is often found in connection with gold, and its price is $800 a pound.

Mineral Wax In Austria.

Ozocerite, or metal wax, is a resinous substance in many respects resembling beeswax. It is found in Austria-Hungary, Russia, Roumania, Egypt, Algeria, Canada and Mexico, usually in connection with rock salt and coal. But so far it has not been discovered anywhere in sufficient quantities to pay for the mining except in the district of Boryslaw, in the Austrian province of Galicia, and to a limited extent at Tchelekan, an island on the west coast of the Caspian sea.

American Engines the Best

Kingston, Jam., July 12.—Two engineers, representing an English company of locomotive builders, are here for the purpose of inquiring into the failure of English locomotives to perform the same work as American railroad engines. The visit of the engineers is the result of a Jamaican government protest on the subject.

Against Immigration to Equador

Kingston, Jam., July 12.—The government of Jamaica has issued an order against the further emigration of Jamaican laborers to Ecuador to work on the Guayaquil-Quito railroad. This is taken in consequence of the reported ill-treatment of Jamaican laborers at the hands of the American contractors.

Quiet Day on Battleships

Nantucket, Mass., July 11.—There was nothing of moment about the battleships yesterday. The marines are enjoying their land movements. Nantucket is now in telephonic communication with the flagship, Admiral Higginson having had a small cable laid from the battleship Kearsarge to the camp on shore.

Got Off With Fifty-Dollar Fine

New York, July 11.—Abram M. Rittenberg, the confectioner and fireworks dealer, in whose store in Paterson, N. J., occurred the explosion, on June 21, that resulted in the loss of 17 lives, was arraigned yesterday, and was fined $50 for having dynamite stored on his premises.

Statesmen Off For Philippines

New York, July 11.—The transport McClellan sailed yesterday for Manila. On board were Senator Bacon and Congressmen De Armond, Mercer, Gaines, Green, Weeks, Joy and Jack.

Hemlock Set at Liberty

Middletown, N. Y., July 11.—Fred Hemlock, who has been held at Grahamsville since Monday, under suspicion of being Wilfred Blondin, suspected of having murdered his wife, has been discharged from custody on the statement of Detective Dunham, who decided that he was not the man.

—The Granite Cutters' Journal says: "A Quincy employer recently called at headquarters long enough to say that the shorter work day is all right in that old granite cutting centre and that monuments are turned out at present cheaper than when journeymen were working longer work days. This bit of information [illegible] guage exactly for the union's contention a year ago last spring was that better conditions for workmen would increase and therefore cheapen their product and the enhanced conditions would increase the demand for the manufactured article to the mutual advantage of all. If the Quincy employers had taken our view of the situation a little over a year ago, the justice of which is now conceded, there need not have been over a week's suspension, nor would there have been so many patrons of that stock driven elsewhere to look for manufacturers to take and fill their orders."

—There appears to be enough "public spirit" in New York to make it mighty unprofitable to try to sell seats to the people in a supposably free park. —Brockton Enterprise.

The racing swimmers have started the season with somewhat of a rush. The waters at the various summer resorts and club courses are now fit for the swimmers' purpose. Contests throughout the country have been arranged by admirers of the sport, which might truly be termed the "king of aquatics."

Peter McNalley, the champion long distance swimmer of the world, now in the United States, intends challenging all comers. He is willing to meet the strongest of the American long distance cracks in competitions of any reasonable length or time.

The swimmers of the Amateur Athletic union are entering on an unusually busy summer. The organization, under the direction of President James E. Sullivan, has appointed Buffalo as the scene of the championship contests.

Champion Schaefer of the A. A. U. expects a strong corps of opponents in the races for the title. There are several members of the Knickerbocker and New York Athletic clubs of New York and several of the Chicago A. C.'s swimmers, who are capable of pushing Schaefer to the extreme limit of his power.

This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

IMPRISONED ON ISLAND

Sixteen Japs Captured by Union Salmon Fishermen

A BATTLE BETWEEN BOATS

In Which White Men Overcome Orientals and Destroy Fishing and Shooting Paraphernalia—Considerable Shooting, but Nobody Hurt

Vancouver, B. C., July 12.—The developments in the Frazer river strike situation have been startling. The union fishermen now have the upper hand, having accomplished a coup d'etat which is without parallel in the history of the many labor disturbances in British Columbia. As a result of a battle of small boats in the gulf, a battle in which many shots were exchanged, but in which no combatant was killed, 16 Japanese were taken prisoners by the strikers. The Japanese boats were overturned, the rifles and fishing gear of the Orientals thrown into the water and the Japanese themselves taken to one of the small islands away out in the gulf.

Exactly where this island is located is a secret of the white fishermen, for they chose it several weeks ago for occasions such as this. They say they will continue to maroon non-union Japanese there for the remainder of the season, or until the place is discovered by the authorities. All that is known is that the island is between here and Nanaimao, 50 miles away, and that it is hard to find. The Japanese will be given food every few days and made comfortable, although closely guarded until a settlement is reached or until their island prison is located by the authorities.

Two provincial constables were out in Japanese boats yesterday, and effected the arrest of six white fishermen. These are charged with milesting the Japanese. A shot was fired from another boat at the time of the arrest, and the arrested men themselves tried to bluff the constables at the time of the arrest by firing in the air. No one was hurt by the shooting.

The Japanese held a big meeting at Stevenson, raised by voluntary subscriptions $4000 for a Japanese hospital, which they think may be needed, and then discussed the salmon catching situation. Some are in favor of joining the union men in the strike. The meeting broke up without definite action.

A big run of salmon is reported coming in from the south. The canners think the union men will not stand firm in view of the temptation to participate in the catching. There is renewed talk of calling out the militia.

Another Conference Necessary

Pittsburg, July 12.—The great labor conference here yesterday failed to come to any agreement. Another conference will be held today. The object of the conference is the settlement of the strike ordered by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in the mills of the American Sheet Steel company, and in those of the American Steel Hoop company. The conference also has in view the prevention of a general strike in all the mills controlled by the United States Steel corporation, the two companies in whose mills the strike had been ordered being constituent companies of the great steel combine.

Defeat For Machinists

Newport News, Va., July 12.—The strike of the Newport News machinists came to an end last night at a meeting attended by practically all the machinists from the shipyard, when, by a unanimous vote, the men decided to return to work Monday at the old scale. The fact that the machinists could not obtain funds with which to support the idle men and that the shipyard management demonstrated its ability to fill the vacant places are responsible for the defeat of the strikers.

Disagreement Over Apprentices

Troy, N. Y., July 12.—The cutters in the employ of the United Shirt and Collar company struck yesterday, the company having refused to sign an agreement regarding the employment of apprentices. The company's refusal was made at the request of the Collar Manufacturers' association. The association includes all the prominent collar manufacturers of the city.

Grievance of Miners

Shamokin, Pa., July 12.—Hickory Ridge colliery is completely tied up by the 500 men and boys employed there going on strike, because a committee of the United Mine Workers were discharged for insisting on inspecting miners' cards to see if they belonged to the union.

Constitutionality of Eight-Hour Law

New York, July 12.—The court of appeals has decided that the eight-hour provision in the labor law is constitutional. This decision was handed down in the case of Eugene Lentilhon, who has the contract for the removal of the Bryant park reservoir, the future site of the public library.

Street Railway Employes Strike

Meridian, Miss., July 12.—The conductors and motormen of the Meridian Street Railway company went out on strike yesterday and completely tied up traffic.

Resignation Would Be Regretted

Berlin, July 12.—The Berliner Tageblatt, referring to the rumors that Ambassador White will resign, says: "Mr. White is the recipient of such confidence and veneration from all circles in Berlin that his departure would cause the keenest regret."

HOW IT WAS DONE

MacDonnell Admits That He Fired the Shot That Killed Price

New York, July 12.—Myles B. MacDonnell, who is on trial for the murder of George Price, testified in his own behalf yesterday. He said that for several years before the shooting he had been in the gambling business. He had some trouble with Tom Kennedy, and had been told that Kennedy intended to shoot him. On the night of the shooting McDonnell went to the Onawa cafe, where he found Kennedy and several friends, among them Price. A quarrel began immediately. Then, according to MacDonnell, Kennedy drew his revolver, and said: "I've got you cinched."

"I pulled my gun," MacDonnell testified, "and I caught Kennedy's hand and forced it into the air. I put my gun against Kennedy's heart, and the moment I did so he ceased to make any effort to struggle or get his hand down, and I said:

"Tom, I've got you cinched now, but I'll spare your life for the sake of your wife and children." They my arm was pulled down, and I tried to shoot whoever was pulling at me in the foot. I got my arm up and I fired again, thinking to hit Kennedy in the stomach.

"As Kennedy pulled around Price changed his position, and fired at me, and I raised my gun and shot Price before he could shoot again. Then I shot at Kennedy, aiming low, and then shot again at him as he fell. I saw Kennedy rise and go in a stooping position to the end of the bar, and I aimed at him, but found my revolver empty."

There was a stir in the court room when MacDonnell said he shot Price. The prosecution had long been unable to establish this point. MacDonnell, on cross-examination, said that he shot Price because he thought he was about to be killed himself.

Yerkes Gives Advice on War

London, July 12.—Charles T. Yerkes presided last night at the anniversary festival of the Salters company. Mr. Yerkes was the first American to occupy the chair upon the occasion of these anniversaries. Referring to the South African war, Mr. Yerkes said that the Boers were brave soldiers and resembled the early American frontiersmen. "Do not pitch into them unmercifully," he said, "but pitch into your own people who oppose the war and make them keep their mouths shut until the fight is over. Then settle your differences amongst yourselves."

Practical Slavery In Yucatan

Mexico City, July 12.—Serious charges are brought against certain labor contractors engaged in securing men to work on the Henquin plantations in Yucatan. It is alleged 18 married men with their families, and 22 single men were engaged to go to Yucatan under a promise of receiving $2 per day. On reaching Yucatan they were taken to the plantations where they claim that their wages were but 85 cents per day. Several men, with their wives and children, ran away, but were pursued, caught, and, it is alleged, brutally whipped.

Spanish Steamer Wrecked

AN ARAB WELCOME.

"Because thou com'st, a tired guest
Unto my tent, I bid thee rest.
This cruse of oil, this skin of wine.

An Arab chieftain treats a foe;
Holds him as one without a fault,
Who breaks his bread and tastes his salt;
And in fair battle strikes him dead
With the same pleasure that he gives him bread.

RESULT OF SPORTS

At Orangemen's Picnic—3,000 Present.

It is estimated that fully 3,000 were present yesterday at the picnic at New Downer Landing by the Orangemen of greater Boston to celebrate the anniversary of the battle of Boyne.

After the parade in Quincy in the morning special cars were taken for the grove. On reaching there a larger part of those present assembled in the theatre and listened to addresses by Grand Master Henry M. Strong of Braintree; Rev. James Todd, D. D., of Quincy; Rev. James McWhorter and Rev. C. C. Phalen of Maine. All spoke briefly of the principles of the order.

At 2.30 a series of sports were held under the direction of James Ray and resulted as follows:

One-mile run—Won by Alexander Phillips, William Bradford second, Andrew Dibbins third.

Pole vault—Won by Angus Martin, C. A. Stewart second, William McGill third. Height 8 ft. 5 in.

Hop step and jump—Won by Angus Martin, William Bradford second, Richard Kingston third. Distance 37 ft. 11 inches.

Fat mens' race—Won by J. K. McDonald, James Strong second.

Potato race—Won by Dexter Milligan, Fred Galbraith second, J. W. Cotton third.

Girls' race, quarter mile—Won by Martha McCrady, Mary McCrady second.

Boys' race, quarter mile—Won by William Milligan, C. F. Adams second.

Shot put—Won by J. Duard, R. H. McLeod second, J. K. McDonald third. Distance 33 ft. 7 in.

Running broad jump—Won by F. Gailbraith, A. Martin second, R. Kingston third. Distance 17 ft.

One-mile walk—Won by Dexter Milligan, W. J. C. Stracham second.

Sack race—Won by Dexter Milligan, Angus Martin second, J. W. Cotton third.

Obstacle race—Won by Dexter Milligan, F. Gailbraith second, J. Martin third.

100-yard dash—Won by F. Gailbraith, Richard Kingston second, C. A. Stewart third.

Five-mile bicycle race—Won by Andrew Dibbins, A. F. Warden second.

There were five starters in this race and Dibbins lapped them all. The second place was hotly contested Warden winning by less than a foot. The two winners were given gold medals.

On account of some hitch the tug-of-war between the Quincy and Cambridge teams did not take place.

There is considerable rivalry between these two teams, and a battle royal was expected at this meet, as each team had won twice and not a little disappointment was expressed that the teams did not get together.

Among the prominent members of the order present were past Grand Supreme Master James Ray. Past State Grand Master John Shaw and Deputy Grand Master John MacDonald.

The committee in charge were James Ray, John Shaw, Arthur Bentley, Gerald Graham, John MacDonald and John Turkington.

Caution.

Nahant, July 11th, 1901.

Mrs. George T. Bigelow has just received a paper, in which it is stated that a lawn party and school picnic will be held on her grounds on the 20th of July.

Mrs. Bigelow would state that she has been told on authority, that this invitation was given by the Rev. Mr. Friguglietti, from the pulpit of the Catholic church in Quincy.

Mrs. Bigelow would say that she has never given permission for her grounds to be used for this purpose, and that she will punish to the extent of the law, all who may commit this outrage.

THE SCARE OVER.

Last of the Small Pox Patients Released Today.

Bessie McLeod the last of the small-pox patients who have been under quarantine since May 30, and the nurse who has attended her, were released today. This morning Inspector Lennon of the Board of Health visited the houses and applied the match to all the bedding and clothing that has been in use at the pest houses. The houses themselves will be fumigated and then closed up with the hope that they may never be required again for the same purpose.

Just what expense the city has been to in these cases is as yet uncertain but it will be quite a large amount as the police service alone will figure up over $1,200.

Macbeth the man who first had the disease was a State patient and in his case part of the expense will be borne by the State, but the State will not pay any more than it is obliged to. In the case of the McLeod girl and the families who have been under quarantine that expense will have to be borne by the city. This will be no small sum as they have had to be provided with food and clothing during their confinement.

It can however be considered as money well expended as it has prevented the spread of this loathsome disease and the Board of Health is to be complimented upon the manner in which it has handled the case.

The Liquid Air Collapse.

Two years ago or thereabouts there was, as some of our readers will remember, a great furor over liquid air, an invention, or discovery, which was going to revolutionize a good share of the activities of the world, — particularly those requiring mechanical power. As we recall some of the claims, though most of them were deliciously vague, the promise was given that a liquid air machine once started, there was to be no limit to the power which would be devolved from it. In point of fact, the power would constantly increase in a manner unknown to any device which the ingenuity of man had ever made. Naturally enough, it was felt that here was the promise and potency of riches far beyond anything that the mind of man had conceived, and plans for commercially exploiting the discovery found many eager hearers. The very mystery of the terminology in which the accounts of the liquid air discoverers were couched, so inspired eagerness, and on the assumption that words which to the multitudes were meaningless were the expressions of profound scientific truth, many dollars were put into projects for utilizing liquid air in a multitude of directions. Now, though only a few months have passed away, liquid air is all but forgotten except for the reminders in the form of liquidation. A petition for a receiver for one of the companies heard in court in Boston the other day brought out the information that though hundreds of thousands of dollars had been put in, all that is left to show of assets is $7,500, while against this there are liabilities of $4,500—a queer showing in one way, when nobody expects anything from such an enterprise but altitudinous debts and no assets at all. The stockholders want the company wound up, and no reason appears why it should not be, as liquid air is not yet, at any rate, firmly enrolled among the profitable inventions of the hour. Undoubtedly there is something valuable about it but unfortunately it will not now have the credit which is its rightful due because of the extravagant and unwarranted exploitation of it by the promoters.—New Bedford Standard.

Married then Pardoned.

Gov. Savage of Nebraska on Thursday, at Lincoln, pardoned B. F. Valek, sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary for forgery, on the express condition that he marry Mrs. Rosa Blanche, a rich widow living at Stanton, and said to possess an estate valued at $40,000.

She applied for the license and met the convict in the executive office, where the ceremony was performed. Then the governor pardoned the bridegroom. The happy couple left for Stanton. The bride expressed her gratitude at the action of the governor. Valek had served a year and a half of his sentence.

HOPES FULFILLED.

After the rain, then the sunshine again;
After the night the dawn,
And a sweet release and abiding peace
After the pain has gone.
But over and over this lesson stern
The fickle and careless old world must learn:
Under the beauty and bloom of the rose,
In hiding, the sharp, cruel thorns repose.

He only knows of the sweetness that flows
From nature's purest rills
Who, weary, mounts to the life giving founts
Far up among the hills.
But over and over this lesson stern
The fickle and careless old world must learn:
Under the beauty and bloom of the rose,
In hiding, the sharp, cruel thorns repose.

After the fear and the sad, bitter tear,
Cometh the hope fulfilled;
After the climb, then the prospect sublime,
As the Good Father willed.
But over and over this lesson stern
The fickle and careless old world must learn:
Under the beauty and bloom of the rose,
In hiding, the sharp, cruel thorns repose.

LADY LIGHTFINGERS.

By M. Quad.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

The start of the whole matter was the lodging of a complaint at Scotland Yard by a well known jeweler doing business on the Strand. He had missed two diamond rings from a tray he had been exhibiting to several lady customers, but unfortunately for him the gems had been gone an hour perhaps before he knew that deft fingers had purloined them under his very eyes. He could recall the names of four or five ladies, and he headed the list with the name of a marquis' wife, but the inspector on duty might well smile and turn away at that. Had the jeweler not been in such a perturbed state of mind he would never have included that name. Indeed, before he left the place he apologized, partly to himself, for having given any names at all, as it was utterly absurd to suspect any of the owners of having taken the rings. He seemed to feel it a duty to report his loss, however, and after being quietly advised to have an eye on his employees and unknown customers he was dismissed with the promise that the matter would be looked into. As a matter of fact, no assignment was made on the case. Some flash chap had "lifted" the jewels without even his call being remembered, and it was no use to hunt for a needle in a haystack.

It wasn't three days before another case was reported by another Strand jeweler. This time it was a diamond sunburst, and he was positive that he had shown it to only three ladies before he missed it. He was reluctant to give the names, but when pressed to do so that of the marquis' wife again headed the list. The others were almost as far above suspicion, and the inspector looked at the complainant in a way to make him feel like a culprit. This time I was put on the case, but I shall be honest enough to say that it was a mere matter of form. It was more than any official's head was worth even to hint that one of the three ladies mentioned might have carried the ornament away in a moment of absentmindedness.

It was about five days after this that the third case was reported. This time a jeweler had lost a pair of valuable diamond earrings, and he had to be hard pressed by the inspector before he would admit that the loss was detected almost immediately after the marquis' wife had left the store. She had greatly admired the ornaments and had partly decided to purchase them at a later date. Not for one instant, not on his life, did the jeweler suspect the lady of title of even taking the jewel away in a fit of abstraction, but somehow he felt it his duty to report the case. The inspector didn't bluff this third tradesman quite as heavily as he had the first and second, and he looked grave and thoughtful when I was given the case and he related particulars. I was told to go my own way about it, but if I made a blunder Scotland Yard would see me no more as a detective. That wasn't at all encouraging, you see, but I had to go ahead and make a start. Much to my surprise, after thinking the matter over I came to the conclusion that the marquis' wife might possibly be guilty of shoplifting. The idea almost took my breath away at the first go off, but when I came to recall the many rumors about the marquis being a gambler, hard up, a man of miserish habits at home, and so forth, there looked to be something in it from a detective's standpoint.

The lady was well known to me by sight. She was past 45, much faded, and her face always carried a fretful, worried look. I simply waited until she appeared on the street in her carriage, as if bound on a shopping tour, and then followed her. It was a week after the third case was reported that she came out, and she went directly to a Bond street jeweler's. I followed her into the store, where she was known and received with great servility, and when a tray of jewelry was placed before her I felt sure that the next half hour would clear her of all suspicion or complicate the case still further. Her manner was that of lofty condescension. She slowly and languidly inspected the jewels, and now and then the proprietor of the store, who was waiting upon her in person, had his attention attracted for the moment elsewhere. My lady finally decided to call again and was bowed out, and she was hardly clear of the door when I revealed my identity to the jeweler and asked him to be sure that there was nothing missing from the tray. He was at first inclined to administer a snub, but when he found the finest ring of the lot conspicuously absent he almost fell over in a faint. There was no room to doubt that the lady had "lifted" it, but that only made the case worse in a way. For a tradesman and a detective to charge a lady of quality with shoplifting was as bad as treason against the crown. A mere word would bring financial ruin upon the jeweler, and he was ready to stand the loss ten times over rather than speak it.

Twice more within the next fortnight I followed the lady into jewelry establishments and morally convicted her of shoplifting. This made six cases in all, and, no matter how the victims felt, we of the Yard were quite determined that something ought to be done. I had been on the staff for ten years, and my work had given good satisfaction, but I was selected as a sacrifice. I mean by that that I was ordered to secure an interview with the lady, inform her of my discoveries and take the consequences. I must take all the burden on myself and clear the Yard. There could be but one ending, and before making my call my resignation was written out, and I had arranged to go with a private agency. One morning I appeared at the residence of the marquis and boldly asked for my lady on important business. I was kept waiting until she was satisfied that I was neither a process server nor a creditor and was then admitted to the presence of a very slipshod looking woman who showed me scant courtesy when she said:

"Well, sir, you are here, and now what is it?"

"It's about the jewelry, my lady," I replied.

"What do you mean?"

"The finger rings from Black's, the sunburst from Brown's, the earrings from Green's. You carried them away and forgot to return them."

My lady's face went white as snow, and she gasped for breath, and I expected to see her faint away. By a tremendous effort she pulled herself together, and as the color came back to her cheeks she hissed at me:

"You dog, you! The marquis shall see that you get your just deserts! Leave the house at once!"

I left, and within an hour the marquis was at the Yard to say that he would uproot the whole system if I was not promptly bounced and an apology rendered. The Yard apologized, I was bounced, and my lady had a story for her friends about attempted blackmail. There were no more thefts, however, and as a private detective I even recovered some of the stuff from the shops where my lady's maid had pledged them to raise cash for her mistress.

"Sweating" Bees.

The process known as "sweating" is not confined to human beings. It is applied to bees by some up to date keepers.

The natural tendency of the bee to work and its great dislike to idleness are made use of to the fullest extent. Honey is a product that yields a good profit, so the beekeeper brings the flowers as near as may be to the hive and induces his insect gatherers to work hard to collect the honey from them.

An expert beekeeper gives the following idea of what they will do. Seventy-five acres of land planted with white clover or sanfoin will keep 100 hives busy during the three summer months. The yield of honey for each fine day is ten pounds per acre, and as the plant flowers twice and remains in bloom for a week very often the total yield is 10,000 pounds.

Combmaking is lighter and less dangerous work than gathering honey, so the young bees usually perform this task. But the keeper wants them all to work and work hard, so he provides the base of the comb in natural size and pure wax. That leaves less work to be done at home, and the bees go out immediately there is nothing more for them to do inside. The keeper also takes care to constantly empty the combs, so that the bees shall always be laboring to fill it.—London Standard.

A Tired Man.

Once there was a man who complained constantly because it required so much toil for him to make a living. He declared that he would rather be buried than work for a living, and so his neighbors started out to gratify his wish. A stranger, seeing them about to entomb a living man, inquired why they were doing so. On being told that the man complained of having to work for a living and preferred to be buried, the stranger's heart was moved, and he offered to give the complaining man ten bushels of corn. "Is it shelled?" asked the discontented soul, and when informed it was not he remarked, "Well, then, let the burial proceed."

Too Much For Him.

Witness—He looked me straight in the eye and—

Lawyer—There, sir, you've flatly contradicted your former statement.

Witness—How so?

Lawyer—You said before that he bent his gaze on you, and now you'll please explain how he could look you straight in the eye with a bent gaze.

Witness faints.

For many years it has been a reproach in the theatrical profession that no vaudeville combination of either managers or performers will endure. Those who supported this theory based their opinion upon the allegation that the standard of intelligence in vaudeville was too low to make combination a successful possibility. This was simply another case of a correct conclusion based upon incorrect premises, for, while it does seem that no vaudeville coalition can endure, the real reason is not the one assigned by the promulgators of the axiom quoted above.

In a large city the so called "regular houses," which play visiting attractions provided by managers resident elsewhere, come into competition of only the most desultory type. In the vaudeville houses, however, the competition between managers for the services of a vaudeville performer whom they both chance to regard as a strong "card" is exceedingly keen and very naturally results in inflating the salary of the fortunate performer. In short, there is a perpetual clash of interests, which is practically certain in time to break up any combination aimed at the vaudeville "artists."

When the vaudeville managers' association was formed, it worked perfectly for a little while. Then the performers, feeling that they were not getting "all that was coming" to them, went into the White Rats. The fight between these two associations is too recent to need recapitulation. A little later, as every one excepting the members of the association foresaw, differences arose among the managers, and Mr. F. F. Proctor retired. Now it is rumored that the Orpheum and Kohl & Castle circuits will form an offensive and defensive alliance. If this is done, it is certain to precipitate the wildest fight ever seen in this country for the services of good vaudevillians, as in self protection the outside theaters in the cities controlled by the Kohl-Castle-Orpheum people will naturally form an opposition organization for a fight to the death. And, by the way, it is this prospective condition and the knowledge that if it should arise Keith and Proctor in the east will be strongly as ever aligned against each other that are responsible for the beatific smile which may be detected overspreading the countenance of the average vaudeville performer.

It is rumored that Mr. Leonard Boyne, who was last here as the leading man and producer of "The Prodigal Daughter," may be seen in this country during the coming season in a play of the same general type. Mr. Boyne is one of the best melodramatic actors England has ever sent us, and his coming would be something in the nature of an event. Mr. Boyne was for many years one of the best known and most popular romantic actors in England, but there was such a demand for his services in melodrama and he has for so many years been identified with that branch of effort that most chroniclers of the affairs of the stage have forgotten his earlier triumphs.

Whether or not the professional promises of Daniel Frohman are always justified by performance there can be no denying that he is always sincere in his announcements. When last season he declared that, barring accident, he would send Miss Hilda Spong out this year at the head of her own company, it was generally regarded as a sort of "feeler" designed to test public opinion as to Miss Spong, with the ultimate intention of making her a star a year from now. But Mr. Frohman is as good as his word. Arrangements for the Spong tour in "Lady Huntworth's Experiment" are now on foot, and, according to the plans laid out for that fortunate young woman, she will visit most of the very large cities of the country and will be relieved of that bete noire of the new star—one night stands.

It is needless to say that Miss Spong is not of stellar caliber. Every careful observer of the theater in America is well aware of that fact. Still, it is possible that with the advantages which will come to her from the Frohman management her tour will prove a financial success.

Success of New York Pitchers.

Burkett, the St. Louis star, ascribes the success of the New York pitchers, and especially of Mathewson, to the fact that there are no worse grounds to bat on in the country than the New York grounds.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 14—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC—Individual work for Christ.—Acts viii, 26-40.

The topical reference is the account of the conversion of the Ethiopian eunuch under the influence of Philip, the evangelist. It is a striking illustration of individual work for Christ. The Ethiopian was a man of rank and authority, being in the service of Candace, the queen of Ethiopia. He had been to Jerusalem to worship, but whether he was a Jew or a proselyte is not known. While returning to his home he was reading the prophecy of Isaiah concerning the sacrifice of Christ, but did not understand the prophecy. The angel of the Lord sent Philip to him. How, we do not know nor need to know. The fact is sufficient. Philip explained the prophecy "preached unto him Jesus." The Ethiopian believed, was baptized and "went on his way rejoicing."

This incident suggests important facts concerning individual work for Christ.

1. Individual work for Christ is commanded. Philip's work was in obedience to a divine command. "The angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise and go toward the south, * * * and he arose and went." God commands us all to do personal, individual work. Christ taught in a parable that there is "to every man his work." (1) There is work. (2) There is work for every man. (3) There is for every man his work. God has a work for every individual to perform. All have not the same talents, the same opportunities, but all have a work to do. If we fail, we lose the reward. Others may do the work if we fail or shirk it, but we will lose the crown of reward. Let us obey the command of God and do the work intrusted to us.

2. Individual work for Christ is necessary. Organized work is important and effective, but there are some things that organizations cannot do. A Christian Endeavor society could not have explained Isaiah's prophecy to the Ethiopian. It took an individual to do that. Organized work must never interfere with individual work. An organization is successful only as each individual member of it faithfully performs his part of the work. The danger of organization is that it may tend to lessen individual endeavor. As Endeavorers we should guard against the temptation and should be faithful as personal and individual workers.

3. Individual Christian work should exalt Christ. This is what Philip did. He "preached unto him Jesus." As individuals we should in all our endeavors preach Jesus—preach Him in our words and in our actions. The work that does not exalt Christ in some way is not Christian work. The work that exalts Him is the work that is for Him.

4. Individual work for Christ is successful. Philip was successful in his work. The Holy Spirit blessed his labors, the Ethiopian believed and was saved. God always has blessed individual work. There is nothing more effective than hand to hand work, and hand picked fruit is always the best. If each individual Christian would do his work for Christ, the world would soon be evangelized.

There's a work for me and a work for you,
Something for each of us now to do.

Let us do it prayerfully, earnestly, willingly, and God will bless our labors.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a testimony meeting, each one relating some experience of individual work for Christ.

BIBLE READINGS.

Eccl. ix, 10; Math. v, 16; xxv, 14,30; John i, 35-51; ix, 4; Acts, xix, 1-7; Rom. ii, 5-8; xii, 1-8; xiv, 1, 2; Gal. vi, 1-4; Rev. xxii, 12.

Choosing Duties.

No one can choose his duties. He may accept or reject those presented; there is no third course. He may shut his eyes and try to persuade himself that some things more pleasant, and not those painful, difficult things, are what is required of him. But it will be of no use. They will remain duties just the same. If they come to him in the order of God's will, his only hope of peace and true prosperity lies in manfully performing them. He will not escape by fleeing the pain or the trouble from which he shrinks. That is inevitable to every one who lives. But he may very easily escape the consolation, the high support, the glorious thrill of joy, which come only to him who stands manfully in the place allotted him and holds till death the post to which he was assigned.—Moravian.

Happy Homes.

The sweetest and happiest homes—homes to which men in weary life look back with yearning too deep for tears; homes whose recollections linger round our manhood like light and the sunshine and the sweet air, into which no base things can intrude—are homes where brethren dwell together in unity; where, because all love God, all love their brothers also; where, because all are very dear to all, each is dearer to each than to himself.—Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Farrar.

Where the Crown Is Won.

Not on the shining river,
Where summer shadows glide,
Our oars at rest in the rowlocks,
Borne by the silent tide;

Not in sweet scented gardens
Through lapsing summer days,
Where the smoke of the fierce world battler
Is changed to a rosy haze,

But out on the field of contest,
Where wrong is at war with right,
Girded with sword and buckler
In the thickest of the fight;

Respite the soldier earneth.
Peace is the fruit of strife.
"To him that overcometh
Is given the crown of life."

Independence Met With Accident at the Very Start

SHORN OF HER TOP-GEAR

Her Opponents Sped Along Under Full Sail While Repairs Were Being Made —Columbia Never Headed by Constitution and Won the Race

Newport, R. I., July 13.—The Columbia again defeated the Constitution in yesterday's race by a margin in corrected time of 2 minutes and 19 seconds, the Independence being once more the last boat, after losing her topsail at the very start. The Boston yacht, however, sailed such a remarkably plucky race after being shorn of her top gear, that it is generally believed here that she would have won the race but for the accident.

For 20 minutes after the start she sailed with the wreck of her clubtopsail trailing astern, while for six minutes she was motionless, luffed in the wind, while the crew cleared away the tangle. All the time the other yachts were speeding along under all sail, yet the Independence was only beaten seven minutes and 42 seconds at the first mark, and sailed the second leg of the triangle in less time than either of the other yachts, although they carried club-topsails. In the run home the two Bristol boats, under a greater sail, beat the Lawson boat a little over four minutes in 10 miles.

The Columbia was never headed by the Constitution, but the new boat gave the old one a warm contest, as if bitterly averse to giving up the laurels won in the first two races of the series. The Columbia had the better of both the reaches, but the Constitution sailed the windward leg a minute and a half faster than the old boat. She was never able, however, to quite reach the Columbia.

The result of the four contests between these three boats leaves much to be determined, especially as to their relative merits in anything except light airs. Yesterday's race was sailed in a 15-knot breeze.

The accident to the Independence occurred within two minutes after the start, the preventer backstay breaking near the cleat, so that the topmast with no support broke short off at the masthead. Fortunately none of the mainsail halyards of the stays for the head sails were affected, so that after the wreck was cleared away, the yacht was able to keep on.

The race yesterday closed the series and the yachts will not meet again for at least 10 days, the Constitution going to Bristol, the Columbia to New York and the Independence probably to New London. Of the four events under the Newport Yacht Racing association, the Constitution won the first two, in light airs, beating the other yachts by a large margin, while the Columbia won the last two in close finishes with the new Bristol yacht. The Independence has lost in every race, although quite near the other two yachts in the last two contests.

Mr. Lawson issued a statement last night in which he said he was satisfied with the result of the races, and that he believed the Independence was the fastest yacht afloat. He will endeavor to arrange other races for her, but will not take her around Cape Cod for some time, refitting her in New London.

BROTHER LOUIS IS DEAD

Succumbs to Stray Bullet Fired by Soldier at Target Practice

Boston, July 13.—Brother Louis, sacristan of the Mission church, who was wounded last Tuesday afternoon on a Nantasket steamer by a bullet supposed to have come from Long island, where United States soldiers were engaged in rifle practice, died last night at the Massachusetts general hospital. For two days after his injury, his life hung in the balance, and his death was looked for any moment, but on Friday he rallied and his attendants were encouraged to believe that he might possibly recover. The improvement could not be sustained, however, and during yesterday his condition became gradually weaker until the end came, shortly before 9 o'clock.

Old Dominion Still Fast

New Haven, July 13.—Steamer Old Dominion, which ran on the rocks of Blue Fish ledge, off Rye Beach, a week ago, is still fast on the ledge, and efforts to remove her have proved fruitless. Considerable dynamite has been used to blast the rocks that pierced her hull, but she still remains in about the same position. It is feared that if the wind continues she will go to pieces, as the strain on her hull is tremendous.

Governor Allen Will Preside

Boston, July 13.—The Republican state committee met yesterday and mapped out the plans for the annual state convention of the party, setting Oct. 4 as the date and naming Boston as the place for the gathering of delegates. Governor Allen of Porto Rico will preside, and Congressman Lovering will be chairman of the committee on resolutions. Caucuses for the election of delegates will be held Sept. 25.

A Delightful Trip

Boston, July 13.—The outing on the "broomstick" lines by First Assistant Postmaster General Johnson, his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson and Miss Kate O. White, who started on Monday from Hackensack, N. J., successfully ended in this city yesterday afternoon. The members were especially impressed with the beautiful suburbs of Boston and the scenery along the Connecticut valley.

Famous Frigate at Auction

Boston, July 13.—The secretary of the navy yesterday ordered the famous old Minnesota to be stricken from the naval register. A board of condemnation has just appraised her at $15,000, and she will be sold at public auction at Boston, where she now lies. Until recently the Minnesota was used as a training ship by the naval brigade.

Danger In Sardines

Natick, Mass., July 13.—The family of Mrs. Catherine La Plante, consisting of the mother and two daughters, Josetta and Mary, were made violently sick yesterday by eating sardines purchased from a Natick grocer. The daughters will recover, but Mrs. La Plante is in a very serious condition.

Skull Fractured In Assault

Boston, July 13.—An unknown man was found lying unconscious on the sidewalk in front of 28 Hanover street late last night, and was taken to a hospital, where it was found that his skull was fractured. His injuries are the result of an assault, but the police have not yet found his assailant.

Bullet Through His Heart

Maidstone, Vt., July 13.—Leslie Taylor, 21 years old, left home Thursday with the intention of shooting crows. He did not return during the night, and his family made a search of the neighboring fields yesterday, and found the body. Taylor had been accidentally shot through the heart.

Disagreeable For Sailors

Nantucket, Mass., July 13.—Rain made matters disagreeable for the sailors of the North Atlantic squadron yesterday. Excursionists had no liking for trips to the vessels, and no boats put off from the battleships except on business expeditions.

Firecracker Caused Lockjaw

Leominster, Mass., July 13.—Amos Cleutier, 15 years old, died yesterday from lockjaw, contracted on the Fourth as the result of a slight wound in the palm of his right hand, caused by the explosion of a small firecracker.

Suburbanites Are Scratching

Boston, July 13.—The plague of brown-tail moth caterpillars in Boston suburbs has resulted in the prevalence of skin irritation like the itch among the residents, supposed to be due to a fine dust shed by the caterpillars.

A MANAGEABLE AIRSHIP

Put Through Successful Test by Santos Dumont

DRIVEN BY MOTOR POWER

Ascent and Descent Under Perfect Control of the Inventor—Narrowly Escaped Collision With Eiffel Tower by Breaking of Rudder Rope

Paris, July 13.—Santos Dumont's cigar-shaped balloon, driven by a motor, had a trial yesterday from St. Cloud, across Paris, around the Eiffel tower and back to St. Cloud. The papers say that the trip was quite successful, and that the balloon ascended and descended apparently at the will of the aeronaut.

INVENTOR DUMONT IN HIS BALLOON CAR.

Santos Dumont says he first sailed five times around the Longchamps race course, then around the Bois de Boulogne and around the Eiffel tower. He adds that one of the ropes of the rudder broke, and that he had a narrow escape from colliding with the tower, so he descended to the garden of the Trocadero, to have the damage repaired, and afterwards again rounded the tower and returned to St. Cloud.

Seemingly, the balloon was under almost perfect control from first to last, apart from the breaking of the rudder rope. The average speed was 40 kilometres an hour, and the experiment was made at a height ranging from 100 to 270 metres. The aeronaut came down on selected spots without damaging the machine.

He will now make an official attempt to win the prize of 100,000 francs, offered by Henry Deutsch, for a manageable balloon, in the presence of a committee of the Aero club. The aeronaut will go over the same course as yesterday.

M. Santos Dumont, the Brazilian aeronaut, has been experimenting with his steering balloon for some time past. He made an attempt in October last to win the prize of 100,000 francs offered by M. Deutsch for the aeronaut who should sail his flying machine from the Aero club grounds, at Suresmes, round the Eiffel tower and back within half an hour, but failed, owing to the machine sustaining some damage. The distance to be run amounts to about eight miles.

In one of his previous trials M. Santos Dumont had already successfully flown around the Eiffel tower. He sits on a light metal shaft, to which an ordinary bicycle saddle is affixed. On his right side, and partly in front of him, is a gasolene motor, which, when started by the bicycle pedals below him, rotates the propeller at the end of the shaft. The fans, or blades, are made of steel and aluminum, covered with silk. The propellers make 180 revolutions to the minute.

Strike Leader In Contempt of Court

Paterson, N. J., July 13.—Vice Chancellor Pitney yesterday sentenced Clemans Herold, alleged to be a leader of the strikers at Frank H. Dugan's silk mill, to 60 days' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $50. Herold and a number of others were found guilty of contempt of court in disregarding the injunction restraining the strikers from "serenading" and otherwise annoying non-union weavers.

The Breach Widens

London, July 13.—The fissure in the Liberal party seems to be widening. Much significance attaches to the announcement that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, has written to Herbert Asquith, asking him to postpone the dinner which is being arranged by the Liberal imperialists in his honor, and that Mr. Asquith has refused to comply with the request.

Divorce and $2250 Alimony

Buffalo, July 13.—Justice White yesterday granted an order affirming the report of the referee in the case of Mrs. Florence E. Rogers, recommending absolute divorce from Edward F. Rogers and allowing $2250 permanent alimony. Mrs. Rogers is the daughter of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams, for whose alleged poisoning Roland B. Molineux is now under sentence of death.

MOB AT KANSAS CITY

Wreaking Vengeance Upon Negroes For Assault by Three Rascals

Kansas City, July 13.—A crowd of 2500 excited men and boys surrounded the county jail here last night, clamoring for vengeance against three negroes who assaulted Miss Grace Davis Wednesday night. Eight suspects are held at the jail.

The crime was one of the most daring outrages ever perpetrated here. Miss Davis and her escort, Vernie Newton, were walking together, when three negroes sprang upon them. Newton was knocked senseless. Both are in a critical condition.

At midnight last night the mob commenced to beat negroes with whom a quarrel could be provoked, and 10 black men were attacked and clubbed. A number of pistol shots were fired, but no one was wounded.

Policemen then drove the mob from the court house block, but 500 men remained in the streets a block away. Among these a rumor was current that a big crowd of stockyard men would arrive today prepared to storm the jail.

The crowd early this morning abandoned its lynching plan. Five hundred men, in squads of 75, raided the negro quarter in the north end, chasing and beating negroes and smashing windows.

No Signs of Rain

Kansas City, July 13.—No rain fell yesterday in any part of the drouth stricken section, including all of Kansas, western Missouri, Oklahoma and Indian Territory. Corn, oats, hay and potatoes are so badly injured that, even with rain, the yield will be short. At some places in Kansas there has been no rainfall whatever for nearly three months. The present is the worst drouth since 1860, when New England sent food to the settlers of Kansas. However, Kansas farmers are harvesting one of the largest crops of wheat in the history of the state. Hay sells at $20 a ton, 1 cent a pound.

Galveston, July 13.—Captain Woods of the British steamer Mohawk, told yesterday of his meeting with the little sloop Great Republic in mid-ocean. He said: "It was about 4 o'clock in the afternoon when I espied the boat. The sole occupant did not want to stop for us, but we got in so that he had to stop for us and talk a bit. He did not want to enev be reported, and seemed rather angry at us for having stopped him. We asked him where he was from and his name and he told us.

Bears Apology to Germany

Pekin, July 13.—The departure yesterday from Pekin of Prince Chun, younger brother of Emperor Kwang Su, who has been selected formally to apologize at Berlin for the murder of Baron Von Ketteler, was a spectacular event. A special train took Prince Chun and his suite from here to Taku, from which port they will proceed to Shanghai. He sails from Shanghai, July 20, for Genoa, and will proceed directly from there to Berlin by rail.

Princess Interceded For Offenders

Copenhagen, July 13.—Crown Prince Frederick yesterday received Lieutenant Commander Hughes of the Massachusetts schoolship Enterprise at the palace. Later the crown prince and his family visited the United States training ship Hartford. Princess Waldemar begged for the release of 14 persons undergoing punishment on board the Hartford. The request of the princess was granted.

England Wants Strategy School

London, July 13.—Lord Selborne, outlining in the house of lords last night the plans of the government for improving the navy, said it was proposed to establish a school of naval strategy, such as existed in the United States. Lord Dudley rather startled the peers by saying that the number of British seamen was now 5000 fewer than it was 30 years ago.

Newark Going Out of Commission

New York, July 13.—The United States cruiser Newark, which arrived in this port last Saturday from Hong Kong, sailed last evening for Boston, where she will be placed out of commission for overhauling and re-equipment. Captain McCalla, commanding the Newark, has orders to assume command of the battleship Kearsarge, Admiral Higginson's flagship.

Death of President of Chile

Buenos Ayres, July 13.—Senor Frederico Erzzuriz, president of Chili, who had been in feeble health for more than a year, is dead. He was elected president of Chili June 25, 1896, for a term of five years, which began Sept. 18, 1896.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Venezuelan authorities have taken note of the presence in New York of several prominent adherents of those who have sought to arouse armed resistance against the existing government in Venezuela.

Two torpedoes, laid at the mouth of the Toulon harbor, France, exploded, owing to the wires being disturbed by electrical storms. There was no shipping in the vicinity at the time.

Captain Berry has been detached from the naval war college and assigned to command the cruiser Dixie.

The investigation into the matter of the Polish secret society said to exist among students in West Prussia has been completed, and, as a result, 60 students will be brought to trial.

Mrs. J. S. Yates of Kansas City was elected president of the National Association of Colored Women, defeating Mrs. Booker T. Washington and Mrs. Bruce of Josephine, Miss.

Good Afternoon.

A doggy place. The town of Hope, in Kansas, has 302 citizens and 250 dogs. A small place for Hope.

How nice and refreshing the cool east breeze is in July. Quite a change from that felt in this city during the spring months.

There is a fine display of all seasonable fruits and vegetables at the market, in this city, with moderate prices ruling generally. The quality is up to the usual good standard.

The weather has not been the best for haying this week. There is an immense crop and much has been gathered, still there is much grass to be cut. Weeds are growing fast as well as vegetables, owing to the wet weather, and much cultivating is needed. The crops in Quincy and vicinity as a whole are good.

Thec circus has come and gone, but it will linger in the minds of young and old for many months, if not years. The horses, trained and almost human in their part of the performance, the good-natured clowns, the funny acrobats; one grand bewildering scene. To take in everything at once, one should have at least three pair of eyes.

Money was very plenty in Quincy yesterday. Main's circus collected between two or three thousand dollars at their show on River street. Their immense tent was crowded with visitors. The evening audience was estimated at about four thousand. It was a splendid day. The children all turned out with their parents and grandparents, and a happy time they had.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞This year's tax rate in New York city will be $23.50 per $1000. Tammany luxury comes high says the Lynn Item.

New Bedford Standard—Four pretty girls were arrested in a Nebraska town for violation of the curfw law, and the courts promptly found the law unconstitutional.

☞This time the resignation of Gov. Allen of Porto Rico appears to be a fact, and indications point to the recognition of his wish and the appointment of Secretary William H. Hunt in his place.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Out in Colorado a court has decided that a woman has the same right to buy liquor in a saloon as a man. The decision is made the topic of more or less alleged witticism, but it is only straight common sense, after all.—New Bedford Standard.

☞If McKinley's friends really want a continuation of his policy and the Republican party is a unit for it why not nominate Secretary John D. Long? He would make an ideal president and could be elected.—Beverly Times.

☞The Springfield Republican favors Hosea M. Kowlton for Lieutenant Governor, but the sturdy Attorney General shakes his head and declares that he will not be a candidate for the second place, "not this year, nor next year, nor any other year," and there is no doubt that he means it. But the Springfield Republican is outside the combination that selects Governors, although it backs up Governor Crane to the highest degree. — Haverhill Gazette.

☞Under the new Army law the regular artillery corps of 18,000 men is being created on the installment plan, as it were. It stands now at about 11,000; its final strength is 18,000. Secretary Root has just directed that 1800 men be added at once. As fast as they are enlisted they are assigned either to coast batteries, which handle the great harbor defence guns, or to field batteries, which serve with moving troops. Men of exceptional physique and intelligence are insisted on for the artillery corps. It is, in a way, the aristocracy of the army, and even in these piping times of peace Uncle Sam finds it rather easy to get plenty of first-class material.—Boston Journal.

Universalist Annual Convention.

The Old Colony Association of Universalists held their annual meeting at Ridge Hill Grove, Norwell, last Wednesday, from 10.30 A. M. to 4 P. M. Being a postponed meeting and unsettled weather many people who had planned to attend were absent. There were 106 members and friends present representing Braintree, Quincy, North Weymouth, Hingham, Brockton, Hanover and Norwell.

Rev. Frederick R. Griffin of All Souls' church, Braintree, opened the devotional exercises. Among the other speakers were Rev. Merrill C. Ward of Quincy and Hingham, Rev. T. A. Fisher of Medford Hillside and Rev. C. F. Burrough of Norwell.

At 1 P. M. basket lunch was enjoyed the ladies of the Hingham society serving hot coffee and lemonade. The business meeting was held at 3 P. M. Rev. F. O. Hall of Cambridge and Rev. Melvin Nash of Weymouth were absent, much to the regret of the gathering.

Cadets in Camp.

The 1st corps of cadets, M. V. M., began their tour of camp duty last evening at their beautifully located grounds on Burditt avenue near the summer residence of Secretary Long in Hingham. They reached town at 6.10. Column was quickly formed by Adjt. Stearns and the cadets proceeded to the camp grounds.

The regular duty of the corps began this morning. Adjt. Stearns gave out the following calls to be observed during the week: Reveille 6 A. M., surgeons' call 6.45, breakfast 7, first sergeant's call 8, guard mount 8.15, fatigue 8.45, company drill 9.30, recall 10.30, rifle practice 10.45, dinner 1 P. M., first sergeant's call 3.45, battalion drill 4, recall 5, escort to colors and inspection 5.15, battalion parade and retreat 6, supper 6.45, evening band practice 7.45 to 9.15, tattoo 10, taps 10.30.

Lieut. Col. Edmunds is determined to make this camp as profitable to men and officers as possible, and commencing Monday evening outpost duty will be performed by details every night. It will be in this duty that the men will be taught to provide for themselves.

Wednesday has been designated as governor's day. Lieut. Gov. Bates, in the absence of Gov. Crane, who is taking a summer vacation, will arrive at the camp just before noon, and the review will take place about 3 in the afternoon.

The regular Sunday service will be held in the mess hall and Rev. W. B. Roberts of St. John's church, East Boston, will deliver the address. A quartet from the corps will furnish the music on this occasion.

The Main Circus.

Between 3000 and 4000 people attended the circus performance in Quincy last night. It was a grand good show. Everything was clean and there was much to amuse. The Grecian art statuary that followed the grand entre at the opening was very fine. The horizontal bar, the unsurported ladder, and the slack wire work was good. The best act was perhaps the grand pyramid of horses, twenty-five horses being shown in one ring at one time.

Tennis Tournament.

In the finals of the Cochato club tennis tournament which were played off last Monday evening after having been postponed from Independence day by darkness, Hollis won the left over deuce set, 9-7. In the deciding set Pattern secured a lead of 4-1 and then of 5-2 over Hollis and several times was within one point of winning the match. Hollis however by very brilliant play pulled out the set 7-5, winning the match and tournament. As the three deuce sets show, the two men were very evenly matched. Pattern, John Arnold, C. M. Emerson and Nat Wales will play off for the consolation prize. Hollis beat Pattern 6-8, 9-7, 7-5.

—It is to be feared that the efforts of college authorities to keep students from semi-professionalism in athletics during vacation will be rather unfruitful. You see, it is this way: When a baseball player attaches himself to a summer resort hotel team, for board and lodging, he is sure to have his innings all the time.—Daily Advertiser.

A Floating Hotel.

There is something extremely alluring in the idea of a deep-sea summer hotel, of which Mr John Arbuckle, with chracteristic enterprise and generosity, is giving practical exemplification in New York. The plan to give tired city workers, men and women, a chance for a short ocean cruise, after a fatiguing day in city streets, with a comfortable night's rest, breakfast on board and a return in season to take up work the next morning, is as novel as it is delightful.

The project is neither a charity nor a money-making enterprise. Nothing is given away, but the excellent accommodations which are furnished are to be put at the disposal of all suitable persons at a price so moderate as to fall within the means of workingmen and women. In brief Mr. Arbuckle's fleet willl be a kind of Mills Hotel afloat. The happy voyagers who go aboard on Saturday night will be able to secure a cruise continuing until Monday morning, and will visit Newport and other places of interest. No liquors will be allowed on board, and all rules essential to the comfort of respectable men and women in search of rest and pleasure will be strictly enforced.

Mr. Arbuckle's initial fleet comprises the 1000ton-sailing ship Jacob Stamler, the yacht Gitana, the pilot boat Hermit and the ocean tug John Harlin. The Stamler will accommodate 2500 passengers, and the Gitana and the Hermit 40 each. The last-named is reserved for men. Dinner and breakfast will be served on board. The staterooms are fitted with washstands, and many of them with bath-tubs. There is a handsome apartment for women and a smoking room for men.

The staff includes chaperones for young women passengers. The plan altogether is well-conceived and it is to be hoped that the "Arbuckle Deep-Sea Hotel" may have many prosperous voyages.—Boston Journal.

Officers Installed.

The recently elected officers of Div. 12, A. O. H. were installed at Red Men's hall, Thursday night by State President James Flannigan and staff of Quincy and in spite of the heavy rain a large party of invited guests from neighboring lodges were present and spent a very pleasant evening.

After the installation the evening was devoted to speech making by James Foley of Randolph and James Flannigan of Quincy, also vocal selections by Michael Hartney of Quincy which were very well rendered. Refreshments were served during the evening. The officers installed were:

President,—Morris E. Flynn.
Vice President,—John Culllivan.
Recording Secretary,—John Heaney.
Financial Secretary—John Hart.
Treasurer,—John F. Sullivan.
Sergeant-at-Arms,—William Buckley.
Sentinel,—James Gallivan.

The following officers were chosen by President M. E. Flynn during the evening:

Finance Committee, — Daniel Gallivan, Edward Starr, George Slavin.

Initiation Committee, — Morris E. Flynn, John Cullinan, John Heaney, John Hart, John F. Sullivan.
Secretary of Reserve Fund,—John F. Sullivan.
Employment Committee,—James J. O'Keefe, Thomas Kelliher, John J. Mahar,

James King was chosen treasurer in place of John F. Sullivan who resigned.

The affair was in charge of the following committee to which much credit is due for so successful affair: John, Culinan, Edward Flynn, John Connors, James Gallivan.

—A young man, who said he was John D. Rockefeller, Jr,, ordered this week at various candy stores in Chicago, 500 one-pound boxes of chocolate creams to be sent the Woman's hall of the Chicago university, and directed that the bills be sent to him at the Auditorium hotel in that city. When the bills were presented the young man could not be found; and young Mr. Rockefeller had not been in the city for some time. The university officials are wondering whether the candy orders were a joke, or due to an irresponsible mind. The candy was returned to the shops.

Trenton, N. J., July 12.—There was a comparatively heavy fall of snow in this city today. The snow was plainly visible during a heavy rain storm, which began shortly after 2 o'clock. The flakes were large and created considerable comment in the city. The occurrence is unprecedented hereabouts.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. ## Timely Topics.

The following is taken from the Hull Beacon of last week:

"Twenty-one years ago next Thursday," said the Middle Street Man, in his weekly talk last Monday, "July 4, 1880, the Nantasket beach railroad was opened to the public, and the first train was run over that road. It does not seem such a long time ago to look back to it, but when we come to consider that children then unborn will be eligible to vote at the election in November, we are fain to admit that time does fly, and that some of us are getting old.

"I remember the event of the opening of that road as if it were but yesterday, and indeed it does not appear so far back in the dim ages as the incoming crop of voters might think, but when I look back and note the changes that have taken place in the territory through which the road runs, I am forced to acknowledge that it was not yesterday nor last week nor even last year that Superintendent George L. Keyes saw his first train load of passengers safely transported over the line.

"The road as it was originally built started from near the bathhouse at the Rockland cafe, and extended to Point Allerton, with a Y track running to the boat landing on Strawberry hill, where Harvey T. Litchfield had a wharf, and to which a line of excursion steamers, under his management, brought vast multitudes of people, attracted thereto by lavish advertising and low fares. Mr. Litchfield was a past master of the art of advertising, and a liberal patron of the printers.

"The territory through which the railroad runs was then almost an undiscovered territory, except to Mr. Litchfield and a few other farsighted men, and where at the present time handsome cottages cover the landscape there was then nothing but a barren waste of sand. Men with guns upon their shoulders tramped the plains in search of plover, yellow legs and snipe, and no sound broke the stillness of the day except the whistle of the engine and the report of the guns.

"Hobartville, a small settlement of about a dozen summer cottages, named in honor of that sturdy citizen of Braintree, Hon. F. A. Hobart, and inhabited mostly by residents of that town and Brockton, was in existance on the inside shore, but apart from that, few houses appeared to distract the attention of the passengers from undisturbed admiration of the boundless expanse of blue ocean extending away off to the shores of another continent.

"On the ocean side, near what is now known as Waveland, there were three summer hotels. About half way between the ocean and Litchfield's wharf, D. O. Wade had a grocery store and cafe in a small building. Close to the wharf was the Sea Foam house and the residence of Mr. Litchfield, and apart from these there were no houses from Point Allerton hill to the Ocean house, with the exception of a small building occupied by Capt. Jack Hayden as a home.

"The road was built partly for the purpose of aiding in the development of that portion of the beach, and also as an outlet by which passengers on the Litchfield line of boats could reach the locality of Hotel Nantasket, then the great centre of attraction for visitors from Boston. It also afforded an opportunity for a ride along the beach to those who cared to expend a dime for the ride over and back, with a view of Neptune, the Sea Serpent and Harding's ledge thrown in.

"The road was fairly successful from the start, but on account of its diminutiveness, and the fact that it commenced at a bathhouse and ended at Jack Hayden's shanty, together with the fact that the season did not last more than 10 weeks, I am afraid that the stockholders did not develop into Vanderbilts, Rockefellers or J. Pierpont Morgans on the strength of their profits. But those who originated the idea can have the satisfaction of feeling that their plans, if a little premature, were well contrived.

"Since the days when William K. Wood placarded the whole United States with canvas posters bearing the picture of an immense clam underneath the words 'clams R Ripe', and above the inscription 'Ocean House, Nantasket beach,' nothing has done so much to advertise the beach as the building, extension and operation of this road, and the evolution it has undergone from its modest beginning to its present state, with its power house, trolleys, motors, electricity and all that.

"Harvey T. Litchfield and William K. Wood were among the first to appreciate the benefits that such a road would bring to Nantasket beach and they entered heartily into the movement for its construction. They saw the possibilities of the locality and while others held back they pushed ahead. They felt that the future had great things in store for that vicinity and the rapid development of the beach proves that they were wise beyond their day and generation.

"Both men were ardent believers in the benefits of advertising, and Litchfield with his steamboats and Wood's big clam have made the name Nantasket a familiar one from Maine to Texas. If they were back again at the scene of their early labors, with the vigor of strength and power of discernment which they once possessed again put forth, the beach would see a more rapid growth than at present. It seems to me that many who are directly interested in booming the place are behind the times."

A Lady Pilot.

We have some very skilful pilots in Quincy but whether they can excel Mrs. Byrminia Maude Hird, recently appointed, we cannot answer, but certainly she is one of the few women pilots in the United States. She is duly authorized, the Boston Post says, to navigate the waters of Massachusetts Bay.

She pilots at present the pleasure steam yacht Ripple which is owned by her husband, Officer Frank J. Hird of Division 3; her brother, officer Hugh F. Marston of Division 11 and herself. Both her husband and brother are also licensed pilots, her husband being further licensed as engineer.

Mrs. Hird has had seven years experience in qualifying herself to hold a pilot's license, and in the cyclone of last week Mrs. Hird was in command of the Ripple off Squantum Gut.

The yacht lost her flagstaff and deck fittings in the hurricane and the tender was swamped. The party for which Mrs. Hird's seamanship, skill and courage were responsible consisted of five badly frightened persons. They thought they were going under at one time, and got out the life preservers, but the fair pilot's nerve landed them safely.

The Marstons, brother and sister were born in Boston, on Whall street, and took to the water from the start. Mrs. Hird is a woman of unusua ability and intelligence, much of which, her friends say is due to heredity, for she is the granddaughter of Daniel Webster.

Another Victim.

Mrs. W. S. Taylor, whose death at Indianapolis was announced Thursday is another victim to the strange and terrible Goebel tragedy. She was sharing the exile of her husband, a year and a half ago the leader of the Republican part of Kentucky and the elected governor of the state, today a fugitive from justice.

Goebel was shot on Jan. 30, 1900, in the midst of that savage contest for the control of the state and at the height of his arrogant, corrupt and most mischievous power. A confession was made by a deputy in the office of the state auditor, from whose window it is alleged Goebel was shot. It implicated Taylor, then defacto governor by military inaugration, and eight other Republicans, including several of great prominence, in the plot to murder Goebel.—The World.

—"I am still a young man," said Russell Sage the other day, "for a man is young just as long as he takes an active interest in his own life and the life of the world at large." Weary gentlemen who want to "retire" and loaf out their existence after they reach 50 are invited to read this notice, sit up and look pleasant.—Brockton Enterprise.

—A railroad station master in Pennsylvania has decided to stop rice throwing at wedding parties in his station. This compels the merry party to find some new form of cruel and unusual punishment with which to make life a horror for the newly wedded.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

—There is a funny condition of things in Lowell. The poor farm management wanted to set off fireworks to amuse the inmates. The overseers of the poor and the mayor declined to approve any bill for such entertainment. The fireworks were exploded, the paupers were tickled half to death and now the seller is wondering who will pay the bill.

ANXIOUS TO LEARN.

EAGERNESS OF FILIPINOS TO ACQUIRE "AMERICANO" EDUCATION.

What the United States Government Is Doing to Satisfy This Ambition. Professor Atkinson's System of Public Instruction.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, July 16.—With the inauguration of civil government in the Philippines, with Judge Taft at its head, the friends of the administration here feel that the knotty Philippine problem is now fairly well along toward solution. An especially encouraging feature of the situation is that which relates to the education of the natives.

Though it is beset with many and perplexing obstacles and limitations, there is presented this very hopeful outlook—the intense eagerness of the Filipinos to acquire the "Americano" education. They are both anxious and quick to learn our language, adopt our ideas and assume our modes of thought, and that is more than half the battle. Besides, much wisdom seems to have been shown in selecting the men to administer this important branch of the civil commission's functions.

The Taft commission, sent out nearly two years ago by President McKinley to blaze the way for civil government, early recognized the fact that the education of the rising generation was the most powerful lever with which to elevate the Filipino people to the standard of good and useful citizenship. When the question arose as to where to find for this work a man who combined the necessary pedagogical training and experience with the business ability to grapple with the many problems of construction and administration presented in this new field, the commission consulted the presidents of the leading colleges of the United States. As a result Professor Fred W. Atkinson, a Harvard graduate, then principal of the Springfield (Mass.) high school, was tendered the position, it being understood that he was recommended by both President Eliot of Harvard and President Schurman of Cornell. The appointment was unsolicited by Professor Atkinson and was entirely nonpolitical. After an investigation of the proposition, in which he became deeply interested in the Filipinos and their country, he accepted the appointment as general superintendent of the public instruction of the Philippine Islands and entered upon the duties of his office on Sept. 1, 1900. Since then he has been busy on the preliminary construction work of a system of education based substantially upon our own. He has had to build from the ground up, but has already much to show for his efforts.

The cause of education in the archipelago will no doubt be greatly advanced by the appointment of Professor Bernard Moses, one of the civil commissioners, to the head of the department of public instruction, which, with other bureaus, is being organized by Governor Taft and is expected to be in operation before Sept. 1. Prior to his acceptance of a position on the Philippine commission Professor Moses was for a number of years an instructor in the University of California, holding the chair of history and political economy, upon which subjects he is recognized as an authority. He has published several books which have given him high rank among the political economists of the country. Four lectures published two years ago under the title "Democracy and Social Growth In America" attracted wide attention. One branch of study Professor Moses has conducted for several years, the fruits of which will prove of special value to him in his new position, is "The Colonial Systems of Different Nations."

Reports which reach here from the Philippines, official and otherwise, indicate gratifying progress in the establishment of the educational system, despite the obstacles encountered. Upon the basis of recommendations made by Superintendent Atkinson the commission some time ago enacted laws creating a centralized department of public instruction for these islands, and under the direction of the general superintendent there are to be 18 division superintendents located at the more important towns of the archipelago, which has been divided into 18 school divisions as follows:

| Name. | Population. | Headquarters. |
|---|---|---|
| Manila, city | 350,000 | Manila |
| Panay | 734,889 | Iloilo |
| Negros | 391,777 | Bacolod |
| Cebu | 594,076 | Cebu |
| Bohol | 248,000 | Tagbilaran |
| Leyte | 270,491 | Tacloban |
| Zamboanga and Jolo | 66,027 | Zamboanga |
| Mindanao | 239,197 | Cagayan |
| Camarines | 428,212 | Nueva Caceres |
| Pampanga | 504,932 | San Fernando |
| Pangasinan | 505,641 | Dagupan |
| Samar | 258,270 | Catbalogan |
| Nueva Ecija | 195,139 | San Isidro |
| Ilocos Sur | 293,967 | Vigan |
| Ilocos Norte | 257,305 | Laoag |
| Cagayan | 150,383 | Aparri |
| Cavite | 550,335 | Cavite |
| Laguna | 369,983 | Calamba |

A considerable number of these division superintendents have been chosen, and a few have already been installed in their positions. The school law enacted by the commission also provides for the employment of 1,000 teachers from the United States, of which number nearly 800 have been chosen. The selection of both the division superintendents and teachers is in the hands of Superintendent Atkinson, who has given the greater part of his time to this work since the passage of the act authorizing their appointment. According to reports from Manila, more than 8,000 teachers' applications from all parts of the United States have been received and passed upon by him. Applications for teachers' positions in the Philippines have been received from all classes and professions, not a few having been made by lawyers, business men and practical machinists, doubtless with a view to securing transportation to this new field. However, many applications have been received from professional teachers vouched for in the highest terms by the educational authorities. A number of this class have signified their willingness to accept the same salaries for work in the Philippines as they now receive in the United States, and a few have offered to go for less. The leading colleges and normal schools are heartily co-operating with Superintendent Atkinson in securing teachers.

No religious distinction has been made in these appointments, nor has any race line been drawn, the sole desire being to secure competent and enthusiastic teachers of the highest character. It has been deemed wise, however, to require that all appointees to this work shall be citizens of the United States. The chief requirements for appointment specified by Superintendent Atkinson are graduation from a college or normal school of good standing and evidence as to the good character and successful teaching experience of the applicant, to be furnished by school men with whom he is personally acquainted and in whose judgment he has confidence or by educational officials whose character is known to him by repute. A limited appointing authority has been conferred by him upon nearly all the leading colleges and normal schools in the United States and upon many of the state superintendents.

Five hundred bright and enthusiastic young men and women who have received notice of appointment as teachers in the Philippines are now on their way to the orient or soon will be. They are conveyed thither by the army transports, going by way of San Francisco. About half this number left on the transport Sherman a few days ago, and the balance will go on the next outward bound transport. The war department has been very liberal in its treatment of the American teachers and has greatly facilitated the educational work of the commission in the Philippines.

In a report to the commission Superintendent Atkinson says:

"The greatest present need is that of adequate and suitable school buildings. As soon as practicable all rooms, buildings or parts of buildings rented or assigned for school purposes should be used exclusively for school purposes, and no teacher or member of a teacher's family should be permitted to dwell therein. All school buildings occupied by soldiers or in any way used for military purposes should be turned over to school authorities at the earliest practicable moment. Nearly all the buildings that have been used for military purposes are in a poor condition, and it will be necessary for the municipalities to spend money for their alteration and repair."

It is Superintendent Atkinson's policy to make the English language the basis of all public instruction at the earliest practical moment, and it has already been introduced as such. This seems the part of wisdom, since only a small portion of the population speaks Spanish, and the rest is divided as to language into a dozen different Malay dialects, each unintelligible to the other.

BERNARD MOSES.
[Commissioner of public instruction.]

Superintendent Atkinson announces to the Filipinos that the American superintendents and teachers are being brought from the United States for the purpose of creating and putting into operation a school system for these islands and that they are coming to teach the Filipino teachers American methods. He tells them that no Filipino teacher will be discharged from any position he may now hold except for incompetency or immorality and that as soon as they prove themselves capable to take charge of their own schools the United States authorities will turn the administration thereof over to the Filipinos. SAMUEL HUBBARD.

SIGNATURES OF LACUNA

So Skilfully Forged That Aguinaldo Was Deceived

FUNSTON GIVES DETAILS

Of How the Capture of Aguinaldo Was Planned and Carried Out Successfuly—Maccabebes Had a Bad Case of "Rattles" at Critical Time

Washington, July 13.—The war department yesterday made public Brigadier General Funston's report of the capture of Aguinaldo, made under date of May 6.

This report presents in detail all the facts relating to the capture of Aguinaldo which were made public at that time. General Funston goes into details concerning the captured correspondence from Aguinaldo, and the use he made of Cecilio Sagismundo, who had presented himself to Lieutenant Taylor with letters of Aguinaldo that he was to deliver to various insurgent chiefs. General Funston gives the following account of the forged letters which were used to deceive Aguinaldo:

"On Oct. 24, 1900, while scouting in the vicinity of Gapan, I had surprised the insurgent chief, Lacuna, in his camp, and had captured, among other things, some writing paper which already bore his headquarters' seal. On this paper two letters were written to Aguinaldo over the carefully forged signature of Lacuna.

"One of these letters was dated Feb. 24, 1901, at Bulao. In it Lacuna acknowledged the receipt of Aguinaldo's letters of Jan. 13 and 14, and thanked him for the confirmation of his (Lacuna's) appointment as brigadier general, made some time previously by Alejandrino.

"It will be remembered that the letters referred to had fallen into our hands. Our letter indulged in the usual rhetoric employed by the insurgent chiefs in their correspondence, and gave a glowing account of the progress of the campaign, from the standpoint of Lacuna.

"Another letter, supposedly from the same place, but dated Feb. 28, was prepared, stating that the writer had just received a communication from Baldomero Aguinaldo ordering him to send one of his best companies under a reliable chief to Emilio Aguinaldo in Isabela.

"In accordance with these orders, he was sending this force, under Lieutenant Colonel Placido. The letter, he stated, had been captured by the Americans a year ago, and, after his release had lived in Jaen, but recently had taken to the field again, when ordered to do so by Lecuna. This was included in the letter, for fear that Aguinaldo might have heard that Placido had been captured by the Americans and had taken the oath of allegiance. The letter also stated that Aguinaldo's courier, Cecilio Sigismundo, was with Lacuna, and would accompany the column. These two letters were dictated by me, but were written by Segovia. We were in possession of a number of samples of Lacuna's signature, and had previously succeeded in executing a very neat forgery of his autograph at the end of each one of the two sheets."

Of the actual capture General Funston says: "The Maccabebes started up into the town and we heard a few shots, followed by scattered firing. We hastily crossed the river and, running up into the town, found that the Maccabebes were somewhat demoralized. Aguinaldo's guard of about 50 armed and uniformed men had been drawn up to receive the reinforcements, and, on being fired into, broke and ran, a few of them returning the fire as they retreated.

"Aguinaldo, with his officers, had awaited in his quarters. Placido and Segovia entered the house to report the arrival and after a short conversation Segovia stepped outside the house and ordered the Maccabebes who had just come up to open fire on the insurgents, who were standing in line at a distance of about 50 yards. The Maccabebes were so excited and nervous that their fire was very ineffective. But two of the insurgents were killed, the remainder, in their flight, throwing away 18 rifles and 100 rounds of ammunition.

"As soon as Segovia had given the order, he ran back into the house and opened fire on the officers surrounding Aguinaldo. He wounded Villa and Alhambra. The latter jumped out of the house into the river, and was not seen again. Villa, on being wounded, surrendered, as did also Santiago Barcelona, Aguinaldo's treasurer.

"The five remaining officers escaped from the house, and swam the river. Placido seized Aguinaldo, and told him that he was a prisoner of the Americans. At this juncture the Americans arrived on the scene and gave their attention to getting the Maccabebes under control and protecting the prisoners from them. One Maccabebe was slightly wounded by a gunshot wound in the forehead."

In conclusion, General Funston deals out praise generously to all who had a share in the expedition.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Speculators Responsible For Unrest Reflected in the Markets

New York, July 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: General business continues its even course, with all the leading industries well employed, and with confidence expressed on every hand. Bountiful crops of wheat seem assured, and the damage to corn, while considerable in some directions, does not promise to be sufficiently general or serious to at all impede the progress of the country. Labor troubles are in process of settlement, and speculators have been responsible for most of the unrest which has been reflected in the markets.

Steel mills are actively employed, and there is a distinct improvement in the demand for finished products, while quotations are without alteration.

Improvement is general in the footwear industry, although no higher prices can be obtained. Local factories that have been closed have resumed, and shops that were running part time are now fully occupied. New England makers have fall contracts assuring activity until the middle of September.

Textile lines have settled in a steady position that promises more lasting prosperity than if prices had been forced higher or sensational activity had followed the altered attitude of buyers. Heavyweight woolens are securing duplicate orders and mills are making extensive preparations for the lightweight season. Manufacturers are well employed and exhibit increasing interest in raw material.

In the cotton goods division there is nothing new, recent advanced prices being fully sustained and mills keeping wheels in motion as a rule. The raw material has declined, large receipts of the old crop and many bright dispatches from the south having more effect that stories of drouth in Texas.

The Hanna Family Muddle

Cleveland, July 13.—Judge Dissetto yesterday afternoon appointed Senator Hanna guardian of the three children of his son, Dan R. Hanna, by the latter's divorced wife. The action was taken as the result of an injunction prohibiting Mrs. Hanna from removing the children from the jurisdiction of the Cleveland courts. She, however, learned of the issuance of the injunction, and, with the children, left the city before the papers were served upon her.

New York, July 13.—Mrs. Dan R. Hanna and her three children arrived here yesterday. She expects to sail for Europe in a few days.

Murder In Second Degree

Trenton, July 13.—The jury in the Samuel Shinn murder trial rendered a verdict last night of murder in the second degree. Shinn killed Thomas F. Applegate, a farmer, on March 10. The theory was advanced at the time that Applegate had come home drunk and in unharnessing his horse had fallen beneath the animal's feet and had been trampled to death. Shinn worked Applegate's farm on shares. The contention of the state was that Shinn was unduly intimate with Mrs. Applegate.

Will Have Disheartening Effect

Washington, July 13.—At the headquarters of the International Association of Machinists, President O'Connell admits that the collapse of the strike at Cincinnati is likely to have considerable effect on the general strike, as Cincinnati has been regarded as the centre of the fighting, but he reiterates that there is no intention to call off the general strike, and declares that the order will fight it out to the end.

Mello Not a Plotter

Rio Janeiro, July 13.—The Brazilian chamber of deputies yesterday received the report of the special committees appointed to consider the case of Rear Admiral Mello, who was arrested last April on a charge of monarchial plotting, and who then appealed to the chamber. The report declared that the accusations against the officer are without foundation.

'Tis an Ill Wind, Etc

Ithaca, N. Y., July 13.—Last night two consignments of live frogs were shipped to a frog company at Ware, Mass. They contained 4000 little amphibians. The frog companies became attracted by large numbers of frogs reported to be here, and distributed posters throughout the city offering to buy all caught.

Manslaughter Indictments

New York, July 13.—Indictments charging manslaughter in the second degree were yesterday found by the grand jury against Thomas F. Keehan and William V. Bowers, president and director of the Tarrant company, whose building was destroyed by an explosion on Oct. 20 last.

Charge Unsustained

Hampton, N. B., July 13.—James Carvell, arrested on suspicion of attempting to poison his father by putting strychnine in some sugar, was discharged from custody yesterday, the justice finding that there was not sufficient evidence to hold him for trial.

Was Governor and Diplomat

Dallas, July 13.—Richard B. Hubbard, formerly governor of Texas, and during President Cleveland's administration United States minister to Japan, died at Tyler yesterday.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

MORE ABOUT SHIRT WAISTS

Neat and Comfortable Attire For Men as Well as Women.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Before saying a word to women I wish to congratulate the men upon the courage they are showing in the matter of wearing a sensible and comfortable shirt waist in defiance of tradition which says that a man must wear the hottest and most uncomfortable of coats and vests in the torrid days of summer. The shirt waist for men is neat and cool looking, and no man can look neat or attractive in a heavy coat that sends the perspiration out of every pore to be a trap for the dust. Nine-tenths of the nervous irritation of men during the hot days is due to the awful sufferings of the old regime. Men gave up willingly to their adoption of the shirt waist, and why now should they think it at all necessary to ask a woman to excuse them for wearing a shirt waist in their presence? Nine out of ten do this, and I think it is wrong. If they feel that it is advisable to wear a shirt waist, then they should not apologize for it. But every man should wear one and look his very best, and all the sensible women will admire them more than ever, though that is almost superfluous. The trouble is that we all admire the men too much as it is, even when the streaks of suffering are penciled with no unsparing hand on their faces and necks.

But, all joking aside, the new shirt waists for men are extremely neat and pleasant to look at. They are made of madras and other wash material, and all that I have seen up to now are in modest and unobtrusive patterns. They are considerably fulier in the back and have convenient little pockets and are altogether the right thing in the right place at the right time. But no one should profane the shirt waist by wearing suspenders with it, only a belt, and this seems to hold in some occult way by means of straps. Thus the garment is as dressy as a woman's shirt waist, and, being so cool and so handsome for the purpose, we should all congratulate the men on so much good sense. And if any man feels that any women looks askance at his cool waist let him remember that it is another case of "the woman tempted me, and I did eat," for woman started the style, we all know.

There is no end to the new designs in the finest of sheer shirt waists, though those for every day are mostly on one general plan, but the thin ones have all manner of dainty fancies in which embroidery and lace figure and ribbon have a part. But, whatever the style, there is always more or less tucking. Tucking has reached the stage of fine art, and one finds it in diagonal lines, cross ones and in chevron form besides the regular up and down fashion. Sometimes we find all the ways of setting tucks in one garment, and in between these are insertions of lace or fine embroidery.

In the illustration one sees some of the possibilities in the way of these arrangements. One is of sheer linen lawn white as snow, and on the waist and bertha there is a vermicelli pattern of pale sage green baby ribbon. This is also put on the sleeves. The guimpe part is simply tucked. Ribbon forms quite a part of the fine and sheer muslin waists, and they frequently have lace insertions between the rows of fine tuckings and the ribbon woven through the holes. In pale blue, yellow, pink and green this style is extremely fetching. Narrow black velvet ribbon is also employed for the purpose. Another waist is shown where the waist itself is tucked finely, and every tuck is hemstitched, which gives it a lightness not to be obtained any other way. There are openwork lines, and through these the ribbon is run. Over all is a bolero of the same material, but richly edged with fine Russian embroidery. A large bow is made of the same and tied in front. The sleeves may be bishop, though these in the illustration have elbow puffs. The preferred style of sleeves is the bishop, with the balloon next. Elbow sleeves are also great favorites with many ladies, mostly those whose wrists are pretty.

Still another thin white shirt waist is made of washable Japanese silk, white and thin. There are three clusters of tucks of three in each, and these reach from top to bottom. The front is deeply bloused, and all the front is covered with an application of fine black chantilly lace, and this extends up to the neck. The sleeves are cut straight and open at the bottom to allow puffed undersleeves, and these are covered with the lace. The undersleeve is made of silk mull.

With these fine waists no collars are needed, for the lace is so arranged as to form one, but the cotton, chambray and mercerized waists all have collars of linen or at least of pique with a celluloid support in the front. Some prefer the stiffly starched collars with little black bowknots, but there are an infinite number of soft and dainty white mull and lace ties, some edged with lace and others simply bound with colored lawn.

Two Sources of Profit.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the shareholders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double present capacity. The Company owns ten acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet in tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over in value per day for very many years. A limited amount of stock will be sold at $500 per thousand shares and pro rata down to 1 shares.

Two Sources of Profit.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the share holders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. A limited amount of stock will be sold at $500 per thousand shares and pro rata down to 100 shares.

DELIGHTS OF CAMPING.

Seasonable Advice on a Great American Pastime.

LEAN-TOS, TENTS AND CABINS.

Choice of Suitable Site an Important Factor In Success of an Expedition—Value of the Medicine Chest. Popular Outing Regions.

Camping is a thoroughly American pastime. The joys and benefits of coming into close touch with nature cannot be overestimated. Weary brains and overworked muscles find relaxation and restoration in direct association with the accompaniments of an outdoor existence.

There was a time, and that not very long ago, when camping was considered but a sport for boys. Nowadays, however, the staid business and professional men find it not beneath their dignity to "camp out." The men who yearly go into the woods for a brief season are now numbered by thousands.

Much has been said and written about the fine points of camping. The details of the woodsman's outfit are more or less familiar to every sportsman. Manufacturers have placed on the market various kits of utensils that may be packed in a small space. These outfits are useful and add materially to the comfort of an expedition. But accomplished campers do not rely on the innovations of the storekeepers. They usually find a few home procured implements sufficient.

The genuine camper is the man who, depending mainly on his fishing lines and gun, carries little food with him. This man, of course, can only find field for the practice of his art in a region of plentiful game.

The feature of most importance to successful camping is the shelter. The location and construction of the temporary home are of paramount concern. A lean-to is preferred by the veteran outdoor liver. Its advantages are plainly evident. A lean-to can be put up by a couple of men in an afternoon. The back, or, rather, the slanting roof, should be placed toward the point from which blow the prevailing winds. In storms this measure will be found to have much value.

Log cabins and tents are of common usage. The former require too much time in building, and the latter are an "easy mark" to wind and rain storms.

Camps are best located when near running water. The lean-to, cabin or tent should always be placed in a grove of trees. The foliage and trunks will be found to be an agreeable shelter in either rain, wind or excessive heat.

Novices in camping are prone to neglect a precautionary measure which should be observed by every one starting out on a pleasure trip of this sort. Restoratives and liniments should always be included in the stores. Many a death from gunshot wounds and other accidental injuries would never have occurred if proper remedies had been on hand.

Campers have almost unlimited choice in regard to the nature of their stamping ground. These great United States abound in regions where the lover of forest and stream can revel to his heart's content.

Thousands of camping folk every year flock to the mountain and lake regions of the east and west, where actual intermingling with wild and picturesque conditions is possible. The Maine woods are a great favorite. Unusual advantages for the huntsman and fisherman abound in the Pine Tree State. The popularity of the glorious north country is not to be wondered at. Game and fish are everywhere to be had in season. A poor specimen of a sportsman he is who cannot use rod and gun to supply his table.

Challenger's Single Piece Mast.

The Shamrock II's new mast consists of a hollow steel pole 160 feet long, built in a single piece from step to truck. It is the first spar of its kind ever made. The advantage is claimed for the new mast that it saves top weight and also presents a smaller surface going to windward. It permits of dispensing with gear for the hoisting and lowering of the topmast, and it is believed that a single spar can be braced more rigidly than a spliced, telescopic mast. The chief disadvantage of the single piece pole lies in the impossibility of housing the topmast during heavy weather.

MEN AS THEY PASS.

Of Sir Alfred Milner it used to be said that "Milner never makes an enemy nor loses a friend."

J. M. Johnson, the new third vice president of the Rock Island road, went into railroad work in 1870 as a station agent at Franklin, Ind.

Justice Jacob W. Wilkin, the new head of the Illinois supreme court, is a native of Ohio, but studied law in Illinois under John Schofield and was admitted to the bar in 1866.

James Gordon Bennett's magnificent new steam yacht, Lysistrata, is to have the figure of an owl carved at the bow, that bird being his favorite fetich and to be seen everywhere about his Paris house.

Sir Walter Scott proclaimed in 1827, at the Theater Royal dinner in Edinburgh, his authorship of the Waverley novels. George Croal of Edinburgh, one of those present at the dinner, is still alive. He is 91 years old, active in body and vivid of memory.

Senator Clark of Montana has decided to spend a part of each year in Paris and has offered a large sum for the house of Count Potolki, in the Avenue de Friedland, which is one of the most beautiful in Paris, only second to the Palais Castile, occupied by ex-Queen Isabella of Spain.

Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, who some years ago bought Redemption Rock, in Princeton, Mass., where Mrs. Rowlinson was ransomed from the Indians by John Hoar, the first of the name in this country, in 1676, has presented the property to John Hoar, son of the late Sherman Hoar of Concord.

At the age of 81 Samuel Golden, late a waiter at the Monongahela House, Pittsburg, has married for the fourth time and retired to live on a fortune of more than $100,000 acquired through tips. He was a waiter for 50 years and served Lincoln, Grant and that Prince of Wales who is now Edward VII.

Charles W. Raymond of Watseka, Ills., who has been appointed a federal judge in the Indian Territory, has been prominent in Illinois politics as a lawyer and a judge for a number of years. He has lived in Iroquois county, Ills., since 1873, when he went to Illinois from Iowa. He was admitted to the bar in 1886 and has served as deputy circuit clerk, master in chancery and circuit judge.

HIVE AND BEE.

Pine is preferable to any other material for making hives. It does not shrink or expand.

The ease in manipulating bees depends largely upon the manner the frames are put together.

Work in the apiary cannot be put off from day to day, but must be done in the nick of time, as the opportunity presents itself.

In almost every case robbing is caused by negligence on the part of the beekeeper in some manner. Every colony of bees which does not contain a fertile queen is in danger of being robbed.

One of the greatest causes of robbing arises from the apiarist leaving honey carelessly around so that the bees get access to it. Sometimes a colony will become so crazed as to leave their own stores unprotected.

Many exciting pennant races have been known, but never before have there existed two such struggles as the present chase for the pennants of the National and American leagues. In the older organization six of the eight teams have at times had a winning percentage of over .500. This is a really remarkable circumstance for this time of the year, when the ragged edges have been worn off and the teams are supposed to be playing as well together as at any time during the year.

While the race in the American league has not been as close, no one team has as yet shown striking superiority over its rivals, and the struggle for first place promises to be interesting to the end.

Comiskey has handled his Chicago team with remarkable judgment. Both the Boston and Detroit teams have played excellent baseball, and so have the Orioles for that matter. McGraw's team seems to be as erratic as its leader, the Baltimoreans playing the fastest kind of ball for stretches and then falling down in the most unexpected manner for no apparent reason. Philadelphia is weak, and so are Cleveland and Milwaukee. These teams will surprise even their friends if they figure as real competitors at the finish.

Much flopping about has taken place in the National league race, but as yet I see no reason for changing the prediction made before a game had been played. The Pittsburg and Brooklyn teams appear to be the strongest on paper, with St. Louis not far behind.

The champions have also played a better article of ball away from home than at Washington park. Brooklyn's only trouble to date has been the erratic work of the pitchers, an astonishing statement considering the personnel of the twirling department. Donovan, of whom less was expected than any of the other pitchers, has really done the best work of the lot. Hughes has not regained all of his old cunning, while Dr. McJames has not pitched within 40 per cent of the ball he did two years ago. Kennedy is coming around slowly.

That Pittsburg is a powerful factor in the struggle is now generally recognized. With half a dozen first class pitchers, with the masterful Tannehill at the head, the team is bound to make a record. None of the twirlers has overworked as yet, and I do not believe that Manager Fred Clarke will take any such chances except in the closing games. Phillippi, Chesbro and Leever are also good men, with plenty of speed and fine control, while Pool can be depended on in a pinch to do his work, and do it well.

In Tannehill I believe that Pittsburg has one of the best pitchers in the country. The sluggers tell me that he rarely loses his nerve. They also say that he keeps putting the ball over the plate, seldom giving the batsmen a chance to get him "in the hole," as the expression goes.

Patient waiting by the batsmen until the ball is put over the plate is what makes the scientific batsman of today. Take men of the Keeler-Delehanty-Burkett class, and they simply will not notice a ball unless it is over the rubber. They are terrors to young twirlers, who think that they can fool the veteran stick men with wide curves and high and low shoots. Batsmen of this sort get two or three balls on a pitcher and then have the twirler at their mercy.

The death of Albert L. Johnson, the street car magnate, removes from the "rooters'" corner one of the greatest of baseball enthusiasts. Johnson was the real backer of the Brotherhood uprising and spent his money and time liberally in trying to help the players in what he considered a fight for their rights.

Baseball was the only recreation of Johnson, who began life by driving a street car in Louisville and rose to be, with his brother Tom, one of the brainiest manipulators of the age.

Johnson was the man who opened the Brooklyn bridge to the trolley cars, and many a night have I seen him with his coat off, laboring away like a wage earner laying the tracks in that memorable fight.

I was one of the five men present the night that Al Johnson, representing the Brotherhood league, and A. G. Spalding, representing the National league, got together at the Hoffman House in New York to try to settle that historic baseball fight. The League was thrashed, but Johnson did not know it. Spalding threw the greatest bluff of his career. Johnson capitulated, and the club owners won the fight.

Johnson did not quit. Far from it. He simply thought his cause beaten and tried to get the best obtainable for his friends, the players. And he got a great deal more than possibly any other man in the country could have done under the same circumstances.

The League had marked several players for the "blacklist," but Johnson would not have it. He won the day. He was truly a remarkable man, with one of the most active of brains. A life of much promise has been snuffed out because nature has a limit. The man who carries overweight all the time must succumb in the end. No problem was too big for Johnson, and, unlike any other man I ever saw, he insisted upon personally working out all of the minor details of his schemes himself. Baseball loses in that ex-street car driver one of the strongest friends it ever had. Few men in this country were more sincerely admired by the fraternity.

Much has been written regarding the "break" recently made in New York by Jack Doyle, the captain of the Chicago League team. The spectator who aroused Doyle to the point of personal assault deserves no sympathy. Of course blackguardism must be stamped out, but few self respecting men would have listened to the language of that spectator and have done anything different.

Spectators who violate all rules of decency and insult players with vile language should be put out of the grounds. The trouble is that most officials seem to think that because a man pays 50 cents to witness a game he is privileged to do as he pleases. It would have been better for Doyle to have postponed action until after the contest; but, to tell the truth, that spectator deserved a thrashing, and he got it.

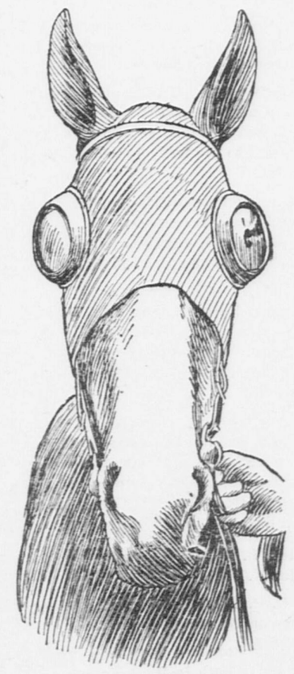

We all know that Doyle is not an angel. I never, in fact, saw many players on the diamond who wore wings. Under such conditions the players should call on a policeman and compel that official to put an unruly spectator out of the grounds. A plan of this sort would do much to stop unseemly conduct in the future.

GEORGE E. STACKHOUSE.

Many novel artificialites in horse racing paraphernalia have been used by turfmen from time to time. There are peculiarities galore in bandages, toe weights and hobbles, but who ever heard of a horse wearing eyeglasses?

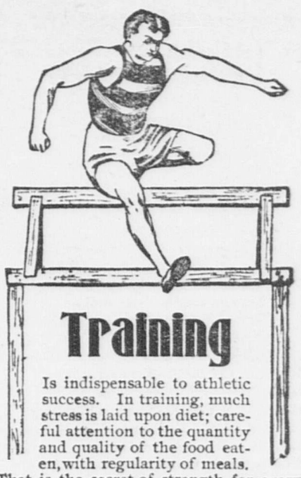

Glade Run, a speedy horse in the racing stable of a relative of George E. Smith, the well known plunger, better known as "Pittsburg Phil," is the proud owner of a healthy sized pair of spectacles. Glade Run while running on one of the eastern tracks recently suffered much from flying gravel thrown in his eyes by horses in front. Jockey Shaw, who was riding Glade Run, made mention of the matter. "Pittsburg Phil" being interested in his relative's horse, and also having backed Shaw's mount, constructed a huge pair of celluloid shields for the use of the racer. The shields were held in a hood which was fastened about the animal's head.

The success of Phil's invention has been such that the equine spectacles will probably be made a regular part of stable equipment.

Training

Is indispensable to athletic success. In training, much stress is laid upon diet; careful attention to the quantity and quality of the food eaten, with regularity of meals. That is the secret of strength for every man. No man can be stronger than his stomach. The careless and irregular eating, of business men, causes disease of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. There can be no sound health until these diseases are cured.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the body to be built up into vigorous health by the assimilation of the nutrition extracted from food.

"I was taken with the grippe, which resulted in heart and stomach trouble," writes Mr. T. R. Caudill, of Montland, Alleghany Co., N. C. "I was unable to do anything a good part of the time. I wrote to Dr. Pierce about my condition, having full confidence in his medicine. He advised me to take his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which I did. Before I had finished the second bottle I began to feel better. I have used nearly six bottles. I feel thankful to God for the benefit I have received from Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I can highly recommend it to all persons as a good and safe medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure constipation.

—The recently published revelation of a New York policeman was verified in part, the other night, by an experience of no less a personage than Baron Von Kap-Herr, military attache of the German Embassy at Washington. The Baron had been dining well, and on his way home was accosted by two good-looking young women, one of whom threw her arms about his neck, and while thus demonstrative he was relieved of his wallet containing $150 and valuable documents. He succeeded in inveigling his fair companions into a hack, and then turned them over to a policeman and left them in the officer's charge while he went to his apartments to make sure that he had not left the missing pocket-book at home. On returning without having found it, the cab, cop and girls had vanished. No doubt there has been a "divy" long before this.—Lynn Item.

MATRON AND MAID.

Lady Curzon is now on her way to Munich to have her portrait painted by Professor Volenbach.

Mme. Patti has gone to Sweden for the summer, where she will be a near neighbor of Christine Nilsson.

The Chicago Record-Herald has heard of a young woman who has had her card engraved as follows: "Grace C. Johnson, Jr."

Mrs. Robert Irving of Reading, Pa., makes a specialty of baking pies that sell for a cent. She is becoming rich in her novel occupation and is kept busy night and day to meet the demand for her penny pies.

Mrs. Isabella Drake, who made Queen Victoria's wedding wreath, had lived in Chicago 53 years when she died there the other day. She was a heroine of the cholera visitation in Chicago years ago.

Wah-ta-wass, a full blooded Indian girl, is probably the first of her race to become a professional stenographer and typewriter. She is employed by a Boston lawyer and intends to go through Radcliffe college.

Miss Elizabeth Snyder, a member of the staff of the Woman's Medical college in Philadelphia, makes annual visits to the far west during her vacations and spends her time living with the Indians in their villages or exploring canyons or river courses in search of ornithological relics.

The Duchess of Bedford is an enthusiastic sportswoman and so excellent a shot that during one season, when she fired 3,325 cartridges, two out of three were effective. As an angler, too, her grace is almost equally expert. She also practices photography and takes an interest in nursing and philanthropic pursuits generally.

Susie Slowther, a schoolgirl of Passaic, N. J., was asked this question by her teacher: "If you had $20, how long would it take you to go to Washington and by what route would you travel?" The next day Susie disappeared with $20 of her mother's money and later was found in the national capital seeking a practical answer to the query.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

Thomas Hardy, the author, is spending a brief holiday in Switzerland. He has just completed another volume of verse.

Robert W. Chambers, artist as well as author, has been heard to regret that he is not known for his pictures rather than his writings.

Gilbert Parker, the novelist, delivered his first speech in parliament the other day on the finance bill. It was generally pronounced a success.

Prosper d'Epinay, a Parisian sculptor, has completed a plaster model of John Paul Jones, who is represented as standing beside an anchor with drawn sword, as if about to leap upon the deck of an enemy's ship at the head of a boarding party.

Stephen Sinding, the Danish sculptor, is the designer of the monument to Ole Bull recently unveiled at Bergen, in Norway. The violinist is shown listening to the music of a water nixie. A cascade falls over the strings of the harp held by the nymph and is thus supposed to give the keynote or inspiration for which the artist waits.

CROWN POINTS.

The king of Portugal is seeking to decrease his weight by the constant playing of tennis and recently took part in a tournament at Cascaes.

King Edward VII has determined to do away with the king's messengers, and, though those at present in the service will not be deprived of their positions, their places will not be filled as they pass away.

In the recent Austrian census Emperor Francis Joseph filled in the form in his own hand and answered every point with great care, including the number of windows which his residence contains and mentioning the fact that he can both read and write.

Princess Beatrice Mary Victoria Feodora, who completed her forty-fourth year the other day, was born at Buckingham palace, and the prince consort, in writing to his stepmother that these names were to be given to her at the font, describes them as "historical, romantic, euphonious and melodious."

JEWELRY JOTTINGS.

Balls pave with tiny brilliants are a very original notion in sleeve buttons.

Louis designs of fine light tracery and scrollwork remain in favor in collars of brilliants.

A beautiful marquise ruby framed with a narrow line of brilliants forms a handsome ring. The marquise is undoubtedly the elegant ring of the day, and diamonds, both white and yellow, are thus shaped and invisibly mounted.

A beautiful banquet ring consists of a large oval opal surrounded by a line of olivines whose peculiar soft green harmonizes with one of the tints of the center stone, and beyond these is a row of brilliants which enlivens the otherwise subdued effect.—Jewelers' Circular-Weekly.

STATE LINES.

And there are still places in Texas where it is dry 2,000 feet below the surface.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

If the petroleum cure for mosquitoes proves effective, New Jersey should lose no time in laying a pipe line from Texas.—Boston Herald.

Missouri strawberries have carried off the gold medal at the Pan-American exposition. Missouri berries, apples, mules and men all have a knack of getting what gold there is in sight.—St. Louis Republic.

Keith's Theatre.

Lovers of art and music are being catered to this summer at Keith's as never before, and the large patronage, which has kept up remarkably even during the torrid weather, is the best evidence that there is a decided leaning toward that sort of thing among the stay-at-homes of Boston. The living pictures are gaining steadily in favor as the new subjects are added from week to week, and the management is more than fulfilling the promise that the series will be the most magnificent ever offered in Boston or elsewhere. The usual number of new pictures will be added the week commencing July 15. Director Zach's segment of the sympony is furnishing delightful petite concerts, and the selections are altogether of light and seasonable music. Next week Albert L. Guille, the noted French tenor, will be the soloist. Among the regular variety entertainers will be: Alburtus and Bartram, club jugglers, just returned from a successful European engagement; C. B Watson and Dave Ferguson, in a German and Eccentric comedy sketch; the Gloses, in a musical and dramatic novelty; the three Sister Bastedo, singing and dancing comediennes; and Adams and Bennette, conversational comedians.

Castle Square Theatre.

The charming New England play "Peaceful Valley," written by Edward E. Kidder for Sol. Smith Russell, and successfully played for several seasons, is the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre the coming week. The play appeals strongly to all familiar with New England characters and its scenes are full of suggestions of the humorous side of the people met with in this section of the country. Its action calls for some novel and realisic stage settings which will be made a feature of the production. The cast will be as follows: Hosea Howe, Alden Bass; Ward Andrews, Edmund Breese; Jack Farquhar, Charles Mackay; Jotham Ford, Edward Wade; Mr. Leonard Rand, Lindsay Morison; Charley Rand, Stanley Kent; Wilson, William J. Hasson; Virginia Rand, Eva Taylor; Niobe Farquhar, Mary Sanders; Phyllis Howe, Leonora Bradley; Martha Howe, Leonora Gnito. The usual distribution of chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

BIG STRIKE IS ORDERED

Amalgamated Men In Steel Works Lay Down Tools

A QUESTION OF PRINCIPLE

Labor President Says Strike Was Forced Upon Workmen, Who Are Ready to Battle Against the Trust —Preliminary Show of Strength

Pittsburg, July 15.—From present indications it looks probable that President Shaffer's strike order, issued Saturday night to the Amalgamated association members in the employ of the American Steel Hoop company, the American Sheet Steel company and the American Tin Plate company, will be obeyed, and the great struggle between the Amalgamated association and the steel companies, involving 200,000 men, will be on in earnest today.

In the union mills of the three companies against which a strike has been declared, it is predicted that not a wheel will turn. An effort will be made also to close down some of the non-union mills of the companies, and to cripple the rest. The Amalgamated people are very sanguine of success.

"The strike was not of our own seeking," said President Shaffer last night. "It was forced upon us. We were not contending for wages, but for principle—for self-preservation. The tin and sheet people will not be able to turn a single wheel tomorrow. We have our forces thoroughly organized, and there will be some surprises in store. I have not heard today from a single lodge in answer to my strike order, but an answer is not necessary. The order will be promptly obeyed by all our men. But there will be no trouble. Labor organizations have changed. The Amalgamated association is not the association it was 20 years ago, nor even five years ago. The men are more readily controlled; in fact we have our men under control."

Developments indicate that Pittsburg is going to be a pretty lively strike center. The most interest attaches to the Painters' mill on the South Side, and to that of the Lindsay & McCutcheon in Alleghany. Both mills are controlled by the American Sheet Hoop company, and have hitherto been aggressively non-union, and much depended upon the action taken by the men in these plants. The employes of both mills held open meetings yesterday, and both decided to strike today.

The fight at the Painter mill is to be made the fight of the strike. Both sides will make stubborn resistance. If the Amalgamated people can close this mill they believe they will have won the greater part of the strike. The mill is not only an important one, but the Steel Hoop company has for years succeeded in thwarting the efforts to unionize it.

President Shaffer was asked if he had set a time when, if no settlement having been made, he would extend the strike to all the subsidiary steel companies of the United States Steel corporation. He said he must decline to make his plans known at present. It may be said, however, on the strength of reliable information, that the strike within its present limits is intended merely as a show of strength.

At the conference last week the representatives of the steel corporation were repeatedly warned that the association was much stronger than they knew. They were even told of the organization of mills of which they had no knowledge. But the steel men would not believe that the association was as strong as it was claimed to be.

Thus it is believed the first purpose of the association is to show its strength by confining the strike to three companies. When that show of strength has been made, whatever it may prove to be, the association expects the companies to ask for another conference. If the companies show no inclination to make a settlement, the strike will be extended to additional companies. If the trust will not yield then the strike will be extended to such independent companies as sell their finished products or raw materials to companies against which a strike has been declared.

Backbone of Strike Broken

Cincinnati, July 15.—The report that the machinists' strike was broken was confirmed yesterday when the Fay-Egan shops voted to go to work today in a body. This strike has not been declared off here, but the strikers have decided to vote by shops, and in this way almost all have answered to resume today. The strikers here deny the statement sent out by President O'Connell from Washington that the International union has funds to continue the contest, and that assistance has been rendered here.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

FAITHFUL TO BRYAN

Bolting Ohio Democrats Will Have a Ticket In the Field

Cleveland, July 15.—On July 31 Ohio Democrats who believe in Bryan, the issues which he represents and that the recent Democratic committee ignored, will assemble in Columbus and make up a state ticket. Ten men met in this city yesterday and decided that a bolt should be made, and that a new party should enter the field of Ohio politics. The attendance at the conference was larger and represented a greater area in the state than was expected by those who called the meeting.

A formal statement of principles was submitted to the conference, and was adopted. This will be printed and sent throughout the state to those who are known to be faithful to the Nebraskan. A convention was decided upon to be held on the last day of July. To this convention may come all those who sign their names to the declaration of principles.

Narrow Escape of Aeronaut

New York, July 15.—Frank McBride, a professional aeronaut, was giving an exhibition at Bensonhurst yesterday, and when the ropes were cut the balloon rose about 40 feet, with McBride sitting on the trapeze. The balloon became unmanageable, and sped on, hitting many obstructions until it reached Bath Beach, when it came full tilt against a brick house. This stopped the balloon and McBride, unconscious and bleeding, was taken from the ropes in which he had become entangled. He was badly cut and had several ribs broken.

Mrs. Hanna Wins

New York, July 15.—Mrs. Mary H. Hanna, who obtained a divorce from Dan R. Hanna of Cleveland, three years ago, sailed for Europe Saturday on the Campania, with her three children. Dan Hanna is the son of Senator Hanna. The young woman succeeded in evading an army of detectives, boarded the steamer, and remained hidden until it was too late to serve a writ of habeas corpus requiring her to produce the children in court today. This writ was obtained after service of a similar one had been avoided in Ohio.

Will Seek News of Peary

Halifax, July 15.—The steamer Erik left North Sydney yesterday on her voyage to the frozen north. She is to call at Labrador, and then at the various Esquimaux stations in Greenland West, reaching Etah, under favorable conditions, in about three weeks. At the various stations she will make inquiries as to news of Lieutenant Peary and the Windward. The Erik is fully provisioned for at least a year. Six members of the Peary Arctic club went on the steamer.

Mayor's Construction of Law

Atlantic City, N. J., July 15.—About one-half the hotel proprietors and saloon keepers of this resort yesterday carried out their intention to test the Sunday closing law, and as a result this resort was "wide open." No arrests were made for violation of the law. The mayor says that uniformed policemen are prohibited from entering drinking places, except to quell a riot or serve a warrant, and, therefore, the police have no direct evidence that the law was violated.

Russia Realizes Japs' Strength

London, July 15.—Dr. Morrison, wiring to The Times from Seoul, says: The Japanese are well maintaining the position in Korea, acting cautiously, yet watching with unceasing vigilance every movement of Russia, especially along the Korean frontier. They are increasing in number constantly throughout the peninsula, and one-nineteenth of the shipping of the country is now Japanese. Russia, recognizing Japan's power, acts with studied conciliation.

Probably Afraid of Americans

London, July 15.—W. H. Grenfell, M. P., an oarsman and a member of the Thames conservancy board, writes to The Times today announcing that he has given notice to the stewards of the Henley royal regatta of his intention to move a resolution to confine the entries to the British islands. He says that the regatta was never intended for international contests.

Epworth Leaguers Stranded

Glenwood Springs, Col., July 15.—A band of pickpockets, operating at Colorado Springs, is responsible for a party of Epworth Leaguers becoming stranded here. Men and women alike have been robbed, not only of every cent they had with them, but of railroad tickets as well, and they may be compelled to ask aid from the local authorities.

Discouraging to Britishers

London, July 15.—There is but little encouragement to be derived from a review of the financial conditions in London at present. These conditions may be fairly described as bad; and the most optimistic are forced to admit that the era of recovery and prosperity, so often predicted, must now be postponed to a very indefinite future.

SYMBOLS WERE STOLEN

Two Rings In Which Miss Barney Had Great Faith

WERE LATER RECOVERED

Much to the Gratification of a Former Queen of Society, Who Has Become a Convert to the Strangest Religion In History

Boston, July 15.—The mystery of the Hotel Touraine jewels, as told by The Post, has been solved. A bellboy, who was charged with the stealing, disappeared on Friday, the day of the theft, though the two rings stolen have been recovered. They are now awaiting the fair claimant's return from Bar Harbor.

The rings, valuable because they form mementoes of the strangest religion under the sun, the Zoroastrian fire worshipers, are the property of Miss Natalie Barney, a society belle of Washington, New York and Bar Harbor. Her conversion to the Parseean faith forms a mystical, quaint and curious story, involving a life-long vow of this member of one of America's most distinguished families.

Strange is the story told of Natalie Barney; how the most strenuous efforts were put forth to recover the gems because of their priceless value; how a society girl declared that she would give half her fortune to recover them.

Miss Barney is the daughter of Albert C. Barney, a millionaire ten times over, and a leader of exclusive society.

A year ago came Miss Barney's conversion to the mythical religion, and she has faithfully kept the vows then taken before the altar. While travelling through Persia, Miss Barney met with an accident which threatened to deprive her forever of the use of her lower limbs. For a month she lay cooped up in a little roadside tavern, with seemingly no recovery from her maimed condition.

While there she found opportunity to make a study of the Zoroastrian Bible, the Zendavesta. She was charmed by the curious mystisism of the olden religion, and begged the priests to teach her the innermost secrets of their belief.

They willingly did so, finding Miss Barney an earnest student. Under their guidance the society girl grew more infatuated with the curious faith. Thenceforth the current of her life changed, and the society girl became a Parsee maiden.

Bowing at the rising and the setting of the sun, pouring out libations at the foot of the sacred altar, whereon burns the sacred symbol of life—these combined the daily tenents fulfilled by the fair convert.

With the fervor of the faith came her recovery from the injury. Lame before, she walked as erect and as straight as a soldier.

With difficulty she was recalled from Persia by her parents. Back to Paris, where she had been the idol of the American colony, she came, but only to announce that she was forever a convert to the Zoroastrian creed. Then she forsook the social set to give her time to her new religion.

She made trips back to Persia before sailing for her American home, and brought back with her a wealth of symbols and insignia—parts of her strange cult.

Among the symbols were the two rings which formed the basis of the theft which impelled the Hotel Touraine management and the Boston police to their most strenuous efforts.

One, an emerald, whose intrinsic value is priceless and whose commercial value is reckoned in the estimate of the police at $800, is strangely and curiously wrought.

The other is a band ring, a circle of mystical letters, surrounding which relate to the Persian creed. On the upper surface of the ring is a curious design. A piercing eye, set in diamonds and a Persian stone of ebony hue give a wierd, gruesome appearance to the jewel.

So distinct is it that in the darkness the eye shines out like a gleaming star. What relation the gem bore to Miss Barney's religion she would not divulge to those at work on the mystery of the theft. All she wanted was to get them back, and she would spend any amount of money in their recovery.

Two inspectors were detailed on the case with but scant evidence to work on. This was Friday night. Yesterday the inspectors had the trail of the thief.

The rings were taken from Miss Barney's jewel case by the bellboy, who was at work in the room on Friday afternoon. Shortly after the theft he had occasion to go outside the hotel, and in his fear of detection, he gave the gems to an acquaintance, asking him to keep them for him.

Seeing the story in yesterday's Post, and thinking the property in his possession was the stolen goods, the friend went to Chief Watt's office, told him the story and turned over the gems.

Good Afternoon.

The City Council should consider well the reasons given in Mayor Hall's vetoes tonight before passing the improvement orders which require large loans. There is such a thing as overdoing improvements especially where the money must be borrowed and interest paid. The interest account is already too large and is constantly growing.

Fortunate indeed is the man who can, for a few weeks, or even a longer time, lay aside all business cares, and start for the mountains, lakes, seashore or wherever inclination leads. At the mountains or in the country they come in contact with nature as it is in all its beauty, making them feel as if they were boys again, then upon their return to the city where all is artificial, they cannot but feel that the real sunshine of life has strengthened them for another year's toil.

During the first five months of the year, several Quincy men were talking very enthusiastically over the vegetable garden they were to have this summer. The soil was upturned with great determination, the planting proceeded and at last they were rewarded by seeing the tiny green shoots appear. But alas! the evenings became so warm they could not spend their time in hoeing, weeding and watering; bicycle riding, golf or an electric car ride was more stimulating. But, how about those gardens? Give us an easier nut to crack.

In an article in Thursday's Ledger exception was taken to President Bryant's ruling on the orders that a majority only was necessary to pass orders involving an appropriation of over $300. It was erroneously stated that this was in violation to the city charter. According to section sixteen of the city charter a majority only is necessary to pass an order of this kind, therefore President Bryant's ruling was correct. The Public Statutes provide, however, that any order authorizing the borrowing of money must have a two-thirds vote by roll call. It was the confounding of the Public Statutes and the City Charter that was responsible for the error.

UNIQUE CLAIMS.

Quincy Always a Place of Much Consequence.

Outlook Contemplated with Enthusiasm.

Less Dependence on Boston than Other Nearby Cities.

The Boston Herald today devotes an entire page to Quincy in an interesting write up. While exceptions might be taken to a few of the comments it is on the whole a very truthful statement of the history and progress of the "City of Presidents" showing study and research. That Quincy people may read how others see us, a portion of the article is reproduced.

"Quincy, the Granite city, has certain irrefutable claims to distinction that are unique in the stories of ancient and modern towns. She was the birthplace and burial place of two Presidents of this republic, as nearly everybody knows and, what perhaps not so many know, the first railroad built in the United States was operated within her borders.

Historically and industrially, Quincy has always been a place of much consequence to the country, and she still radiantly faces the dawn. Her hills, in spite of the drills that ceaselessly prod them and the blasts that scar them, are everlasting, and, though the cities of the land are dotted with monumental piles that testify to her importance as a builder, there is no more evidence now than there was a hundred years ago that her quarries are exhaustible.

But she does not rely upon unaided nature for the prosperity that she has long enjoyed, and just now she is entering upon an industrial career that promises to be a remarkable one. Besides being a builder of buildings she has become, also, a builder of ships, and the immediate result of her quickened industrial life is a rapid increase in her population, which already number more than 25,0000 souls, and is destined there is little doubt so to augment that her ranking among the large industrial cities of the commonwealth will date from no far distant year.

The recent event of greatest moment to her is the establishment upon her shore of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company, whose plant, as yet by no means fully developed, already covers an immense area, and gives employment to 2,000 men. The president of it, Thomas A. Watson, is confident that his company has secured on the little Fore River, which is one of the confines of the city, the most desirable accessible and altogether satisfactory location that could have been discovered anywhere north of Hatteras, and he looks forward to having soon about him a village of 4,000 busy and contented employes.

The advent of this great band of workers could not fail to exert an immediate influence upon the activities of Quincy. From her hills have been taken many a custom house and now from her shore there will steam away a fleet of majestic battleships and other craft to seek prosperity and keep the peace.

The outlook can only be contemplated with enthusiasm. Already Quincy is less a merely residential city than any outside Boston lying within the metropolitan zone. Most of the people who sleep there are also to be found there in the daytime. There is less dependence upon Boston than in perhaps any other place that is distant from her the matter of only 15 cents on the railroad and 10 cents on the trolley cars. It is estimated by some—although one man's guess is perhaps as good as another's, that only 15 men out of every hundred living in Quincy come to Boston every business day. And there are enthusiastic Quincy folk who have in their mind's eye a city of 100,000 people.

The central square itself has a measure of picturesqueness about it, but there is that lack of concentration of any class of business which is not uncommon in historic towns that yield up their storied landmarks grudgingly, or at least tardily to the encroachments of business. On one corner is a colonial house, standing squarely in the centre of an unfenced lawn and this seems to be a rather fit place for the mayor to live—as the present mayor happens to do. On another corner is the little old-fashioned Quincy granite City Hall; opposite is the First church, beneath the portico of which lie the remains if remains there be, of President John Adams and President John Quincy Adams; and at another corner is a busy drug store which serves the hospitable purpose of a waiting room.

The gray, old, diminutive City Hall would be a useful thing in some remote New England village, if it did not adorn it, but to Quincy it is what Boston's City Hall, is to her—a constant source of perplexity. Invaluable city records are exposed to the danger of fire and there is not enough room in it for officialty to find elbow room. Quincy desires a new municipal building, so it is not going to be long before she has one. At the same time she may make a full-fledged public street of the main approach to the railroad station at the corner of which approach the City Hall stands. There is probably not a more travelled way in all Quincy, but a big sign-board warns the public, as so many like signs do in even busier ways in Boston, of "Dangerous Passing."

The business blocks are modern or modernized, and there is a good-sized comfortable hotel called the Greenleaf, and another across the way called the Hancock House in honor no doubt of the first Governor of Massachusetts after the revolution for he was a native of Quincy and signed her charter when Quincy was set off from Braintree in 1792."

The Agricultural District.

The census tells us that 37.3 per cent. of the people of the United States live in cities and towns of over 4000 population. About one half of the people who live in cities are contained in places of over 100,000. Rhode Island has the greatest percentage of suburban population and Massachusetts follows wsth 86.9. The reason for this change in location, this coming to the cities by the people who were born in the country is being discussed by the sociologists and the reasons advanced are interesting. The farm districts of New England that are distant from the great business centres are the principal recruiting grounds for the cities. The last half century has had the greatest record for it, but it is believed by some students of the subject that there is to come a change. The increase of the last decade of city population was less than five per cent. There have been changes in the farming districts in the last two decades, and these changes are going on so that there is good reason to predict a different result in the future. The introduction of labor saving machinery has been one factor. Farming is becoming easier year by year. The tillers of the soil today do not need to work as hard as their fathers did. Another contributor to the new condition is dress. Time was when a visit to a country church on a Sunday would reveal some very strange costumes among the members of the congregation. Here today the people, men and women, will be found dressed as well as those who might be seen in a city church. The boys and girls on the farm keep in touch with the fashions of the day, and it is not easy now to locate young people by their dress. This condition is not universal, but all who visit the country this summer will agree that there is less of gawkiness than there was in our father's days. This tends to make the young people contented. They are in touch with life as seen in the cities, and the most of them do not care to be in it altogether since they can see it occasionally without inconvenience. The railroads have been a contributing cause, and especially the electric roads that are opening the country roads and byways to the tourist and to those whose homes have until now been rather secluded. The cities need to be reinforced by the sturdy current of life that flows from the farms, and the percentage of successful city men who first saw the light in a rural community is the best commendation for the country blood. But the farming districts need to be kept up, and it is encouraging to know that the tilling of the soil is not a forgotten art but an up-to-date business, and that while the productive West may beat the East in its output of cereals and hold its own as the world feeder, there is still enough to be gotten from the earth by the enterprising New England farmer to induce him to continue to make his fields attractive and remunerative.—Lynn Item

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

—The trade balance in favor of the United States, as respects England, for the past year was $90,000,000. The Statist says: "It appears certain that we shall have to supply considerable gold to the United States, and that the value of money in London will advance." So long as England keeps a quarter of a million men in South Africa raising Cain, while Uncle Sam keeps his men at home raising corn and wheat, we shall have the better end of the bargain.—Boston Herald.

COUNCIL BUSINESS

Nine Vetoes of Appropriation Orders.

Reports on Loan and Street Orders.

New Street Railway Locations in the Calendar.

An important meeting of the city council will be held tonight, as Mayor Hall will return, without his approval, nine of the orders passed at the last meeting of the Council.

The New England Telephone Co. will petition for a location of poles, and several petitions for minor licenses will be received.

The Committee on Public Buildings will report on the purchase of more land for cemetery purposes, and on the purchase of land at Houghs Neck for a playground.

The Committee on Streets will report on the widening and acceptance of Cottage avenue, paving gutters on Dimmock and Goffe streets, on acceptance of Edison street changing the name of New road to Scammell street, laying out Plain street, granting the Old Colony street railway a location for a double track on Hancock street, and a location of poles for the New England Telephone Co.

The Finance Committee will report on the $45,000 loan order.

In the calendar are the orders refunding taxes to George E. Rogers, granting the street railway locations for turnouts on Quincy and Randolph avenues, and relocation of poles on Washington street, settling claims of Emeline Brown and T. J. Lamb, and the appropriation for payment of excess bills for plumbing the Wollaston and Coddington school buildings.

REAR-END COLLISION

Two Cars Come Together on Houghs Neck Line.

There was quite a serious rear end collision on the Houghs Neck line of the street railway Saturday evening. Two cars which left Quincy at 8.20 had reached a point near the Adams farm when the forward car lost its trolley. Before the conductor could get the pole onto the wire again the second car came along and dashed into it. The passengers upon both cars were considerably shaken up especially those on the front seat of the second car.

Among these were Miss Beatrice Joyce of West Quincy, Mrs. Sarah Kelly of East Milton, Mrs. Neil McLeod, Mrs. Leavitt and a child and Miss Jeannette McLeod of Braintree, Miss Annie Moore of East Milton and an unknown man.

Physicians were summoned and Miss Joyce who appeared to be the most seriously injured was taken to her home. The others continued on their way to Houghs Neck. Motorman Brown was in charge of the second car.

Annual Picnic.

The Busy Bees of Quincy Point held their annual picnic at Hayward's grove Thursday, July eleventh.

Luncheon was served under the beautiful trees and all enjoyed a sumptuous repast. In the afternoon entertainment was furnished by Misses Isabel Mitchell, Helen Troupe and Margaret Hill. Merry games formed a part of the programme and all entered into the sports with great interest.

The sail down the river was deferred owing to the rain but not a murmur was heard.

The jolly home coming with its ludicrous incidents proved fun for all. How the rain came down! Those who had only themselves to look out for ran, while those, who cared for the little wagons plodded on. At last the drops came hard and fast, and with one accord all rushed to shelter, leaving carts in the streets or any place they happened to be.

"What a jolly day we've had!" "It's the best time I ever had!" and "Wasn't it fun to get so wet!" These were the sentiments of all as they parted, some in carriages, others walking, the rest aboard the car, after bidding Mrs. Addison a happy goodbye and thanking her for the generous good time she had given them.

—Two Brooklyn telephone girls have just been married to young men who were charmed by their voices over the wire. Telephone girls everywhere reading this will begin work with new courage.

Two Sources of Profit.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the share holders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. A limited amount of stock will be sold at $500 per thousand shares and pro rata down to 100 shares.

OWN THE TRUSTS.

Outing of Social Democrats at Quincy Woods.

Millionaire Wilshire the Principal Speaker.

Representative MacCartney and Mayor Coulter Also Speak.

A gathering of men, women and children numbering five hundred or more, were present Sunday at the picnic held by the Social Democrats at Quincy woods. It was an ideal place for a gathering of this kind and while the sun was hot and oppressive on the streets a cool breeze was ever present beneath the trees. There was a large booth for the sale of refreshments such as tonics, coffee, sandwiches, lemonade and ice cream. Also a table where Socialist literature was on sale, and here subscriptions were received for the various publications.

During the first part of the afternoon a concert was given by the Social Democrats band of Brockton. This was followed by speaking.

Harry S. Marden presided and the first speaker was Mayor Coulter of Brockton. He spoke of the evolution of the working men and women as a workingman. The Social Democrats were working for the interests of the workingmen. He told what the movement had done in Brockton and Haverhill and said a good word for the two Social Democrat representatives in the general court. In closing he paid his compliments to the trusts which he said were founded to enrich the promoters.

Representative MacCartney said this was not a game of sheep following another sheep. This movement is composed of men who have suffered in the battle of life. Out of the agony there will arise convictions that are as firm as a rock, a coherent and scientific system of men who work and cooperate together. He urged his hearers to be patient and endure sacrifices. This is no excursion down the harbor or western land boom. We are enlisted in a cause that means for life.

The magnet of the day was A. Gaylord Wilshire who spoke on the subject: "Let the Nation own the Trusts."

Mr. Wilshire is a typical westerner. He wore a short cropped black beard and hair and appeared on the platform in a neglige attire minus coat and hat. He has a clear voice and a merry twinkle of the eye that caught the audience.

Mr. Wilshire began his address by calling attention to the seriousness of Socialism. "Now," he said, "we are oppressed with the fear of not being able to get a living—a strange and anomalous situation when it is considered that one little girl, in one of our great mills, is able to weave enough cloth to clothe 12 persons.

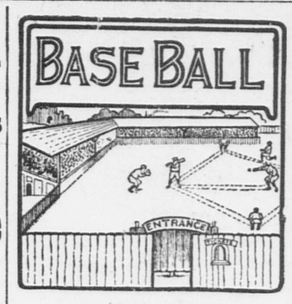

"Under the present competitive wage system it matters not how much labor produces, it has to be content with the mere necessities of life. Supposing the increase in inventions had been 100 times that it is, would wages have increased? On the contrary, the number of men thrown out of employment by such inventions would make it more difficult to live than it was before.

"Your orators, McKinley, Hanna and Depew, tell you that we are in danger of financial death unless we can get an outlet for our products. The capitalists has got rid of his product in two ways. He has sold it in the way of necessities to the workingman, and utilized it in the production of new machinery. Whenever a workingman has been set free by the invention of a machine he has been set to work building another machine. But when Hanna says there is no outlet, it means that have machinery enough and that avenue is closed.

"Do you think men would invest their money in railways in China if they could find a safer investment here at home? When the trust is formed, it says, 'no more capital needed in this industry.' It says 'we want no more oil refineries,' and 'we want no more machinery of production.'

"The present industrial boom is ephemeral. It is the fever approaching a crisis. There are reasons found in the Spanish-American war for the stimulating of industry but with trusts forming on every hand, the crisis can not be far away.

"It is reasonable to suppose under the conditions that a state of society will evolve which will allow us to distribute to ourselves what we produce. We are going to adopt Socialism, not because it is a good thing but because if we don't we will have a hell on earth. I became a Socialist 12 years ago because I knew it was inevitable. My own business experience showed me there was no possible hope outside of it and that it as bound to come."

South Quincy Wins Again.

South Quincy won its 6th consecutive victory on Saturday. Walsh the "Western wonder" completely puzzled Holbrooks heavy hitters, and throughout the whole game had the visitors at his mercy. Five scattered hits were made off his delivery, and fifteen strike-outs were chalked down in his favor. Mack, of Holbrook, pitched a steady game, but he was no match for Walsh.

In the fifth, Duffy singled and Flynn was with four wide ones, Mullane cleared the bases with a double. Dorley beat out a throw to first, and Bjorklund advanced each man a peg. Mullane came in on an error, and Pirovano reached first in safety. Walsh then knocked out a clean single sending two men across the plate. Smith then flied out to Bourbeau.

The features of the game was the fielding and batting of the home team and the fielding of the visitors.

St. Charles of Woburn will play next Saturday at the local grounds.

—Texas is five times as large as England and 34 times the size of the state of Massachusetts. The entire living popu'ation of the globe, 1,400,000,000 people, divided into families of five persons each, could be located in Texas, each family with a house on a half-acre lot, and there would still be 70,000,000 vacant family lots.

—The Boston Herald says: "In about two weeks there will be a display in the Public Garden that will in a measure compensate those who must spend the midsummer in the city for the out-of-town joys they are missing. It will consist of 30,000 red, pink and white lilies from Japan, and their beauty promises to equal or eclipse any other display of the year."

QUINCY Y. C. RACE.

Cleopatra Wins in the 21-Foot Special Class.

The 21-foot special class of the Quincy Yacht club held a race Saturday afternoon. Owing to the low tide the race started off Fort Point. The Bobolink was the first to cross the line and was followed by the Omeme, Autocrat and Cleopatra. The boats held the same relative position until it came to beat to the windward then the Cleopatra beat them all, and finished first.

The summary:

| | Hour | Min. | Sec. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cleopatra, | 1 | 17 | 45 |
| Bobolink, | 1 | 23 | 02 |
| Omeme, | 1 | 24 | 03 |

Bicyclist Injured.

Sadie McDonnell of East Milton had a narrow escape from a serious accident Saturday night in Quincy City Square. She was riding a bicycle opposite City Hall when the forward wheel of her machine caught in the car track. The wheel snapped like a piece of straw and she was thrown violently to the ground. She got onto her feet only to immediately faint away. Officer Goodhue carried her into City Hall where restoratives were applied. She was later removed to her home. No bones were broken but she was considerably bruised.

Flat Failure.

Editors of Quincy Daily Ledger:

The Independence, in light breezes in the trial races off Newport, did not sail as fast as either of the other boats, while in the stronger breeze she showed to better advantage; but enough has been learned from these races that as a cup defender, she is a flat failure. I doubt very much if there is a man in this country that can make her sail, not even an auctioneer.

J. H. White.

TROTTER AND PACER.

Cresceus has stepped a mile in 2:17 at Glenville.

Goshen Jim turned the Cleveland track recently in 2:11¼, last half in 1:04¾.

The bay pacer Emblem, 2:21¼, is being roaded at Millersburg, O., by J. R. Mackey.

Lady May, 2:27, has been sold to E. I. Leighton, who will drive her in the Cleveland matinees.

Lady Pipes, 2:07¼, broke down in her work at Joliet, Ills., and was shipped home to Kankakee recently.

There is talk of a match between Sweet Director, 2:25¼; J T K and Tetter Woodnut, 2:25½, at $200 a corner, to come off soon over the Belmont Park track.—Horse Review.

THE WHIRL OF FASHION.

Mohair remains a favored material for bathing suits.

For economists are ready made skirts of serge, mohair or covert suiting that may be bought alone or with matching Eton or other jacket.

Narrowly gored skirts of striped silk, satin or other fabric for short, stout women are about the only styles that this season are not decorated in some manner, even for simple morning wear.

Summer tweeds and friezes are made in pretty soft tones and mixtures, and the best and most comfortable way to make them up is with an Eton jacket, a cool india silk waist and an unlined skirt.

A French novelty in lace coats in Louis XIII style is decorated with bands of corded silk, and en suite is a skirt of the silk trimmed with lace appliques. The full vest, with a spangled yoke, is formed of shirred mousseline de sole.

Real chantilly lace gowns are one of the favorites of fashion this summer, and the handsome real lace shawls that have been laid away after being sponged in alcohol in which a little olive oil has been dropped can be transformed into a fashionable gown by adding flounces of chantilly, with point d'esprit or other net for the bodice.—New York Post.

—Think of it and shudder! The veteran firemen of New England, while still true to the hand-tubs made half a century or more ago, are to use iron pipes herafter in their competition, instead of hose. The next step will be a race to the muster field by horseless fire engines. The innovation is sufficient to make the venerable fire buckets buck.—Boston Journal.

IN HIS SHIRT SLEEVES

Steyn Hadn't Time to Don Coat When He Fled

ORANGE PAPERS CAPTURED

Long Pent Up Dissatisfaction With Kitchener's Campaign Now Finding Free Vent in London—High-Handed General Likely to Be Recalled

London, July 15.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria:

"Broadwood's brigade surprised Reitz, capturing Steyn's brother and others. Steyn himself escaped in his shirt-sleeves, with one other man only. The so-called 'Orange River government' and papers were captured."

Lord Kitchener also reports that Scheeper's commando burned the public buildings in Murraysburg, Cape Colony, and some farm houses in the vicinity.

According to further advices from Lord Kitchener, the columns under Colonel Featherstone and Colonel Dixon have reached Zeerust, Western Transvaal. They met with opposition and made some captures. The British casualties weer one officer killed and three officers and 24 men wounded.

General Broadwood, says a dispatch to The Daily News from Bloemfontein, surprised Reitz due east of Lindley at dawn on July 11. He took 29 prisoners, including General A. P. Clonwe and General Wessels, Commandant Dwaal, First Coronet Piet Steyn (President Steyn's brother), Thomas Brain, secretary of the government, and Roches De Villiers, secretary to the council. President Steyn himself fled without coat or boots. General De Wet is believed to have been present.

The Vlakfontein incident has come near to spelling "Waterloo" for the government. An apparently unimportant incident, the censorship of one newspaper dispatch, has had the effect of crystallizing all the widely differing sorts of public dissatisfaction concerning the conduct of the war in South Africa. This dissatisfaction has long been pent up, and now finds free vent, strangely enough, not through the columns of the opposition newspapers, but in the government journals.

For months past the public belief and admiration of Lord Kitchener has been waning; now he is openly and severely criticized. A rumor, which cannot be substantiated, is current that he will shortly be succeeded in command of the British forces in South Africa by General Sir Bindon Blood, who has been operating in eastern Transvaal. Should this change occur, it would probably be chiefly due to the differences of opinion existing between Lord Milner of Cape Town and Lord Kitchener, and it would be announced in the form of a promotion, accompanied by the statement that the operations in South Africa no longer justified the presence there of an officer of the seniority of Lord Kitchener.

There is little doubt but that Lords Milner and Kitchener have had several disagreements, and the high commissioner does not want to return to South Africa as long as the hard, high-handed general, Kitchener, remains in control there.

Officials of the war office are more worried now than at any previous time during the war, and they are working strenuously to atone for and explain the mistakes. The incident has awakened in the public mind an eagerness, most unfortunate for the government, to know the details of operations and an ever-increasing dissatisfaction with the progress of British arms in South Africa.

Prominent members of the Conservative party believe that if their party had to go to the country now it would be defeated, provided a semblance of opposition could be mustered. In this connection, there is some talk of the possibility of a new Liberal organization, consisting of a combination of the old Liberal Unionists and the Liberal Imperialists, many of whom would like to see a cabinet including Lord Rosebery, the Duke of Devonshire (president of the council), Joseph Chamberlain (colonial secretary), and H. H. Asquith (leader of the Liberal Imperialists) which some men believe may eventually be feasible.

Battered With Billiard Cue

Kingston, N. Y., July 15.—Pietra Frangela, an Italian, was murdered at Glasco Saturday night. He played billiards with three friends, and a quarrel ensued. They left the billiard room, he following half an hour later. While passing a brickyard he was set upon by the three men and his head beaten in with a broken billiard cue.

Chilians' Beloved Dead

Santiago, July 15.—The body of President Errazuriz, who died Friday, was brought to this city yesterday, and received with solemn public ceremonial, no fewer than 100,000 people participating in the procession and as spectators. All the theatres are closed, and the occasion is one of general mourning.

Child's Fall to Death

Pawling, N. Y., July 15.—The youngest son of Assistant District Attorney Osborne of New York fell from the third-story window of the Dutcher House here last evening and was instantly killed. The child was 2 years old.

Many Leaving the Fatherland

Berlin, July 15.—The emigration from Germany by way of Hamburg and Bremen during the first six months of this year reached 112,968, as against 115,670 for the corresponding period of last year.

NO SIGNS OF RAIN

Sun Will Probably Ruin Half of Southwestern Corn Crop

Kansas City, July 15.—No relief came yesterday in the southwest. The day was a repetition of the past two weeks, with reports from many places in western Missouri, Kansas and the territories of temperatures over the 100 mark. At most places the sun shone mercilessly, with not a cloud nor a breeze to break its rays.

With no relief in sight the fears of the crops are fast becoming realities, and the scarcity of water and generally dry conditions make the element of fire a most serious one. What the real damage to corn, the crop most affected, will be, is problematical, but it is probably safe to say that half the crop will be lost. The supply of water is short in almost every direction, and the shipment of cattle and hogs to the market to save them must continue.

Mississippi Farmers Suffer

Jackson, Miss., July 15.—From all over the state come reports that corn, cotton and other farm crops have been seriously damaged because of the long-continued drought. Very little rain has fallen since April, and none at all, except in a few favored spots, since the first of June. Mississippi made no corn last year because of continuous rains during June and July, and to fail two years in succession is a serious matter to thousands of farmers. The weather has been blisteringly hot for a week.

Nebraska Swelters

Lincoln, Neb., July 15.—The sun beat down on Nebraska's parched earth yesterday with unusual fierceness, even for this dry season. Thermometers in the business district recorded 109. Rainfalls within two days will save the corn crop, although injury to the plant began yesterday, and another day of heat will work considerable damage to the crop.

Iowa Suffers

Burlington, Ia., July 15.—Yesterday was the sixth day in succession that the mercury went to 100 and over. The humidity in the atmosphere makes it very oppressive. There are no indications of rain.

Six Picknickers Drowned

Savannah, Ga., July 15.—The Hebrew Gamahl Hasad held its annual picnic at Daufuskie Beach yesterday. A number of the picnickers went into the ocean for a surf bath. Fifty yards from shore is a shoal. Between the shoal and the shore there is a sluice. The party was bathing on the shoal. Finding the tide getting high the bathers concluded to go nearer the shore. Almost at once they found themselves in the sluice. Out of 12 who started across six were drowned. The bodies of the unfortunates were swept out to sea.

Bullet a Substitute For Match

Hudson, N. Y., July 15.—Early Sunday morning James Buckley, white, met Levi Brandaw, colored, on Second street, and requested of him a match. Brandaw, replying "I'll give you a match," pulled a revolver and shot Buckley in the stomach. Buckley was taken to a hospital in a critical condition.

McEachern intends to put in a good bid for motor pace honors. He follows the noisy machines in fine fashion. He is feared by all of the middle distance competitors.

McEachern has a novel mode of training. Boxing is one of his favorite pastimes, and the Canadian devotes an hour every day to friendly bouts with his assistants. McEachern will be seen during the summer on the tracks of the national circuit.

Lajoie and Mathewson.

Impartial critics admit that Lajoie is a greater drawing card in the American league than Mathewson is in the National. His great fielding and mighty hitting have made him an object of interest all over the country. Besides, he is in the game every day.

Sunday Sales of Liquor

Lowell, Mass., July 15.—As a result of the decision of Judge Dewey of Boston relative to the Sunday sales of liquor, Landlord Regan of the Lowell Tavern has shown a willingness to become the defendant in a test case in the Middlesex county courts. Yesterday, it is said, sales of liquor were made without any attempt at concealment, though each patron was required to purchase and dispose of a sandwich or some other edible. Sales were made under the eyes of officers.

Still Working on Dominion

Greenwich, Conn., July 15.—The steamer Old Dominion is still on the rocks off Rye, where she went ashore over a week ago. She is lying in a cradle of rocks, which precludes any further attempts to pull her off or float her until a large amount of blasting has been done. Those directing the work still express hope of success.

Twelve Horses Cremated

Boston, July 15.—A 1 1-2-story stable at Jamaica Plain was burned yesterday with 12 horses, a number of wagons and implements. The building was owned by James Donovan and the contents by Charles Linnehan, contractor. The loss is $6000. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin, and the fire marshal is investigating.

Suffered From Melancholia

Strawboard Goes Up In Smoke

Glastonbury, Conn., July 15.—Fire destroyed the plant of the Riverside Paper company here yesterday, and consumed 100 tons of finished strawboard that was stored outside the factory awaiting shipment. The loss will reach $10,000. The cause is thought to have been spontaneous combustion.

Burns Resulted In Death

FOR ALMOST A YEAR

Police Have Been Working on the Fosburg Mystery

THEY PROMISE A SURPRISE

When the Famous Mystery Comes Before the Court For Solution—Will Narrow Down to Contest Between the Family and Authorities

Pittsfield, Mass., July 16.—Preparations for the Fosburg trial are now practically completed, and both sides are awaiting the opening of the fight. The trial opens on Thursday, and then the closing act of Massachusetts' great death mystery will be commenced.

Unparalleled in many ways, the Fosburg case presents curious features seldom found in a case of this kind.

The whole trial will narrow down to a contest between the police of Pittsfield and the Fosburg family. The other witnesses, with the exception of Miss Sheldon, are really unimportant.

It will be the straight story of the family against the deductions, calculations and theories of Chief of Police Nicholson and his associates. The story of the Fosburgs, told many times, will have to stand the weight of the government's pitiless inquiry.

Despite the assertions to the contrary it is John Nicholson, Detective Flynn and Captain White that young Fosburg has to fear. This trio makes up practically the government's case.

If Bertha Sheldon is the star witness for the defense, then Nicholson, Flynn and White are the stars the prosecution relies upon.

For nearly a year now they have been on the case to the practical exclusion of every other matter. Not one sign of their discoveries have they made public. Not a person save themselves knows the entire story they have to tell. They said one thing, and that is that "a surprise is in store for the defense."

They have studied every word of the Fosburg family story, had the opportunity of cross-examination at the inquest, weighed carefully every detail of the story of the family. This done, they pronounced the story false. Thursday they will have a chance to prove their assertions.

Bondholders Want Nine Millions

Nashville, July 16.—A minority of the bondholders have made a motion in the United States district court to be allowed to intervene on foreclosure proceedings against the Nashville railway, bought recently by a Baltimore trust company. The petition alleges that the members of the syndicate pro-rated the stock and bond issues of $13,500,000 among themselves, without paying in full for them. The petitioners seek to recover $9,000,000 from the syndicate.

More Rogers Claimants

Paterson, N. J., July 16.—A third caveat against the admission to probate of the will of the late Jacob S. Rogers was filed here yesterday by Flora Rogers, daughter of Jason Rogers, brother of the deceased millionaire. Thomas B. Rogers, son of Jason Rogers, and Ellen B. Rogers, daughter of Theodore B. Rogers, one of the executors, and to whom was bequeathed $100,000, will join in contesting the will. Thomas B. Rogers is not mentioned in the will.

Consumers Benefit by War

Columbus, July 16.—War between Arbuckle Bros. and the Woolson Spice company apparently has broken out again. Both firms reduced prices on certain kinds of coffee 1-2 cent a pound yesterday. Shortly after the announcement it was reported that Arbuckle Bros. had reduced prices for refined sugar 10 points. These companies have fought both in the courts and outside of them for a year. It was thought that a truce had been effected.

Lived a Hundred and Ten Years

New York, July 16.—Nathan Woodward, a former slave, died yesterday at Basking Ridge, N. J., aged 110 years. He was born at White House, N. J., and was owned by Simon Wickoff, who sold him to Matthew Woodward. The sale was made when Nathan was a young boy, and the name Woodward he got from his master. The record of the date of the sale by Wickoff to Woodward fixed beyond dispute the age of the man.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Ella Was a Rounder

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 16.—Evidence was introduced yesterday in the Ella Glenn case, to the effect that the prisoner passed as H. T. Terry, the mysterious third party in the case, and that while in Paducah, Ky., she drank whisky and gambled.

RELIEF FOR CORN BELT

Weather Bureau Predicts That Much-Wanted Rain Will Come Today

Washington, July 16.—Relief for the heat-stricken district of the great corn belt today is predicted by the weather bureau. Thundershowers, with consequent lower temperatures, are probable in Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois and possibly Indiana. There is a prospect of the continuance of these showers Wednesday in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and in the upper lake regions, bringing cool weather for the time being.

The hot weather continued yesterday throughout the corn belt, and over the lower lake region and upper Ohio valley, but the temperatures fell considerably during the early evening over the latter district, under the influence of local thunderstorms. Thunderstorms also occurred in South Dakota, northern Illinois, portions of Ohio, Missouri and Arkansas, and afforded some relief from the heat.

New Brunswick Feels It

St. John, July 16.—Closing the hottest day of the year, with the mercury in the 80s, came a record-breaking thunder and rainstorm last night. It lasted but 10 minutes, but in that time the wind blew 48 miles an hour. Over half an inch of rain fell, and thunder rolled incessantly. The streets were washed by floods of water. Lightning did some minor damage.

Big Job on Korea's Hands

Washington, July 16.—Full mail reports have not reach Washington respecting the recent uprising on the Korean island of Zuelpart say that it is not improbable that the appearance on the scene of trouble of two French gunboats and one Japanese warship may lead to foreign intervention. If the islanders persist in their religious attitude it may be impossible for the Korean government to put it down without foreign assistance. The employment of native Catholics to collect exorbitnat taxes is said to have caused the natives to persecute the brethren.

Boarder Gave Her Morphine

Boston, July 16.—Mrs. Emily J. Bumpus of 175 Coleridge street died suddenly shortly after noon Sunday, and the police were notified that there was something strange about the woman's death. They placed under arrest Charles Rhinehardt, a boarder in the house. In court yesterday he was held in $3000 bonds until Friday, on a charge of manslaughter. According to the police Rhinehardt gave Mrs. Bumpus an injection of morphine.

Move of Barker's Friends

Arlington, N. J., July 16.—About 200 persons attended the meeting of the Thomas G. Barker Defense association, held here last night. A draft of a letter to Rev. Mr. Keller, who was shot by Barker, was approved and signed by about 100 of those present. The letter urges Mr. Keller to bring suit at law against Mrs. Barker for defamation of character, as a means of disposing of the charges she made against him.

Many Tired of Navy Life

New York, July 16.—Lieutenant Commander Wilner of the training ship Dixie reports that 61 of his men are absent without leave. Of the 61, 47 are landsmen who have had two months' training at sea. In most cases the men have overstayed their leave 10 days, and are classed as deserters. There were 40 more who broke liberty, but they have straggled back.

Stinson Breaks Indoor Records

New York, July 16.—All previous indoor cycling records from one mile to 15 miles were smashed by Will Stinson on the 10-lap track in Madison Square Garden last night. Stinson met Johnny Nelson in a 15-mile motor-paced race, and from beginning to end rode at breakneck speed, and finally beat Nelson by about 675 yards.

Alleged Result of Hazing

White Plains, N. Y., July 16.—Harry Craven was committed by Supreme Court Justice Dykman to Bloomingdale asylum yesterday. The doctors say he is a hopeless lunatic. ## BIG PLANTS SHUT DOWN

Seventy-Four Thousand Steel Workers Idle

NON-UNION MILL TIED UP

Contrary to Expectations of Owners and Officials in Charge of It—Manufacturers to Hold Conference to Decide Upon Line of Action

Pittsburg, July 16.—Reports received from all sources connected with the great strike of the steel workers indicate that the members of the Amalgamated association have matters well in hand, and that the strike order was generally obeyed.

Telegrams from the various points where the mills of the American Tin Plate company, the American Steel Hoop company and the American Sheet Steel company are located fell of the shutting down of these plants in large numbers. In many cases the plants have been shut down by the first strike order which affected the sheet steel and steel hoop companies only. The last order brought out all of the union plants of the American Tin Plate company, with the single exception of the new mill in Monessen, Pa., which is still running. At the Amalgamated association headquarters it is stated that the figures given Saturday night regarding the number of men who would be actually idle in the mills of the three companies have been proven correct. This number was placed at 74,000.

The strike, although one of the greatest that has been declared in recent years, will affect Pittsburg but slightly. Despite the fact that Pittsburg is, and for several years has been, the recognized industrial centre of the world, President Shaffer's action in calling the men of the American Sheet Steel, American Tin Plate and American Steel Hoop companies out on strike, will have but little effect on the commercial life of Pittsburg. This is a peculiar fact, but it is nevertheless true.

Of the 74,000 men idle, 2500 are in Pittsburg, 8000 in Alleghany and 800 in McKeesport. President Shaffer has it in his power to close many more Pittsburg mills, but it is not thought that he will do anything of a radical nature until he is compelled to.

The American Steel Hoop company's supposedly non-union mill, known as the Painter mill, in Pittsburg, was closed yesterday in all its branches. The tie-up at this mill was said to have been a surprise to the mill owners and officials in charge of it. The other plant, known as the Lindsay & McCutcheon mill, in Alleghany, was shut down completely in the puddling and bar mills. All the skilled workmen refused to enter the mill, and the company did not even operate five furnaces. The finishing department of the mill was working during the day, as the men are not in the union, but it is claimed by the workers that the employes in that department will go out.

The American Steel Hoop company's mill at Monessen was not closed. It has been non-union since it was built, two years ago, and the company says the men there will remain loyal. The Amalgamated people would not discuss the situation in that mill at present.

While all the mills of the United States Steel corporation are included in the general conflict, the three companies are the first attacked. What the next move will be the workers will not say.

The most interesting report to the Amalgamated men yesterday was the dispatch from New York which said that a conference of the manufacturers was to be held in New York, at which Warner Arms, vice president of the American Tin Plate company, was to present a detailed account of the experiences of the committee that met the Amalgamated association in Pittsburg last week. It was stated that the question of again extending the olive branch to the strikers or of taking up the fight and crushing the association would be determined. Generally speaking, the workers seem to be looking for some sort of a settlement.

The general officers of the American Steel Hoop company are in Pittsburg, but it is stated that President Corey, who is also executive head of the National Steel company, has nothing to say concerning the plans of the companies in meeting the difficulties of the strikers, nor as to what condition the mills were in where non-union men have joined the forces of the strikers. The policy of the manufacturers, it is said, is to remain quiet for the time, and await developments. The officials of the American Tin Plate company are all in New York, and the company's side of the trouble was not obtainable.

At the district offices of the American Sheet Steel company a meeting of managers was held yesterday. It was a closely guarded meeting, and information was hard to secure. It was said, however, that the reports from the managers referred to the condition of affairs in the non-union plants of the company.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. ## Good Afternoon.

It was somewhat amusing yet very excusable in the Councilmen to strip down to negligee shirts last night. President Bryant evidently thought that the dignity of his position required more, for he wore coat and vest, but the only other ones with coats were Councilmen DeNormandie, McLennan, Hadlock and Nicol. Councilman Callahan started in with a coat, but the example of others was too convincing. A few were in shirt sleeves, viz.: Councilmen Spargo, Smith, Bass and Newcomb. Whether the others were the coolest would be difficult to say, for some of them kept the palm leaf fans vigorously at work. The shirt waist brigade were: Councilmen Gassett, Hultman, Nichols, Faxon, Thompson, Alden, Craig, Sherman, Hughes and Freeman.

Perhaps any vote of the Council last night under the circumstances would be excusable, but many are open to criticism. But one of the nine appropriations vetoed by the Mayor received 16 votes, which would be two-thirds of the entire Council, but there seems a determination to pass everything, and by questionable methods. The charges openly made by two members went entirely unheeded. The votes on the vetoes are summarized at the head of the report of the meeting in this issue and afford an interesting study. At least four members voted for everything, while some voted against almost everything.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞ A renewal of the Northern Pacific railroad contest between Morgan and Harriman is threatened. The consequences are liable to be far-reaching and serious and the government should do all it legally can to prohibit it.—Waltham Free Press.

☞ Exports of horses and mules in Missouri last year brought a return of $9,000,000, and a great deal of the money came from foreign countries. The only danger of a "horseless era" in this state is from the active demand. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

☞ Our public is gradually but surely awakening to a realization of the fact that collisions between electric cars may bring lamentable consequences in their train and should be guarded against quite as carefully as they are on the "steam lines."—Boston Globe.

☞ The English sparrow isn't in such bad repute in Boston as he used to be. It has been discovered that he will eat the brown-tailed moth and those suburbanites who have been victims of that pest recently only regret there aren't more of the little Cockney birds than there already are. —Marlboro Enterprise.

☞ The demands of the age in the way of technical and commercial training are great and universities cannot, ought not, to ignore them. But their essential mission is the promotion of the higher, the ideal life; of the things that make for righteousness, beauty, justice, refinement and character. They must aim to graduate citizens, thinkers, moral reformers, leaders of men in thought and action. Is this duty always kept in view?—Chicago Post.

LOAN REDUCED.

taken from the table, and the report was accepted, killing the order.

PLAYGROUNDS.

Councilman Smith asked if the balance of $1,542.26 for parks had been transferred to playgrounds.

The President asked if he wanted the Committee on Finance to report.

Chairman Freeman said committee were waiting for opinion of City Solicitor.

Councilman Smith pressed his motion saying the Ward Three playground was in a wretched condition.

Motion lost.

TURNOUTS.

The order granting the Old Colony street railway locations for turnouts on Quincy avenue and Randolph avenue was slightly amended and passed unanimously under suspension of rules.

ORDERS PASSED.

To refund tax of $28.93 to George E. Rogers.

Appropriating $50 to pay claim of Emeline Brown.

Appropriating $300 to pay claim of Thomas J. Lamb.

Appropriating $467.43 to pay excess bill for plumbing Wollaston and Coddington schools in 1899.

LOAN ORDER AGAIN.

Councilman De Normandie had the loan order taken from the table.

He then moved to amend by adding $1,700 for Beale street sidewalk, which had been voted down.

The chair requested that the motion be put in writing.

Councilman DeNormandie thereupon moved a recess, which was lost. He thereupon withdrew his amendment and moved an adjournment.

Voted 9 to 10 not to adjourn.

Councilman Freeman was called to the chair, and President Bryant took the floor. He hoped the Council would fully realize the situation. If the order failed this time it could not again be considered, all the work of the committees for the year would be lost. None of the improvements in the order could again be considered this year. He was sorry to see the temper of the Council, which seemed determined to kill everything if some pet schemes could not be carried through. We are on the eve of the summer vacation. The Commissioner of Public Works should know what work he has to do this year. If the objection hinged on a majority or two-thirds vote on some of the items he would suggest an amendment dropping those which failed to receive a two-thirds vote.

Councilman Alden wished to explain his votes. He had tried to be fair and vote as a representative at large, although against improvements in his own ward. Orders which the Finance Committee had favored he had voted for. The committee came to the conclusion that the total must be reduced, hence the pruning. When it became known what the committee contemplated, a proposition was made to him to hold up the $10,000 and pass all pending orders regardless of their merits, but he refused to be a party to the deal. The veto of said loan was sustained, but reconsidered and laid on the table, and when the object had been accomplished, was passed. He considered it the most flagrant piece of rottenness in this Council.

As the loan order of $31,000 now stood, the Rawson road sidewalk was the only improvement left for Ward Six. Walker street and Newbury avenue had been dropped. He contended that Ward Six would not receive its just share, and moved to lay loan order on table.

Councilman Bryant opposed. We should pass a loan order tonight, to include all items which were favored by two-thirds of the council. The financial policy of the mayor was nonsense. The passage of the orders in question would not increase the tax rate of 1902 by ten cents. He begged the council to pass loan order in some shape.

Councilman Alden asked Councilman Bryant to make the amendment he suggested.

Councilman Bryant thereupon moved to drop the item of $1,500 for Beach street. Voted.

Councilman DeNormandie moved to include $1,700 for Beale street. It had been favored all through, in both committees and the council. Then I was "approached" and I heard Beale street was to be held up unless I voted for this or that.

Councilman Bryant said under the plan Beale street should stay out.

The amendment was lost, and the loan order for $29,500 was again put to vote, and passed unanimously on roll call.

It was voted that when the council adjourn, it be for two weeks, until July 29.

Voted to take from table the Newberry avenue sidewalk. The vote sustaining the veto of the Mayor was reconsidered. Like action was taken on Walker street, Chubbuck street and Grove street.

Adjourned at 9.40 until July 29.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

Bills of the Barrows Committee of 1898 Still Unpaid.

The famous Barrows campaign banquet at the American House, Boston, in 1898, continues to be a live issue. This feast was enjoyed by from forty to fifty Quincy men who were members of the Republican City Committee at the time. The bill remains unpaid and also other bills contracted by the committee, which aggregate nearly $1000, although the American House obtained judgment against Thomas C. Bachelder, chairman, and Stephen M. Marshall, secretary of the 10th district Republican Congressional Committee.

The latest move was the petition in bankruptcy filed Monday by Stephen M. Marshall which includes all debts of which he, as one member of the committee, could be held personally liable.

Under the law the other members of the 10th district committee are now as much liable for the debts as is the secretary. The other members of the committee were; James F. Bliss, Thaxter R. Groves, Augustus T. Sweat, Cornelius Van der Pyl, Willard W. Hibbard, Charles H. Bryant, Samuel J. Barrows, Gilbert F. Ordway, Charles B. Woolley, Thomas F. Burke, Arthur A. Hibbard.

Mr. Marshall, since April 13, 1900, has held the position of supervisor of bridges of Boston, at an annual salary of $1800.

It seems that the chairman and secretary of the committee are not as good friends as they were, and have not been pulling together since the organization of the district committee in 1900, when the chairman was dropped.

Death of Former Resident.

William W. Pratt, formerly of Quincy, died Sunday at his home in Cambridge, aged 56 years. Mr. Pratt left Quincy about twenty-five years ago, and has since resided in Cambridge. During the Civil war he served in the 4th Mass. Cavalry. He was made a prisoner in Georgia and was confined in Andersonville, and other rebel prisons. His health has been poor for several years. Prayers will be held at Mt. Wollaston cemetery on Wednesday.

Horse Trade in Court.

David Evans was arraigned in court this morning for breaking and entering at Quincy with attempt at larceny.

The story is that Evans traded horses with John Haverhan. Later, thinking he had got stuck, he visited Haverhan's stable and removed the horse. Monday he drove the horse into Boston. Here he was overhauled by Officers Daveron and Bradley, who took the horse and put him in a stable. The animal was later started for Quincy in charge of an expressman, but before reaching Quincy it is alleged that Evans and his father overhauled the expressman and took the horse away from him. The affair will be aired in court Friday.

THROUCH HIS BODY

Horrible Accident to Ship Machinist.

Has Steel Bar Driven Through Him.

Is Holding His Own and May Recover.

Richard L. Tappenden, foreman in the forge shop at the Fore River Shipyard, met with a horrible accident Monday afternoon at the works. One of the men was at work at a hammer with a long steel bar. Noticing that he was not doing the work as desired, Mr. Tappenden took hold of the bar to show him. While he held it the hammer suddenly descended breaking the rod and driving one end of it clear through Mr. Tappenden's right side so that it protruded several inches at his back.

A hurry call was sent for physicians and ambulance. Meanwhile Mr. Tappenden showed remarkable grit, while fellow workmen endeavored to remove the rod from his body. He was removed to the City Hospital where everything possible was done for him. He was made as comfortable as possible and this morning was holding his own with a chance for recovery.

Mr. Tappenden came to Quincy from Cleveland, O. He resides with his family on the corner of Greenleaf and Putnam streets. He is a young man, universally popular, and the shocking accident has cast a gloom over the whole works, and shocked the whole city.

Free Text Books.

The battle in the Chicago board of education on introducing free text-books in primary grades in the public schools has now been ended by the adoption of the free text-bock resolution by a vote of 13 to 3. The opposition to this resolution came from the church societies supporting parochial schools—the German Catholics and the German Lutherans constituting the real strength of the opposition. The representatives of these societies expressed their willingness that the board should continue to supply free text-books to children whose parents professed inability to pay; but the majority of the board believed that this provision did not meet the situation, since the better and more self-respecting class of the poor did not wish to plead poverty, and often kept their children out of school because of the expense of the text-books.

TODAY'S COURT.

Frank Lane was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Goong Sing, for exposing obscene pictures at Randolph, was heard, and he was fined $100. Appealed.

SUPT. REIS HELD.

Loose Methods of Town of Weymouth Ventilated.

The case of George J. Reis, late superintendent of the Weymouth Water Works, for the larceny of $1,800 of the town's money, was heard before Judge Pratt this morning.

Judge George L. Wentworth represented the government and in opening claimed that the pay roll of June 15 to June 30, 1899, had been raised from $600 to $900.

The government put on three witnesses Henry A. Nash, clerk of the Water Commission, Treasurer John H. Stetson, and Charlotte E. Briggs, clerk in the water office.

Mr. Nash testified that the order for $921.31 was made payable to Reis. Most of the orders were drawn at witness house and given to Miss Briggs.

The order was drawn from memorandum left at witness house. He never saw them afterward. The slips were usually prepared by Miss Briggs. It was a rule of the board that all bills should be approved by the superintendent, and the memorandum attached to the warrant. He did not recall seeing any slips attached to the warrant.

John H. Stetson testified to paying Reis the following items the latter half of 1899, $531.05; $646.13; $608.43; $548.43; $381.60; $470.15; $338.46; $437.93. He identified Reis signature on back of all the order. He had no access to any paper or voucher to learn if amount were correct. He did not know of any rule, as testified to by Mr. Nash.

Miss Charlotte E. Briggs testified that she had been clerk of the office since 1891. She furnished Reis the slips for the pay rolls. The pay roll slips were put on sometimes by witness and sometimes by Mr. Reis.

No defense was offered and the court held Reis in $6,000 for the grand jury.

Will Cripple Collieries

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 16.—President Mullahay of the Stationary Firemen association of Pennsylvania has given up all hope of an amicable settlement of the strike of the firemen, ordered to begin today, and nothing now remains to be done but to put into execution the ultimatum of the executive committee of the association, viz: "That all stationary firemen affiliated with the state association refuse to go to work until their demands for an 8-hour day are granted." Nearly 600 of these men are employed at the mines, and until new men can be secured to take their places many of the collieries will have to suspend operations.

The Larchmont Races

New York, July 16.—Travelling at a 10-knot clip, with her main boom off to starboard, and her balloon jib topsail swelling in a fresh breeze, the schooner yacht Elmina swept across the finish line off Larchmont yesterday, after a 30-mile race, a winner in her class by one minute and three seconds. The Quisetta was second and Muriel third and the Amorita fourth.

MONEY QUESTION ALIVE

Bryan Says Every Congress Will Have to Deal With It

CRITICIZES OHIO DEMOCRATS

Thinks He Should Not Have Been Made an Issue and Says That Dodging of Monetary Affairs Was Inexcusable—Punches at McLean

Lincoln, Neb., July 16.—In extended comment on the platform adopted by the Ohio Democratic convention, W. J. Bryan criticizes the convention for failing to reaffirm the Kansas City platform, and for what he regards as the weakness of some of the planks it did adopt. Mr. Bryan insists that the convention made a mistake in making himself an issue, and says:

"Mr. Bryan is not a candidate for any office, and a mention of him might have been construed by some as an endorsement of him for office. The vote should have been upon the naked proposition to endorse the platform of last year, and then no one could have excused his abandonment of Democratic principles by pleading his dislike for Mr. Bryan."

Referring to the platform, he continues: "The convention not only failed, but refused to endorse or reaffirm the Kansas City platform, and, from the manner in which the gold element has rejoiced over this feature of the convention, one would suppose that the main obect of the convention was not to write a new platform, but to repudiate the one upon which the last national campaign was fought.

"The gold papers assume that the convention refused to adopt the Kansas City platform because it contained a silver plank. If so, it would have been more courageous to have declared openly for the gold standard. If the gold standard is good, it ought to have been endorsed—if bad, it ought to have been denounced. To ignore the subject entirely was inexcusable.

"The money question is not yet out of politics. Every session of congress will have to deal with it. Republicans declare that it is dead, but they keep working at it."

Mr. Bryan comments on the platform, especially those planks referring to state and municipal affairs. He endorses the nominees of the convention and urges their support. Referring to the senatorial fight and the reported candidacy of John R. McLean, he says:

"Did the leaders ignore the money question in order to please those who bolted? Or does Mr. McLean want to be left free to affiliate with the Republicans upon financial questions in case of his election?"

He concludes as follows: "If any of the Ohio Democrats feel aggrieved because the reorganization element of the party triumphed at the convention let them not visit their disappointment upon the state ticket, but rather see to the nominations of senators and representatives who will select a trustworthy senator. Let them see to it that the state platform is made at the primaries next time rather than at the convention."

Echo of Ferryboat Disaster

New York, July 16.—The jury in the inquest into the Northfield-Mauch Chunk ferryboat disaster, in this harbor, in which several lives were lost, returned a verdict yesterday exonerating Captain Johnson of the Northfield and censuring Captain Griffin of the Mauch Chunk. Captain Griffin is not held to have been criminally negligent, however. The jury reported that Captain Johnson had the right of way, and recommends that legislation be enacted fixing rules for the governing of ferryboats.

Mixup of Troops, Police and Citizens

Vienna, July 16.—More than 100 persons, including troops and police, were wounded yesterday in an encounter at Lemberg, growing out of an attempt by the police to stop street parades held in demonstration on behalf of the unemployed. The mob threw up barricades and defied the police. The troops were called in and charged, using bayonets and bullets. Ultimately the demonstrators were dislodged. The city is strongly guarded by troops.

Negro Lynched by Negroes

Montgomery, Ala., July 16.—A mob of negroes at Courtland yesterday hanged Alex Herman, a negro, who was charged with killing Sallie Swoope. Herman made a confession.

Funeral Will Follow Marriage

Hundreds of Chinese Drowned

Shanghai, July 16.—There have been disastrous floods on the Yang-Tse river, near Hankow, in which hundreds of lives were lost.

INNOCENT LIVES SAVED

Thoug Moderation and Humanity of Our Representatives at Pekin

Washington, July 16.—It is now apparent from mail reports which have just reached the state department from China that it was solely through the moderation and humanity exercised by the United States representatives at Pekin in the early negotiations for a settlement of the Boxer trouble that a number of innocent lives were not sacrificed.

These reports show that a more sober and painstaking inquiry has developed the fact that some of the Chinese officials supposed to have been connected with the Boxer outrages, whose capital punishment was demanded by the foreign ministers, have been proved to be entirely innocent of the charges made against them. In many other cases proof has been adduced that the offenses with which the Chinese officials were charged were not nearly so grave as was supposed at first by the foreign representatives in Pekin. Therefore, it is regarded here by officials as a matter for congratulation that Messrs. Conger and Rockhill moved with deliberation, and acted as a restraining influence in the matter of punishments, for not only were these lives saved, but, under their influence, the whole list of capital sentences were reduced from ten to four, and mitigation of other offenses was obtained.

Rio Janeiro, July 16.—The chamber of deputies yesterday confirmed the report of the committee appointed to consider the case of Rear Admiral Mello, in which the accusations against the admiral were declared to be without foundation. ## PAIR OF DESPERADOES

Tried to Overcome Watchman and Jailer and Make Their Escape

Newburyport, Mass., July 16.—At the local jail last night Horace D. Tyler, colored, and Harry King, two prisoners held on the charge of burglary, made a desperate attempt to escape. The watchman entered their cell early in the evening and they knocked him down with a stool. The jailer quickly appeared on the scene and he, too, was attacked. For 20 minutes there was pandemonium in the jail, and all the prisoners were in a position to escape had they been quick enough. Finally, however, with further aid, the belligerant prisoners were overcome and forced back into their cell and locked up No one was seriously injured.

More Trouble at Ansonia

Ansonia, Conn., July 16.—After several weeks of quiet in the strike situation, demonstrations by the former workmen of the Ferrell Foundry and Machine company were resumed last night. A crowd surrounded David Smith, aged 68, who was the only one to go back yesterday, and it was with the greatest difficulty that Smith was brought to his home under the escort of deputies. The crowd surrounded Smith's house, and did not leave until they had obtained a promise from him that he would not go to work today. Then the strikers surrounded a church which a colored man named Ballentine was attending, calling for him to come out. Finally a committee of the strikers was admitted to the church and pursuaded Ballentine also to quit work, he having started in yesterday. The crowd next went to the foundry and made an effort to get to the carpenter shop where the new employes are quartered. The police, however, arrived in sufficient numbers to prevent violence, and the strikers contented themselves with hooting the imported workmen.

MAY FOSBURG

Was Either Murdered by Burglar or Brother

Each Side Claims to Have Strong Evidence

Government Declares That Story of Burglary Was Manufactured

Pittsfield, Mass., July 17.—Whether Robert Stewart Fosburg unintentionally shot and killed his sister, May L., in this city early on the morning of Aug. 20, in such a manner as to constitute the crime of manslaughter, is what the jury will have to decide in the trial here.

Mr. Fosburg has been indicted for manslaughter, and the jurors are to say whether the government has supported this charge with convincing evidence, or has failed, and that the testimony shows that the girl met her death at the hands of some unknown burglar, as the members of the family maintain.

When the evidence of both sides has all been introduced, the case will probably come to these questions for the jury:

Were there any burglars in the Fosburg house on the morning of Aug. 20? If there were no burglars, does the evidence of the prosecution prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Robert S. Fosburg killed his sister without malice, deliberation or intent?

For the government it will be largely the trial of the theory held by Captain John Nicholson, chief of police.

Against this is the claim of the defense, supported by the testimony of every member of the family, that burglars were in the house that night, assaulted the senior Fosburg and also his son and killed the daughter, while attempting to escape.

Judge Stevens of the superior court is to be on the bench. Although Berkshire county is in the district of District Attorney Gardner of Springfield, on account of his illness the prosecution will be conducted by John C. Hammond of Northampton, who is district attorney for Hampshire and Franklin counties. Mr. Hammond took charge of the case at the request of Attorney General Knowlton. He will be assisted by John C. Crosby of Pittsfield, who has been specially retained for the government.

Charles E. Hibbard is the senior counsel for the defendant, and he will be assisted by H. C. Joyner of Great Barrington. Mr. Hibbard was district attorney three times, and the first mayor of Pittsfield. As mayor, Mr. Hibbard gave John Nicholson his first appointment as chief of police, and the chief is the recognized force of the prosecution of Robert S. Fosburg. Seneca N. Taylor, Mr. Fosburg's St. Louis friend, will be present, but not as active counsel.

It will not be a long trial, but, on account of the intense feeling which has been displayed by both sides, it is evident that every point will be warmly contested. A great deal of matter, involving possible burglars like the wire gang, which has entered into the case so far will be in evidence at the trial.

The defense intends to present witnesses to testify to the presence of thieves and housebreakers in this part of Berkshire county at the time of the shooting. Several residents of Great Barrington, Adams and North Adams will tell of seeing the wire gang, the Adams witnesses to testify to having seen the two men at Zylonite at 10 a. m. the morning of the shooting of May Fosburg. This place is 16 miles from Pittsfield.

When the grand jury came in last February District Attorney Gardner submitted evidence collected by Captain Nicholson, and Robert Stewart Fosburg was indicted for manslaughter. He was arrested Jan. 26, and released on Jan. 28, upon $12,000 bail.

Soon after 1 a. m. on Aug. 20, Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Plumb, who live nearly opposite the Fosburg house, were aroused by hearing two shots, followed soon after by cries. Mr. Plumb dressed himself hurriedly, and, upon reaching the street, found that his brother-in-law, James P. Shepardson, and his wife, who live in the next house, had also heard the two reports.

Mr. Plumb and Mr. Shepardson went across the street to the Fosburg house, and saw the elder Fosburg leaning from the window, calling "Murder! Help! Police!" When the two men came to the house, Mr. Fosburg said that burglars had shot his daughter, and he asked the men to telephone for a doctor and to the police.

In the meantime, the son, James, had gone to the office at the Stanley works with F. W. Lund, the bookkeeper, and telephoned for Dr. Schofield of Dalton. Mr. Plumb and Mr. Shepardson told them to notify the police, and then they returned to their homes to tell their wives of what had happened.

Within a few minutes the four went to the Fosburg house, saw the senior Fosburg, and the wife of Robert Fosburg. All were excited, but the friends were told that burglars had entered the house, had grappled with the senior Fosburg and Robert, had shot at Robert, missed him, but had shot May. Seemingly corroborative evidence was to be found in the scratches on the elder Fosburg's face and the fractured rib of which he complained.

For some days, at least, there was no doubt of the burglar story in the minds of the police, and the local and state officers scoured the country for evidence of the fleeing murderer and his companions. The Pinkertons were engaged at the suggestion of Mr. Fosburg and worked for several weeks on the case. Through some misunderstanding, Mr. Fosburg did not pay the Pinkerton bill. Governor Crane did, and Chief Nicholson has the reports made by the Pinkerton men.

When the wife of Robert S. Fosburg testified at the inquest she told of her nightgown being torn. This, the government claims, is evidence that the defendant had some disagreement with his wife.

After putting all the evidence he deemed inconsistent with the burglary theory together, taking the statements of the Fosburg family as to where May Fosburg was shot, which did not agree with what the medical examiner declared to have been the actual occurrence, and considering the testimony at the inquest, including the statement of a hackman, the chief built an explanation of the tragedy.

It was that Robert S. Fosburg had quarrelled with his wife, left his room, passed through his sister's room to the spare room, where he kept his revolver. The government theory is that the elder Fosburg came into the spare room to see what his son was doing, that there was an altercation between the father and son, an encounter so violent that the elder Fosburg's rib was broken and his face marked.

The revolver, the prosecution contends, was discharged while young Robert was in the spare room, and that the bullet flew across the room and was imbeded in a comb case. While the two were still engaged, the government assumes to believe that they reached the hall at the door leading into May Fosburg's room; that the revolver was accidentally discharged just as the young woman appeared in line. When she fell the brother ran to her side and prostrated himself, as Miss Sheldon says he lay when she entered the room.

Immediately, the government declares, the members of the family arranged the story of burglars and what evidence that seemed to substantiate it was also manufactured.

The defense is confident of its case upon the testimony of the members of the family and of Miss Bertha Sheldon, an unprejudiced witness. Miss Sheldon has promised that she will be a witness for the defense.

Mr. and Mrs. Fosburg, Beatrice and Robert saw the burglars, they say, and Beatrice turned on the electric lights in her room right after May was shot.

Beatrice told Miss Sheldon that burglars had killed her sister, and at the inquest she testified that she saw the men with white masks.

As to young Mrs. Fosburg's torn night gown indicating any quarrel with her husband, the defense says that in the excitement that followed the noise of the scuffle between the senior Fosburg and the burglars, Mrs. Fosburg caught the lace of her gown, which was an old one, upon the bedpost and tore the cloth. The defendant's night gown, they say, was torn in the struggle with the burglars.

The defense will show that on Sunday, Aug. 19, young Mr. and Mrs. Fosburg went to ride together, and were most affectionate that day. That evening the family sat about the piano, and Miss May played while the others sang. They were singing and chatting together until about 11 o'clock, when all went to bed.

The defense will claim that Mr. Fosburg and his son have always been on most agreeable terms, never having quarreled about the business.

The defense claims to have convincing evidence that the murder was the work of burglars.

The government, in offering its case, does not claim to have a single witness who was in or near the Fosburg house at the time the girl was shot.

STRIKERS MAKE GAINS

Succeed In Closing Monessen and Clark Mills

RIVALS OF THE STEEL TRUST

Turn the Situation to Their Advantage by Securing Contracts and Men—Strike of Stationary Firemen Causes Closing of Collieries

Pittsburg, July 17.—The second strike day closed with the Amalgamated officials in a satisfied mood and claiming to have made good every promise as to results. On the other hand, the manufacturers will not say a word concerning the strike, and refused to be quoted in any way.

Repeated efforts to secure statements from President Corey of the American Sheet Steel company and General Manager Jenks of the Hoop company have been met with the responses that there was no change and nothing to be given out.

The Amalgamated people say nothing has been said to them of any plan for mediation or arbitration, and they will continue to carry out their program as originally announced.

The steel strikers have followed up their advantage of Monday by closing yesterday the steel plant at Monessen, Pa., and the Clark mill at Pittsburg, both of which were running Monday. Other than these, the second day of the steel strike, as was to be expected, shows few actually new developments. It is too early for breaks, and so thoroughly were the orders to strike obeyed that the three companies affected were almost completely tied up on the first day of the strike. That tie-up continues today.

In these plants about 74,000 men are on strike or idle because of it. Of these the tie-up in the Painter and the Lindsay & McCutcheon mills in the Pittsburg district is of the first importance, since these have been non-union mills, in organizing which the labor leaders have scored a big point on the employers.

Another point for the men is the action of certain independent steel companies, notably the Republic Iron and Steel, in taking advantage of the strike to grab contracts for immediate delivery, and to hire skilled labor from the ranks of the strikers to fill them.

The possibility of sympathetic strikes in the coal mines and in other allied trades is freely discussed. While such strikes are deprecated by the labor leaders, they are apparently willing to add at least the prospect of such strikes to the troubles of the employers. Not only the union mills of steel companies allied in the United States Steel corporation, other than the three now affected, may be struck, but the coal miners and the American Federation of Labor are giving the strike a moral backing already and may act later if there is need.

Stationary Firemen's Strike

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 17.—The strike order of President Mullahy of Stationary Firemen's association of Pennsylvania was promptly obeyed yesterday when 900 members of the organization in this section of the state refused to go to work. Most of the strikers are employed as firemen at the coal mines and their failure to report for duty caused nearly all the collieries in the northern anthracite region to suspend operations, throwing out of work, it is estimated, 30,000 men and boys. Some of the individual coal operators conceded the demands of their employes on condition that the short-hour day was not to hold if the men employed by the big companies did not get the same concessions.

The big companies, however, refused to make any concessions. The officials claimed that the demands of the firemen were unreasonable; that they had received a 10 percent increase when the wages of the miners were raised last fall, and that the demands now made upon the companies was equal to a 20 percent advance.

Iron Workers Smuggled In

Derby, Conn., July 17.—Twelve roll turners to take the places of strikers were quietly brought into town by the Birmingham Iron Foundry officials yesterday, and are quartered at the works. The men were accompanied by 10 deputies, but, as their advent had been kept secret, there was no disturbance of any kind.

Police Think They Have Blondin

Halifax, July 17.—The police at Barrington, N. S., made a capture yesterday which they think will turn out to be an important one, having arrested a man who corresponds with the description and photograph of Wilfred Blondin. The constables had a hard fight with him before he was overpowered and landed in jail, which is being closely guarded. The police of Boston have been communicated with.

Good Afternoon.

The city of Haverhill is among the first to report its valuation for 1901, and it may be the only one to report a decrease. This does not speak well for the hot bed of Socialism. The figures are; Real estate, $26,300,232, an increase of $102,459 over 1900; personal property, $5,596,533 a decrease of $2,46,190 from 1900; number of polls, 10,769, a decrease of 330 from 1900; tax rate $17.40, the same as 1900.

The Quincy City Council numbers 23, and 12 are therefore a majority and 16 two-thirds. Of the nine orders vetoed by the Mayor only one was passed over the veto by a two-thirds vote of all the members; this was the Quarry street paving, on which the Councilmen seemed to be practically unanimous. As there were only 20 members present; one other order, the Beach street sidewalk, received just two-thirds of those present. The Beale street sidewalk had a bare majority of all the Council, and all the others less. The Quarry street order was the only item of the nine which remained in the loan order of $29,500 when passed.

Many of the other items in the order which were not vetoed, would have been defeated if subjected to a two-thirds vote of all the Council or even of those present. In these days of extravagant, if not reckless appropriations, it would be well if the City Charter required a yea and nay vote at each stage of an order, and also a two-thirds vote of the entire Council.

We regret also to see that "trading" is necessary to pass even a meritorious order. A loan order which includes appropriations for each ward is dangerous to the finances of the city. Generally, also, the centre or business ward, gets the least attention; partly because the ward has less Councilmen, but mainly because the Ward One members are not "grabbers," while the term seems to apply well to many in other wards.

The City Council is already committed to a new 12-room schoolhouse in Ward Two, and should make an appropriation for enlarging the High school. It may find when too late that it has exhausted its borrowing capacity.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞It is worth noting in these days that in the graduating class at the University of Vermont this year was a young woman who supported herself doing housework through the entire four years' course, and a young man who supported himself by working at his trade of stone cutter. The time has not entirely passed in all the colleges when others than the wealthy have a chance at education.—Brattleboro Reformer.

☞As the mosquito is likely to be with us more or less for some time to come, it is interesting to know that a remedy has been discovered which renders its bite painless. This is naphthaline, which will prevent the creature's attack from causing swelling and will allay the inflammation. So says Dr. Voges of the national board of health at Buenos Ayres, who pronounces naphthaline almost a specific for the mosquito bite. It would certainly be a triumph if we could, after all the torture we have endured, show the mosquito that it no longer had a mission as a disturbing element in summer life and then quietly wipe it out of existence.—New Bedford Standard.

☞The neglected farm is known at sight; but not more readily than the neglected life. The man who should try to grow potatoes in an ash heap or corn in a sand bank, would be set down as a fool; but he is no more the fool than the man who tries to cultivate high impulses and ennobled motives in the gravelly soil of a sordid, mean, one-story nature.—Uncle Tim.

☞Another fine opportunity now presents itself to people to be careful what they eat and drink, and a great chance to fill space with advice to all hands to be cautious about their general behavior during the "heated term" tempts that newspaper man who is writing against space. But what's the use? The weather's too warm, and the people know what they ought to do, even if they don't do it.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞General Joe Wheeler remembers with pride and pleasure the 2d and 9th Regiments from Massachusetts that were with him in the Santiago campaign. He is to be Chief Marshal of the annual fete day parade at Newport, R. I., and has requested Gov. Crane to send these regiments to participate in the celebration. It is an honor to be thus selected, and the men who followed "Fighting Joe" to the firing line, and stayed with him should be allowed to join him in the festivities of July 30. The comradeship formed in those hot days of July, three years ago, when Gen. Wheeler's determination and his strong fighting instinct carried the American line to victory, must be of the most tenacious sort, and the boys of the Second and of the Ninth should be allowed to once more meet their plucky commander.—Lynn Item.

☞The practical results of most philosophies have been seen not so much in the addition of new and useful facts to the sum of human knowledge, as in a sharpening of the wits, a developing of intellectual muscle, an increasing of mental power. And these results are in no sense small or contemptible. Still, just as many of us have longed for a universal language, so there has always been in the human heart a lurking belief in "Islands of the Blessed" far beyond the tangible straits of Gibraltar; in a genuine "pot of gold" at the end of the philosophical rainbow; in magnificent castles, and real ones, too, in the Spain of philosophy. Eminent historians of philosophy, have, to be sure, outlined the doctrines of the ever-appearing yet ever-disappearing schools, until, as one examines the multitudinous half-truths of the rolling years, he feels like one who looks with curious interest into the tube of a kaleidoscope, admires the beautiful and ever-changing designs, but in his "heart of hearts" knows that the elements of each gay picture are but bits of broken glass.—Frederic Allison Tupper.

Crowds and Crowds.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It seems almost miraculous that there is not some serious accident on the electric cars on Saturday nights and Sundays when so many people crowd on them going and coming from the beaches and the band concerts. This seemed especially noticeable on the West Quincy line on Sunday when passengers hung on the cars like flies around a molasses dish. It not only endangers their lives but it makes it almost impossible for conductors to collect fares.

Sunday morning a team was noticed going down Hancock street, probably on its way to Houghs Neck. It was a one-horse wagon with three seats on which were four men and two women. Each of the women had a little child in their arms and two little boys were crowded in some mysterous way in the bottom of the wagon. Beside these there was an ice cream freezer and utensils for a general camping-out. As for the horse, it could hardly hold its own breath without the extra effort of such a load. As the old miser said: "What's mine is my own" so those men evidently thought that as the horse belonged to them they could do with it as they saw fit.

H. U. Manity.

Wolcott Fund.

The committee of the Roger Wolcott Memorial make a lengthy and interesting report of fund. Contributions were received from every city and from 222 towns in the Commonwealth, as well as from nearly one half of the other States and also from Cuba, Porto Rico the Philippines and from several foreign countries.

The committee received $40,720.37 from 10422 separate contributors an average of $3.90 each. The expenses have been about $1,177.40 (or less than 3 per cent.), divided as follows: Printing coin cards, etc., $311.60; certificates, etc., $111.48; stationery, envelopes etc., $146.11—$569.19; wages of typewriters and bookkeeper, $326; postage, $253.90; clippings, $19.50; express and sundries, 98.81; total $1,-177.40. The interest on the fund will more than pay all these expenses before the end of the year.

Proposed Addition to Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

The Taking to Include 238,000 Square Feet.

Need of More Land Is Now Imperative.

The order reported to the City Council Monday evening, by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, appropriating 28,000 for the purchase of land for Mt. Wollaston cemetery brings it forcibly to mind that Quincy has outgrown what once seemed to be a plot large enough for a public cemetery to last forever.

It was in 1856 that Mt. Wollaston was laid out. Since that time two additions have been made and now it is proposed to make a third addition.

The land which it is proposed to take contains about 28,000 square feet. It is situated at the northerly end of the present cemetery, which it adjoins, and is bounded by Park and Valley street. Merrymount road and land of the Woodward property. It is estimated that this will give sufficient land to last twenty-five years.

The need of more land is imperative and the proposed lot can never be purchased cheaper than at the present time.

There are now about fifty lots unsold at Mt. Wollaston but at the present rate all will be sold within two years.

During the years 1898, 1899 and 1900 the number of lots sold was 89. Of this number 32 were sold last year. This year up to date, twenty lots have been sold, and it is fair to presume that the total number sold this year will not be far from fifty. When the cemetery was first laid out the price received by the town for lots was $5. Like everything else the demand has increased the price of lots, so that the lowest amount now received for a lot is $25 which is a very small lot, and from that up to $90, and in some cases $100, and in one instance a lot was recently sold for $150.

The receipts for lots sold last year amounted to $1,455, and the receipts this year for lots sold up to the present time has been over $600.

The Public Burial Places department is practically the only department in the city that is self-supporting as the receipts every year equal the amount appropriated.

Judging from amounts received for the sale of lots during the past five years, the amount that will be paid into the city treasury when the lots in the proposed addition are all sold will be over $50,000. So that aside from supplying a want the purchase of this land will be in the nature of an investment for the city and a good one at that.

Stone Workers' Strike.

The steam stone workers in Boston have not yet obtained a 9-hour day. As no arrangement could be made for a shorter day without loss of pay the Boston workers struck on Tuesday at 5 P. M.

The workmen through a committee made an effort to avert a strike but the employers did not desire to grant the nine hours with 10 hours' pay before Nov. 1.

TODAY'S COURT.

Wallace E. Smith was fined $15 for assault on a conductor of a third rail train at Weymouth.

Richard Good and Charles O'Donnell were arraigned for assault on Officer Butler at New Downer Landing. Good was fined $25, and O'Donnell $50.

William J. Boyce of Milton was arraigned for non support. Case placed on file.

—There has been discovered in China a curious picture, evidently of great antiquity, which is supposed to represent Noah's ark resting on the top of Mt. Ararat. As is well known, the religious literature of almost every nation and race contains an account of a deluge, but a Chinese manuscript recently unearthed follows very closely the story recorded in the Bible.

—Three generations of one colored family have been graduated from Oberlin college—John M. Langston in 1849; his son, Arthur D. Langston, a teacher in St. Louis, in 1877, and his grandson this year.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the shareholders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. ### Imposed in an Assault Case on an Officer.

Richard Good and Charles O'Donnell, two of the gang of toughs who made a serious assault on Officer Butler at New Downer Landing on Saturday, June 29, were in court this morning. The two men were dancing together when the officer informed them they could not dance together. They refused to stop, and he attempted to put them out, when the two men turned on the officer and calling upon their gang all hands pitched into the officer, and before assistance arrived the officer was quite seriously assaulted.

O'Donnell's story was that he heard a friend of his had been assaulted and that he went up and struck Officer Butler, not knowing that he was an officer. Good denied having anything to do with the row. He said at the time of the row he was dancing and saw no one assaulted.

Judge Cook said the assault was a serious one, and that O'Donnell was the more guilty of the two. He then fined O'Donnell $50 and Good $25. Both men paid.

It was a severe lesson and it will evidently be some time before the two young men will tackle another Weymouth officer.

HOLDING HIS OWN.

Doctor, However, Makes No Statement Relative to Mr. Tappenden.

At the City Hospital this morning it was reported that Mr. Tappenden, who met with the frightful accident at the Fore River Works, Monday, was holding his own. The physician in charge refused to give any opinion as to whether he will recover or not, but it would seem to a layman that if a man who met with such an accident could live through such a day as Tuesday that there was a chance of his recovery unless complications set in.

The size of the steel bar which passed through Mr. Tappenden's body was an inch and a quarter in diameter.

Serious Accident.

Daniel Sampson of North Weymouth met with quite a serious accident Tuesday afternoon by being thrown from his team on Hancock street near Merrymount Park. He was on his way to Boston with a load of vegetables, and in attempting to turn out from the car tracks the wheel of his wagon collapsed. Mr. Sampson was thrown out and struck violently against the curbing with such force as to fracture his jaw. His injuries were attended to and another wagon secured to remove the wreck.

Barrows Campaign Bills.

Chairman Batchelder, of the Barrows Congressional Committee, takes issue with the statement of Secretary Marshall. He says the committee owes only a few small bills now. The bill of the American House for $175 has been paid by the Republican State committee, the City committee and Candidate Barrows. It is said the unpaid bills of the committee now amount to about $500, including the $138 for the St. Augustine band.

Ran Down by Car. .

Esborne Hall, a well known resident of Quincy Point, had a narrow escape from a fatal accident about 7.30 Tuesday evening. He started to cross the street railway track near South street. Whether he saw the car or not, he hesitated, and the running board of a Nantasket bound car struck him and knocked him flat. Eye witnesses of the accident thought surely he would be killed, but he was able to arise and limp home. He is bruised and sore today but had a miraculous escape.

To Launch the Maine.

The new battleship Maine, built by Cramp will be launched at Philadelphia on Saturday, July 27. No arrangements have yet been made for the ceremonies attending the launch. Mr. Cramp states that everything would be as quiet as possible, as the launching of a battleship had grown to be a very common occurrence. Invitations will be issued only to the heads of departments at Washington and to prominent naval officers.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

ONLY TEMPORARY.

Reporter Gets Little Satisfaction From Ex-Mayor Adams.

C. F. Adams, 2d, was asked yesterday says the Boston Advertiser, to explain why he had given up his position as manager of the Independence.

Mr. Adams indicated at first a disposition to spar for wind.

"What do you mean by the word manager?"

The interviewer confessed his ignorance in yachting nomenclature.

"I was never manager of the Independence," said Mr. Adams.

"Didn't you manage her in two races?"

"Well, I suppose I was in charge of her. But that was only a temporary arrangement.

"I went aboard solely for those two races."

"Why did you resign?"

"Why, I had to come ashore to fulfil engagements."

"And you will not manage her again?"

"I don't know. But now let me say right here that if any of the papers have hinted at any friction, there's nothing in that at all. There is absolutely no uncomfortable feeling whatever,

"Have you any idea as to who the new manager may be?"

"None whatever."

"What's your opinion of the performance the boat so far?"

"I'd rather not be interviewed."

"What do you think of the proposed changes?"

"I'll have to answer that question as I did the other."

"Has she any chance at all against the other two boats?"

"Can't say."

In conclusion Mr. Adams reiterated that there has been absolutely no friction between anybody else and himself, and the most pleasant relations continue.

ST. PAUL'S IN DANGER.

Anxiety Felt For Safety of the Famous London Cathedral.

That the foundations of St. Paul's cathedral in London afforded possible grounds for uneasiness has long been known in a vague sort of way, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. The schemes for a new underground electric railway near the cathedral has roused the dormant anxiety, which is stimulated by a pronouncement by Somers Clarke, F. S. A. He points out that the soil on which the cathedral stands was never very good and that this caused Sir Christopher Wren, the architect of the cathedral, to take precautions, despite which the ground yielded. Clarke adds:

"Had the subsoil been undisturbed further movement would have been improbable, but the water below the sandy stratum and over the clay was soon tapped as the city increased, establishing a source of great danger. A century ago great ties of iron were put into the walls of the transepts and tied back to the dome piers and also across their fronts. Since then the south transepts have shown a strong inclination to slide southward down the hillside toward the Thames.

"Moreover, there has not only been a movement southward, but the wall has opened from east to west. This wall, from 8 to 10 feet thick, 130 feet long and 130 feet high, is now showing a tendency to more breakage, evidently caused not by the thrusting of the arches, but by the actual subsidence of the soil beneath. When it is considered that there is now between the cathedral and the river not only deep drains, but an underground railway, with the Waterloo city line beneath that, it is evident that the subsoil on which the ponderous masonry rests has been seriously attacked. The west front, with its heavy towers and bells, has also subsided."

A WITTY LAWYER.

Some Characteristics of A. H. Hummel of New York.

Abraham H. Hummel, the well known New York lawyer, who was seriously injured the other day in London, was born in Boston about 50 years ago. He was educated in the common schools of New York city. His quick wit and bright, alert manner attracted the attention of William F. Howe, who was noted as a leader in criminal law. Mr. Howe took the young man into his office, and there Mr. Hummel laid the foundation of that knowledge of law for which he became distinguished, says the New York Herald.

His tastes did not lie in the direction of the criminal branch of the law, and he developed his specialties, dramatic law and the laws governing marriage and divorce. He was consulted by playwrights, managers, actors and all classes who were connected with the theater. His wide acquaintance with the people of the stage caused him to be regarded as the leading first nighter of New York. The premiere of no dramatic performance seemed complete without him.

In the intricate questions which arose out of the varying laws of the various states in the country with regard to marriage and divorce Mr. Hummel is recognized as an authority. His ready wit, his sarcasm and his power of rapid analysis made him in court a resourceful advocate as well as a formidable opponent. Many anecdotes are told of the way he got the best of his legal adversaries by means of a cleverly turned phrase or a flash of repartee.

Mr. Hummel was for years one of the coterie which is nightly seen at Delmonico's.

ARNOLD AND ZANGWILL.

Pathetic Meeting Between Blind Sir Edwin and the Jewish Novelist.

As Major James B. Pond, the widely known manager for lecturers, was talking on the Victoria hotel balcony a few days ago with Israel Zangwill, the novelist, says the New York World's London correspondent, Sir Edwin Arnold, who has not only lost the use of his legs through paralysis, but has become totally blind, drove up with his devoted Japanese wife to call upon his old friend, Pond. Zangwill and Arnold had not met, and Pond introduced them.

"I would give much," said Sir Edwin to Zangwill, "to see your face, for I know and admire your work, but I fear that I shall never look into the countenance of man or woman again on this earth."

In spite of his infirmities Sir Edwin, whose son, now serving a term in prison for embezzlement, robbed him of the savings of his life, is obliged at the age of 60 years to work hard for a living.

Mexico to Have Fish Canneries.

A plan which is receiving government sanction in Mexico is for the establishment at Mazatlan of a large packery and cannery for the preservation of shrimps and fish, writes a correspondent in the New York Post. Fish of fine grade abound in the waters of Sinaloa and Tepic, but there is no way of preserving them, and consequently there is only a local demand for them. It is thought that the establishment of a thoroughly equipped modern packing house will enable Mexico to compete with the United States in the foreign sale of many kinds of fish.

Fortune From a Skunk Farm.

An entirely new departure in money making enterprises is a skunk farm being operated by Anton Fritz in the vicinity of Smithton, near Greensburg, Pa., says the Philadelphia Press. Mr. Fritz stated recently that he has about 700 skunks. Some time ago he fenced in a rocky ledge and stocked it with polecats. The demand for the pelts and the fat of the animals is very great, and the operator is growing rich.

A dispatch of Tuesday to the Journal reports: Cadillac, the first Canada Cup defender built for out-of-town yachtsmen, sailed into Chicago Harbor, having completed its journey from Quincy Point, Mass., without a mishap.

"On our sea trip from Boston to New York," Designer Hanley remarked, "we had ample opportunity to test the stability of the boat and I am well satisfied it can stand any kind of weather in reason the inland lakes can furnish.

Assaulted a Conductor.

It does not pay to assault a railroad conductor, as Wallace E. Smith learned when he faced Judge Cook in the district court this morning. Smith started from Nantasket for Braintree. He had some talk with the conductor about paying his fare. During the talk it is alleged that Smith struck the conductor. For this Judge Cook imposed a fine of $15.

In the Path of Speedy Settlement of Chinese Affairs

JAPAN RAISES INDEMNITY

Is Endorsed In Her Attitude by the United States—Details of Plan of Payment Cause a Continuation of the Deadlock at Pekin

Washington, July 17.—Some surprise is felt in diplomatic circles here that nothing is heard at the state department from Commissioner Rockhill in regard to the hitch over the Japanese indemnity, which seems to be one of the stumbling blocks in the completion of arrangements to wind up the Chinese imbroglio.

Japan, it will be recalled, contented herself with the extremely modest indemnity of $24,000,000, which represented the obligations incurred by her in the relief and other expeditions. When she came to arrange for the floating of the Chinese 4 percent bonds with indemnities paid, she found they would not command in her market more than 36 percent of their face value. She accordingly went back to ask for an increase of indemnity to make good the discount. To this the powers were not ready to agree, and Russia was particularly hostile.

The attitude of the United States has been that this extra allowance to Japan would be fair, and we have been willing to grant it if the other powers would agree. Commissioner Rockhill's silence is thought to indicate difficulty in reaching an agreement.

Advices from Pekin say that the ministers of the powers now freely admit that the prospect of a conclusion of the negotiations is growing darker. The situation is most serious, as the deadlock has continued for more than a month. The meeting arranged for yesterday was postponed because it was apparent that the proceedings would be fruitless.

It was at the meeting of July 11 that the ministers reached something in the nature of an agreement as to the indemnity. But almost immediately a radical difference developed between Great Britain and Russia as to the details of the plan of payment. All the ministers were in accord with the scheme early in June, subject to the approval of their governments, but Great Britain disapproved the arrangement on the ground that it did not adequately protect her commercial interests.

Neutral ministers at Pekin assert that either Great Britain or Russia must make material concessions before a conclusion of the agreement is possible. Meanwhile the committees of the ministers are working upon comparatively unimportant details such as improvements in navigation; but if the financial question were settled the negotiations could be closed in a day.

Li Hung Chang keeps sending strenuous requests to the ministers of the powers to present a complete plan. He represents that China is willing to accept any reasonable terms, and is chiefly anxious to know definitely what the powers require so that she may begin compliance with the terms.

The ministers regard newspaper accusations of procrastination on their part as exceedingly unjust. The governments and not the ministers are responsible, the ministers say, for the deadlock.

Vice Consulship For Stowe

Washington, July 17.—It is probable that James G. Stowe, United States consul general at Cape Town, whose resignation is before the president, because the salary is insufficient, will be appointed United States vice consul at some South African port, in pursuance of a plan to continue Mr. Stowe in the government service, while affording him an opportunity to accept a lucrative connection with some American exporting firm, as resident agent in South Africa.

Two Electricity Fatalities

Corning, N. Y., July 17.—During a heavy storm here yesterday, John Rowley, who was at work in a field, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Last evening Martin Dillon, a lineman, came in contact with a 2400-volt wire of the street lighting company, and was terribly burned. He fell from a pole 45 feet high, crushing his skull. He died within an hour.

Banished From France

Paris, July 17.—Owing to the ill health of Jules Guerin, who on Jan. 4, 1900, was sentenced to 10 years' confinement in a fortified place for conspiracy against the goverment, the sentence has been commuted to banishment. He was taken from jail yesterday and put on board a train for Switzerland.

Mayor Stabbed In the Neck

Oran, Algeria, July 17.—While Max Regis, the anti-Semite mayor of Algiers, was going to the Casino last night he was stabbed in the neck. The wound is a severe one. His assailant was arrested. Rioting followed, and 30 persons were taken into custody.

Disposed of by Posse

Helena, Mont., July 17.—A posse organized at Big Sandy to capture three alleged horse thieves, "Bucking Bill," Fred Comme and Pete Walter, has received word that the men were hanged by another posse Saturday on the Missouri river, near Judith.

Passenger Train Record Broken

Chicago, July 17.—A special train of five cars was hauled over the Pennsylvania road yesterday from Pittsburg to Chicago in 10 hours and 50 minutes. This breaks all passenger train records between the two cities.

CAUGHT BY CAVEIN

Italians Buried In an Excavation and Three Lose Their Lives

Fairfield, Conn., July 17.—A cave-in of earth and timbers at a cut made by workmen who were preparing the foundation of the Uncowa reservoir dam, killed three men and injured nine others, one of whom may die. All the killed and injured were members of a gang of Italians in the employ of the contracting company. They were digging at the bottom of a cut 20 feet deep, the sides of which were braced with timbers resting on stone foundations, when they were suddenly overwhelmed by the collapse of one side of the cut, a section of the bank 15 feet in length completely burying part of the crew.

At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon three dead bodies had been dug from the mass of earth, rocks and timbers which filled the excavation, and nine others, more or less injured, had been accounted for. There was a rumor that another was missing, and the digging was continued with the possibility of finding a fourth body, although, according to the tally of the superintendent of the crew, all the workmen had been accounted for. Five of the men were severely injured.

The superintendent of the gang states that in his opinion the accident was caused by one of the men picking out a stone on which a supporting timber rested, thus leaving the earth wall without a prop.

ELEVEN PERSONS HURT

In Collision of Trolley Cars on a Curve Near Manchester, N H

Manchester, N. H., July 17.—An extra car, carrying no passengers, and a regular car, leaving the city at 6:30 o'clock, collided on the Manchester Electric railway last night, about three miles from the center of the city. The cars met head on, on a curve. Both were under full headway. Peter Villnere, motorman of the extra car, received a broken leg and internal injuries. His condition is critical. Ten other persons were more or less seriously injured. They were brought to this city as soon as possible, and the most seriously hurt were taken to the hospital.

So little warning was given of the coming collision that the motormen had barely time to reverse their motors before the crash came, and the passengers on the regular car had no time to jump. Villnere was thrown forward and caught under the heavy dasher of his own car, from which position the rescuers had great difficulty in extricating him.

The cause of the accident has not yet been officially decided, but it is believed that the extra was trying to make a turnout, a little further up the line, while the regular car's crew supposed that they had a clear track. The extra had taken workingmen to Goffs Falls, and was on its way back to the city.

PASSENGERS SAVED

Steamer John Fremont Met With Disaster In the Sound

New London, Conn., July 17.—Steamer Fremont of the Joy line, in a sinking condition, and all of the passengers and crew taken off by the steamer City of Lowell, was the sad and joyful news that Captain McDonald of the steamer City of Worcester brought to this port when the Worcester arrived at her wharf at 2:20 this morning. The Fremont was on her regular trip from Providence to New York, and was in collision when about 20 minutes eastward of Cornfield light vessel, off Saybrook. The collision occurred about midnight, for it was 10 minutes after when the Worcester stood ready to render any assistance that was required.

Quite a fleet of sound steamers were near the Fremont soon after the collision, and were ready to render assistance. Besides the Worcester and Lowell, there were the Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maine and New Hampshire, but the Lowell went right alongside, having the advantage over the sidewheel steamers, and rescued all on board. At the time of the collision there was quite a thick fog, but it soon cleared off, and there was everything favorable for the assistance of the Fremont, had the Lowell not been equal to the great emergency.

Stello drew a revolver, and fired four shots, one taking effect in Mrs. Bernardo's wrist, two lodging in Camillo's shoulder and the other behind his right ear. Stello then escaped. The injured Italians were taken to a hospital, where the man's condition is considered very serious.

Fosburg's Declaration In Superior Court

Forty Witnesses to Testify For the State

Both Sides Are Confident on the Eve of the Trial

Pittsfield, Mass., July 18.—The preliminary steps in the case of Robert S. Fosburg, charged with shooting his sister, May L. Fosburg, in August, 1900, was taken yesterday when the young man was called before the superior court to plead to an indictment for manslaughter. H. C. Joiner, one of his counsel, accompanied Mr. Fosburg. The young man pleaded not guilty, and the case went over for trial.

The proceedings lasted but 10 minutes. None of Mr. Fosburg's relatives were present. S. N. Taylor, a lawyer from St. Louis, who is an intimate friend of the Fosburg family, and who took a prominent part several months ago in looking up the movements of the wire gang in connection with the Fosburg case, arrived here yesterday. He will take no active part in the defense, but will, however, have a seat within the bar enclosure. The case comes up for trial today formally.

It is stated on good authority that the Fosburg case will last only two days this week, adjourn over Saturday and Sunday, the same as ordinary courts, and be resumed next Monday morning. The authorities think that the case will take two days of this week and fully five days of next week, as the government has nearly 50 witnesses, including some of the first people to arrive at the Fosburg home on the morning of the tragedy. This arrangement has been agreed to by counsel for both sides, and will allow the attorneys to examine the evidence as far as put in and resume early Monday morning. It is understood that Judge Stevens is willing to postpone over Saturday and Sunday, finding it impossible to finish the case this week.

It is announced that the state has subpoenaed Miss Beatrice Fosburg, the sister of the murdered girl, sleeping with her that fatal night, who is said to have turned on the electric light when the burglars had fled. This is the first time the government has shown its hand in the details of the case so far. Miss Fosburg is now about 14 years old, and was a witness at the inquest. Chief Nicholson was reported then as saying that he considered her version of the affair most important. The government sent out subpoenas for its witnesses, some 40 in all, from which it will be inferred that the prosecution is to last some time.

On the morning of the opening of the court a week ago Monday, Judge Stevens asked Mr. Crosby if he expected to enter the case, and the city solicitor's reply was negative. The question has since then been in abeyance, as, in former manslaughter trials, the district attorney has never had assistance.

On the other hand, District Attorney Hammond raised the question, stating that he has recently entered the trial, and would like assignment of assistance. Judge Stevens, who will be the presiding judge, yesterday heard the petition of District Attorney Hammond that Mr. Crosby be assigned as his assistant in the prosecution, and granted the request, with the imposed condition that Mr. Crosby is to exert no control or direction over the proceedings, but is to act wholly in an advisory capacity.

S. M. Taylor of St. Louis will only give such aid as he can outside of the actual participation in the trial. Sheriff Fuller has sent invitations to the grand jury just finishing its labors, who indicted the defendant. Chief Nicholson spent nearly all of yesterday with Mr. Crosby in the latter's office.

The Fosburg family are at the Hotel Winslow, as is also Miss Bertha Sheldon of Providence, one of the chief witnesses for the defense, who arrived yesterday afternoon. Detective Sherman of Central Falls, who was the first one to connect the so-called wire gang with the shooting, and will be an important witness in the case.

The corridors of the hotel present an animated appearance today, there being a large number of newspaper representatives present from all over the country, and many more who are interested in the trial. The Fosburg family is very much in evidence about the hotel. They are very democratic and approachable. Young Fosburg, the defendant, absolutely refuses to discuss the case, but the older Fosburg will converse with anyone about it, and is more confident than ever of his son's acquittal.

The first proceeding today will be the selection of a special jury. A regular panel of 24 and a special venire of 12 men are available from which to select the 12 who are to try the case, and each side has the right to challenge two. It is believed that little delay will be experienced in selecting a jury, and that the actual work of hearing the evidence can be proceeded with promptly.

The case is a peculiar one, inasmuch as it goes directly before the superior court upon an indictment for manslaughter procured by the district attorney of his own volition, without any previous hearing in the lower court.

Being a manslaughter instead of a murder case, the defense has had no opportunity of ascertaining who the government's witnesses are, or of learning the nature of their evidence.

Chief Nicholson and the counsel for the state held conferences Tuesday evening and again went over many of the details, getting the evidence in shape so as to be presented in order. It is thought by the attorneys that some of the jurors will want to see the premises and go over the house, so as to get a clear idea of the scene of the tragedy. The official plans have been put in order, as have all the other preliminaries of the trial.

Conferences lasted the most of yesterday between the family and their counsel, Messrs. Hibbard and Joyner, and the whole story of the defense got in shape, both for putting in at the proper time and also to enable the defense to cross-examine thoroughly the witnesses for the government. Both sides are confident on the eve of the fight.

Serious Fights Over Religion

Saragossa, July 18.—General Cavero, a Carlist, was killed, and nearly 50 other persons wounded in encounters here yesterday between Catholics and Free Thinkers. The offices of The Noticipro, a Catholic newspaper, were wrecked. The fighting began outside the church of St. Philip. Shots were fired by anti-Catholics. Subsequently the Catholics marched through the streets, armed with revolvers and knives, further violence resulting. The authorities confined themselves to exhorting the people to remain calm and to protect threatened persons and property.

Shinn Saved Two Lives

Trenton, July 18.—Samuel Shinn, who is awaiting sentence for the murder of Thomas F. Applegate, yesterday saved two crazy men from committing suicide in Mercer county jail. The two men had been adjudged insane, and were awaiting transfer to the state asylum. One of the men attempted to hang himself with his suspenders, and the other was sharpening a piece of tin for the purpose of cutting his throat. Shinn, who has the freedom of the juvenile wing of the jail, saw the two men, and interfered in time to save their lives.

A Logical Conclusion

London, July 18.—Frank Stowe, captain of the London Rowing club, writes to The Times today protesting against the agitation to close Henley to foreigners. "Having accepted their entries, we ought not to go back," he says. "If we do, we lay ourselves open to a charge of cowardice, and that would be infinitely more galling than the loss of the grand or the stewards, whenever that might happen."

Boat and Men Disappeared

Toronto, O., July 18.—A boat load of nitro-glycerine exploded in mid-river about a mile below this place last night. The owner of the boat had just returned to it when the explosion occurred, leaving no trace of the boat or men. The cargo of 240 quarts of nitroglycerine was going from some up-river point to the oil fields below. The detonation was plainly heard 10 or 12 miles distant.

Gomez Prserves Silence

Havana, July 18.—Havana papers generally deny that General Gomez made the alleged statement in the United States that annexation was inevitable and that the two countries were drifting toward it. Gomez, however, will neither affirm or deny. Apparently he is not in the least concerned. He intimates that those who are doing the most talking never smelled powder.

Financial Flurry Imminent

London, July 18.—The withdrawal of the India loan Tuesday by the Bank of England has put the bears in a tight place as they have been selling the old 3 percent loans, expecting to cover themselves when the new loan came out. The Daily Mail's financial editor says he understands that "there is likely to be some fun during the next few days."

Woman Killed by Lightning

Randolph, Mass., July 18.—A bolt of lightning struck the house of Martin L. Holbrook yesterday, entering the chimney and blowing out an iron thimble which struck Mrs. Holbrook on the head, killing her almost instantly. Two houses also served as targets for the lightning, and were badly damaged.

Milwaukee Strikers Yielding

Milwaukee, July 18.—Forty additional striking machinists returned to work at the shops of the Allis-Chalmers company yesterday, and were given their old places. This makes a total for this plant of 95 men in three days.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

STATUS OF STEEL STRIKE

Workmen Express Satisfaction With Results Accomplished Thus Far

Pittsburg, July 18.—"We have not heard from the other side at any time or in any way, or on any subject since we parted at the Lincoln hotel last Saturday."

This is the positive statement made by President Shaffer of the Amalgamated association, and disposes of the rumor from New York that the strike had been settled. Mr. Shaffer stated further that no actual negotiations were on between President Bishop of the Ohio state arbitration board and himself tending towards arbitration. A letter received by Shaffer from Bishop asking if he would consent to a reopening of the conference has not been answered as yet.

The principal events in yesterday's strike history was the failure of the sheet steel people to reopen the Wellsville plant with non-union men, the offer of financial assistance made to the Amalgamated association by the 2,000,000 members of the American Federation of Labor, and by the American Window Glass Workers' association; the concerted action of the Amalgamated association to organize the immense sheet steel plant at Vandergrift; and the fact that several of the closed plants are being patrolled by armed watchmen and guards. The Amalgamated officials profess great satisfaction over the results accomplished since the strike began, but officials of the company, as heretofore, will say nothing.

While Wellsville is the strike center now, the battleground will be shifted to McKeesport next week if the report be true that the W. De Wesse Wood plant of the American Sheet Steel company will resume operations. This would afford one of the most trying situations of the strike. It would necessitate the importation of non-union men from other places, and the bitter feeling engendered by such a move would be hard to control.

Sixty-Five Thousand Men Out

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 18.—The close of the second day of the Stationary Firemen's strike found fully 33,000 miners idle in the Wyoming district of the anthracite coal region, which extends from Duryea to Nanticoke. The number of idle men was increased yesterday by the suspension of railroad crews on nearly all coal branches. No coal is being mined, there is none to haul to the breakers, consequently there is no work for the railroaders. The total number of men idle now in the whole anthracite region is estimated at 55,000. If the strike extends to Hazleton, Schuylkill and Shamokin regions 130,000 men may be idle before long. The tie up in this region is complete, and the strikers are much encouraged.

Switchmen Want More Pay

Chicago, July 18.—The Chronicle says: Railroad switchmen throughout the country are said to be planning a general demand for an increase in wages. The employes of this department of the transportation business desire to have all lines adopt what is known as the "Chicago scale," which is the highest paid anywhere. It is said that the switchmen will carry on an argumentative campaign to obtain the desired increase.

Go Back on Old Terms

Buffalo, July 18.—More than 350 machinists, who were formerly employed at the Lehigh Valley shops in East Buffalo, last night voted to declare off the strike which has lasted since last May. No concessions were asked for by the men, and none were given. It is expected that the men will return to work Monday. The Lehigh machinists quit work when the general strike for a 9-hour day was instituted by the International Association of Machinists.

Alabama Miners Strike

Birmingham, Ala., July 18.—Six hundred Galloway and Chickasaw coal miners have struck at the Charbon Hill coal fields. The miners insist that the various companies renew last year's scale of wages, with all of its conditions. There seems no liklihood of a settlement of the trouble at the present time.

Another Plant Closed

Steubenville, O., July 18.—The steel hoop employes at Mingo, who organized Tuesday night, have gone out, and the plant is idle, and no attempt is being made to start. The company has posted notices calling in the men's checks, which means their discharge.

A Colliery Strike

Shamokin, Pa., July 18.—Five hundred men and boys went out on strike at Hickory Ridge colliery yesterday, because the Union Coal company would not permit a committee of the United Mine Workers to inspect cards of workmen on company lands.

Good Afternoon.

'Tis better to advise a man to "grin and bear it" than to tell him to "keep cool," at this season of the year.

The unveiling of the Perry monument, in Japan, added new links to the chain of friendship between the United States and Japan.

American diplomacy is several laps ahead of the best European brand when it comes to persuading the Sultan of Turkey to turn loose her hard cash.

For an American to abuse commercialism, as Mr. Bryan and some of his followers are doing, is the same thing as a man's abusing the means which brought him success. It is commercialism that has made the United States the world's greatest and richest nation.

The Indiana preacher quite agrees with Supt. Parlin of Quincy that children go to school too young, and they are about right. The clergyman says:

"I want Thomas to be happy, so I don't worry him with addition, but just let him fish, frolic and grow. I am content if he can count 19 and recognize the letters of the alphabet on sight by the time he is seven. A little later I will teach him to read a few easy words and make him a present of that dear old classic, "Mother Goose," I will spend a few happy minutes reading it with him, this with few lessons in marbles, will be about all he will accomplish until he is eight. By the time he is nine he will count ad infinitum, not because I have taught him but because he has picked it up. This is just what I want. I want him to learn to pick things up. It will be of use to him in after life. I will also by this have him reading with varying success in the first reader. But now comes the main point. Thomas can now read, and we must—absolutely must—have something to read that will interest him and at the same time be pure and wholesome.

It would be unjust, of course, to assume that there is real cruelty under all the passive obedience to the dictates of fashion. But since hats and bonnets quite as becoming and pretty can be evolved without the bird decoration as can be devised with it, it does seem that women of sense and feeling might be contented without shocking the sensibilities of the Audubon Society and outraging the fitness of things by demanding a yearly sacrifice of bird life to adorn their heads. There was much sense in the retort of the little boy who when reproved by his pretty Sunday school teacher for robbing birds' nests, and asked, in pathetic tones, where the poor mother was, replied, "She ain't sufferin' none, miss—she's on yer hat." There is no excuse of ignorance to be pleaded. The public has been told over and over again that wearing ospreys means the death of multitudes of helpless little birds since the feathers are best at the breeding season and the parent bird must be shot then. The fact that birds of particularly fine plumage are often skinned alive has also been made known; and the silence of woodlands and meadows, where the milliner's agent has been, speaks for itself. It is about time this senseless and cruel fashion should go the way of nose-rings and war-paint.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞ Professor Shaler in a paper on the "American Quality," mentions merciful treatment of the weak as an American characteristic, and, despite some instances which will occur to every one, it is to be hoped that he is right. At all events, it has been peculiarly interesting to note the general unanimity of the newspaper press in calling attention to the need of greater thoughtfulness toward dumb animals. Timely comment has been widespread, and the effect cannot have been otherwise than beneficial. — Manchester Union.

Probate Court.

Probate court for Norfolk county was held at Dedham on Wednesday:

Wills allowed — Franz Schatzel of Quincy, C. F. Bailor executor; Mabel R. S. Copeland of Sharon, Mary J. Christopher of Sharon, Martin Tully of Dedham, Rev. Charles W. Wilder of South Walpole, Edith Harriet Wilder of Cambridge, executrix, bond $14,000; Eliza A. Nelson of East Greenwich, R. I., William H. Gunnison of Walpole.

Comey of Quincy, and Chloe L. Tower of Quincy.

The Use of Millions.

Jacob S. Rogers, who died in Paterson N. J., the other day, left by will the bulk of his large fortune to the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art. Mr. Rogers was a manufacturer of locomotives in which business he accumulated great wealth, the estimated value of his estate approaching $1,000,000. He was a bachelor, or so at least he describes himself in his will and no hidden or unacknowledged wife and children have yet been produced. But he does not "cut off" his collateral relatives giving a brother and a nephew $100,000 each, $25,000 apiece to six nieces and to a male friend, and remembering his housekeeper in a smaller bequest. But it is doubtful that the Museum of Arts will receive the benefaction which he intended. If no attack is made upon the will by the relatives, it will be because that instrument is found on careful examination to be impregnable. The disposition and purpose is to break it if in any way possible, and it is more than likely that the attempt will be made.

This, indeed, has come to be the ordinary and expected course, in the case of a rich man who seeks to dispose, after his death of his property for public benefit at the cost of those whom the law would hold, in the absence of a will, to be his natural heirs. It is also usual to find that a last will or testament, no matter how carefully drawn, is vulnerable to attack, either in respect to the competency of the testator, or "undue influence" or legal restriction upon his purposes. Even Samuel J. Tilden, the foremost lawyer of his day in such matters failed miserably when he undertook to write a will for himself that should stand in the courts.—Boston Courier.

K. and L. of H. Installation.

The officers of Maple lodge, 313, Knights and Ladies of Honor were installed Wednesday evening by Deputy Carrie L. Ingraham and suite of Boston. Although the weather was rather oppressive, about fifty members were present. The officers installed were as follows:

Past Protector,—A. Cora Curtis.
Protector,—Thomas Hewson.
Vice Protector,—Emma Marnock.
Secretary,—Mary A. H. Crane.
Financial Secretary,—M. Lizzie Furnald.
Treasurer,—Charles Crane.
Chaplain,—Mary A. Oxford.
Guide,—Rose A. Reed.
Guardian,—Samuel Oxford.

After the work of the evening the members were served with ice cream and cake. Later in the evening the deputy and suite were entertained at the home of Miss M. Lizzie Furnald.

New Mexico's Forests.

In New Mexico there are two enormous forest reserves, one on the Pecos river, in the northern part of the territory, the other on the Gila river, in the southwestern section, comprising 3,701,040 acres. This domain is as large as the states of Rhode Island, Delaware and one-half of Connecticut combined.

JUDGE HUMPHREY

Passes Away at His Home in Weymouth.

At Head of Quincy Court Nineteen Years.

A Selectman and County Commissioner Many Years.

Judge Humphrey passed away late Wednesday afternoon at his home in North Weymouth. He was 82 years of age and leaves a widow and three daughters, one of whom is at present in Europe.

Hon. James Humphrey who is known as the dean of the Massachusetts judiciary and who has presided as justice of the district court for East Norfolk for nearly 19 years, was born in Weymouth, Jan. 20, 1819, and was a descendant of one of the oldest families of that town.

He was educated in the public schools of his native town and at Phillips Andover Academy, being graduated in 1839. He then taught school for several years. In 1852 he began the study of the law and in 1855 was admitted to the Suffolk County bar. He was a selectman of his native town for 20 years and during most of that time was chairman of the board; he was also an assessor and school committee man. In 1852 and 1869 he represented Weymouth in the General Court, and in 1872 was a senator from the Norfolk Plymouth district. From January 1, 1874, until November, 1882, he served as County Commissioner.

He was appointed by Gov. Banks one of the County's trial justices, and served 10 years. In November, 1882, he was appointed by Gov. Long as justice of the District Court of East Norfolk, comprising the towns of Randolph, Braintree, Cohasset, Weymouth, Holbrook and Milton, and the city of Quincy.

Some three years ago he gave up his Boston office, and it was his custom after court adjourned to return to his home. His health has been gradually failing for some time, and the regular attendants at court have not failed to notice that his decline this year has been more rapid, for while his mind was still clear as to right and wrong, he had difficulty in understanding witnesses, yet for all that it was universally acknowledged that his decisions were on the cause of right.

Early this month he left for his vacation, which he intended to pass at Falmouth. It was while there that he was taken ill and last Friday was brought to his home in North Weymouth, since then he has failed rapidly.

No business was transacted at the district court this morning, out of respect of Judge Humphrey other than to continue cases that were assigned for today. Both Judge Pratt and Judge Cook were on the bench.

Judge Cook announced the death of Judge Humphrey, and said that for twenty years he had presided as justice of this court. He had lived a long life of usefulness to the community in the circle in which he moved. He was born in this judicial district. Judge Cook then briefly recited the public offices which Judge Humphrey had held and continuing said that he had the confidence and esteem of his townspeople, and for many years he had been intrusted with the legal interests of the town and he was singularly fortunate in the settlement of cases of the town.

Judge Pratt said he had known Judge Humphrey for many years. First, as comparatively a young man and he had always retained that kind relationship with him. He had learned to respect his careful judgment. He knew he held the confidence and esteem of the citizens of Weymouth, regardless of party. He believed him to be thoroughly honest, and he never saw a case where he thought Judge Humphrey had intentionally erred in the administration of justice.

The court was then adjourned.

A meeting of the Bar Association of Quincy will be held at the district court room Friday morning at 9 o'clock to take action on the death of Judge Humphrey.

The funeral of Mrs. Pauline W. Barkhardt of Squantum was held at the chapel, Forest Hill cemetery, this morning.

—The city of Lawrence reports an increase of $802,270 in valuation, and 401 in polls, and the tax rate remains the same, $15.60.

Barnum's great circus was called the greatest show on earth, and even with its carefully worked out details it is not comparable to the Pan-American Exposition which is now showing at Buffalo.

QUINCY ESCAPED.

But Lightning Got in Its Work Near By.

A Fatality Reported at Randolph.

Houses Struck at Braintree—Horses and Cows Killed.

Quincy escaped the fury of the thunder storm Wednesday afternoon, although from 1 to 2 it looked black and threatening and the lightning was vivid. There was a downpour of rain but no strikes were reported. Several hillside streets especially at Wollaston were gullied.

Braintree was visited by a severe electrical storm Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock, which did considerable damage in an hour. Bolts of lightning were seemingly playing tag.

The rain was heavy, causing several small washouts on the highways.

Lightning struck a tree and glancing killed a cow owned by Henry M. Hollis, on Cleveland avenue near the Penniman schoolhouse. There were eight cows under the trees close together. In the same neighborhood a blueberry pie mysteriously disappeared out of an ice chest.

On Liberty street a bolt of lightning entered Hiram Abbott's house knocking the plastering and casing off around the door between the kitchen and shed. Mr. and Mrs. Abbott were in the sitting room entertaining Mrs. Abbott's aunt, Miss Abigail Thayer of Boston who is 96 years old Oct. 27. Mr. Abbott was slightly shocked. Alfred Vinton thinking the house on fire sounded an alarm from Box 25.

James Ryan of Liberty street was working in the greenhouse of his son, Ryan Bros., and was floored by lightning. He was removed to his house where he remained unconscious all the afternoon.

Box 145 was rung in for a supposed fire on South Braintree Heights, a house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Winslow being struck by lightning. Some plastering was knocked off but not much damage done.

At Randolph a bolt of lightning went down the chimney of the house of Martin L. Holbrook and blew the iron thimble in the chimney out. Mrs. Holbrook was passing the chimney at the time and was probably struck by the lightning bolt for she fell into the corner and died almost instantly. Medical Examiner Jones of Quincy who was summoned pronounced her death due a shock from lightning. Mrs. Holbrook had a slight cut over the nose which Dr. Jones thinks was caused by her striking upon some of the debris when she fell. The houses of Frank Grover, James Devine and Mrs. Mary Lyons were also struck and a pair of horses were killed on the Savage farm.

At Canton, the barn of William Tucker was struck, and Mr. Tucker was paralyzed on the right side. A farm hand was knocked down and internally injured and two horses were killed.

At Littleton, where Quincy people are camping, a new house was struck and a carpenter, Mr. David Millet, marked on head and back for life.

Accident at Wollaston.

There is one poor fellow, at least, who is blessing his lucky stars that he escaped from a large crowd at Loring's corner, Wednesday night with only a few bruises. Joseph Eastman came way up from Quincy "thro' muck and mire," to listen to the concert given by the Wollaston band. To be sure there was a concert at Quincy too, but Eastman it is said, has a fine appreciation for good music, so he came to Wollaston.

It was while the band was playing that Mike McGrath, the genial cabman of Wollaston, who in order to pass the car that was swiftly advancing urged his horse, which shied and could not be immediately checked. The animal leaped across Hancock street and at Beach darted into a crowd which seemed to be occupying the road. The unlucky Joseph Eastman was dashed to the ground, his bicycle following narrowly escaping death. Several others would have been injured had not they noticed the approaching horse just in the nick of time.

Driver McGrath unaware of the damage he had done drove on till suddenly the horse refused to go. Officer Curtin was at his head and it was then for the first time that McGrath knew that anything had happened. The officer investigated the affair but found that no blame could be attached to McGrath and so allowed him to drive on.

Eastman sustained only a few bruises and his wheel was not damaged.

LANDLORD MOWRY.

Sudden Death of E. S. Mowry of Hancock House.

Mr. Eldridge S. Mowry, for six years the landlord of the Hancock House in City Square, died suddenly Wednesday evening of heart failure, in his 77th year.

Mr. Mowry was a native of Chepacket, R. I. He was for 20 years overseer in the Pacific Mills at Lawrence, and later had a woolen mill at Methuen under the firm name of Hopkins & Mowry. He abandoned the manufacturing business about 40 years ago to engage in the hotel business, and was at one time proprietor of a summer hotel on Lake Memphramagog.

He kept a boarding house in Boston for 25 years, and six years ago assumed the proprietorship of the Hancock house, Quincy. He was a member of the Methuen Freemason lodge, and leaves a widow and one son, Frank G. Mowry.

The funeral will be held at the hotel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The burial will be at Methuen Saturday.

The Massachusetts Hotel Men's Association paid Michael J. Murray $2,000 for his unsuccessful work on the semicolon bill in the legislature. What did it cost Mr. Faxon and his temperance bureau?

An exchange says: Hang a wet sheet—wet, not dripping—across a line rigged up in your bedroom, and sleep like an infant thereby. The wet sheet absorbs the heat, and you will arise refreshed and unconscious that it has been a hot night.

This year Vermont celebrates "Old Home Week," Aug. 10 to Aug. 17. New Hampshire Aug. 17 to 24 and Maine Aug. 24 to Sept. 1. There is an effort to have Massachusetts take the first week in August next year. Perhaps the first week in September would be better.

The advantage of clearing some of the eel grass from the Atlantic beach has been talked of for some time. It would take very little money to do this and very little effort to raise that money, while the result would be a blessing to all who enjoy bathing, as the open beach is now only a few yards wide, with eel grass on both sides.

Above all things do not continually mop your face, consult the thermometer groan, use strong language, and wish yourself at the North cape or some other supposedly cool place. It won't transport you thither, and it will only make your own bodily temperature outrank that proudly displayed by the thermometer, a consummation not to be desired.—Ex.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. ### Concrete Sidewalks.

One of the Newton Journal readers has frequently called the Editor's attention to the policy which he considers a mistaken one, of allowing concrete sidewalks and crosswalks in many of the streets of this city. He claims that they wear out very quickly and must consequently be resurfaced or newly laid and believes that the policy is an extravagant one and ought to be abolished.

We are inclined to agree in so far as this policy relates to the retention of such walks in our main streets and in the center of our villages, where there is a great amount of travel. We have two cases in point, the granite cross walk near the Newton Savings Bank at Newton and the other cases where brick sidewalks are in existence.

So far as cross walks are concerned the concrete crosswalks we believe to be a delusion and a snare. We know that it is only a few months before the crosswalks become cut up and must necessarily be relaid. In regard of the concrete sidewalks there is no question but what they wear out and in cases where there is much travel, sometimes a resurfacing has been required, within the period of a year from the time when they were first laid.

This is expensive and we might say extravagant because the city of Newton ought not to expend money with a view of only a few months' utility. Sidewalks must be in existence in a city for all time and the more solid the material, the better

Certainly brick ought to be required in perhaps one-third of all new sidewalks laid and the policy of allowing concrete crosswalks in our streets ought to be abandoned. We suggest a consideration of this matter by the city authorities at an early day.—Newton Journal.

A HOT TIME.

A Swede and an Italian Fruit Dealer Get Into Row.

There came near being a serious row on Granite street this noon. Shortly before the clock struck the hour of 12 a Swede employed at the Fore River works entered the fruit store of Fostello on Granite street.

For some unknown reason the Swede and Fostello failed to agree, and it is alleged that Fostello raised an axe and struck the Swede. The latter then pounced upon Fostello and downed him, at the same time upsetting a peanut roaster and other articles. He succeeded in getting the axe away, and after an exchange of compliments of the kind not found in the social calendar, the Swede left. Quite a crowd had collected in the mean time but no one had any desire to interfere.

As the Swede was crossing the street the two infuriated men began calling each other pet names. Then it was that the Swede dropped his bundle and rushed across the street toward Fostello, who retreated inside the store. The Swede followed, and grabbing the axe had it poised in the air ready to strike, when one of the Swithln brothers, John or Tom (?), rushed in and separated them.

As John or Tom, it matters not which, for they are both alike, entered the door, a bottle of tonic thrown by Fostello, sailed through the air and came within an inch of hitting him. After being separated the Swede disappeared, and Fostello still muttering to himself, closed up his shop and went home.

Predatory fish are generally the fastest swimmers.

MUSSOLINO SEEKS TERMS.

Italian Brigand Willing to Surrender on Honorable Conditions.

The case of Mussolino, the notorious Italian brigand who for months has defied Italy's military and police power, has now entered the negotiation stage. Signor Mariglia, mayor of Africo di Calabria, is now in Rome as an envoy extraordinary with full powers to negotiate for the ruffian's capitulation on honorable terms.

Mussolino's great and abiding grievance is that he was unjustly condemned for murdering the first man for whose death he was responsible. It was not a case of murder, he contends, but of lawful self defense. If the government will grant him a fresh trial, he will surrender. He is not in any degree worried about the score of murders he has since committed because the victims of his knife or gun were base wretches who perjured themselves in order to secure the conviction of an innocent man or were persons engaged in the hunt for him and, therefore, fair game.

There is no capital punishment in Italy, and all that can be done to Mussolino for his manifold sins is to send him to prison for life. This he will not mind at all provided he is enabled first to vindicate his aspersed character in connection with his original indiscretion. Signor Mariglia takes himself, his mission and his client very seriously. Mussolino, he says, can never be captured either by guile or force.

The correspondent of the New York Sun asked Signor Mariglia to describe the famous brigand, and here is the resultant word portrait:

"Mussolino is not an ordinary man by any means. He has intelligence and is absolutely superior. If he had had the advantage of a proper education, he would have developed into a genius and man of action who would have astonished Italy. One has only to talk with him to realize his great qualities and personal magnetism. He is quite alive to the disadvantages of a lack of education and intends to overcome them. As soon as he is sent to prison he intends to obtain permission to pursue a course of studies which he has mapped for himself.

"He has resolved also to be of exemplary behavior, so that he may obtain, if possible, some commutation of his sentence. Physically Mussolino is a handsome young fellow. He is rather more than six feet tall, of dark complexion and has black eyes. He wears a small mustache. He taught himself to read and write and has composed songs which the population of Astromonte are always singing."

It is perfectly obvious from Signor Mariglia's statement that Mussolino is an injured innocent.

CALLED AN IGNORANT MAN.

Dr. Pearsons of Chicago Comments on the Act of Jacob S. Rogers.

"An ignorant man" was the characterization by Dr. D. K. Pearsons of the late Jacob S. Rogers, says a Chicago dispatch to the New York Times. Dr. Pearsons, who has given away $3,000,000 to institutions of learning and has made a study of the art of bestowing money, continued:

"He had no conception of the way to provide for the disposition of his money so as to cause the greatest benefit. All his life he had saved and hoarded, and when he came to die he did not know what to do with his money. Depleted in body and brain, he was not in a condition to see things clearly. He was half crazy.

"Money is the greatest trouble many rich men have when the end of their lives draws near. Eighty years old and going, going, going! Gasping and starving, they cry out, 'What shall I do with my stocks and bonds and money in the bank?'"

AMERICANS' ODD BET.

One Will Drive a Team of Texas Steers In London or Lose $10,000.

A story is printed to the effect that James R. Larkin of Denver bet Samuel Post of Dallas that he would drive a matched team of Texas steers into the courtyard of the Hotel Cecil, in London, within 12 months.

Messrs. Larkin and Post were taking tea in the courtyard the other Sunday afternoon when Mme. Rejane, the actress, drove in with her mule team, says the New York Sun. Mr. Larkin said he could get a team of Texas steers that would outclass them.

Mr. Post said, "I'll bet you couldn't drive a pair of steers, much less make them look smart."

The challenge resulted in a wager of $10,000.

Our Achievements Besides Wealth.

We have mounted to the pinnacle of achievement in many walks besides the walk of business, says Harper's Weekly. Some of our professional schools are the first in the world. One of our law schools is so easily the first in the world, in English eyes, that English judges are sending their sons to be educated in it. Our scientific men take rank among the leaders of investigation. In some æsthetic and intellectual arts we do not fall behind the nations of Europe, and especially are we not surpassed by England; and, forgetting our ill natured critic for the moment, let us reflect upon the intellectual and artistic achievements of our countrymen. They are familiar, and they ought to be inspiriting. Would such achievements, so rich, so varied and so numerous, be possible if we were wholly given up to the worship of millions? No. The nation that is to make the most beautiful contributions to arts and to letters in the future is the nation that has revolutionized the world's industries, because it has youth, energy, intellect and conscience and has laid broad the foundations for a rich bloom of culture in the general spread of education.

AN ACCEPTABLE TREATY

Relating to Nicaragua Canal Being Drawn by England

WILL MEET SENATE'S VIEWS

In the Opinion of Lord Pauncefote, Who Hopes to Have the Document Ready In October—Closer Commercial Relations With Canada

London, July 18.—Lord Pauncefote, British ambassador to the United States, made the following statement last night to a representative of the Associated Press:

"I am having conferences with the Marquis of Lansdowne, not only about Nicaragua, but also with regard to half a dozen treaties pending between Great Britain and the United States. These are chiefly concerned with the West Indian reciprocity arrangements."

When asked if he thought there was any possibility of arriving at an agreement regarding the Nicaragua canal before congress reconvened, he replied:

"Yes, I sincerely hope so. We are now in the middle of the negotiations which, although they have not yet reached any tangible result, show good promise. Naturally I may not disclose the details, but I may say that when I return to the United States at the end of October, I hope to take with me a Nicaragua canal treaty that will meet the views of both President McKinley and the British cabinet. It goes without saying that the president has made himself cognizant of the opinions of the senate, and of the secretary of state.

"There is no use wasting time over treaties which the senate is likely to refuse. I really believe the differences of opinion between the two nations are capable of settlement in an agreement fair to both. If I could finish my labors in the United States by accomplishing this end, I should indeed feel gratified. But the only way this can be attained is step by step, with proposition followed by counter proposition, and eventually a happy medium. It is slow, but I hope it is sure. If I thought anything could be done before October, I would return prior to that date, but I do not believe that anything would be gained."

At this point Lord Pauncefote paid a warm tribute to the Americans. "They are the most genial people on the face of the earth," he declared. "At the first grip of the hand they take you to their hearts. So long as you do not try to deal in an underhand way, and so long as you do not try to assume superior airs, they treat you as one of their own, and no one could say more than this."

Reverting to the report that a majority of the senate favored a neutral canal, Lord Pauncefote said: "It would be good news if true. I happen to know that Mr. Hay consulted the senate, both the section supposed to support him and the section credited with other motives. You may be sure that whatever is agreed upon between the two governments will meet with the approval of the senate."

When asked if the joint commission was likely to sit again in Washington, he replied: "Yes, I think it will, although this will not occur until after my return. I do not agree with the opinions that the sessions already held have resulted in no good. The joint commission has thrashed out many points of difference between Canada and the United States, although the inability to agree as to the Alaska boundary and the sad death of Lord Herschel appeared, perhaps, to nullify the commission's labors.

"I see that the Boston chamber of commerce has petitioned for reciprocity with Canada. This I regard as a most hopeful sign. It will be one of my aims when I return to the United States to foster this desire for a closer commercial relationship between the Dominion and the United States. I know all the difficulties standing in the way, but I cannot help thinking that some arrangement which will be to the mutual advantage of the two countries is feasible.

"I should hope to include Newfoundland, making its interests identical with those of Canada, although so far as Newfoundland is concerned it is all a question of fish, and the Gloucester fishermen do not always see things in just the same light as do the people of Newfoundland.

"In spite of the attitude of Canada toward Newfoundland, and in spite of the trade difficulties of both Canada and Newfoundland in dealing with the United States, I by no means despair of effecting some sort of reciprocity scheme, which, when the Nicaragua matter has been justly and amicably settled, and the West Indian treaties have been arranged, will bring Great Britain and the United States to even a better basis of common understanding than exists today."

Plate Withstood Test

Washington, July 18.—The first successful test of the new Kruppized armor which has been adopted by the navy was held at the Indian Head proving grounds yesterday. The plate was six inches thick, and represented 412 tons of armor for the battleship Missouri. Three shots were fired, the penetration being from 2 1-4 to 3 inches. There was no cracking of the plate, and as the penetration was not above normal, the plate was pronounced satisfactory.

Death of General Butterfield

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 18.—General Daniel Butterfield died at his home at Cold Spring last night. He had been in very poor health for a year or more, and has been in a condition of semi-paralysis for some time. He leaves a widow, but no children.

A MAINE TRAGEDY

Policeman's Death Decided to Have Been Due to Violence

South Berwick, Me., July 18.—Michael Cragin, a special police officer, died here Tuesday, and, after an autopsy held yesterday afternoon, it was announced that his death was due to violence. Cragin was found lying unconscious in a barn owned by Edward Bennett, last Sunday, and was taken to the house and attended by a physician. It was thought at first that the man had fallen while intoxicated, and slightly injured his head, but, when the case terminated fatally, an autopsy was ordered, and it was found that the entire back part of the head had been pounded to a jelly. The case was reported to County Attorney Matthews late yesterday afternoon. No arrests have been made.

Cragin came here from Boston about 12 years ago, and for some time had been boarding at the home of Edward Bennett. Sunday afternoon Mr. Bennett went to the barn and found his brother, Isaac, and Cragin, lying in a cow stall. Edward says he thought the men were intoxicated and went away, leaving them to sleep off the effects of the liquor.

Isaac Bennett says that he and Craigin had been drinking in the barn Sunday morning. They always had been very friendly, he says, and never had any trouble. The last thing he remembers before he awoke in the stall, he and Cragin had just taken a drink and were sitting on a beam in the barn.

Tells a Queer Tale

Rockland, Me., July 18.—According to allegations of Alonzo Day, a laborer, he was murderously assaulted by his wife yesterday. Day was a tough looking object when he entered the marshal's office, his person being badly blood besmeared. Mrs. Day denies the story.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

THE CHINESE IMBROGLIO

Stumbling Block Removed by Action of Japan

WILLING TO SUBMIT TO LOSS

Rather Than Impede Negotiations, and She Therefore Withdraws Request For Increased Indemnity—Manchurian Question Under Consideration

Washington, July 18.—In a spirit which has aroused the keenest admiration of the state department, the Japanese government has met the difficulty growing out of the preference of her request for an increase of her indemnity by withdrawing that request.

The result is a substantial loss to Japan. She asked originally for $23,000,000. This figure was more moderate than any of the powers which played any prominent part in the Chinese campaign, and represented the barest expense of the undertaking. It was fixed upon the idea that payment was to be made in cash by China. Confronted with the bond payment, the Japanese government asked that her allotment be increased to $27,000,000 in bonds, to make good the loss she would suffer through the sale of the bonds.

As soon as some of the other nations found that the allotment, as originally fixed, was in danger of being disturbed, they came in with increased demands, and thus it is that Japan, finding that insistence upon her demand would blockade the negotiations at this phase, has withdrawn her request for the present at least. It is safe to assume that the United States government will do what it can to secure compensation for Japan in some other way in the future.

It is understood to be the desire of some of the great powers that the disposition of Manchuria should go before the ministers at Pekin, and be finally determined by a joint agreement among the powers. Although no definite step has been taken in that direction, it is being discussed by foreign representatives at Washington, who fully expect that the plan will be adopted.

Russia, it is expected, will be reluctant to agree to it. Attention has been directed to the matter by reports that Russia had resumed direct negotiations with China concerning Manchuria, and also by Tuesday's cablegram, stating that a Russian proclamation was about to be issued, establishing Neu Chwang as a Russian port.

It is pointed out in official diplomatic quarters that Neu Chwang is a treaty port, and as such is open to the commerce of the world under the existing tariff regulations with China, and foreign merchants have the right to trade and to conduct establishments there. These rights of trade could not be divested, in the opinion of diplomatic officials, by a Russian proclamation, unless the powers had previously given assent. Thus far, however, there has been no request from Russia or China for any change in the status of Neu Chwang as one of the treaty ports.

"I Advise
All women who suffer from chronic diseases to write to Dr. Pierce."

That advice is based upon practical experience. After suffering for months, and finding no benefit result from the treatment of the local physician, Miss Belle Hedrick wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. She acted on the advice, regained her appetite, recovered her strength, and gained several pounds in weight.

"Write to Doctor Pierce" is good advice for every woman to follow. It costs nothing. Dr. Pierce invites sick women to consult him, by letter, free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

In a little over thirty years, Dr. Pierce, assisted by his staff of nearly a score of physicians, has treated and cured over half a million women.

"I suffered from female weakness for five months," writes Miss Belle Hedrick of Nye, Putnam Co., W. Va. "I was treated by a good physician, but he never seemed to do me any good. I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce for advice, which I received, telling me to take his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took thirteen bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and eight of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' When I had used the medicine a month my health was much improved. It has continued to improve until now I can work at almost all kinds of housework. I had scarcely any appetite, but it is all right now. Have gained several pounds in weight. I advise all who suffer from chronic diseases to write to Dr. Pierce."

No Trouble In Selecting Fosburg Jury

Only Evidence Can Be Published by Newspapers

Government Will Try to Show That There Were No Burglars

Pittsfield, Mass., July 19.—With the jury impanelled, and having been taken to the scene of the tragedy, the testimony of one witness concluded and that of another well under way, and with the fatal bullet and the bloodstained night dress of the victim offered as evidence, the government's case against Robert S. Fosburg may be said to be fairly started at the close of yesterday's session.

If the story of the family is true, it remains to be explained how a party of three burglars managed to make their descent on a house in the district and escape scot free, while, if the prosecution is correct, this mystery regarding the burglars and the implied menace to public safety is cleared up completely.

One thing became evident as soon as court opened. That was that the greatest care is being exercised to have the guilt or innocence of the prisoner decided in the court room instead of through the newspapers.

The features of the proceedings were the judge's admonition, the swiftness with which a jury was impanelled, almost in one, two, three order, and District Attorney Hammond's outline of the case for the prosecution.

A jury was secured in 30 minutes from the time the first name on the panel was called. The names of those men follow: Norman H. Sweet, Williamstown, farmer; Egbert Yale, Stockbridge, carpenter; Michael Nevin, Jr., Washington, farmer; Wallace Orton, Williamstown, carpenter; Charles Wolfe, Stockbridge, blacksmith; Joseph Ramsey, Egremont, laborer; John R. Hillard, North Adams, iceman; Charles E. Platt, Great Barrington, merchant; Edwin F. Barnes, West Stockbridge, miller; Edwin L. Boardman, Sheffield, farmer; John J. Daly, Adams, tailor; Ralston F. Little, Sheffield, farmer; Edwin F. Barnes was appointed foreman by the court.

The defendant having pleaded to the indictment against him on Wednesday was called upon to go through no preliminary yesterday. As soon as the session of the court was opened he was called upon to stand while the jury was impanelled. This did not prove a hardship, as just half an hour was taken up in securing the men who are to decide the case.

When the selection of the jury had been completed, Judge Stevens delivered a serious address to the representatives of the press. The judge held that, while it was the right of the newspaper men to report everything that actually occurred in the court room, they should not comment upon the force and weight of the evidence, or characterize it in such a way as to create any impression upon the minds of the jurors, if they should read the newspapers. Continuing, the court said: "If the attention of the court should be called to the fact that there were such publications two results might follow: First, it might be the duty of the court to withdraw the case from the jury; second, any reporter making such publication or sending out such would be in contempt of court." The judge then requested the jurors not to read any reports of the case and not to discuss the matter with their families or friends, in order that their verdict might be "absolutely fair both to the government and to the defendant."

District Attorney Hammond opened for the government with the statement that the jurors should not expect strange or sensational evidence, but plain facts. He briefly reviewed the case, and concluded his preliminary argument by assuring the jurors that they should have an opportunity of viewing the premises. He then showed several maps and plans of the house, the floor plan and the location of the beds and other furniture. He told the jurors that they should consider the charge in itself as manslaughter and not murder, for the case did not have the elements which constitute murder.

The government does not claim that the girl was killed on purpose, but under circumstances which were blameful. If she was killed through angry carelessness on the part of her brother or during the excitement of a family quarrel, he is guilty. It is claimed that Robert had the exclusive opportunity, and was the only one who could and did fire the shot. The government need not or will not go into the question of motive; all it needs to show is who fired the shot.

The government will show that there were no intruders in the house that night. The nightdress of Fosburg's wife was torn straight down the front and the hem was ripped. The furniture was broken and misplaced in two rooms. The casters on the old gentleman's bed were broken. A lamp was overturned and a mirror and screen in the kitchen bedroom misplaced.

He then made a brief review of what constituted circumstantial evidence, and repeated a phrase of Mr. Joyner, one of the counsel for the defense in another trial, in which he said: "Hew to the line. Let the blows and chips fall where they will. We want the truth."

Referring to the statement of the defendant to the officers that he saw two men jump from the balcony, and a third run down the stairs and across a field, Mr. Hammond said that this field was covered with heavy dew that morning, but no trace of it being disturbed by man or beast could be found.

At 2 o'clock the presentation of evidence began. Eighteen witnesses for the prosecution were sworn, among them being little Beatrice Fosburg, sister of the defendant. City Engineer Arthur A. Fobes was the first witness on the stand. He testified to making the plans of the Fosburg house and surroundings as shown on the wall of the court room, and these plans were gone into in a most exhaustive manner, the witness showing to the jury the location of the doors, windows, furniture, etc., especially on the second floor of the house, where the crime is alleged to have been committed. Mr. Fobes told of the distance from the house to the several highways, and houses in that vicinity.

Much time was devoted by Mr. Crosby in examining Mr. Fobes as to the location of the balcony on the second floor with reference to the piazza below. Cross-examination brought out the fact that Mr. Fobes was assisted in making the plans by three men, and that the plans were made at the request of Chief of Police Nicholson.

Dr. Frank A. Paddock, medical examiner for this district, was the next witness. He testified that on the morning of the death of Miss Fosburg he was called twice by telephone and arrived at the house at 2:20 o'clock. He described finding the body, and said the feet were 2 1-2 feet from the doorway which led into a little dark hall. On the bed in that room was Miss Beatrice Fosburg and a woman whom he did not recognize, fully dressed.

The witness then related the conversation he had with the defendant and his father that night, in regard to the bruises upon their heads, which they claimed had been made by sandbags. He told the story given by the defendant and the family in regard to the alleged burglars, just as it has been told many times during the past year. He then described the position of the furniture and the condition of the wound and the night robe worn by the victim.

The garment was then put in as evidence, together with a 32-calibre bullet, which was, the witness declared, the one taken from the body during the autopsy. Several square pieces cut from the bottom of the night dress were also shown, the witness having used them in making tests as to the distance at which powder marks from a 32-calibre bullet, such as appeared on the night dress, would be caused.

Mr. Hibbard objected to the testimony at this point, on the ground that the witness was not an expert.

At this point, Mr. Crosby, in answer to a question from Judge Stevens, said that the revolver which fired the bullet found in the body had never been recovered. He said the prosecution was prepared to show that the defendant had bought a revolver a few days before the tragedy, and that the defendant had said it was this revolver which was used in the shooting, and that the man who fired the revolver stood at least seven feet from Miss Fosburg when the shot was fired.

Dr. Paddock then testified to prescribing for Mrs. Fosburg on the following afternoon. He stated that he could not get her to tell him anything about the shooting or the alleged burglars. A few days after the family had moved from the house witness again visited the premises, and discovered that a bullet had penetrated a comb box on the bureau in the spare bed room. The bullet had spent its force and dropped into the box after passing through one side.

At this point the court adjourned until today.

Young James B. A. Fosburg was yesterday afternoon served with a subpoena, to testify on behalf of the government. The boy says he does not know upon what line they expect him to testify. In addition the government has summoned as witnesses Dr. Frank A. Draper, medical examiner of Suffolk county, and Colonel Dimond, mayor of Lowell, both of whom gave expert testimony regarding bullets and bullet wounds in the recent Eastman trial at Cambridge. The summoning of Beatrice and James Fosburg by the government has created a great sensation in Pittsfield, and indicates that the government intends to bring out all facts possible regarding family troubles which are believed to have existed. In addition, the fact of their bringing into the case such experts on the question of gunfire and bullet marks as Dr. Draper and Colonel Dimond shows that the government will have plenty of expert testimony and also that the trial will consume considerable more time than was at first anticipated. It is estimated that it will consume all of next week.

MASTERS OF SITUATION

What Strikers Claim If They Close Duncansville Plant

STORM CENTER IS SHIFTED

Partial Resumption of Mills at Wellsville Causes Union Leaders to Make Strenuous Efforts to Bring Over the Wavering Forces

Pittsburg, July 19.—Most important of all news regarding the steel workers' strike that reached Pittsburg yesterday was the action of the men employed in the Duncansville plant of the American Steel Hoop company.

A telegram was received by President Shaffer from the men in the morning asking if they should strike. President Shaffer answered, telling the men not to come out unless they were organized. In the afternoon another telegram was received, asking that an organizer be sent to them at once.

Vice President Pierce started for Duncansville last evening to complete the organization. The Duncansville plant is the last of the hoop plants to remain at work, and the Amalgamated association officials say if they are successful in closing this plant they will be masters of the situation, as far as the Steel Hoop company is concerned, at least.

The action of the Ohio board of arbitration in offering to bring about a settlement of the strike created some talk in steel circles. M. M. Garland, former president of the Amalgamated association, and at present collector of the port, said that he did not consider the action of the Ohio board as unusual, but rather the carrying out of their duties as such a body.

In the immediate vicinity of Pittsburg the evident intention of the company to attempt the reopening of the De Wees Wood plant at McKeesport is the only incident so far calculated to cause uneasiness. The men claim to be confident that enough men cannot be secured to operate the mill, and say no opposition will be made to any who may wish to go in. The police authorities, however, have taken every precaution.

The present center of the trouble seems to be at Wellsville, O., where a public mass meeting was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of presenting both sides of the controversy to the men and citizens generally. The entire district contributed attendants at the meeting, and a number of speeches were made, the principal one being that of President Shaffer of the Amalgamated association. Another meeting will be held today.

In spite of the denials of the Amalgamated people that the mills at Wellsville could be started up, dispatches from that place report at least a partial resumption, in the very large mill, one of the strongest non-union places on the map, which the Amalgamated association had succeeded in closing.

Persifier F. Smith, general manager of the Sheet Steel trust, made a raid and tried to recapture the mill. Mr. Smith talked to the men, and thought he had persuaded them to renounce the new union and return to work. An effort was made to start the mill, but it was only a partial success. Notwithstanding this, it is reported that Mr. Smith will make an effort to complete the mill crew with non-union men brought from outside. President Shaffer and three other members of the committee are endeavoring to bring the wavering forces over to their side.

A dispatch from Monessen says that, in spite of all efforts to the contrary, the tin mill there is still running, and, as far as present appearances indicate, it promises not to be affected in the slightest way by the strike.

New Turn In Firemen's Strike

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 19.—The coal operators and the striking stationary firemen of the Wyoming valley take opposite views of the action of the executive committee of the United Mine Workers which met in Scranton yesterday. The committee decided that all firemen who are members of the United Mine Workers' organization must return to work. The operators think this is a severe blow to the men on strike, and one from which they cannot recover. On the other hand the strikers claim that it will not affect them much, as only a comparatively few firemen belong to the United Mine Workers. It would seem that a settlement of the strike now rested with the mine employes themselves, and not with the operators. The United Mine Workers have apparently declared for one policy and the Stationary Engineers for another.

Won't Press Wage Question

New York, July 19.—The machinists' strike, as far as this city is concerned, will be settled soon. The leaders of the movement are now advising the men who are still out not to press the subject of wages, but to return to work if only they can secure a nine-hour work day.

The east wind last night was just what was wanted, the kind which New England boasts of in July and August.

Notwithstanding earnest efforts to prevent it, the steel strike is on. Experience is a hard teacher, but it seems to be human nature to refuse to learn under any other.

No single vessel ever carried more history-makers than will the transport Thomas, which leaves San Francisco on the 23 inst. with 560 American school teachers bound for the Philippines.

European financiers have discovered to their chagrin that they can no longer make financial crises at will in the United States. And there are other discoveries coming to them.

The relocation of Sea street did not seem to help out the cemetery very much. The city should be in a position to supply all the lots needed for the burial of the dead, and the addition proposed should not be delayed.

Councilman Smith does not seem to make much headway in having the Ward Three playgrounds fixed up. Two or three years ago Atlantic tried to get that "balance" from the park appropriation.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞ Robert S. Fosburg will soon feel better, or worse.—Lynn Item.

☞ While it is highly commendable in Colonel Francis Parker to deprecate the singing of "I Want to be an Angel," the fact that it is scarcely ever sung nowadays makes the deprecation quite unnecessary.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ It is unwise to be an autocrat in a city. The politicians never lived who didn't make mistakes, and had ones at that; and if the city government is a government practically by one man, his errors will be brought home to him, and sooner or later he will find the public getting weary of hearing of his breaks, and anxious to supplant him with a man who will be less autocratic, a little more democratic, and a considerable degree less inclined to consider himself "it" at all stages of the game.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Park seats in most cities, as in our own, are of a conventional pattern, being simply benches intended to hold four or five persons each. Obviously, no one cares to intrude on such a bench on which two or three persons are already sitting; still less does he care to have them come and sit on a bench which he has preoccupied, and the consequence is that such benches seldom contain more than half as many sitters as they are intended to accommodate. Free benches seating two each and free chairs sitting one each, with the larger benches, would remove this objection, would do away with all demand for pay chairs, and would give better accommodation to the public than the system now in force.—Philadelphia Ledger.

☞ The unprecedented giving of American millionaires for the purposes of religion, art, and education, are only the preliminary articles of an agreement to be made hereafter between all large minded men and women that the bounty of the heavens and the earth is to be made available to the greatest extent possible by human industry, skill, and genius, and then in some way carefully considered and mutually agreed upon, made to serve the uses of all the people. The general stock of happiness in any community increases in direct proportion to the increase of it among those who are least fortunate and least able to protect themselves in the vicissitudes which attend the progress of civilization.—Christian Register.

☞ The age of miracles apparently is not past. Booker T. Washington has himself told of the embarrassment of his white friends in the south who respected him and approved his work, over the question of a suitable title for him. They wanted to treat him with the utmost civility, but could not quite bring themselves to call a Negro "mister." So they generally compromise on "professor," and Mr. Washington, gentleman that he is, always adapted himself to their prejudices. But now comes the thoroughly old-line southern Charleston News and Courier speaking of "Mr. Washington," and indicating an objection to the word "Negro" as descriptive of men of his class, and substituting the word "colored" in its place. Evidently Mr. Washington is right in teaching the Negroes that they need not worry about their future standing in the southern community if they learn to be industrious, respectable, property owning citizens, who are of use to their fellow men.—Unidentified Exchange.

WHO FOR JUDGE?

Quincy and Milton Already Have Candidates.

Clerk Churchill Prominently Mentioned.

Judge Pratt and City Solicitor Sears in the Field.

Already there is a lively hustle on for the appointment of justice of the East Norfolk district court held at Quincy to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Humphrey.

The district includes the city of Quincy and the towns of Milton, Braintree, Weymouth, Randolph, Holbrook and Cohasset.

The special justices are: E. Granville Pratt of Quincy, and Louis A. Cook, Esq., of Weymouth. The clerk is John P. S. Churchill of Milton, and the probation officer Francis A. Spear of Quincy.

Since the court was established in 1872 there has been a complete change in officials, as the presiding justice then was Hon. E. C. Bumpus of Weymouth, who later became a resident of Quincy, associate justices J. A. Tower of Randolph, Solomon J. Beals of Cohasset, Clerk J. White Belcher of Randolph. Associate Justice Beals was the first to retire, and he was succeeded by E. Granville Pratt of Quincy, who has continued to hold the position since early in the 70's.

Associate Justice Tower was succeeded in April 1890 by James H. Flint, of Weymouth, now judge of probate for Norfolk county, who in 1899 was succeeded by Louis A. Cook of Weymouth now clerk of courts for Norfolk county.

In the meantime Hon. J. White Belcher resigned as clerk, and was succeeded by J. P. S. Churchill of Milton, who for several years has filled the position.

Associate Justice Pratt is said to be a candidate for the appointment, and he would appear to be in line for the position, as he is the senior associate. His 25 years of service should have given him the necessary experience. Yet when Judge Humphrey was appointed by Gov. Long, the associates were passed by and they may be this time.

Many would like to have Associate Justice Cook receive appointment, but as now he has a salary of $2,800 as clerk of courts it is not surprising that he declines to be a candidate.

The friends of J.P. S. Churchill, the clerk, are making an active canvass in his behalf and his prominence among State officials may secure for him the prize, as it did his appointment as clerk, and later an increase in salary. Milton has never had a judge or associate justice of the court and thinks her turn has come.

It would be surprising if Quincy did not have more than one candidate as its list of lawyers number twenty or more including: Paul R. Blackmur, Everett C. Bumpus, Lewis Bass, Jr., James L. Edwards, George E. Adams, Francis L. Hayes, William W. Jenness, John W. McAnarney, John McKnight, Edward J. Parker, William G. A. Pattee, Walter S. Pinkham, Russell A. Sears, M. P. Spillane, Frank A. Tirrell James E. Tirrell, Zenas S. Arnold, James F. Harlow, George H. Brown, William R. Thomas and others.

Aside from Judge Pratt the only one of these now in the field is City Solicitor Sears. Realizing the decline of Judge Humphrey, it is said that his friends began work a week or two ago.

The ex-Mayor is popular with many and has influential friends.

There are others who would make acceptable candidates, who will probably be heard from. Perhaps it will be Judge Pinkham or Judge Pattee or Judge Jenness.

The salary of the judge is $1,500 per annum and the associates are paid per diem when on the bench. The salary of the clerk is $1,000.

—Andrew Carnegie has promised a gift to Halifax. The committee in charge of the art school and public library will not give any information regarding the reported gift, but it is said to be ten times the yearly expenses of conducting the school and library. This would mean a gift of about $75,000.

☞ When you want a modern, up-to-date physic, try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. Price, 25 cents. All druggists.

NEW BATTLESHIPS.

Secretary Long Hopes to Build Some of 15,560 Tons.

A Washington dispatch to the Journal says: Secretary Long gave out Wednesday the majority report of the Naval Board of Construction on the design of the sea-going battleships of which plans are to be submitted to Congress next December, according to the requirements of the last Naval Appropriation bill. The report says that the board has been unable too reach a unanimous agreement concerning the armament and its disposition, and now makes this preliminary report in order that progress may be made upon some definite design. The plan of the battleship as submitted is as follows:

Length, 450 feet; beam, 76 feet; mean draft, 24 feet six inches; displacement, 15,560 tons. This displacement will give a ship considerably larger than anything in the present navy. The hull afone will weigh about 7,000 tons, while the protective armor will be about 3,700 tons. The total coal capacity will be about 2,000 tons; total load displacement, 16,900; deep load draft of 26 feet 4 inches, 19 knots speed, and an indicated horse power of 20,000.

The battery recommended by the majority is to consist of four 12 inch guns, in two 100 inch armored turrets, twenty 7-inch guns in casements and twenty 3-inch guns. Eight of the 7-inch guns are inclosed in individual armor, four on the upper and four on the gun deck, firing ahead and astern. The remaining 12 guns are located on the gun deck in a central casement battery. The machinery is protected by a 10-inch belt tapering to four inches fore and aft beyond the machinery space, and the other protection consists of armor seven and six inches thick, except on the 12-inch turrets, where it is 10 inches thick.

A WIND STORM.

Wicked Dark Clouds Came Up from the East.

They Caused a Rapid Drop in Temperature.

Not a Drop of Rain Fell—Conductor Shocked.

Seldom has there appeared a more wicked looking cloud than that which appeared in the eastern horizon about 6.30 Thursday evening. At the same time the wind which had been south west all day whipped around to the east, and dust blew in clouds. The wind increased rapidly in violence and it looked as though Quincy was to be visited by one of those cloud bursts so common in the west.

Timid people made haste to get in doors; windows went down with a bang. The temperature dropped several degrees, and those who remained out of doors experienced a breeze that was very refreshing. Everybody thought it would rain but it did not.

The wind died down somewhat as darkness approached, but all through the evening there was a distant roll of thunder accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning

A few minutes before 9 o'clock there was an unusually heavy flash. It was blinding for a minute and people near the Adams Academy who happened to be upon the street were stunned for a minute.

Just as the flash came W. G. S. Cotter a conductor on a Wollaston car, had his hand on the lever that operates the block signal and received a severe shock. He managed to get back into his car and give the signal to go ahead when he collapsed. Many are ready to swear they could smell sulphur.

Cotter was found to be unconscious when the car reached City Square. A physician was summoned who worked over him some time before he could be revived. He was then removed to his home on South Walnut street.

A half hour later the stars were shining brightly and the air was very refreshing

QUINCY BAR ACT.

Will Adopt Resolution on Death of Judge Humphrey.

A meeting of the Quincy Bar Association was held this morning at the court room to take action on the death of Judge Humphrey. President W. G. A. Pattee presided and Maurice Spillane was clerk. Messrs. W. G. A. Pattee, Paul R. Blackmur and John W. McAnarney were appointed a committee on resolutions to report at a meeting to be held later.

Messrs. W. G. A. Pattee, Edward J. Parker and Paul R. Blackmur were appointed a committee to attend the funeral.

The president was empowered to appoint a committee of nine, representing the East Norfolk District, to meet and consider the matter of a successor to Judge Humphrey.

The deputy sheriffs will be represented at the funeral of Judge Humphrey Saturday by Deputys Wentworth of Cohasset, Field of Quincy, Farrell of Randolph and Conant of Weymouth.

The police departments of this district will be represented by Officers Houghton and Peare of Weymouth, Chief Pierce of Milton, Chief Hayden and Constables Furnald and Burns of Quincy.

July 20—Scotch foursomes, match play.
July 27—Driving and putting contests.
Aug. 10—Mixed foursomes.
Aug. 24—Stroke competition.
Aug. 31—Golf ball sweepstakes, match play.
Sept. 2—Men's and women's handicap stroke competition.

☞ Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

—The tax rate of Gloucester will be twenty cents less this year—$18 per $1000. The total valuation is $16,412,113, an increase of $394,630. There was also an increase in polls.

THE HORSE CASE.

Ownership Not Proven and Evans Was Discharged.

The case of Daniel Evans, for breaking and entering the stable of Frank Haverhan with intent to steal, was heard before Judge Cook this morning.

Mr. Haverhan testified that he traded horses with Evans in June. The trade was that he should have Evans horse and $25. Witness got the horse but not the money. The Saturday after the Fourth, Evans came to his stable leading the horse witness had traded.

There were two places on his hip where flesh was torn off, the skin was off his knees, and he was otherwise used up. He wanted his horse back, but witness refused to give him up. Sometime between last Sunday night and Monday morning, the horse disappeared. Monday he found the horse attached to Evans team in Boston. Witness with an officer took the horse and put him in a stable. Later the horse was started for home, in charge of Cain's express, from which it was later taken.

Cain, of Cain's express told of being held up by Evans, and others, who attempted to take the horse away.

The defendant offered no testimony. The court said there was a question of ownership that had not been made clear, and he therefore dismissed the complaint.

Some Interesting Items From the Far West.

[Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.]

The Hellso Opera House, now undergoing repairs, has yielded up over 600 bullets in the last week, most of which were imbedded in the ceiling. The boys do miss a lamp occasionally.

As postmaster of this town we had to expedite the mail on the Jone Jack route the other day by pursuing the carrier for four miles and firing two dozen bullets over his head, and he shortened his usual time by over an hour.

Our esteemed contemporary claims to have had a narrow escape from a mountain lion over on the Blue hills last week. When there are so many old rubber boots lying around loose for a lion to chew on, we cannot see why the critter should hanker after a cross eyed editor.

Colonel Davison, the contractor, has discovered from a search of the records that every man lynched in this territory during the last ten years has died smiling and in happy contentment, and he is using the fact as an inducement for eastern people to emigrate this way.

Mr. William Scott denies that he has headed a petition to the postmaster general to have us removed from our postmastership because we rode our own mule in a running race last week and came in three lengths ahead and won a $50 purse. We had to call upon him with a gun before he would make a public statement, but when he got to talking he couldn't say enough in our favor.

Mr. Shayne, the popular and respected druggist, deeply regrets his mistake in putting up morphine for quinine the other day and thereby causing the death of a teamster named Williams. He was rushed at the time, and the mistake was a natural one, and we think there has been enough said about it. See Mr. Shayne's new ad. in this issue.

come by and by, but these attempts to force it will be disastrous for a decade to come.

A Chicago paper thinks it beneath our dignity as editor, mayor and postmaster to own a fighting dog. We agree with it. It is as a private citizen that we own a dog which has won 13 victories during the last year and still growls for other canines to conquer. Officially we wouldn't know the dog if we met him on the street.

There isn't an iota of egotism in our make up, but we think it our duty to say that any town engaging us to deliver a Fourth of July address for $50 spot cash will get something worth four times the money. The address will run for two hours and provoke the wildest enthusiasm. It is so fervid from beginning to end that there is no need of fireworks in the evening.

A DOUBLE HOUSE.

Plans For One That Is Inexpensive, but Not Commonplace.

A young man who had inherited some $8,000 was disposed to build a nice house with the money and, with his wife, consulted an architect. The wife wished to build a double house, but the husband was opposed to the idea.

"The double house idea is a good one," said their architect. "You can build a house which will rent for $40 or $50 a month for one side and have the other side in which to live. And to one who does not have an abundant income and large, substantial resources to back it the double house idea is a very bright one. We'll make a double house that is uncommon. We'll make one that is entirely different from any double house you ever saw."

This was further talked about, and it was decided that they would consider a double house plan to be prepared to go on a 50 foot lot which they had purchased. In the course of time they went to the office to look at the sketches.

The illustrations in this column are reproductions of his sketches. He showed them the floor plans first.

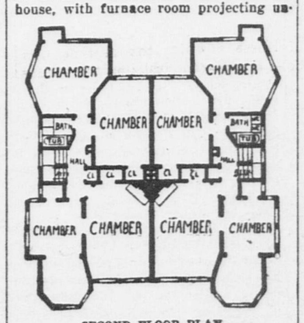

Said he: "The house is 44 feet wide on the first floor. This gives a 3 foot passageway on each side. Now we will look at the rooms on the right. We have the entrance at the front of the semioctagonal shaped room. It extends around and takes in a section of what would otherwise be a part of the front sitting room and thus gives added width to this portion of the hall or vestibule. Back of this is the reception hall, with a window at the right side which projects over the side wall below, but at a height sufficient to miss the heads of those who pass under it. The wall space in front separating the sitting room and the reception room is filled with turned spindle work in oak. The stairway is a combination affair. We go up from the front hall to a landing, pass through some portieres to another landing, which is connected by a stairway and two doors with the kitchen. These two doors prevent the noise and odors of the kitchen from reaching the front part of the house.

"There is a seat on the front landing which projects into the hall. Under the part of the main stairway which goes to the second floor is provided the cellar stairway. The dining room, as will be seen, is back of the sitting room. The kitchen connects with the dining room through the china pantry by means of two double swing doors—doors which swing both ways and stand closed when released. This china room is lighted by a small window and has a cupboard with glass doors above and paneled doors below. The kitchen is provided with sinks, tables and drain boards convenient to the china closet. In the pantry is a place for an ice chest, with a drain to the outside. There is a door over the chest, so that ice can be put in without passing through the kitchen. The celler is under half the house, with furnace room projecting under the sitting room. In the cellar is a slop sink in which wash water may be poured, a city water connection and a laundry stove. The cellar floor is cemented.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

"In the kitchen is hot and cold water at the sink, and in the bathroom on the second floor are water closet, washstand and tub. There are two closets on the second floor in the hall—one for brooms, etc., and the other for bed linen and articles of this character.

"There are four bedrooms on this floor, each provided with closets. The bedroom over the hall and kitchen projects over the first story, so that more room is secured. There is a passageway to the attic, in which is provided an additional bedroom. This room has a square ceiling 9 feet high and has none of the disadvantages of a half story bedroom. Thus we have five bedrooms above and the four rooms below.

"A part of the house on the outside is brick veneer. The other walls are covered with stained shingles. The cost for the completed property ready to move into is $5,800."

MRS. BARR AT HOME.

CHARMING COUNTRY HOUSE OF A WELL KNOWN NOVELIST.

Cherry Croft, on the Summit of Storm King Mountain, Overlooking the Hudson, Where Amelia Barr Writes Her Stories.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—This is the season when most of the literary folk are at their summer homes if they have any, and if not they are enjoying the cooling breezes of the seashore or the refreshing air of the mountains. About the prettiest and most comfortable of all the summer homes of authors I have ever visited is Cherry Croft, Mrs. Amelia Barr's ideal place at the top of Storm King mountain, about five miles above Cornwall-on-the-Hudson. Nature has provided no lovelier spot than that on which this widely known author has set up her household gods. Healthfulness and quietude were all she demanded when the building of a home became uppermost in her affairs, and a happier combination of these requisites, with all that is picturesque, romantic and inspiring thrown in, could not be found in all America. Up among the clouds, where the summer winds hold high carnival, shut off from the world and its troubling voices by miles and miles of forest, looking out over a scene that fills the imagination with grandeur and fascinates the eye with loveliness, it unites every rural charm to the most complete seclusion. In front and at one side pastoral slopes decline steeply to the river below, which at this point expands to the width of three miles, appearing from the heights like an immense lake. Beyond lies historic Newburg and farther along Poughkeepsie, while on all sides rise the infolding mountains, with the peaks of the Catskills looming majestically above all. Nearer, set well up from the Hudson, with its spires and chimneys rising through the tree tops, is Cornwall, the erstwhile home and last resting place of Edward Payson Roe, whence a sequestered road winds its way up the mountain side to Cherry Croft, so named on account of the cherry trees which abound on the premises.

The house is a long, rambling structure surmounted by a tower and picturesque gables, with a broad, inviting vine draped piazza extending along one side, shaded by wide spreading trees and pleasantly girted by a garden and well kept lawn. It was built on plans of Mrs. Barr's own drawing and is tastefully and handsomely furnished. The author's workshop, a room of princely proportions, is situated on the upper floor, with that animating landscape in view from every window, though in fair weather she is more apt to be out on the big, cool piazza.

Though well advanced in years, Mrs. Barr is an indefatigable and tireless worker, yet she makes writing a pleasure more than a business. If she followed out her inclinations in the matter, there would be no cessation of work throughout the year. But she long ago learned the folly of the all work and no play method; hence, much though she would prefer to "keep at it," to use her terse expression, she wisely lays the pen aside in December or January and goes either to New York city or Old Point Comfort, where she gives herself up to the pleasing task of entertaining and being entertained. And in this Mrs. Barr excels, being the cheeriest, most agreeable of women, entering into and enjoying gayety and mirthfulness with as keen a zest as the veriest girl, her huge enjoyment in life, coupled with her superb physical vigor and tremendous capacity for work, constituting the only vanities, if such they may be called, she possesses. Yet at no time does she enjoy life so much as when breathing the bracing air of her mountain home immersed in her writings.

Among other charming summer homes of American women authors are The Homestead, Sarah Orne Jewett's place at South Berwick, Me.; The Sea Urchins, where Mrs. Burton Harrison spends the summer at Bar Harbor, Me.; Quillecte, Kate Douglas Wiggin's delightful summer resort at Hollis, Me., and Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps-Ward's summer cottage at East Gloucester, Mass., which years ago she named Old Maid's Paradise, but that was before it was occupied by a happy married couple. It was built by Mrs. Ward back in the seventies. Patchs hill, its original site, was in those days a quiet, isolated spot, frequented only by fishermen, but under the influence of the summer visitor it was gradually transformed into a sort of suburban villa, destroying the privacy which Mrs. Ward prized so highly and compelling her, much though she liked the situation, to have the cottage moved farther inland. High up, where the salt air blows free and cool, overlooking the sea in front and farreaching marshes in the rear, it now stands, with no other house to look upon it, entirely removed from the haunts of the summer cottager. RICHARD TUPPER.

Touching Upon War Found In Steyn's Baggage

MR. REITZ IS PESSIMISTIC

Thinks Time Has Passed For Allowing Matters to Drift Along as at Present—Steyn Depends Upon European Complications to Help Boers

London, July 19.—The war office issued last night a dispatch from Lord Kitchener giving the correspondence between Mr. Reitz and Mr. Steyn, that was captured with the latter's baggage near Lindley, July 1.

MARTINUS TH. STEYN.

Mr. Reitz, under date of May 10, wrote Mr. Steyn that a meeting of the Transvaal government had been held, attended by General Botha, General Viljeen and Mr. Smuts, to consider the national situation. He went on to catalogue the difficulties—the numerous surrenders of burghers, entailing a heavy responsibility on the government, the rapidly decreasing supply of ammunition, the disintegration of the government, and the lack of any definite assurances of European intervention.

"In view of these facts," he said, "the government has decided to address a message to President Kruger pointing out the terrible conditions. The time has passed for us to let matters drift as at present. We must take a final step."

Mr. Steyn, replying May 15, upbraids Mr. Reitz with weak-heartedness, saying: "There is still sufficient ammunition to continue the struggle. You ask what prospect there is of a successful termination. I ask what chance there was for two small republics when they declared war against the mighty power of Great Britain? You will answer that we trusted in God, and in foreign intervention. What reason is there now to place less trust in God?"

"I have seen recent European newspapers, and I firmly believe that complications will occur in Europe in the course of a few months which will secure our good fortune."

Mr. Steyn also says the fact that Mr. Kruger and the Boer delegation remain in Europe convinces him that they consider the case not beyond hope. He adds that he has summoned General De Wet, and urges Mr. Reitz to take no step until he has heard further from him.

Damaging Evidence Against Boers

Johannesburg, July 19.—In the course of an inquiry conducted under oath here yesterday various non-commissioned officers and men of the British army confirmed the statement that the Boers shot the British wounded at Vlaakfontein.

Liquor Deputies Sued

Portland, Me., July 19.—An interesting incident in connection with the enforcement of the prohibitory liquor law in Portland has developed in the shape of a suit for damages against seevral of Sheriff Pearson's deputies. The complainant is Rev. A. H. Hanscom, formerly pastor of churches in this locality, but now in business in Boston. He alleges that the officers, in their search for liquor in a hotel, entered his room which was left in a disorderly condition with the door unlocked.

Chinese Superstition

London, July 19.—A high official in Pekin, who claims the power of divination, says a dispatch to The Standard from Tientsin, has notified the Chinese court that the dragon has left the capital, and that consequently it is impossible for the court to return there. Conservative officials in Sian Fu are jubilant. It is by such trifles that the policy of China is governed.

Murdering and Torturing

Constantinople, July 19.—Bodies of Turkish troops and Albanians are murdering and torturing the inhabitants of Servian villages in the neighborhood of Metrovitze. The outrages are alleged to be designed to drive out the Servian settlements possessing a modified independence along the great strategic road from Metrovitza to Beemane.

Pauncefote's Interview Endorsed

Washington, July 19.—The interview with Lord Pauncefote relative to the isthmian canal and other questions has attracted much attention officially, and generally the sentiments expressed meet with commendation. ### Russia Seeking Advantages

London, July 19.—A dispatch from Shanghai says the Russians are endeavoring to buy the Kai Ping collieries, in northern Chi Li province, the strategic value of which is inestimable. The Kai Ping collieries largely supply the navies of the powers in the far east.

OVERTURES OF FILIPINOS

Met With No Encouragement When Given to Bryan to Consider

Lincoln, Neb., July 19.—In a statement for the press, Mr. Bryan gives his version of the story that Aguinaldo promised him financial assistance in his campaign of a year ago. Mr. Bryan says it was while he was in New York that two Filipinos sent a request to confer with him. He declined to meet them, and sent a friend to explain that he did not think it proper to hold a conference. The Filipinos said that Aguinaldo was willing to issue a proclamation promising to lay down arms in case of Mr. Bryan's election, and also willing to contribute to the Democratic campaign fund, but Mr. Bryan refused to consider either proposition, and did not require them to furnish any evidence of their right to represent Aguinaldo.

FOUGHT IN THE BARN

Statement Connecting Isaac Bennett With the Killing of Cragin

South Berwick, Me., July 19.—The coroner's jury summoned to hear evidence in the case of Michael Cragin, who was found dead at the house of J. E. Bennett, under suspicious circumstances last Tuesday night, met here yesterday and examined nine witnesses, and then adjourned until today. Among the witnesses who appeared before the jury yesterday were Drs. Gerrish and Emerson, who attended Cragin and performed the autopsy upon his body, and who testified that his death was due to violence.

Charles Benway makes the statement that last Sunday morning he was going to the Bennett farm at 10:30 a. m. with James Tansey, when he saw John Bennett, who had recently returned from service in the Philippines, and crossed over to speak to him. He heard John scolding his brother Isaac for whipping Cragin, and he asked John what was the trouble was. John replied that when he came out to the barn to hitch up the horse he "found Isaac licking h—l out of Joker Cragin," and he said that it was a good thing he came in, or Isaac would probably have killed the old man. James Tansey corroborates Benway's statement in every particular.

Crowded Out by Food Shows

GOOD GROOMING.

Well Kept Hair In Soft, Loose and Silky Tresses.

Beautiful hair goes far toward making a beautiful face. The disfigurement of scanty, wiry hair is something only the best coiffure can hide. As to this important element in physical beauty The New Idea Magazine says:

Hair varies under different conditions, both physical and mental. Certain physical conditions change the color and the quality of the hair; others cause it to fall. The hair itself may also be diseased. All of these conditions require special treatment. In general, cleanliness and a reasonable amount of care will keep the hair healthy.

Oily hair can be remedied by being washed once in two weeks, while hair with a normal amount of oil should not be washed more than once a month unless one is engaged in dusty work or is traveling constantly. Cinders and dust irritate the scalp, and any slight inflammation is likely to cause the hair to fall.

Some hair is so very dry that washing makes it brittle. Such hair should be given an application of vaseline or an oil dressing of some kind the day before it is washed. It will then be soft and silky. The vaseline should be rubbed on the scalp, getting as little on the hair as possible.

In washing the hair use water quite warm, with a good, pure soap to make a lather. Tar or castile soap is the best. If the hair is oily, a very little ammonia or soda can be used. Wash carefully, rubbing the scalp well, then rinse in two waters. Roll the hair up in a towel for a few minutes to absorb the water, then let down and rub gently—in the sunshine always, if possible, otherwise near a stove or radiator—till dry. When dry, comb out the snarls, a strand at a time, and brush until glossy.

Soda and borax used in the water keep the hair light and fluffy, but also make it brittle; hence they should only be used where there is a preponderance of oil. While vaseline often prevents hair from falling out, it also makes it darker; so the caution to rub it on the scalp and avoid getting it on the hair is especially important to fair haired women.

There are many methods of perfuming the hair, which is much a fad nowadays. The scent can be put in the rinse water or on the hair just before it is dry or a perfumed cap can be worn at night. It is best, however, not to confine the hair at night. Braid it losely or have it flowing if it does not snarl easily.

Do not use hot irons on the hair if you wish to keep it silky and long. Tight crimping pins are also injurious. If it must be curled, do it up loosely in kids or soft paper. A soft curl is much prettier than crimps.

Do not tie the hair up tight on the head. It not only loosens the roots and is a prolific source of baldness, but it makes impossible that soft, loose, pretty effect which is essential in modern, fashionable hairdressing.

Well kept hair in a healthy condition should be soft and pliable, with a rich silky luster that is the most exquisite frame for any face, old or young.

A Lovely Black Toilet.

A lovely toilet of black crepe de chine which has just emanated from a well known Parisian shop is beautifully embroidered in black silk cord, with little insertions of black lace. The skirt is cut tight to the knees, whence comes a shaped flounce of the embroidery, with a quantity of froufrouing frills of chiffon. The simple banded bodice has a deep falling collar of the same embroidery, with an inner vest of white tulle.

The Napkin Problem.

Do not crumple up your table napkin. If you are only a guest for the day, do not fold it up, but if you are staying on and in a quiet household fold it up, remarks an exchange. If you are staying in a big house where everything is done en grand prince, do not fold it up. Just place it on the table when you leave, as in rich establishments there are clean table napkins every day.

Fashion's Echoes.

Foulards will be greatly worn this season, but always of the satin faced kind, except for seaside or country wear. They are profusely trimmed with lace and velvet ribbons.

Pure white costumes in every imaginable material—white pique, white duck, white linen, sheer white wash fabrics, white cloth, white serge, white camel's hair and white taffeta—are the fashion of the summer.

Artificial flowers are flourishing on gowns this season.

Sashes of every description promise to be a prominent feature of afternoon and evening costumes. With lawn and organdie toilets the sashes are of the material, insertion striped and lace trimmed.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

City Solicitor Sears Not After Judgeship.

Is Said to Favor Ex-Councilman Pinkham.

Clerk Churchill Has Many Friends and Some Opponents.

City Solicitor Sears who was favorably mentioned for judge of the East Norfolk district court, has promptly withdrawn his name, as will be seen by the following letter:

Editors of the Daily Ledger.

I notice in your edition of Friday that my name is mentioned in connection with the vacant judgeship of our Quincy court. Permit me to say that I am not now, and never have been, a candidate for the position.

Yours respectfully,
Russell A. Sears.

While Mr. Sears gives no intimation as to who is his choice, it is said that it is ex-President Walter S. Pinkham who served in the City Council for five years 1895 to 1899 inclusive.

Lawyer Pinkham gave good satisfaction as president of the Quincy Council, and saw that everyone received courteous treatment and justice. Mr. Pinkham is a graduate of Adams academy and Harvard law school where he received the degrees of A. M. and L. L. B. In the same year 1890, he was admitted to the bar, and in 1891 opened offices in Boston and at Wollaston where he resides. He stands well as a lawyer and as a citizen.

It is thought that the court people generally are favorable to Clerk Churchill for the judgeship and he will have the added support of those wh would like to be c erk. But there is one who is already getting on his war paint against him, and he is Henry H. Faxon, Esq., who never had much friendship for the present clerk, and has frequently had tilts with him.

Probably other candidates will be announced in a day or two.

The command left Boston by the Boston & Albany railroad, being joined en route by Companies C and F and the Regimental band, and at the camp grounds by Companies I and M.

The camp grounds at South Framingham were reached before 10 o'clock, and tents were pitched simultaneously in accordance with instructions issued.

The officers and men reported in the blue uniforms with campaign hats. The enlisted men wore leggings and carried blanket rolls, canteens and haversacks. The only articles sent by freight were the blue caps and overcoats.

In the blanket roll the men carried the working suit and all personal belongings, and a rubber sheet.

The uniform worn was the regulation blue army suit, single breasted with black buttons, and black shoes. In camp at all times the men must appear neatly dressed.

Each tent is provided with the following equipage: a swinging shelf, folding camp stools without backs, water pail of brown papier mache, tin wash basin, racks for hats, rifles, and equipments of the pattern used last year, consisting of crosspieces attached to rear tent pole. Lanterns may be used for lighting, but candles are recommended. Captains may, in their discretion, allow one box for safe keeping, to each tent, but such must not be used for any other purpose than to contain the men's personal baggage, and the keeping of ice, tonics, or any other kind of drinks therein, is strictly prohibited. No articles except those expressly sanctioned will be permitted, except that first sergeants may have a desk or table for writing, and may use a folding cot at night, the same to be stowed away during the day.

Tomorrow the camp will officially open and the regular routine will be taken up. The hours of service and calls are established as follows:

First call, 5:15 A. M.; reveille, 5:30; setting up exercises, 5:40; stables, 5:40; police, 5:50; surgeon's call, 6; breakfast, 6:30; first sergeant's call, 7:15; officers' call, council of officers, 7:30; adjutant's call, guard mounting, 8; inspection of quarters, 8:15; drill, infantry, adjutants call, 8:45; recall, 9:55; cavalry, adjutant's call, 10:05; recall, 11:15; stables, 11:50; orderly hour, 12 M.; dinner, 12:15 P. The usual routine of duty will be omitted Sunday after inspection of quarters and until the hour for evening parade. Between these hours divine services will be held by the chaplains in the several organizations.

Sunday evening the field, staff and line officers of the 5th infantry have invited their old commander, Brig.-Gen. J. H. Whitney, to meet them at a banquet to be given in his honor at Hotel Kendall, South Framingham. The general has accepted, and will attend with members of his staff.

Known in Hyde Park.

Quincy will have one less candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner, which simplifies matters so far as that city is concerned. Tobias Burke, a conspicuous Republican in party activity, with many influential friends throughout the county, will not be a candidate, as heretofore announced as he has accepted the responsible position of financial and confidential clerk in the Quincy post office, the office having been classified as first-class on July 1. Mr. Burke is quite popular in Quincy and his appointment by Postmaster Hammond brings the keenest satisfaction to his friends.—Hyde Park Gazette.

Unlucky Machine.

The land dredger, which was taken from the Fore River works to the sewer trench at Mosquito woods, seems to be an unlucky machine. While being moved to its present location it got stuck several times, but was at last put in position, and was all ready to work. Thursday the marsh upon which the machine was set up settled and nearly capsized it. Mr. Cavanagh, the building mover, was at work all day yesterday jacking the machine up with blocking.

REFLECTS UPON SCHLEY

Harsh Terms In Maclay's History of the Navy

SECRETARY LONG DENIES

That He Revised and Approved Proofs Submitted to Him by the Author, Who, However, Declares That Such Was the Case

Washington, July 20.—Secretary Long said yesterday that the reports which reported him as having revised the proofs of Maclay's history, and passed with approval the passages attacking the reputation of Rear Admiral Schley, were calculated to mislead the public.

All he had seen of the work before publication was a chapter on which the excellent preparation of the navy for the war with Spain was described, and Mr. Roosevelt, the bureau chiefs and himself were praised for it.

His approval of this had reference to the good words spoken for the bureau chiefs. He not only never approved the parts reflecting upon Schley, but he did not know that they were in the work, or was he aware, till this controversy arose, that the history was a text-book at the naval academy. He has already notified Superintendent Wainwright that he does not consider the history in its present shape a proper text-book, and he has written to the Appletons, the publishers, saying that they would do well to have the censorious paragraphs revised. In other respects the history seems very well written.

It is learned here from an officer of the government that the history was accepted as a text-book at that institution when only the first two volumes were out, and that the third, containing the obnoxious passages, followed as a matter of course.

General Felix Angus, publisher of the Baltimore American, wired the following letter to President McKinley yesterday:

"Maclay's History of the Navy is the standard in use at the naval academy. In the third volume, just issued, the historian charges Rear Admiral Schley with being a coward, a liar, a caitiff, an incompetent and insubordinate.

"In an interview in The American this morning, Maclay, the historian, who is a navy department clerk classed as a laborer and attached to the Brooklyn navy yard, says that proofs of this third volume, which should have told of the most glorious story in all our naval annals, were submitted to Secretary Long and Admiral Sampson and approved by them in advance of publication; also that Long put him in his present position after he had read and approved this scurrilous attack upon Admiral Schley. These proofs were also submitted to Admiral Dewey, who refused to read them.

"If aught were needed to convince you or any fair-minded man that a clique in the navy department has conspired to traduce the hero of Santiago, and that the controversy was carried into execution while that brave and gallant officer was suffering expatriation on the fever-infected coasts of South America, this should furnish it.

"Will you, Mr. President, in view of all this, sit quietly by and permit these conspirators to continue their diabolical work? Every justice-loving American appeals to you to intervene in the name and for the sake of fair play. Next to being right all the time, which no man ever was, the best thing is to find out as soon as possible that you are wrong, and right yourself immediately."

Maclay's Explanation

New York, July 20.—Edgar S. Maclay yesterday replied to the criticisms which have been upon made his historical works. He said in part: "I did not appreciate at the time I wrote the book that the terms were immoderate and intemperate. It is now my intention to revise that portion of the work that deals with the battle of Santiago. But I shall not alter the facts, for they are correct. The proofs were submitted to the officers who took part in the battle of Santiago, as well as to Secretary Long, and received their approval. I should explain that only those portions of the book were submitted to each officer that related to him personally or to the part he took in the battle. I have never had any animus against Admiral Schley, and I wrote as I did because I believed it to be the truth."

A Count of No Account

Budapest, July 20.—Count Gabriel Kepesey, a first lieutenant in one of the Houved Hussar regiments, has been formally degraded in Szegedin before the whole regiment. He made a dining bet that he would cut off the right ear of one of his best friends, Caspar Kanyo, with his sabre. He then approached the unsuspecting Kanyo and slashed off the ear. Kanyo shot at Kepesey, but missed him. Then he turned his revolver against himself and fell dead.

Want a Bigger Bonus

Glasgow, July 20.—Fifteen of the sailors engaged by Sir Thomas Lipton to sail the Shamrock II have refused to go to the United States unless they get more money. They had arranged to transfer to the challenger at a bonus of $40 above their wages, but they struck for $75.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, July 21.
Sun rises—4:25; sets, 7:15.
Moon rises—10 p. m.
High water—2:45 a. m.; 3:15 p. m.

The weather conditions have changed but little. Moderate temperatures and partly cloudy weather will prevail in New England. The winds on the coast will be mostly light and variable.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Prospects Are That General Business Will Continue Good

New York, July 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Anxiety regarding unfavorable crop possibilities in the future, rather than any actual present misfortune, depressed securities and caused cancellation of some orders for merchandise by western dealers. Retail distribution of goods will not be curtailed by the labor controversy, unless it is of long duration. In some agricultural districts where there is fear that little corn will be harvested, preceding bumper crops at good prices have put farmers in such prosperous condition that their purchases will not fall off materially, while the greatest crop of wheat on record has not brought a return to the low prices of previous heavy yields.

Beyond advancing the prices of steel sheets and depressing the market for tin, quotations have not been affected by the strike of the Amalgamated association. An early settlement is confidently expected, and there is much relief over the general collapse of the mavhinists' strike. In anthracite coal regions work has also been interrupted, but the recent exceptionally heavy output assures abundant stocks for some time.

Woolen mills are more generally active than at any time this year, orders for heavyweight goods arriving in large numbers. The lightweight season will soon open, and there is prospect of profitable operation unless the raw material should advance. Some uncertainty is seen in the woolen market, sellers making futile efforts to secure better terms, and ultimately accepting bids at former figures.

In cotton goods the situation is unchanged.

Stability of prices seems assured in the footwear industry. The firm tone is sustained by the steadiness of leather and buyers are not seeking concessions.

Thought Friend Was a Burglar

Brattleboro, Vt., July 20.—Morton S. Cressy shot and killed his friend and classmate, Sidney Bristol, yesterday. Bristol died almost immediately. It is believed that Bristol, while in a nightmare, took hold of Cressy. Cressy said that he thought he was being attacked by a burglar, and fired as soon as he was free. The young men were each 24 years of age. They graduated from Yale in 1900, and entered the Harvard law school last fall.

May Be Miss Malish

Goshen, Ind., July 20.—A telegram from Holyoke, Mass., gives an accurate description of Miss Bertha A. Malish, who ran away from the school in that city three years ago, and tallies in every respect with the personal appearance of Miss Irene Canning, the girl now in charge of the authorities. Miss Canning is acting strangely from the effects of the excitement she has undergone.

Firemen Want to Work

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 20.—More mines were in operation and more coal was hoisted in the Wyoming valley yesterday than on any day since the Stationary Firemen's strike began. Despite any action that may be taken by the officers of the United Mine Workers' association, it cannot be denied that the United Mine Workers as a body are anxious to get back to work.

Clergymen Flee For Safety

Saragossa, July 20.—As a result of the fatal encounter here during the past two days between Catholics and Free Thinkers, the majority of the clergy have fled from the city. The convents and most of the churches of this city are closed and barricaded.

Won by a Lap

Washington, July 20.—Albert Champion defeated Johnny Nelson by one lap in a 20-mile motor-paced bicycle race at the coliseum park last night. Time, 32:30. Nelson had considerable trouble with his pacing machines.

GRANT'S LOST ORDER.

How a Valuable War Document Was Brought to Light.

PROPERTY OF A SOUTHERNER.

Famous Historic Paper Turns Up In the Pocket of a Texan Editor While Visiting the Buffalo Fair—How It Was Found In the Bottom of a Pit.

The recent visit of many of the Texas Press association to Buffalo has brought to light a valuable war document which has been missing since the battle of Mission Ridge, on Nov. 25, 1863, says the Buffalo Express. Manager A. B. Penfield of the Pan-American exposition was accosted the other day by a tall, soldierly looking man, with an accent which betrayed his southern origin, with a hearty, "You are Mr. Penfield, are you not?"

"I am," said the manager.

"Well, my dear sir, I am Captain Harry Lacey of Corsicana, Tex., and with my regiment fought the Federal troops at Mission Ridge. I wish to say your picture is very fine, extremely fine, sir, and I am glad to see the action so impartially reproduced. I was with Rogers' Texas rangers. You know we, as an organization, were badly cut up at Corinth, Miss. Well, Mr. Penfield, your Red Star Midway route is all right, and your shows are superb. I shall, like all the rest of my editorial confreres, carry back to Texas, sir, a lively sense of gratitude for your great kindness to us as a body. Now I am going to give you a treat."

Mr. Penfield started back with fright as he saw visions of a drinking bout and realized that the average southerner drank as well as he fought. He, however, was much relieved when he saw the tall Texan unbutton his frock coat and draw forth from an inner pocket with care a worn leather book, from an inner pocket of which he took a worn piece of parchment, such as was used during the civil war for general orders or dispatches.

Unfolding it, the former Confederate captain said, "Read that, sir, and tell me if you realize what a treasure that paper really is?" Mr. Penfield looked at the unfolded sheet and read as follows:

CHATTANOOGA, Nov. 24, 1863.

Major General George H. Thomas, Chattanooga:

General Sherman carried Missionary ridge as far as the tunnel, with only slight skirmishing. His right now rests at the tunnel and on top of the hill, his left at Chickamauga creek. I have instructed General Sherman to advance as soon as it is light in the morning, and your attack, which will be simultaneous, will be in co-operation. Your command will either carry the rifle pits and ridge directly in front of them or move to the left, as the presence of the enemy may require. If Hooker's position on the mountain (cannot be maintained) with a small force and it is found impracticable to carry the top from where he is, it would be advisable for him to move up the valley with all the force he can spare and ascend by the first practicable road.

U. S. GRANT, Major General.

Mr. Penfield gasped. Here was the original order—the long lost order—which General Grant in his own personal memoirs speaks of as lost. Turning to Captain Lacey, he said, "Where did you get this?"

The old soldier said: "Why, when Sheridan forced his way to the crest of the ridge I broke through his line in the confusion and, passing rapidly down to the first line at our old position, hid in a rifle pit until nightfall, when I escaped and joined Longstreet in Virginia. In the bottom of the pit I found the order with some other papers addressed to the Federal general Granger. I think it dropped from some officer's coat in the scramble up hill. I have managed to keep it ever since, for it was that charge he orders in this paper which carried the day for the Union forces, so you see it has a great historic value."

Mr. Penfield pleaded with the southerner to sell it, but the tall Texan refused with a dignity which told Mr. Penfield to desist. The former Confederate leaned over the platform and scanned closely the great battle, saying softly: "It's grand. It's real, but all so terrible." Then, wiping a furtive tear from his eyes, he added, "But it took western blood to do it, and, after all, they were mostly of southern extraction."

In fact, the great man to whom Grant addressed the order was a Virginian.

NATIONS WE FEED.

Great Britain Largest Purchaser of American Farm Products.

Frank H. Hitchcock, chief of the foreign market section of the agricultural department, has compiled statistics showing the distribution of the agricultural exports of the United States for the years 1896 to 1900, says a Washington dispatch. There were a dozen countries in 1900 to each of which the United States exported upward of $10,000,000 worth of domestic farm products.

The United Kingdom purchased $408,000,000 and Germany $134,000,000 worth. The others were:

The Netherlands, $52,000,000; France, $45,000,000; Belgium, $33,000,000; Italy, $24,000,000; Canada, $21,000,000; Japan, over $15,000,000; Denmark, nearly $15,000,000; Cuba, $14,000,000; Spain, $10,500,000, and British Africa, $10,300,000.

Horse Awnings.

New this year are the horse awnings, put up over horses attached to vehicles kept standing a long time in one spot; as, for instance, the wagon of the men who sell buttermilk by the glass, says the New York Sun. The horse awning is attached at its front end to the top of the hames, projecting above the collar, and then carried with a regular awning slant up back over the horse's back to be attached at the other end to the front bow of the wagon top, thus giving shade and the free circulation of air under it.

THE LATEST AUTOMOBILE.

The Electrolette Said to Solve Problem of Light Electric Vehicle.

One of the latest types of electric automobiles is the new two place machine of the Krieger type, or "electrolette," as it is called. This, says The Scientific American, is the smallest machine of this type which has been designed up to the present.

M. Krieger has succeeded in solving the problem of a light electric vehicle, and the present machine is the result. It is a two place vehicle, but as the carriage body is made removable a four place body may be substituted, in spite of the small size of the machine. The front axle, which is fixed, is carried well in front, and at each end the wheel turns like that of an ordinary carriage. The fixed axle supports near the wheel an electric motor of three horsepower, which is of the latest design and entirely inclosed by its circular casting and end pieces.

The pinion comes out at the side next the wheel and engages with a large gear wheel which is fixed against it. The gear and pinion are inclosed in a tight case. Thus each wheel is turned independently by its own motor, and the result is a great gain in simplicity owing to the suppression of the differential. It is this system which has made the Krieger type a most successful electric automobile.

The truck is supported upon the front shaft by a curved spring. The whole system turns about a central pin and is steered by the hand wheel above by means of a pinion and toothed sector. The accumulators are contained in a box which is fixed in the truck below the carriage body and is arranged so that it may be easily slid out from the rear. The batteries are of the Fulmen type and have a total weight of 800 pounds, allowing a run of at least 65 miles on a single charge. The two motors, each of three horsepower, give a total of six horsepower for the machine, which enables it to climb heavy grades easily.

Color and Germination.

Grains of the same plant differ much in color, and M. Hoedefleiss has been trying to show a corresponding variation in germination. Comparing green and yellow rye, he has found quicker germination in the former, whose plants, however, seem to have smaller development and to form their grains later.

To Restore Platinum Prints.

It is said that platinum prints in which the whites have become yellow in consequence of the whole of the iron salt not having been removed may be restored by immersing them in a bath made by dissolving one-half ounce of sodium carbonate and 300 grains of chlorinated lime in eight ounces of water.

How We Get Sulphuric Acid.

Until recently the greater part of the sulphur used in this country was imported from Sicily. Now, through chemical processes, the sulphur contained in gold, silver and zinc is liberated and burned to sulphur dioxide, from which almost all of our sulphuric acid is made.

Scarcity of "white gold," known in chemistry and commerce as platinum, is causing concern in the medical, electrical and photographic worlds. For five years the price has steadily soared toward the prohibitive mark. Today it is quoted at a higher price than ever since its discovery, and every prospect points to still higher prices.

The alarm caused by this condition is worldwide. A few months ago the German reichstag considered a measure prohibiting the use of the precious metal in photography. The advocates of the bill claimed that as platinum was absolutely essential in medicine and electrical work its use for purposes which were not necessary should be stopped.

The bill was not passed, but its introduction called attention to a condition which is said by scientists to be rapidly becoming serious.

Platinum is quoted at $36 an ounce, nearly twice as high as gold. Five years ago it brought about $5. Today the Siemens & Halske Electrical company is said to use one-fifth of the output of the world. Since the flooding of the platinum mines in the Transvaal, which occurred after the breaking out of the Boer war, the world has had to rely on Siberia for its supply of the white metal. This supply is not increasing, but the demand for the metal is.

In the manufacture of crucibles for the compounding of certain chemicals essential in modern medicine platinum only can be used because it is the only metal that will withstand the high temperature required.

BOER WAR PRISONER.

Duplooy Tells of His Heroic Escape From Darrell's Island.

ELUDED THE BRITISH GUARDS.

Swam Through Shark Infested Waters For Four Hours to America Bound Ship—Lay Three Days In Coal Bunkers With Little to Eat. Befriended by British Captain.

The escape of David S. Duplooy, the Boer war prisoner, from Darrell's island prison stockade eclipses even Funston's natatorial triumphs, says the New York Journal. The story of it reads like Dumas' romance, "The Count of Monte-Christo." He swam three miles in shark infested waters under the guns of three armed patrol boats.

Darrell's island is a small coral reef of not more than 60 acres extent. It is covered, however, by a luxuriant growth of cedar trees. Upon this dot of ground the British held confined 933 Boer prisoners, including 18 officers. The islet is fenced in with interlocking trochas of barbed wire. The open spaces leading to the track are guarded constantly by three swift gunboats heavily armed and adequately manned. A battalion of theWarwickshire regiment of infantry—real "Tommy Atkinses"—garrisoned the model camp and patrolled the trochas on 60 foot interval posts. The nearest land is Hamilton harbor docks, across the bay, three miles distant. The marvelously clear blue waters of the gulf stream are of ideal temperature for swimming, but infested by sharks, those tigers of the sea which ocean faring men fear worse than death in any other guise.

Yet this boy—he is only 24—as ignorant of the art of swimming as any lad born and reared in the interior of Kansas, found it in his heart, under the impulse of a desire to regain his liberty, to essay the task of swimming across that widespread bay on the forlorn chance of boarding a steamer tied up at the Hamilton wharf, bound, he had heard, for free America. He succeeded, climbed aboard the Trinidad while the deck patrol was not watching and secreted himself in the starboard coal bunkers until the ship got fairly to sea. The detailed story of his daredevil adventure is best told by himself.

"The moment I landed on Darrell's island in Bermuda I determined to escape. We had food enough and good food, as we had in all camps, but I wanted freedom. We were allowed each night to swim in the bay until 10 o'clock under the eyes of guards and the searchlights of warships in the bay. I platted some slender twigs and branches to look like a small bush and asked a prisoner to sneak it down to the water for me. He promised, but lost courage. I took it myself last Friday night (July 5) under my jacket just at dusk.

"At the beach were hundreds undressing, and I was not noticed among so many. I undressed quietly and placed my clothes, just enough to cover me, into a small bag I had. Then I slipped into the water, waded to my armpits and put the plait of branches on my head. I slipped along the shore and gradually in the dusk edged away from the other bathers. I knew little about swimming when I reached Bermuda, but I had practiced every day, and I was determined to do or die.

"The warships were playing their searchlights all over the bathers, but I was out of their range. I made out along a point of land as far as I could go and then struck out across the bay to the opposite shore, where I saw a clump of bushes. To get there I had to pass close to the warships to keep out of the range of the searchlights.

"To make matters worse, a small school of porpoises were in the bay disporting themselves. They, too, were dodging here and there, attracted by the light, but swimming out of it the moment it flashed over them. Half a dozen times I was struck by these porpoises, and two of them fairly lifted me into the air. They slid under and just hoisted me. Each time I thought I was gone. A score of times I felt sure I had been seen. Had it not been for the canvas bag, which remained comparatively water tight, I should have gone down. It buoyed me up.

"I crawled, half dead, up among the bushes after a swim of more than three miles. I had been more than four hours in the water. After resting I donned my clothing and cautiously made my way along shore.

"In the semitwilight I saw a couple of negroes bailing out an old bateau. I approached them cautiously. They took me for a ghost at first, but, on being assured, listened to me with great attention. They consented to take me across to Hamilton, where I wanted to reach the Quebec liner for New York, and early on Saturday morning I was landed on the breakwater near which the Trinidad was lying. I watched my chance and slipped on board when no one was looking and, making my way to the firerooms, entered one of the coal bunkers and climbed to the top of the black, grimy pile.

"With me I had six eggs which I had secured. No matter who gave them to me. I had them, and on this food I depended for the three days I knew the trip would take. I ate one of the eggs that day. How the time passed in the grimy hole I cannot tell you. Part of the time I was in a sort of stupor. I grew weaker every day. My last egg was gone on Sunday night, and all day Monday I had nothing to eat or drink. My thirst was terrible.

"On Monday night I felt that I could

"In the semitwilight I saw a couple of negroes bailing out an old bateau. I approached them cautiously. They took me for a ghost at first, but, on being assured, listened to me with great attention. They consented to take me across to Hamilton, where I wanted to reach the Quebec liner for New York, and early on Saturday morning I was landed on the breakwater near which the Trinidad was lying. I watched my chance and slipped on board when no one was looking and, making my way to the firerooms, entered one of the coal bunkers and climbed to the top of the black, grimy pile.

"With me I had six eggs which I had secured. No matter who gave them to me. I had them, and on this food I depended for the three days I knew the trip would take. I ate one of the eggs that day. How the time passed in the grimy hole I cannot tell you. Part of the time I was in a sort of stupor. I grew weaker every day. My last egg was gone on Sunday night, and all day Monday I had nothing to eat or drink. My thirst was terrible.

"On Monday night I felt that I could stand it no longer. I heard two stokers talking in German. I made up my mind they would be friendly. I had reached a point where I did not care much anyhow. I slid down to the bottom of the heap, and one of the men saw me when he came to stoke coal. He called out to me, and I crawled out and tried to stand, but could not. They gave me food. I could not eat it. I was past eating somehow. I just felt that death only would relieve me.

"They carried me to a room below somewhere and laid me in a bunk. Then they got water for me to wash myself, and I painfully stripped and tried to clean some of the soot and coal dust that had fairly ground itself into my flesh. The bath helped me, and in the morning I was able to eat a little.

"Then I learned that the Trinidad was a British ship. I had not known it before for certain. My heart sank, but the men reassured me. They told me they would have to tell Captain Fraser, and they did. I was brought before him, but to my surprise he was not unkind to me. He gave me clothing, and I was able to dress in clean garments again. He also gave me most nourishing food.

"On arrival here I was turned over to the immigration authorities, and to my surprise I was told there was a question if I would be allowed to land. I hope that all my sufferings are not for naught."

The wan face of Duplooy brightened when he heard of the efforts being made for his release. He is more than six feet tall, this fighter under Cronje, but slender as any youth. He is little more than a youth, for he is just 24. His features are regular, his complexion a rich olive, which has been tanned to a darker color on his cheeks.

Of his mother he speaks with reverence. The hope that he will meet her again and that his country will yet be among the free nations of the globe is strong within him. When he smiles, which is seldom, there is a momentary display of strong, even, white teeth.

DIGGING FOR HIDDEN GOLD.

People of Money Island Searching For Kidd's Treasure.

The entire population of Money island, one of the Thimble group, which lies a mile and a half offshore, are digging up the shores of the island in quest of treasure believed to have been buried by old buccaneer Captain Kidd, says a dispatch from Stony Creek, Conn., to the Philadelphia Press.

Mike Luchia, for 30 years a sailor, dreamed that he saw himself digging in the sand at the entrance to the tide washed cavern which is known as Kidd's cave, and he saw himself in the act of raising a heavy chest from the sands. So, bright and early in the morning, when the tide was low, he went out with pick and shovel. When five feet down, he came to some pieces of rotten plank, a bit of rusted iron, which might once have been a staple, and some curious, blackened disks of metal. These he threw aside, digging the harder that he might reach the chest before the rising tide drove him from his work. Finally he was forced to throw down his spade. He clambered out of his excavation, eying the rotten bit of wood and the blackened disks contemptuously. Eight of them, as nearly as he can remember, he threw into the sea. The others he slipped into his pocket and returned to the Davis home. Mike showed his find to Dr. Frederick Russell Jacobs, an instructor in the Philadelphia Dental college, who declared the coins to be Spanish doubloons.

CAN MAKE SUPERB PEARLS.

Michigan Chemist Discovers a Process That Will Enrich Him.

Walter Voorhees, a chemist of Buchanan, near Benton Harbor, Mich., has discovered a process of making large and beautiful pearls from the most common clam shells, says the Chicago Record-Herald. He has been experimenting with the clams for years, and the wonderful discovery, which promises to make him immensely wealthy, is the result.

Mr. Voorhees was in Benton Harbor recently and exhibited some of the pearls he has developed in clams found in the bed of the St. Joseph river. They are as perfect as any ever seen at Benton Harbor and would probably bring a high price.

Voorhees' process lies in inserting a small, hard substance in a certain part of the clam and then returning it to the water. Here the clam remains for from three to five years, when it is removed and the pearl extracted. The chemist naturally refuses to divulge the full particulars of the remarkable discovery made by him. He has at present over 2,000 clams which he has treated and expects soon to have 8,000.

Tribute to Professor Le Conte.

The death of Professor Joseph Le Conte is more than a loss to science, although science in America had no more devoted or accomplished follower than he, says the New York Journal. Stimulating as his mental influence was, the inspiration he radiated was less of the mind than of the soul. No one who ever came within the range of his lovable personality failed to feel a spiritual exaltation. To say that he was the best beloved professor at the university of California is a poor and cold description of the affection in which he was held. If there is any other educator anywhere as well beloved as he the institution that possesses him is fortunate.

Robinson Crusoe's Musket.

A Philadelphia firm of auctioneers recently offered at one of their sales Robinson Crusoe's musket. It was a fine old flintlock. It was in the possession of a grandniece of Alexander Selkirk, and its pedigree is much more unclouded than is usually the case with objects of this kind.

A MAMMOTH CHIMNEY.

Features of a New Smokestack at Constable Hook, N. J.

IT IS ONE YEAR IN HEIGHT.

Will Take Smoke and Fumes of Copper Works So Far Above Staten Island and Vicinity That They Will Never Be Noticed—Trip Made Inside to the Top.

"A foot for every day in the year." That is what everybody on Staten Island says as he looks at the giant smokestack over on the other side of the Kill von Kull. This is a phrase that takes people's fancy and was given out by Colonel Robert M. Thompson, president of the Orford Copper company, the works of which spread over Constable Hook, N. J., and keep redhot furnaces going day and night and employ hundreds of men who are picturesque in their grime and have given up all idea of ever being clean or looking cool.

Colonel Thompson's catchy description of the mammoth chimney is literally true. The object was to build one so high that the smoke and fumes would be lifted up above the houses and hills of Staten Island and no longer be the proverbial nuisance which has aroused so much talk and so little action among Staten Islanders. This would have been accomplished by 300 feet, they say, but they put on the extra 65 to round out the calendar number and to make it one of the highest chimneys ever built.

On the last day of the work, before the elevator inside, a plain platform hung on chains and rods, was removed at noon, a representative of The Staten Islander went up to the top to look round. Also on this trip was Mrs. Augustus Acker, wife of Judge Acker, and her two charming daughters. The gloomy ride up inside the dark walls of that 365 feet and the swift glide down, to say nothing of the dizzy height at the top from which Greater New York and the Jersey towns seem merged in a misty chiaroscura of birdseye landscape, might well have appalled the feminine heart, but the three ladies passed the ordeal with no apparent sign of nervousness and highly enjoyed the unique and now impossible experience.

The erection of such a heavy building on the marshy ground was a very difficult undertaking, and the foundation had to be constructed with the utmost care. Work was begun on Nov. 1 last year, when a hole was dug 45 feet square and 15 feet deep, reaching several feet below the lowest level of tide water. Large pumps were constantly at work keeping the water out, and over the entire bottom of the excavation were driven piles as close as possible and as deep as possible. About 500 piles were used. The ends were trimmed off about a foot above the bottom of the excavation, and concrete of the best quality was filled in up to the level of the ground. The brickwork was then started 30 feet square for a height of 30 feet, with a round hole in the center 16 feet in diameter, leaving the wall at the narrowest part seven feet thick. On top of this cube is erected the chimney proper, built of special radial hollow brick under the patents of the Custodis Chimney Construction company. This column is round, with an outside diameter of 30 feet at the bottom and 12 feet at the top. The inside diameter is 16 feet at the bottom and 10 feet at the top. All the furnaces of the Orford Copper company are to be connected with this stack, and the smoke will never be noticeable at the surface.

The company, which is the largest nickel producer in the world, is burning on an average 300 tons of coke and coal a day, and the smoke made a fog over the Kill von Kull which in cold and damp weather made navigation difficult. It is partly with a view of obviating this trouble that the company has gone to the expense of erecting the stack, which cost over $50,000. The Custodis Chimney Construction company has been in the business in Europe for the last 20 to 25 years and has erected hundreds of stacks in different countries. This is, however, the highest one it has ever built.

It is said that this smokestack weighs about 22,000 tons. It will be fed by four great flues leading from the three great furnaces of the works. The flues are eight feet in diameter, and the longest carries the smoke 275 feet underground from the refining furnaces. Two flues, each 200 feet long, come from the cupolas, or blast furnaces, and the fourth conveys the smoke from the calcining furnace.

There is such a wind at the top, even in calm weather, that the draft is something tremendous, and the heaviest smoke will not be able to resist it. Out it must come and up above all creation, and it is the fervid hope of the long suffering Staten Islanders that it will stay there and float off in lofty clouds and no more come down to choke the throats and blind the eyes and wither the foliage of the householder. Lightning rods run up the outside.

Cure For Diseases of Plants.

M. Beauverie, a professor of agriculture, says, according to a Paris dispatch to the New York Sun, that he has made an important discovery in connection with curing diseases of plants. He was experimenting to find a cure for Botrytis cinerea, a rust commonly affecting hothouse plants, and tried treating the soil with a liquid in which he had cultivated botrytis. Plants grown in this soil proved immune from Botrytis cinerea. He hopes to find that other parasitical diseases can be similarly cured.

ASTRONOMY

The "new stars" of history have not been numerous, only 20 having been noted since 134 B. C., the date of the first authentic record. Yet 13 were observed in the nineteenth century and six in the last decade, five of the latter being found on Harvard photographs. Of the total 13 were bright enough to be seen by the naked eye.

The number has shown a very rapid increase with progress in star surveying, and, as the largest telescopes show some 10,000 times as many stars as the unaided vision, it may be assumed that complete and constant observation of the entire heavens to the limits of telescopic range will make the flashing up of some distant sun an almost daily occurrence.

The Atlases of the Moon.

Professor Prinz of the Royal observatory of Belgium is an expert in lunar photography. In a recent article he speaks of the different photographic atlases of the moon as follows: "The atlas published by the Paris observatory is the most beautiful. That published by the observatory of Prague, by enlarging photographs taken at the Lick observatory, is the most accurate. That published by the Lick observatory is the richest of all. The edition of the Paris charts prepared by the Astronomical society of Belgium is the most practical for general use. That published by the Yerkes observatory shows the most detail."

The Zodiacal Light.

A. E. Douglass of the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, A. T., has been fortunate enough to obtain some successful photographs of the zodiacal light. The lens employed was made especially for this purpose. The aperture is 0.9 inch, focus 1.8 inches. Many attempts were made, and it was found that when the light was at its best an exposure of eight minutes would suffice, but that when it was not so clear it required 30 minutes. Glycin and hydroquinone were used with success in developing.

A Mammoth Meteorite.

A meteorite which fell at Porto Alegre, Brazil, is reported to measure 56 feet on the base and 85 feet in height, most astonishing dimensions.

Where Emery Comes From.

Not the least important of the several imported minerals at present largely used in this country is emery. It comes from the island of Naxos, in the eastern Mediterranean, and many tons of the material are used in the United States annually. Emery is one of the hardest substances known, and it is found in massive layers or beds, which have to be blasted before the miners can work at it.

Submarine Photography.

M. Louis Boutan has published a volume upon submarine photography. The details of the processes are given, and it appears that it is now perfectly possible to secure good negatives at a depth of 150 feet. The same arrangements will serve, no doubt, for much greater depths. Scientific men will use these processes for many researches on the life of submarine animals that are now impossible.

THE ANIMAL WORLD

What Sir Harry Johnston thought to be probably a new zebra living in the Kongo forests has proved to be a new mammal indeed, but neither the Equus johnstoni, which it was provisionally named, nor a horse of any kind or sort. It is an absolutely new type of existing animal so far as can be judged from the skin and two skulls which a Swedish officer, Mr. K. Erikssen, commandant of the Kongo State fort of Mbeni, has sent to the administrator of British Central Africa. It is now certain that an absolutely unknown creature of large size, and probably the only representative of a prehistoric race of mammals, survives in some numbers in what is now a part of the British empire. The new mammal is a living representative of a lost form.

The London Times gives a detailed account of the extraordinary coloring of this prehistoric beast. It is as large as a wild horse, cloven footed and a ruminant. The head is large, the muzzle tapering, the cheeks white and the muzzle brown. This suggests the coloring of one of the larger African antelopes. But the whole forehead is scarlet red, which narrows into a thin black line down to the nostrils. Proceeding with this reconstruction, we have a brown beast with ass' ears, a scarlet forehead and white cheeks. There remain the hind quarters, the most conspicuous part in most quadrupeds, and the legs. The hind quarters and the hind legs down to the hocks are striped with purplish black, white and pale orange. The proportions are something like those of a horse and the outline that of a tapir. It is believed to live upon leaves.

The Crested Hoatzin.

A little creature found in South America by a party of naturalists is a relic of bygone ages. It is known as the crested hoatzin, and the adult bird is about as big as a peacock. The young birds, when hatched, have four legs, the front pair being reptilian in character, and have strong claws. This makes the creature look like a bird, beast and snake all in one. As the birds grow older the claws fall off, the legs become fattened, feathers grow on them, and they develop into wings.

Good Afternoon.

The following article written by Mrs. Bigelow, a lady well known in this city who is stopping this summer at Nahant, was sent us by her with the request that it be published:

Nahant, July 11th, 1901.

Mrs. George T. Bigelow has just received a paper, in which it is stated that a lawn party and school picnic will be held on her grounds on the 20th of July.

Mrs. Bigelow would state that she has been told on authority, that this invitation was given by the Rev. Mr. Friguglietti, from the pulpit of the Catholic church in Quincy.

Mrs. Bigelow would say that she has never given permission for her grounds to be used for this purpose, and that she will punish to the extent of the law, all who may commit this outrage.

What could induce Mr. Green to publish in his paper on Tuesday such a libelous article about this kind-hearted lady, we cannot imagine. She has fine grounds on South street, and if she does not want them trampled over during her absence by a picnic party, no respectable persons of any denomination would think the less of her.

When Mr. Green says her article was from a "bigotted brain," he certainly does this much respected lady great injustice, to put it mildly; and, no apology, even on bended knees could recompense her for his slanderous language. Read what he says:

"In the Ledger of last Saturday there appeared a notice purporting to come from Mrs. George T. Bigelow but it lacked her signature. The notice was a left handed slanderous attack upon the Catholics of Quincy as well as upon Rev. F. A. Friguglietti who has the respect of all good citizens in Quincy regardless of their religious belief. The author of the article was no doubt prompted more from a bigotted brain than from a liberal, true heart."—Quincy Advertiser, July 16th.

Knowing the purpose of the publishers of the Daily Ledger not to enter into any controversy Mr. Green continued his malicious, dirty and cowardly attacks in the issue of Friday. As the Ledger has expressed no opinions on the use of Mrs. Bigelow's grounds we have nothing to apologize for. As many of the warmest friends of the editor both personally and in a business way are Catholics, the attempt to prejudice Catholics against us falls flat as it should. Anybody who read the letter of Mrs. Bigelow under date of Nahant knew that it came from that lady, even though it was written in the third person.

George W. Prescott.

The drowning of a little boy in Brookline last week, brought out a timely letter from a local physician, in the Chronicle, in which he says: "The lesson this should teach us all is the duty of protecting our children, both boys and girls, at as early an age as practicable, against death by drowning, by giving them some knowledge of swimming. In this case a very few strokes would have easily saved the boy's life. Parents cannot keep their children from occasionally falling into deep water, but in Brookline they can have them taught to swim well enough to change such an accident from a shocking fatality to a harmless wetting."

Drift Of Opinion.

☞The utilization of Abraham Lincoln's birthplace as a home for ex-slaves, a plan under development by a wealthy and philanthropic black, Thomas T. Thomas, will be in accord with the memory and the public service of the best beloved of our presidents. There is a certain fitness of things in the once down-trodden black man finding comfort in the closing hours of his life under the roof that once sheltered the man by whose act the shackles were struck from the helpless limbs and freedom came.—Milford Journal.

☞We want the state to devote as much money to educational purposes as can be spared, but when this is done education will not be universal under present conditions. Either school attendance must be made compulsory or there must be such a premium put on education and such a ban put on illiteracy that all the children will attend school at some period of their childhood. We must make education so desirable that all will strive for it and we must make illiteracy so discreditable that no parent will allow his child to grow up in ignorance.—Montgomery Advertiser.

---

☞The Boston papers of last week on a certain day had pictures of two men, one who had given $1,000,000 to Harvard, and the other the headmaster of the Dwight school for fifty years, whose pupils were to honor him with loving words and generous gifts later in the week. Superintendent Seaver of the Boston city schools, at the banquet in Headmaster Page's honor, said that Mr. Page was quite as worthy of praise for his influence in shaping character for so many years as the millionare who gave a fraction of his immense fortune in memory of his father. Who will dispute Mr. Seaver? — Congregationalist.

---

☞The business interest of the country, so far as they have made any expression, have proclaimed themselves to be strenuously opposed to a reopening of the tariff debate in the next congress. Our industries are now prosperous and those engaged in them naturally dread the unsettling effect that would be sure to follow any serious proposition to change the existing law, under which the turn in the tide from panic to prosperity was made. Let the country have at least another two years' rest from a tariff tear-up. The Republican party is in power in the congress and in the executive, and can easily prevent the disaster threatened by such would-be disturbers as Congressman Babcock.—Minneapolis Tribune.

---

☞It is beyond question that the general indulgence in various alcoholic drinks has been materially lessoned in America in the past fifteen years; that a much larger number of the younger people are total abstainers on principle and without fanaticism than ever before; and the laboring people abstain from the use of alcoholic beverages more generally than they ever did before, and more than they do in any other country. Theoretically, regularity in calling attention through the impressive years to the harm wrought by intoxicants ought to make young people more sane on this question, and in practice something has done this. It may not be that the good results are wholly due to the scientific temperance teaching, but it is not conceivable that some of it—probably much of it—is not so due, and it is equally inconceivable that any credit is due the attempts to discredit such teaching. It may easily be believed that the work may be better done, but it is beyond belief that good will come from its being undone.—Journal of Education.

---

☞A correspondent of the New York Evening World estimates that half the 76,000,000 people of the United States are now at play and will be until September 1st or later. To make this estimate he includes, of course, the school children, of whom this might be said on almost every Saturday in the year. But when he comes to adults, he can hardly see in reality any such universal playtime as he thinks he does. A few have rest periods ranging from two months to three months. Some very lucky ones have a month. Those who have two weeks think they are fortunate. A week is all that thousands get. And it is very probable that those who have no vacation at all, outnumber all these classes put together. It is something to be thankful for, we believe, that so many persons in this country have real vacations of some period, though in the vast majority of instances that period is too restricted. Some of them do not make very good use of their vacation time, failing to get out of it all the benefit that they might, while to some it is a demoralization rather than a benefit. On the whole, however, the vacation practice is a good thing for Americans, and it ought to increase rather than diminish.—New Bedford Standard.

ALASKA SQUAW MEN.

SOME GREAT FORTUNES WITH A STRING TO THEM.

Does It Profit a Man to Be a Millionaire if He Have an Indian Family on His Hands?—Held In Contempt by White Men.

[Special Correspondence.]

SKAGUAY, June 24.—The recent death of a man who acquired a great fortune in the Klondike region sets me thinking I have just read in a paper printed in the United States a romantic story of his early history—how he was a poor country lad, loving a maiden poor as himself; how his "love of his life"—that is how the writer puts it—spurred him on to herculean exertion in the frozen north, how he kept it up for 12 years, when success crowned his effort. He found himself a millionaire. Then he returned to the United States and wedded the maiden, who had waited for him. Then, alas, through the undermining of his constitution while working for his sweetheart, he died just after the gates of earthly bliss had opened to him. It is a pretty story, but not all the story. The rest of it is that while the man was making his fortune on the Yukon he had an Indian wife, a creature so gentle and devoted that she won the respect even of the white miners in the Klondike gold country, men whose scorn of a comrade that takes an Indian wife is unutterable. When these heard that the millionaire was on his way back to the old haunts after marrying the sweetheart of his youth, they made threats that they would deal roughly with him. He had simply gone away and left the native wife—deserted her. The threats of violence were never executed, but prophecies were freely cast upon the air that no good would come to the man. No good did come to him. He lost much of the wealth he had acquired, and then he died.

There is a whole row of rich men in the far northwest who have married wild native women, and not one I know of gets any satisfaction out of his life for all his wealth. An evil fate hangs over them all. Serves them right for marrying into an inferior race, the world says. Perhaps it does, but their punishment is heavy.

There was one among the first gold discoverers at Dawson. He lived with the Eskimos, and two brown skinned Indian brothers-in-law helped him win his wealth and shared it. He took the children to the States to be educated. I saw the whole batch of them as they were starting for San Francisco, the low browed, shrinking Indian wife trying to look like a white woman and failing miserably, the wild little half breed children dodging hither and thither, the man standing by them like a man, but looking worried and ashamed, not a chum or a friend among white men who knew him. He said he would put his children to school, then he would return to Dawson and live with his brown wife's people. "I know," he said, "that she would never be received in society in the States."

"If that fellow with the Injin wife comes in here on the trip down," said the sturdy engineer, "I'll turn the hot water on him."

There, too, was that white man at the Yukon trading post who had an Eskimo wife. The wife wore rich silks, but she was a drunkard and carried on wild orgies with her Indian mates. The husband's financial interests lay about the post, so that he could neither run away from his wife nor his business. There he staid, there he stays, transformed into a man of fierce temper, soured to all races and, like others who have done as he did, despised by his fellow white men. I know not what it is, but there is something implanted by nature in the soul of a white person that revolts against "herding with narrow foreheads." It must be nature's safeguard for the preservation of the superior race.

There is yet another case, to my mind the most melancholy of all. At another trading post is a white man of the highest education and culture. In a fit of desperate pique against society one day he ran away to the northwest. While the fit was on he took an Eskimo wife. Perhaps he thought to revenge himself on society, when, poor wretch, he was only revenging society on himself. He behaves himself as a gentleman, he has manners that would grace any court, he has the singing voice of an angel, he has ample means, but—he has also the Indian wife and the half breed children. He can never return to his own.

—A swindler in New York made this confession: "If the post office department would let me alone I would have to hire a cart to carry my money-laden mail. Let me promise 56 per cent. on a fake and I can get rich." The many persons who are anxious to be soon parted from their money are under great obligations to Uncle Sam's protective postal rules.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the shareholders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. # CALYPSO FIRST.

Outsailed Chewink in Quincy Open Race.

The Hostess Disabled and Withdraws.

Hustler and Hector Win in the Handicap Classes.

The first open race of the Quincy Yacht club was held yesterday off the club house, at Houghs Neck. The weather conditions were such as to make a good race possible for there was a good sailing easterly breeze.

The thick fog, however, made it impossible for those on shore at the club house to see much of the start, or of the race, and it also made it bad for some of the yachts who lost time trying to find the buoys they were to round. At times the fog was so thick that nothing could be distinguished twenty feet away. The fog however, llifted just before the first class finished which made things somewhat more satisfactory.

The preparatory gun sounded at 1.30 P. M., and at 1.35 the first class started, followed by the other classes at intervals of five minutes.

The start of the first class, or 25-footers was exciting. The Calypso, with John T. Cavanagh at the wheel, came along first but the Chewink luffed around the flag boat as the gun sounded in the weather position with the Hostess third.

The Chewink held her lead until off Sheep island, when the Calypso suddenly went under her stern and walked out through her lee.

This gave the Calypso the advantage and from then out she continued to draw away and finished nine minutes ahead of the Chewink. The Hostess carried away her mast off Sheep island, and the last seen of her she was headed for Downer Landing.

In the 21-footers, the Mildred II and Zaza went across the line together. The Mildred had a little the advantage at the start and held it throughout the race, finishing with a lead of five minutes. The Vitesses started but mistook the line at the start and as it lost her some time she withdrew.

There was considerable scrapping among the 18-foot knockabouts. They came to the line in a bunch, but the Ma Lillian crossed first with the Aspinquid a good second. At the first tack the latter boat got the weather berth. The Nethla then moved up and it was a pretty race from this out, the Aspinquid winning out by only eight seconds.

There were ten starters in the Class A handicap. The Moondyne crossed the line first while the other boats were well bunched. They scattered somewhat after the start, but the leaders remained fairly well bunched when they came around the first time. The Eclipse worked into first position and held it to the finish.

At the conclusion of the race the Mudjekeewis protested the C. C. and the Omeme for not rounding the proper buoy.

Class B there were but three starters and they were well bunched. The Hector and Whisper got mixed up at the start but matters were straightened out and the race finished without protest. The Apache took first place and finished first but lost on time allowance.

A Delightful Sail.

Between seventy and eighty persons enjoyed a delightful sail in Boston Harbor Thursday at the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon.

Mr. Sheldon's steamer, the "Ella," a staunch little craft admirably adapted for the purpose met the party at Squantum to which point they had been conveyed in two special cars. Captain Higgins of the "Ella" is a skilful navigator and the knowledge of that fact, added to the quietness of the water, took away all unpleasant features and the sail was a most delightful one. Mr. Harding added greatly to the interest of the excursion by a map of the harbor which he explained.

The boat passed Thompson's and Spectacle islands and skirting Long island carried the party to Castle island, where a landing was made and a basket lunch partaken of in the grateful shade of Fort Independence. After an hour's rest on the island, the party proceeded up the harbor to Boston Light, and returned along the South Shore to Squantum.

On the Squantum landing the party massed together and Mr. Newell made a neat little speech which closed with three rousing cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon.

Some uneasiness was caused by the fact that the harbor police boat, the Guardian, continued to shadow the party all the way out; but this was simply due to the presence of Mr. N. R. Procter on board.

DE PROFUNDIS.

Not yet are deeds fruition of my thought,
Nor is this body symbol of my soul,
For evil ever in this life is wrought
That shuns the will and its divine control.
Surely I shall not be forever weak,
Halting and stumbling on the chosen way,
Blinded by the pure and perfect light I seek,
Upon the threshold of eternal day.
I do not mourn discredit to my fame
Who smile at time and his confining shores;
'Tis this provokes the burning blush of shame:
The flesh still grovels, though the spirit soars;
But my heart's anguish who can understand
Or stay my folly with a guiding hand?

The Return Of Mary.

By W. R. ROSE.

The air was growing chill in the early twilight when Mary Hamerton opened the little garden gate and went swiftly down the path to her father's house. How familiar everything looked! How few changes 15 years had wrought! No doubt the greatest change was to confront her within the old home. She slipped through the unlocked doorway into the kitchen. There was a young woman there, a young woman who looked up with startled eyes when Mary entered. But Mary explained her presence in a few words, and the young woman, whose heart was tender, listened with a suspicion of tears in her eyes and gladly seconded her suggestions. And Mary learned that the young woman was the daughter of a neighboring farmer, who had come over to care for Gilbert Blair and his home. No; the old man was not, as Mary had feared, in failing health. He was feeble, it was true, and kept to his chair and his reading more, but he was not ill. Yes, he was in the sitting room now in the old rocker by the fireplace. The young woman had just fixed the lamp for him, and he had taken up his book. Would Mary go to him now? No, Mary would wait a little.

As she looked about the familiar room memories rushed upon her that filled her eyes with tears—the gentle mother who had passed away when she needed a mother most; the aunt whose rigid rule had imbittered the child's life; the father whose iron will had found in her a will fully as strong and whose harsh words had driven her from his door and into the great world beyond. Perhaps she had been wrong to brave him as she did, but her soul rebelled against the narrow limits of her life in the dull little hamlet. She wanted knowledge; she wanted society. There had been a wordy strife, and she had gone forth.

Later on, when she had established herself in the city by the lake and the cruel days of the early struggle seemed passed, she had written to him, but he had not answered. She wrote again. Her letter was returned. He was very hard and very unforgiving. Occasionally she heard of him in indirect ways. Once she met a man from the neighborhood, and he told her that her father never spoke of her and never permitted her name to be mentioned in his hearing.

And so the years passed, 15 of them, and then a great longing to see her father came to her. It came to her after the death of her child. And so she was here.

Mary put a huge apron over her traveling dress and went to work. She had not forgotten her cunning. The abiding places of the dishes came back to her; the recipes of long ago were swiftly recalled. The young woman watched her quick movements with fascinated eyes. Mary wanted to prepare the evening meal alone, and she had her way.

Presently she glanced a little anxiously at the clock. Then she smoothed down her apron and went forward to the sitting room door. The old man did not hear her approach. She looked at him a moment before she spoke. No; he was not greatly changed—grayer and thinner; that was all.

"Father," she said.

He looked around.

"Why, it's Mary," he said. "I was just dreaming of you. I had fallen asleep. So you have come back?"

Mary did not move from the doorway.

"Yes," she said, "I have come back." A whimsical smile fluttered across her face. "Do you want wheat cakes for supper tonight, father?"

The old man stared a little. Then he nodded and turned and looked closer at his prodigal daughter. But she did not wait for him to speak.

"Very well," she said and vanished.

She laughed as she came back to the kitchen. There was a suspicion of sadness in her merriment, but she nodded as if satisfied with her reception.

"It is the right way," she said.

She was busy with her cakes when a slight noise in the doorway drew her attention. She turned and saw her father looking at her.

"I dreamed just now that you came to me and said you had come back," he cried in a querulous tone.

"Yes, I have come back," returned Mary as she bent again over her cakes.

"It's really you, Mary, is it?"

"Yes."

Muttering softly to himself, the old man turned from the doorway and sought his accustomed place by the fireside.

As he seated himself a smile crept over his features. It was a smile of triumph.

When Mary had the meal quite ready, she left affairs in charge of the young woman and sought her father.

He looked up as she paused in the doorway. He had been nodding at the fire. The smile of triumph still lingered on his wrinkled face.

"So you've come back, Mary?" he said again, as if he loved the sound of the words.

"Yes, father."

"I knew you would," cried the old man. "I knew you would! I told you you'd be glad to come back."

"I am glad to come back, father."

The old man nodded as if with satisfaction.

"It's a bitter world, Mary—a bitter world for those that disobey and rise against their elders and flaunt their foolish pride."

"The world is very much what we make it, father."

"And what have you made of it, Mary?"

"I have tried to make the best of it, father."

"And you have come back?"

"Yes, father."

The smile of triumph deepened and widened.

"You have come back, as I said you would," cried the old man. "You have had your day of pride and folly, and you have come to the husks and the humiliation. Then you thought of the dear old home, the one place where you would find a welcome and a shelter, and you have come back. I knew it; I knew it all these years. I knew the punishment of the prodigal would break your haughty spirit. I knew you would come back."

His voice had risen as his vehemence increased, but it dropped at the closing words, and he sank back in the chair.

Then Mary went around the little table and faced her father.

"Father," she said, and her voice was clear and calm, "you are quite wrong. Your dream has been a false one. Look at me, my father." And she drew herself up before him, and his smile faded as he gazed up at her with troubled eyes. "Do I look like the prodigal supplicant? Do I look like one whom the world has cast off? No, my father; I am an honest woman and a good woman, and there is naught in my past of which I should be ashamed. It is not the story of a prodigal that I am about to tell you. It is the story of a woman who went out into the world and fought her way upward and kept herself unsmirched through the struggle. Your dream was all untrue, my father."

She paused and leaned her hand upon the table. "When I went from you," she resumed, "I was determined that I would not return until I had shown my independence. You called it a wicked pride, but it was that that kept me up and spurred me on. The great city seemed cold and forbidding, but I did not despair. I found a place where honest work was honestly rewarded. I was faithful and loyal, and my services were appreciated. I made friends as I rose, one of them a young man in whose ambitious hopes I became deeply interested. Perhaps it seemed foolish, but we fancied we could be of greater help to each other if we were married. Now we know that we were right." She paused again. "Your dream was all untrue, my father."

The old man's smile had quite faded, and there was no tenderness in his voice.

"Your pride is still your master," he said. "But you are a married woman?"

"Yes, father."

"You have a home?"

"Yes; a beautiful home."

"Children?"

"I had two, but God took one from me. It was that, I think, that turned my thoughts to you. We have a boy, a sturdy fellow of 12. Do you care to know his name? It is Gilbert Blair Hamerton. Some day you shall see him."

The old man winced a little.

"Your husband's name is Hamerton?"

"Yes, father; Philip Hamerton."

The old man nodded his head.

"I shall not forget the name," he muttered. "It is the same as the new senator's."

Mary smiled.

"The same name and the same man, father."

The old man started up.

"Your husband!"

"Your son-in-law, father."

"Your husband," the old man murmured; "the idol of the public, the man who may be president!"

"Yes, father," said Mary. "And when he comes he will tell you that in all he has accomplished I have been his adviser and his faithful helper."

"Coming here?" cried the old man.

"Yes, father. I left him behind at Judge Northmore's, with instructions to follow me in an hour. He will soon be here."

The old man clutched the arms of his chair and stared at his child. The scales were dropping from his eyes. The blindness of prejudice was gone. He saw that she was a beautiful woman, straight and supple of figure, clear of eye, with dignity and character expressed by every movement. A warm wave surged across his old heart.

And as he caught her glance a tender smile overspread her face.

The old man dropped his gaze. His hands trembled.

"Mary," he murmured, "it was a wicked dream—a wicked dream!"

She was on her knees by his side in a flash, with a loving hand caressing his gray locks.

"Yes, my father," she softly said, "it was a wicked dream, and, like all wicked dreams, the sooner we can forget it the better. But, father dear, let me have the prodigal's kiss of forgiveness."

"Mary!" the old man brokenly murmured.

"There!" she cried as she arose. "And now for the supper—the supper that is to show you that I haven't forgotten the lessons I learned in those early years. Hark! There is Philip! I hear his footstep on the graveled walk."

The old man arose as she turned and hurried to the door. There were tears in his eyes.

"Mary has come back," he murmured very softly.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SEAGOING BONNETS.

That Coquettishly Top Off Smart Bathing Suits.

It is safe to predict that numbers of women who have not the smallest intention of venturing above their ankles into the summer seas will nevertheless fit themselves out with new bathing caps. They are too coquettishly becoming to be lightly resisted, and numbers of them are direct copies of the models made up for the season's wear at Trouville, Dieppe, Dinard and Ostend, says the New York Evening Sun. Hitherto a red cotton or silk handkerchief tied over an ugly yellow oiled silk cap has been the proper, in fact the only, hair protection for the timid or venturesome feminine bather.

At last a pretty and salt water proof material has been found that does away with the old yellow mob shaped bag, and the quaintest little bonnets and caps of bright plaid silk have come to take their place. Some of these are made in the shape of a highland piper's cap, and others are nautical reefers with two ribbon tails dangling over the left ear.

Of pure white and navy blue silk a few pretty caps bearing in the center of their tops jaunty red pompons have been made, but the plaid silks predominate. This is because the flannel and alpaca bathing suits of every color are trimmed with tailored bands, collars and vests of plaid serge, and the smart seagoing hose are woven in bright Scotch stripes.

The cap that tops off a suit so dazzling is naturally a sort of epitome of all the colors reflected from the shoulders down, and it is the thing to order when buying a bathing suit a bold set of initials embroidered with a nautical device on the cap's head band or on one side of its puffy top. Salt water proof silk is used for this purpose.

In plaid silk sunbonnets for wearing right in among the breakers every woman thinks she sees a possibility of shading her face from the intensity of sunburn that crisps the tender skin, and those who don't care or who know just how many degrees of heat and reflection their cheeks can safely endure are buying huge waterproof silk bandanna handkerchiefs made up into caps. The cap has a base of oiled silk, and then the bright handkerchief is wound, like a negress' turban, into a tall and becoming headdress that ends with a knot in front and fits so closely that not a hair is exposed to the injurious salt waves.

Delicious Cold Chocolate Pudding.

A delicious chocolate pudding which may be served with whipped cream and eaten cold is made as follows: Put into a bowl two cupfuls of stale bread and pour over it one quart of scalded milk. While it is cooling put two squares of chocolate in a saucepan and melt it over hot water. When the bread and milk are cool, mix with them two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, two eggs slightly beaten, the chocolate, two saltspoonfuls of salt and one teaspoonful of vanila. Bake in a buttered tin for an hour in a moderately hot oven.—New York Tribune.

Among the Wedding Gifts.

Good Housekeeping pictures these implements commonly bestowed as wedding gifts and reads the riddle of them thus:

At the extreme right is a fried oyster knife, and corresponding to it on the opposite side is a chocolate muddler for mixing the ingredients of a cup of chocolate at the table. The central, largest spoon is a saratoga chip server; above it is a horse radish spoon and above that, with six teeth, a cucumber server; directly underneath the saratoga chip server is a butter knife pick, for butter balls, and below that a jelly knife. Following these are a jelly cake knife and a toast fork.

CAN YOU GUESS THEIR USES?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 21—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—A strong weak man.—Jud. xvi, 20-30.

Samson is the most sensational character in the word of God. Suddenly and unexpectedly he performed the most startling deeds of valor. He slew a lion, the king of beasts. He paid a wedding prize with the garments of 30 slain Philistines. Single handed he killed a thousand Philistines, and when surrounded in Gaza he carried away its immense gates and escaped. But the strong man became weak. He was captured by his enemies, his eyes were put out, and he was compelled to grind the grain of his foes, like a beast of the field. What a picture of a strong weak man—strong to the point of the miraculous in one moment, weak to the point of helplessness in the next! Thus it is often with us in our spiritual lives. At one time we are strong in the line of duty—strong against temptation, strong in the face of obstacles; at another we are almost at the point of helplessness. We are overcome, we are disgraced, we are humiliated.

The explanation of this apparent paradox is evident in the case of Samson. Samson was strong when he was filled with the Spirit of the Lord, but weak when he trusted in himself. Up to a certain point in his career the sacred historian prefaces every great deed of Samson with the words, "The Spirit of the Lord came upon him." Then this preface is discontinued. Samson seems to act in his own strength, and it is not long until his weakness and downfall follow. When he was weak, he was strong. When realizing his own weakness, he put his strength in the Lord, and he was strong, invincible. But when he ceased to recognize his need of divine strength and trusted in himself he was weak and was easily overcome. This is a type of our spiritual history. We are strong when we trust in God and weak when we trust in ourselves.

Another element that contributed to Samson's weakness was evil association. He married among the Philistines, choosing Delilah, a Philistine woman, as his wife. It was through her at last that he was tempted and led to ruin. Evil associates have weakened many a strong man. They have been able to stand against themselves, but not to withstand the evil influences of their associates. Too much care cannot be exercised in choosing intimate friends. "Evil communications corrupt good manners," and also good men, and if we would not be corrupted we must avoid the evil associations.

Broken vows also contributed to Samson's downfall. The man who was strong while he kept his religious vows became weak when he broke them. His strength departed with the breaking of his Nazarite vow. This should be a warning to Christian Endeavorers. We have taken the pledge. We have vowed a vow. The keeping of it will strengthen us in all the phases of our religious lives. Failure to keep it will weaken us. Broken vows mean the loss of spiritual power. We may be unconscious of the spirit's departure, but when temptation comes we will fall.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Let the leader open the topic, the members following in voluntary participation.

BIBLE READINGS.

Joshua i, 1-7; Eccl. ix, 11; Ps. xxvii, 1-5, 11; Isa. xl, 31; Joel iii, 10; Zech. iv, 6; Acts xvi, 25, 26; II Cor. xii, 7-10; xiii, 4; Phil iv, 13.

The Fruit of the Spirit.

The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. As the earth seems fresh from the hands of its Creator when leaf and blossom are hung with jewels of the morning dew, so life is a new life when the Spirit of God touches it. Love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, faith, meekness, self control—are not these the sum and substance of moral beauty? Ah, friend, they will never come to you or me until God has laid His hand upon us and said, "Thou art My beloved son." Duty will always be service under a whip of scorpions—eye service, lip service, drudgery—until we hear God, with a voice like a mother's voice and a smile like sunshine, asking, "Whom shall I send and who will go for Me?" And then we will answer, "Lo, I come!" In the volume of the book it is written, "I rejoice to do Thy will!"—Christian Intelligencer.

In the Darkest Hour.

If we have the spirit of Christ, we can be hopeful and happy in the darkest hour. A good old commentator says:

God's people have reason to mourn over their sins, their sufferings, the buffetings of their deadly enemy, their fellow men, the abominable crimes of the day, the perdition of thousands and the general blindness and hardness of men's hearts; but they can always rejoice in the Spirit, in God and in Christ, in a blessed hope, in foretastes of future glory, and that their names are written in heaven.

Then let us heed the exhortation, "Rejoice in the Lord always, and again I say rejoice."—Herald and Presbyter.

This One Motive.

The religion of Christ is not a law, but a spirit; not a creed, but a life. To this one motive of love God has intrusted the whole work of winning the souls of His redeemed. The heart of man was made for love—pants and pines for it. Only in the love of Christ and not in restrictions can his soul expand. Now, it was reserved for one to pierce with the glance of intuition down into the springs of human action and to proclaim the simplicity of its machinery. "Love," said the apostle after Him—"love is the fulfilling of the law."—Lutheran.

Beatrice Fosburg Said She Saw No Burglars

Discolored Nightdress of the Dead Girl Displayed In Court

Pittsfield, Mass., July 20.—The Fosburg manslaughter trial developed two sensations yesterday, while, from a review of the testimony it cannot be said that the government has made any real progress toward demonstrating the fact that it was Robert S. Fosburg who killed his sister.

The government won a decided victory over the defense when Judge Stevens announced that he would permit the offering of evidence as to the result of tests made by experts to show the distance at which marks of powder from a revolver would be deposited upon cloth, provided it was clearly proven that the revolver and cartridges used in the tests were exactly similar in every way to the ones with which it is claimed the fatal shot was fired.

These tests were made upon pieces of cloth taken from the skirt of the night dress worn by the victim of the tragedy on the night of Aug. 20, and upon other articles of a similar texture.

The first bit of testimony of a sensational nature was the statement of Dr. Paddock, to the effect that little Beatrice Fosburg, who will be a government witness, told him that she had seen no burglars at all, although she was behind her sister when she fell. The other was the emphatic statement of Dr. Draper, the famous expert whose testimony has aided the prosecution in such cases as the Eastman trial and the Almy murder case, that the revolver which ended the life of May Fosburg was held not more than eight inches from her breast. As he spoke he held in his hand, with his finger pointed at the bullet hole in it, the discolored night dress of the dead girl. This declaration and the display of the garment which was so closely connected with the tragedy had a visible effect upon every member of the family, who perceptibly cringed and lowered their eyes in pain at the reopening of the old wound in their hearts. The defendant's face, usually flushed, grew still more so, while, on the contrary, that of the child, Beatrice, grew even paler than is its wont, and it was some moments before their composure was regained.

The plain pine bureau, with its comb box, which the defense claims was perforated by a bullet from the revolver of one of the burglars, and the screen, broken, it is also claimed, by one of the burglars in his effort to escape from the room, were brought in.

There were a number of witnesses who testified yesterday for the government. Chief of Police Nicholson, who is responsible for the indictment and arrest of young Fosburg, said but a few words, and those were in explanation of the testimony of a previous witness. He will be called again.

Dr. Paddock said, in resuming his testimony, that Beatrice told him when he went to the house, right after the shooting, that when she turned up the light on coming from her room she saw no burglars. Then the doctor was cross-examined by Mr. Joyner. He stated that Miss Fosburg's death was caused directly by suffocation from blood in the lungs, describing at length the way in which the tissues of the body were penetrated. When at the house he noted bruises of the elder Mrs. Fosburg's neck, bruises and a cracked rib on the husband, and a slight bruise on the neck of the defendant, R. S. Fosburg, who remarked that he had probably been sandbagged.

Mr. Hammond, for the government, asked if the doctor was able to judge of the distance and direction of the shot by its effect on the body. The doctor thought so, but this was questioned by the defendant's counsel, and the court allowed an answer as to what would be the penetrating force of a bullet from a pistol such as he had used in experimental shooting at the piece of cloth taken from Miss Fosburg's night dress. The doctor then said: "I do not think the bullet would go through the body, however close the pistol was held." To Mr. Joyner he stated that the bullet and pistol used and assisting object behind the cloth in his experiment were as nearly as possible similar to what seemed to have figured in the fatal shooting.

Mr. Peirson and Mr. Baggs testified that the pistol bought by the defendant Fosburg in Pittsfield was a hammerless, center-fire 32-calibre Harrington & Richardson revolver, nickel finish, and that the cartridges sold him were 32-calibre, Smith & Wesson center fire.

William A Rose of William Read & Sons, gunsmiths, Boston, identified the bullet that killed Miss Fosburg as of that same kind, saying that it was the only American-made cartridge that had an inside lubricant.

John E. Connors of New York, a Pinkerton man, who worked on the case, testified to viewing the house, and having a talk with the defendant, who said he got into his sister's room in time to catch her as she fell, after the fatal shot, grappled with the man who shot her, and was then knocked down by a blow from behind.

J. H. Whitney, a state officer who worked on the case, testified that the finger prints on the balcony post at the house were made by a grimy hand, and evidently by some one facing the eaves. The marks were on the post when the jury viewed the place. Mr. Whitney told how the screen in the window over the balcony in the second floor spare room was broken at the lower left-hand corner, and explained how the footprints were found close together on the ground near the steps, below the balcony, heels heavier than the toes, and toes pointing toward the house. The bureau and the comb box, in which a bullet hole was found, was set up in court, and Mr. Whitney showed how he had put a straight edge in the groove made by the bullet, in order to get the line of the shot. Whitney related a talk he had with the defendant (Fosburg) on Aug. 23, three days after the murder, when the defendant expressed the belief that not all was being done that could be done to apprehend the burglars.

The defendant thought his domestic should be watched. By domestic Mr. Whitney understood that he meant Mrs. Collins. The story of a resident who was on a street car Sunday afternoon before the murder was also brought in as a part of what the defendant told Mr. Whitney. This was to the effect that as the car passed the Fosburg house a man sitting on the same seat with the resident said to another sitting behind: "There's the house, now," and a third said: "Shut up, don't you know better than to speak of that here?" Mr. Whitney knew nothing more about this circumstance. He detailed the shooting as R. S. Fosburg had related it to him at the house.

On cross-examination, Mr. Whitney said he found that there was evidence that someone had entered the house by the cellar windows, but when he spoke to James Fosburg about it James said he made the marks noticed. He was trying to see if a person could enter that way. It was explained that a person in the cellar could ascend to the carriage house through a hatchway, then go up stairs in the carriage house, pass through into the attic of the house, and descend to lower floors of the house.

Dr. F. M. Draper of Boston, medical examiner of Suffolk county, was next called. He said he had conducted the tests in this case at his country home in Wayland. Mr. Whitney had brought to him the pistol and cartridges which he used in the tests. He said shots were fired into two night dresses of a texture a little coarser than that of the dead girl.

Counsel for the defense objected to this evidence, but it was admitted, and exceptions were taken.

Witness said that from a place six feet away a very few scattered marks of unexploded powder grains could be distinguished on the garment. At this point the victim's night dress was shown, and the doctor made his emphatic statement that the shot which killed the girl was fired from a distance of not more than eight inches from her breast. He testified hat he had been in this class of work for 20 years, and had specially prepared tests in six cases of this kind.

When cross-examined by Mr. Joyner, he was asked if there was any difference between the powder marks made on the cloth in a place where there was a current of air. He said in such a case there were fewer marks on the article, because in the air the powder had a tendency to disappear. He said the tests in this case were made in a barn. He would expect a variety in the number of powder grains between different pistols, even with cartridges exactly alike. It depends upon the imperfections in each pistol. The powder on the night dress, he said, was in two portions. One was absolutely unexploded, while the other was simply smut from burned powder.

"You don't really know much about firearms, do you?" asked Mr. Joyner, when witness declared he did not know whether a pistol with a barrel four inches long would consume more powder than a rifle. Witness said he had had no experience with firearms the size of rifles.

Mr. Crosby offered the pistol used in these tests as evidence. Mr. Hibbard objected, and said the cartridges might be the same as those fired from the revolver which killed Miss Fosburg, but they might fit half a dozen revolvers of different styles. The court allowed this question to rest until Monday.

A. A. Fobes was recalled, the last witness of the day. He endeavored to show by a sketch of the kitchen bedroom in the Fosburg house the location of the bureau and the comb box, and to show by lines drawn upon the sketch the position from which the government claims the bullet was fired.

The court then adjourned until Monday morning.

BLONDIN IS IN CUSTONY

According to Report to Boston Police Authorities

CAUGHT IN CANADA WOODS

Said to Have Admitted That He Is the Much Wanted Man and to Have Confessed Crime—Answers Description of Alleged Wife Murderer

Boston, July 20.—Chief Watts received a telegram from an officer at Matane Light, Que., last evening, stating that he has taken Blondin, the alleged wife murderer, into custody at that place. He sends word that Blondin has confessed to the deed.

A desperate race, with Blondin, the alleged wife murderer, as the prize, is on between the Boston police and the state police.

It is believed that the suspect now held at St. Ann des Monts, in Canada, is really Blondin, and the great question is who will get him—the representative of the Boston police department or the representative of the state police.

Inspector Abbott of the Boston police department is racing to St Ann des Monts as fast as steam can carry him. But Officer Letteney of the state police is several hours ahead of him, and the chances are that he will reach St. Ann first.

The question of which of these two will secure the suspect largely rests with the officers at St. Ann des Monts, and they seem to be somewhat in favor of the claims of the Boston police.

Abbott will reach Montreal this forenoon, but Letteney should be on the scene some hours ahead of him. Chief Wade expects Joseph Bonville, the man who made the arrest, to turn the man over to Inspector Abbott. Chief Wade of the state police is confident his representative will secure the prisoner.

Quebec, July 20.—News reached here yesterday from Matane and Cape Chatte that Blondin, the alleged wife murderer, has been arrested at St. Ann des Monts, about 300 miles east of Quebec. The report was credited here, as it was remembered that for some time past a man answering Blondin's description had been seen around the woods of the north shore of the St. Lawrence hiding during the day and seeking food from the farmers at night. Two bailiffs started from Matane to hunt down the supposed murderer, and, as the dispatch states, arrested him.

He appears to answer the description, having the cut over the eye and one of his arms tattooed. The dispatch from Cape Chatte says that Blondin, who is very thin, admitted that he was the right man, but refused to speak, while the dispatch from Matane states that he refused to give his name and feigns insanity. Moreover, the latter dispatch says that he made certain revelations to the cure of that parish.

An Associated Press correspondent wired last evening for information to Roumisky, where the prisoner would have been jailed, and to St. Flavie, where he should have taken a train, as St. Ann des Monts is a long distance away from the railway, but both places replied that they had not heard of the arrest.

The latest news is that Bailiffs Charest and Ranville have arrived at Mantane with their prisoner, but so far no one can identify him. Charest thinks he has the right man, but High Constable Gauvreau of Rimouski, upon seeing the prisoner, says he does not correspond with Blondin's description. The man arrested is about 5 feet 5 inches tall, cast in his left eye and there are tattoo marks on his arm. He claims to hail from Cambridge, Mass.

SAD YACHTING FATALITY

But Two Survivors of a Party of Seven on Board the Venetzir

New Haven, July 20.—The tug Gertrude brought into New Haven harbor yesterday Mrs. Walter J. Sprankle of Philadelphia and James Stanridge, while caught in the sunken wreck of the yacht Venetzia in Long Island sound there still remain the bodies of Arthur T. Colburn, a Philadelphia millionaire spice manufacturer; his two daughters, Annette and Ida, Captain Flint of Brooklyn, the skipper of the yacht, and an unknown sailor.

The Venitzia left Philadelphia on Tuesday to join the fleet of the Corinthians in Newport. Wednesday night the party spent at Tompkinsville, L. I., and on Thursday morning started through the sound for New London. The wind was light, according to the story told by Stanridge, but in the afternoon it came on squally, and Mr. Colburn advised the skipper to take in some of his canvas, but the latter would not do so. The wind continued to increase, and the women went below, where Mr. Colburn joined them, after again advising Captain Flint to reduce sail.

Still the captain kept the yacht under all her sail, and finally the squall broke. The first gust knocked the yacht down until her port rail was away under water and the waves broke over into the cabin. The party below rushed to the companionway just as a fiercer gust hit the craft, and carried her down again. A second time she righted, but only for a moment, for there was coming a long mass of water capped with a white line of foam that the wind had raised.

When the roller struck, the yacht, righting for a moment, began to sink. Stanridge, thrown clear of the rigging by the flapping sail, and Mrs. Sprankle, cleared from the wreck by Captain Flint, saw the yawl's small boat which had broken from the davits, and was drifting, bottom upwards. Both struck out for the boat, and reached it, and then for two hours, one clinging to one end, and the other to the other, they drifted about in the sound until sighted by the tug Gertrude.

The Ventizia was a yawl-rigged yacht, 54 feet water line, and 63 feet over all. She was built in 1880, and was sumptuously furnished.

First church is to be closed after tomorrow until September. Many regret the closing of this historic church especially summer visitors to our city. It has been the custom in years past to keep the church open the year round. It would be a good idea to have union services here during the summer, the different pastors taking turns.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

BRAINTREE.

Wednesday evening the South Braintree firemen were out for practice and to test the hydrant on Washington street opposite the Braintree Clothing Co.'s store. The 55 foot extension ladder was raised in the Middle of Holbrook avenue. It accidentally fell to the ground without injury to itself or the multitude of spectators. Again it was raised and held, while three streams of water were taken from the hydrant. The firemen were satisfied with their test, sending a stream clean over the ladder.

Mr. R. McDonald of Franklin street is out again after an enforced idleness of seven weeks. In June, his leg was broken by a large timber falling upon it. This misfortune is only one of many evils that has come to Mr. McDonald during the last three years. A year ago last May he suffered the loss of an eye. We wish him good luck for the future.

On Sunday evening, at 7 o'clock, July 21, at the M. E. church, George W. Averell, Superintendent of the Children's Health Fund, will speak of the work among children. His leg was broken and he sustained other grave injuries about the body. He owes the preservation of his life to a picket fence which caught his foot and prevented him from falling beneath the wheels of the train. He is reported comfortable at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Mrs. C. C. Hill who has been quite ill with pneumonia is convalescent.

The first annual picnic of All Souls' church is being held today in Hayward's grove.

Keith's Theatre.

The two leading features of the Keith show the present week will be continued indefinitely, with a change of selections by the Symphony players weekly and the addition of several new living pictures each six days. Nothing in the line of pleasant entertainment has been found to equal either one of these attractions, and they appeal particularly to the lovers of art and music, who seem to form the large majority of the summer stay-at-homes. Albert L. Guille, the talented French tenor, who is probably the most popular singer in the varieties today, will continue as soloist, but will change all his songs. McIntyre and Heath will make a change to one of their old sketches "Two Georgia Minstrels," which is one of the most laugh-provoking things they have ever done. There will be a dozen other specialties, including new and interesting motion pictures in the biograph, which has retained its popularity because of the fact that it manages to keep abreast of the times. Particular attention is directed to the new subjects selected for the living pictures, as they are said to be the most artistic and beautiful yet shown.

Castle Square Theatre.

The charming New England play "Peaceful Valley," written by Edward E. Kidder for Sol. Smith Russell, and successfully played for several seasons, is the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre the coming week. The play appeals strongly to all familiar with New England characters and its scenes are full of suggestions of the humorous side of the people met with in this section of the country. Its action calls for some novel and realistic stage settings which will be made a feature of the production. The cast will be as follows: Hosea Howe, Alden Bass; Ward Andrews, Edmund Breese; Jack Farquhar, Charles Mackay; Jotham Ford, Edward Wade; Mr. Leonard Rand, Lindsay Morison; Charley Rand, Stanley Kent; Wilson, William J. Hasson; Virgie Rand, Eva Taylor; Niobe Farquhar, Mary Saunders; Phyllis Howe, Leonora Bradley; Martha Howe, Leonora Gnito. The usual distribution of chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

More Frogs

Bath, N .Y., July 20.—Morris street, this village, was almost covered with frogs immediately after a heavy shower. Professor Roberts of Cornell, who was asked for an explanation of the phenomenon, said that it is generally accepted now by the scientific world that frog spawn could be carried up in the atmosphere, hatched out in the clouds, and that a shower of frogs would result.

Not Afraid of Losing Boys

Queenstown, July 20.—Mrs. Daniel Hanna, who is a passenger on the Campania, from New York for Liverpool, when interviewed on the steamer in Queenstown harbor, said her trip to Europe was one of pleasure, and that its duration would depend upon circumstances. Her two boys were with her, and she ridiculed the idea that she could be separated from them.

Williams Recaptured

North Adamas, Mass., July 20.—John M. Williams of this city, who escaped from jail in June, was captured at Pittstown, N. Y., and was brought here yesterday and lodged in jail, where he will await trial on the charge of assault.

Notables at Southampton

London, July 20.—Cecil Rhodes and Dr. Jameson landed at Southampton yesterday from Cape Colony. They declined to discuss South Africa, saying they were no longer public men.

"A New Woman."

Disease makes many a woman prematurely old. Dark-rimmed eyes, hollow cheeks and wasted form are accompanied by listlessness and loss of ambition. Home duties are a weariness, and social pleasures have no attraction.

One of the commonest expressions of women cured by Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is this: "It has made a new woman of me." There's a world of meaning in the words. It means the sparkle brought back to the eyes; the complexion tinted with the rosy hue of healthy blood; the form rounded out anew in graceful curves; the whole body radiant with health.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes new women of those prematurely aged by disease.

"Dr. Pierce's medicines are the best I have ever used," writes Mrs. C. Nelson, of Chemawa, Marion Co., Oregon. "My health was badly run down when I consulted him by letter. My limbs were cold and my head hurt me continually. I was so nervous that the least thing would startle me almost into convulsions. I had palpitation of the heart so bad that I could scarcely walk sometimes. I felt utterly discouraged, but two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' made a new woman out of me."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for it in cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

WHISKY DRINKING BOUT

Results In a Row With a Fatal Termination

CHALLENGE TO WRESTLE

Declined by Thomas Healey, and the Challenger, It Is Said, Struck a Blow Which Caused Death—Charge of Manslaughter Is Preferred

Lynn, Mass., July 22.—Fred Burrill, 22 years of age, a laborer, is under arrest on the charge of manslaughter, in causing the death of Thomas Healey, aged 26, also a laborer, at West Lynn yesterday afternoon, during a quarrel, both men being under the influence of liquor.

Burrill and Healey, together with William Healey and Charles Neal, went to Hill's Field, West Lynn, to spend the afternoon, taking with them a quart of whisky, which they drank between them. They finally argued over their strength. Burrill wanted to wrestle with Thomas Healey, but the latter was so much under the influence of liquor that he would have nothing to do with Burrill.

This angered the latter, who is said to have struck Healey in the face, knocking him down. He then, it is claimed, struck Healey again, after he was down. William Healey grabbed Burrill by the throat and chocked him until he promised to let Thomas alone. Thomas lay motionless on the ground, and Burrill, the others say, wanted to dump him over a wall. This they would not allow him to do, and then he tried to borrow a wheelbarrow to wheel him from the field, but could not obtain one. Then he left the others and went home.

The two other men became alarmed at Thomas Healey's condition, and, after trying to remove him, they went for Dr. Frazier, but, when the latter had reached the field he announced that Healey had been dead fully 10 minutes.

The police were notified, and the body was brought to a local undertaker's. The police went to Burrill's house, where he was found in bed, and arrested him.

He refused to say anything about the affair, claiming that he does not remember having any trouble with Healey. He does remember going to West Lynn with the three men, and that they had a quart of whisky with them, but further than that he claims to have no recollection.

Medical Examiners Pinkham and Newhall made an autopsy upon Healey's body, reaching the conclusion that death was due to concussion of the brain, caused by a blow over the left eye. A bad bruise was found over the left eye and there was a large clot of blood on the brain.

Ministerialists Make Gains

Paris, July 22.—The elections for the French council general took place yesterday throughout the provinces, there being 1453 members of these departmental legislatures to be chosen in as many cantons. The importance of the elections lies in the fact that they serve as a weathercock to show the drift of public opinion regarding the policy of the central government. The returns as yet are very incomplete, but such as have been received indicate that the Ministerialists have gained a number of seats, principally at the expense of the Radicals and the conservatives.

Seventeen Passengers Hurt

Chicago, July 22.—Nine passengers were seriously and eight painfully bruised in the wreck of a Madison street cable car yesterday. The train was running at full speed when the grip car was brought to a sudden stop, because of a defective cable rope. The trailer bounced from the track and crashed with terrific force into the rear of the grip car. The shock was of such force that the passengers were thrown from their seats, several landing in the street head foremost.

Hatchet In Policy Shop

Leavenworth, Kan., July 22.—Mrs. Mary E. Dickens surprised half a dozen men in John Beachler's policy shop here Saturday night, and smashed a policy wheel with a hatchet. Her boys had gambled in the place. She threatened to smash all the policy shops in the city unless the authorities shall close them.

Water Is Disappearing

Berlin, July 22.—The rise of the North sea coast or the sinking of the sea level has been confirmed by observations at the mouth of the Kaiser Wilhelm canal. There has been a decrease in the depth of the water at the mouth of the Elbe of from 16 to 18 feet since 1895.

Grounded on Maiden Trip

London, July 22.—The Anchor line steamer Numidian, on her maiden trip from the Clyde and Liverpool to Calcutta, is ashore on the northern coast of the Brother Islands, in the Red sea. The vessel can be saved if assisted immediately

MURDER AT BOSTON

White Woman Shot Down by Mulatto at Door of Her Apartments

Boston, July 22.—At the threshold of her own apartment, in the Hotel Rexford, Mrs. Alice R. Crowell was last night shot and killed by Benjamin H. Brown, who gave himself up and confessed the crime.

Mrs. Crowell was the wife of a member of the fire department, but Brown claims that he was on terms of intimacy with her, and that he killed her on account of a quarrel. So great was the man's rage that he fired six shots, more than once pressing the revolver against her neck, as he sent bullet after bullet into her head.

So far as known the shooting was witnessed by only one person, J. J. O'Connor, who carried a note from Brown to Mrs. Crowell.

Brown was employed at the Hotel Bellevue as a waiter. Before that he had worked at the Thorndike, and it was at the latter place that he became acquainted with the woman. Mrs. Crowell was twice married, and upon her first husband's death she obtained employment in the check room of the Thorndike.

She and Brown, who is a light colored mulatto, were frequently together, but not often enough to excite comment. One and a half years ago she married Hiram H. Crowell, and they engaged rooms at the Rexford. It is supposed that Brown never lost sight of the woman he had known so well at the Thorndike. Brown had the afternoon off yesterday, and he engaged a livery team and took Mrs. Crowell out riding, returning about 8 o'clock. He took the team to the stable, and Mrs. Crowell went to her apartments. Coming back to the Rexford, Brown wrote a note and sent it up to Mrs. Crowell's room by O'Connor, following the latter himself to the door. Mrs. Crowell came from her room, read the note which was handed to her by O'Connor, then tore it into pieces. Before a word was spoken, Brown drew a revolver from his pocket and fired shot after shot into the woman's head, death being almost instantaneous.

Death of Mrs. Kruger

Pretoria, July 22.—Mrs. Kruger, wife of former President Kruger of the South African republic, died Saturday afternoon of pneumonia, after an illness of three days. She was 67 years old.

MRS. PAUL KRUGER.

Mrs. Kruger's long separation from her husband, combined with the death of her favorite daughter, Mrs. Smith, last week, had completely broken her spirit. Mr. Eloff and many other members of the Kruger family were at her bedside when she passed away.

A Lake Disaster

Menominee, Mich., July 22.—Government Light Keeper Young early yesterday morning saw a steamer or sailing vessel on fire about seven miles southeast of Green island. The fire tug Menominee went out, but the boat sank before it could be reached. There is no knowledge here as to what boat it was. It is evident that all on board were lost, as no report from any one on board the vessel has been received.

Chicagoans Suffer From Heat

Chicago, July 22.—All heat records since the establishment of the weather bureau in Chicago, 30 years ago, were broken yesterday, the government thermometer registering 103 degrees. Down on the street it was from 3 to 5 degrees hotter, and to add to the suffering a hot, stifling wind blew all day from the southwest. Prostrations were numerous.

Lightning's Frequent Visits

Colebrook, N. H., July 22.—A severe thunderstorm visited this place yesterday, accompanied by a heavy wind. Two large barns, belonging to L. W. Harbour, were struck by lightning and burned with their contents, causing a loss of $2500. This is the third set of buildings burned within a radius of three miles by lightning recently.

Compute Takes $15,000 Stakes

New York, July 22.—A. H. & D. H. Morris' Compute won the rich Foxhall stakes of $15,000 at Brighton Beach by a scant half length, while Hyphen beat William C. Whitney's Gold Smith by a head for the place.

Spaniards Won't Investigate

Madrid, July 22.—The Spanish senate rejected a motion which had been proposed by Premier Sagasta, to determine by inquiry who was responsible for the disaster to Spain in the war with the United States.

WIRE GANG'S STORIES

Not Likely to Figure In the Fosburg Trial

"PLACED" BY PROSECUTION

Quinn Has Been at Medford by Arrangement With State Detective, but Departed When His Identity Was Discovered—Where His Pals Are

Pittsfield, Mass., July 22.—Fred W. Lund of Maynard, who was bookkeeper for R. L. Fosburg & Co., has been summoned as a witness for the government in the trial of R. S. Fosburg, it being understood that he will testify regarding the relations existing between father and son. It is also understood that a number of the firm's workmen have been subpoenaed for the same purpose. Young James D. A. Fosburg, a brother of the defendant, and Dr. W. W. Schofield, who was the first physician to appear at the Fosburg house after the shooting, are expected to be called to the stand today, after which Police Captain White, Officer Flynn and possibly Chief Nicholson may be called. The prosecution hopes to be able to finish its testimony tomorrow.

Statements made by men connected with the prosecution suggest one definite conclusion as to the government's position regarding Michael Quinn, alias "Dirty Dick," the chief figure in the wire gang that operated in the vicinity of Pittsfield about August.

It is this: The prosecution knows where Quinn is. State Officer Whitney, acting under orders of the district attorney, has placed Quinn, and could produce him at any time to give testimony. But the strong probability is that Quinn will not appear as a witness.

The government does not want to use him as a witness. District Attorney Hammond, John C. Crosby, who is assisting Mr. Hammond, and Chief of Police Nicholson all say that the government does not want Quinn, and each official says that he sees no way in which the evidence of Quinn could be used.

But during the week following the arrest of Fosburg, when Seneca N. Taylor and the Fosburgs were investigating the wire gang's operations, and hinting that they were the burglars that entered the house and killed May Fosburg, so much was said about the failure of Chief Nicholson to apprehend the wire gang that the prosecution felt obliged to enable its officers to say to the defense: "We know where every member of the wire gang is, and can get them at any moment."

So the government undertook to place every one. Hackett is in the New Bedford house of correction. Patterson is at the Concord reformatory, and John Bly has returned to his home in Central Falls, R. I., from New Jersey.

There was but one left, Quinn, the man who was described as the probable owner of the brown derby hat found in the Fosburg house, and to combat this the government felt obliged to fortify itself by locating him and getting into his confidence.

With all of the wire gang, save Bly and Quinn, in jail, the prosecution set out to satisfy any fears of Quinn, and to have him handy, just so that the district attorney might, if necessary, be able to say that he knew all about Quinn, even where he was and could have him any time his presence was desired.

It was an easy matter to get into communication with Bly, as he was in Central Falls and Pawtucket up to two weeks ago, when he went to New Jersey looking for work.

It was not so convenient to bring Quinn into accord with the prosecuting authorities of Massachusetts because there are two indictments against him in Bristol county.

There is no reason to doubt now that Quinn's fears have been calmed, inasmuch as there is ample grounds for the belief that he came into the state at the instance of and with the knowledge of the prosecuting officers of the Fosburg case.

A government official confirmed the announcement that Quinn had been in Medford, that he was the man who had been staying at the Medford Inn, and that he went there by an arrangement made with State Detective Whitney. He staid there, this man said, until his identity was discovered on Saturday. Then he went away.

The prosecution is thoroughly satisfied that there will be no evidence connecting the wire gang with the shooting of May Fosburg which the commonwealth will have to meet in rebuttal.

That is why District Attorney Hammond, Mr. Crosby and Chief Nicholson asserted and reiterated in a misleading way the statement that they did not want Quinn, did not have him in their list of witnesses, could not use him if they had him, and could anticipate no circumstances in this case that would make his evidence competent.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞ Out of the several hundred yards of ribbon that came to Mrs. McKinley on the many bouquets that were sent to her during the trip across the continent someone has conceived the idea of making a bed quilt. It was a happy thought and must please the recipient. —Beverly Times.

☞ During the hot weather we all have our own way of trying to keep cool and enjoy life but in that respect the small boy has the call on us. To him is the privilege of the swimming pool. Whether his daily swim is taken with or without due raiment is no concern to him as he keeps cool and finds pleasure in the sport as well—Hyde Park Gazette.

☞ Incidentally, those straw hats for the horses add to the comfort of everybody else. Half the discomfort of warm weather comes from seeing other people uncomfortable and the horse who if he is not "people" is at least a very respectable member of the community wears his new headgear with the truest possible expression of philosophic contentment.—Ploughman.

☞ The question of home training and school training is one that will give food or thought, probably so long as there are homes and schools. It is hardly to be settled, as some imaginative writers have settled it, by all school and no home; nor can it be settled in most families, as has been done by a recent writer to the Springfield Republican, by all home and no school.—Ploughman.

☞ There is another costly item to the firemen's strike in the anthracite collieries, and that is the flooding of the mines with the water which begins to collect in them as soon as the drainage pumps stop. Somebody will have to pay for bringing that water to the surface. It won't be the firemen, nor other operatives, and while the mine owners nominally foot the bills, the real cost will come out of the coal consumer, the private citizen, who will be obliged to pay an advanced price per ton for his fuel next winter. — Old Colony Memorial.

☞ Runs on savings banks are often precipitated for causes so trivial that it is difficult to see how they can be causes at all. In Cleveland the other morning a Bohemian woman went to a savings bank at a too early hour and was told that she would have to wait until the bank opened before she could get her money. She jumped to the conclusion that there had been a collapse, and started a scare which developed into a run so serious that the bank remained open all day and all night to satisfy the scared depositors who demanded their money. In its way, such a run as this is an exhibition of what some of the scientic men have called "mob-madness" or the contagion of the mob." Exactly how such an idea of the unsoundness of a bank spreads nobody can ever satisfactorily trace, even if its inception is pretty well known. But its communication from one to another until a whole city is possessed of the fantasy, and until men and women act upon it without any attempt at investigation of its truth is in many respects a psychogical puzzle. Probably in twenty-four hours after the run on the Cleveland bank was over half the persons who drew out their money were wondering what made them do it. —New Bedford Standard.

☞ The legislative committee is having a very strenuous time preparing the public statutes. The funny phase of it is that while the judges and lawyers are worrying about the character of the work which the lawyer members of the committee are apt to do, the members are chiefly concerned over the rate of compensation. In a daily paper it has been said that they are thinking of constituting three hours a day's work and drawing $7.50 for it. As a matter of fact a two-hour day is the most popular one. By this they are planning to make $15 a day on some days, and even more. With all due respect to the members of the committee, it looks as if they intended to get all there is in the cow. There are men on the committee who can easily make that amount over and over again a day and who do, but there are some lawyers to whom it would be a regular godsend. Some very big changes have been found in the revision which the commissioners have submitted, and there is considerable danger in it all. The members have been speaking of a ten days' session in the fall to accept the report of the revision of the committee. If, however it turns out that between the revision commisioners and the legislative committee some very considerable changes have been made in the statutes themselves a session which will last many days over that time may be expected. —Practical Politics.

LAWN PARTY.

Under the Auspices of St. John's Church.

A successful lawn party under the auspices of St. John's church was held Saturday afternoon and evening on the church grounds on Phipps street. After dark the grounds were brilliantly illuminated with colored lanterns and looked very beautiful.

A large tent was erected upon the grounds beneath which a musical entertainment was given by the children of the Sunday school.

There was also various tables for the sale of useful and fancy articles, ice cream and refreshments which were presided over by ladies of the Sunday school and sodality.

The clergy connected with the church, including the venerable pastor, Rev. Francis A. Friguglietti, helped to encourage the spirit of good nature and friendliness that characterized the gathering.

Band Concert.

The Quincy City Band of twenty-five pieces treated the residents of South Quincy to a concert on Saturday evening last.

The selections included Luspeil Overture, March Richmond, The old home down by the farm, 2d Regiment National Guard March, etc., and concluded with a rousing rendering of the Star Spangled Banner which was highly appreciated by the large audience which was gathered around the stand.

The stand, which is temporary, is convenient and substantial enough for the purpose, and is situated on an empty lot belonging to Mrs. John Wood, at the corner of Trafford street and Brooks avenue.

The appearance of the City Band in this section is welcomed by the entire community, especially during these hot evenings when a visit to the central part of the city is more of a trial than a pleasure.

The band through several important additions to its membership has been very appreciably improved of late and the citizens of this part of Quincy are delighted in anticipation of the number of Saturday evening concerts they are to have during the summer.

Officer Injured.

Officer Holloran, who covers the Atlantic beat, had his collar bone broken early Sunday morning while trying to stop a runaway horse on Hancock street.

It was about 3 o'clock when the officer heard a scream and immediately after a horse and wagon came dashing up the street. The driver was standing in the team and was unable to control the thoroughly frightened horse. As the animal turned into Squantum street the officer grabbed the bridle but the animal was going so fast that the officer was carried off his feet and dashed against a pole, and the horse kept on up Squantum street toward Milton.

Officer Holloran felt considerable pain in his shoulder but he kept on his beat until his hours of duty were completed when he visited Dr. Peirce who found that his left collar bone was broken and that his side was badly swollen.

Officer Holloran is one of the eldest men, in point of service on the force, and has always patrolled the Atlantic beat.

LAID AT REST.

Funeral of Judge Humphrey at Weymouth Largely Attended.

The funeral of Judge James Humphrey was held Saturday afternoon from his late residence at Weymouth Heights and was very largely attended by town officials, prominent members of the Bar and others. The services which were brief were conducted by Rev. R. R. Kendall, who spoke of Judge Humphrey's character as a man, a citizen and a public official.

The remains were placed in the receiving vault in the Old North cemetery. The honorary bearers were Deputy Sheriffs G. H. Field, Thomas Farrell, E. E. Wentworth and G. W. Conant. The pallbearers were officers Joseph W. Hayden, N. B. Furnald, M. J. Burnes, Maurice Pierce, N. B. Peare and Oliver Houghton.

Among those present were E. Granville Pratt, Louis A. Cook, William G. A. Pattee, P. R. Blackmur, J. P. S. Churchill J. J. McAnarney, P. H. Sullivan, J. W. Hayden, Maurice Pierce, Edward W. Hunt, Gordon Willis, George L. Newton, N. W. Gardner, J. J. Dwyer, Bradford Hawes, Frank W. Lewis, Rev. Jonathan Tilson, G. C. Torrey, Augustus J. Richards, H. A. Nash, Gustavus Pratt, J. H. Stetson, Henry Loud, T. H. Humphrey, E. J. Parker and Thomas Talbot.

The floral tributes were: wreath from Quincy bar association: mound police and court officers and the press; wreaths Mr. and Mrs. Augustus J. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. John P. S. Churchill, John C. Hollis and Miss Clara Hollis, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Taylor, Reynolds post, G. A. R., and Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Jones; mound, trustees of Tufts public library; sprays of white carnations, Miss White and Mr and Mrs. Leslie Cain.

IS A TOWN WAY.

Does the Following Paper Settle the Dispute.

The following paper was found Saturday among the papers of the late Joshua Torrey, who lived in the house between the residence of Henry H. Faxon and the office of the Old Colony street railway, and seems to settle the ownership of the way between Hancock street and Washington street and between the stone temple and the fountain:

We, the subscribers, do hereby agree and promise to pay to the Selectmen of the town of Quincy as Surveyors of Highways, the sum of money that we have set against our names as soon as the road near the Stone Temple that has been recently laid out and accepted by the town is cleared and made in a workmanlike manner.

Quincy, Nov. 21, 1833.

It was Mr. Torrey who in 1827 got out the stone pillars for the church. It was also Mr. Torrey who owned the land in front of his house which adjoined the church. Inasmuch as the subscribers paid the amount subscribed, this appears to be good evidence that the street was accepted in 1833 by the town.

Boston Parks.

Boston has paid liberally for her parks, but she has something of permanent value to show for her investment. The total cost to the city for parks and playgrounds is almost $17,000,000, and the end is not in sight, but, although it is entirely probable that the city has dealt more than liberally with the venders in acquiring some of her park gems, there can be no doubt that there actual value to the community is a fair offset for the expenditure.

Of course, the most costly expenditure for the city was the taking and construction of Franklin Park. That work was begun in 1883, and the cost to the present time is $3,865,326.77, of which $2 314,130.14 is for construction. Marine Park has already cost the city $1,280,647.63, the larger part, of course being for construction. More than three-fourths of its total area was flats when the work of laying out was begun.—Boston Journal.

Accident.

A conductor on the Quincy cars very nearly lost his life Saturday afternoon. When his car passed over the sewer on Hancock street, the deep trench facinated his attention, and as he was standing on the side collecting fares, he turned and looked down through the bridge work into the pit below. The depth made him dizzy and he lost his balance and fell. Luckily the woodwork caught his clothes and prevented his falling the entire depth. His money flew far and wide, but ready hands were bent on helping the unfortunate conductor and soon after being rescued, he boarded his car and went Quincyward, warning his fellow conductors to look up and not down.

Two Sources of Profit.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the share holders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. A limited amount of stock will be sold at $500 per thousand shares and pro rata down to 100 shares.

W. Y. C. LADIES' DAY

Review and Sail—Followed by Refreshments and Dancing.

If made to order more perfect weather for the annual ladies' day of the Wollaston Yacht club could not have been had than that of Saturday. It was not too hot nor too cold but just right,

The wind early in the afternoon was light from the northeast. Just enough for the boats of the fleet to carry wholesail. Along toward 4 o'clock however it shifted to the southwest making it necessary for the yachts to beat home.

It might be fittingly called a ladies' day breeze for there was no danger of the wash, as the boats glided slowly throught the water wetting the ladies' dresses.

It was but a little after 1.30 when the preparatory gun sounded and fifteen minutes later the fleet was passing in review of Commodore Baker who with a large party was on board the Mudjekeewis. After a two hours' sail in the bay the fleet returned and the guests were regaled at the club house with ice cream and lemonade. The next two hours were passed in a social manner

At 8.30 Fown's orchestra played the music for the opening number for the dancing which was continued until 11.30.

During the evening the float was prettily decoated with Chinese lanterns as was also the broad piazzas of the club house. There was also a display of fireworks.

HOUGHS NECK.

This summer resort is getting more and more attractive each year, and large gatherings are to be seen there each day. No day this season has there been so many people there as yesterday. The cars ran every fifteen minutes, two or three at a time, well loaded. With this excellent service, compared with past seasons it was not sufficient to accommodate at night the great number that were in waiting to return to their homes. We hope the Old Colony Company will try to do even better if possible, as many, particularly ladies, do not like to rush for a car and then be obliged to stand. If the street railroad wish to build up an immense trade, the very best of accommodation is what will do it.

The company no doubt is hampered at this busy time of the year for want of cars, double tracks, etc., but to build up an immense travel to this favorite summer resort it must work to overcome these obstructions.

One of the new and best attractions for the money is the observatory just open on the hill. For five cents one can go up and get a cool shady seat, comfortable in the hottest day, with a fine landscape and sea view for miles around. Don't miss it if you go to Houghs Neck.

The steamer between Boston and Houghs Neck commenced running yesterday and carried several hundred passengers. There is no regular time for running the boat as yet, but will probably be announced soon.

A young gentleman who has traveled considerable, returning home on the cars last night said, to passenger near him, that he was surprised to see how quite and orderly everybody was at the Neck. No one drunk or carousing.

An excellent band concert was given during the afternoon and evening which was listened to with much pleasure.

Prof. Kaplan will give an entertainment and dance at the Casino, on Wednesday evening. Baby cake walkers, six little tots in fancy costume; Little Baby Barger in fancy dancing; Ethel Waite in butterfly dance; Lillian McCluskey in buck and wing dances; a group of skirt dancers; and grand finale of professional cake walkers.

Social Club.

A select few of the employes of McDonnell & Sons met at Bellamy grove Saturday and had an outing. The outcome of the affair was an organization of the Bellamy Social club. The idea is to have a good time together each Saturday afternoon. The charter members were of unanimous opinion that it was best to restrict membership, making it a club of ten, who will meet each Saturday during the summer, and later perhaps branch into a social club.

The officers elected were: President, George Fader; Secretary, Charley Dolan; Treasurer, Edward Walsh.

The officers on being elected made short speeches, and if the future of the club is as fraternal as was the first outing, there is no doubt but the success of the club is assured.

A guest of the club was Mr. Olaf Ogreson.

Incendiary Fire.

The alarm from Box 47 at 1.30 Sunday morning was for a fire in a barn situated off Bates avenue owned by Timothy Rierdon. In the barn at the time was a horse and cow and a quantity of new hay. Early arrivals at the scene succeeded in getting the animals out. The loss is estimated at $200. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin, as a shed some few feet away was also set on fire.

Cadillac Second.

The yacht Cadillac built by C. C. Hanley of Quincy for a party of Detroit gentlemen to compete on the trial races to select a defender for the Canada cup was defeated Saturday by the Milwaukee, by 2 minutes, 32 seconds. This was the first of a series of trial races and nine boats sailed over a triangular course of 21 miles. A fairly strong southeast wind prevailed.

WILL HEAT WHOLE CITY.

A Novel Experiment to Be Undertaken by Goshen, Ind.

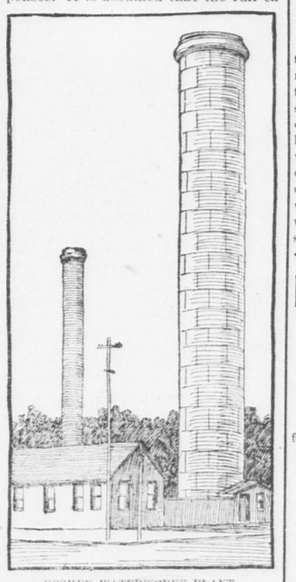

[Special Correspondence.]

GOSHEN, Ind., July 15.—This city has not only successfully coped with the problems of municipal ownership of public utilities, but has reached the stage when it has set itself the task of devising new public utilities. Goshen ere long will begin an experiment which is sure to arouse the attention of other municipalities in the United States. The experiment consists in furnishing heat to the citizens from a plant owned by the city. This system has been tested and found successful in London, but never before has a municipality undertaken such a plan.

Since 1874 Goshen has been able to boast civic ownership of a waterworks system. In that year the question arose of either building a plant or increasing the fire department, and the decision of a mass meeting of citizens was in favor of the former alternative. So a plant was built, designed merely to increase the city's fire fighting facilities. It was found, however, that at but little extra cost it could be extended to meet private demands. From year to year the system grew until in 1881 a power house with a complete plant was erected. Now Goshen owns nearly 21 miles of street mains, 160 fire hydrants and 12 public watering troughs.

The proposed enterprise will be conducted in connection with the waterworks plant. The idea, in brief, is to furnish hot water heat to the citizens, and the authorities are confident the experiment will develop into a profitable business. The installing of a municipal hot water plant is now in the hands of a civic committee, which has already reported to the city council. They state that they have information that the exhaust from the city power station will supply without cost the heat required for heating the water for from 40,000 to 50,000 square feet of radiation. One estimate runs as high as 70,000 to 80,000 square feet. The committee, however, to be on the safe side, calculates that the exhaust will supply heat for only 25,000 square feet. On this basis they proceed to figure the cost and possible profits.

For heating 125,000 square feet, including the 25,000 square feet just mentioned, the annual cost to the city would total 38,076, $7,500 of this being for heat and $576 for power to circulate the water. It is expected that consumers will be charged 15 cents a square foot. At this rate the income from 125,000 square feet would be $18,750, or $10,674 in excess of the operating expenses. It is assumed that the full capacity of the plant would be taken by consumers annually after the fifth year. The committee estimates that at least 40,000 square feet should be taken the first year.

GOSHEN WATERWORKS PLANT.

Including the cost of laying all the mains, it has been found that a little less than $10,000 would be required to install the system which will furnish the 125,000 square feet of radiation. On the basis of a consumption of 30,000 feet of radiation the first year, 50,000 the second, 75,000 the third, 100,000 the fourth and 125,000 the fifth the revenue over expenses for the first five years, including the cost of interest at $3,000 annually, if no payment is made on the principal of the debt during this period, would be $20,024.

On paper the project promises well for the city of Goshen, and past experience has taught the Goshenites to believe that the practice will bear out the theory. Besides owning the waterworks system Goshen owns an electric lighting system. That these plants have been operated at a profit to the city is proved by statistics. For the year ending May 30 the total receipts from both systems were almost $15,530 and the total expenditures on the same barely $14,800. Moreover, the item of public water and lights, which Goshen secures free, is no small one, for many cities of a similar size are paying $10,000 annual rental to private companies for water hydrants.

Looking back, then, the people of Goshen feel that they are by no means taking a leap in the dark in the enterprise now before them.

CITY BREVITIES.

Five hundred patronized the city bath house Sunday.

An inquest was held before Judge Pratt this morning on the death of Lincoln Morey who was killed at Cohasset June 30, by falling across the third rail.

A thunder storm with a few claps and a little rain passed over the city early this morning. It did not cool the atmosphere much, and it seems as hot today as ever.

Harvard college has recently bought property about Asquam Lake, N. H., for field work and already about 75 students are operating there. They are taking regular courses in engineering and surveying. They are at work by seven in the morning, taking a luncheon along and spending the entire day laying out imaginary lots, railroads, etc. It is a good practical way of studying.

The crowds at night on the return trips from Houghs Neck are so large that many walk up part way and meet the down car paying fare so as to be sure of a seat on the return trip to the centre costing ten cents to get home, and then likely as not have people standing up in front of them between the seats. To accommodate crowds comfortably is a problem hard to solve.

Base Ball.

An exciting game of baseball was played on Saturday afternoon on a field at the end of Liberty street, and adjoining the West Quincy railway, by teams drawn from the men working with the firms of McIntosh & Sons and Birnie & Diack's on Columbia street.

Birnie & Diack's men won the toss and went to the bat with a confidence that seemed to break the nerve of the opposing team and forbode them defeat.

At the end of the six innings which was the game agreed on the score stood 13 to 5. Birnie & Diack's men being the victors Nothing daunted, the team from McIntosh & Sons' yard challenged the winners to play another game next Saturday.

At the finish a liberal supply of refreshments were handed round.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

A PRACTICAL COLLAPSE

Stationary Firemen's Strike Will Soon Be Ended

THE UNITED MINE WORKERS

Showed Themselves to Be Against Continuance of Strike, Which Could Not Succeed Unless It Had Their Unqualified Endorsement

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 22.—A meeting of the executive officers of the United Miners of the three anthracite districts and the chief executive officers of the Stationary Firemen's association was held in this city yesterday for the purpose of discussing the situation.

The United Mine Workers have all along been lukewarm in their support of the strike and the firemen insisted that they define their position, once for all, as it was impossible to carry on the strike if the United Mine Workers opposed it.

With that object in view, the executive officers of the United Mine Workers agreed to meet the strikers at Wilkesbarre. It was plain from the discussion that the United Mine Workers were overwhelmingly against the continuance of the strike. The firemen realized this and they submitted the following questions to the United Mine Workers:

Will you withdraw all men of your organization from our positions if the strike is declared off?

Second—Will you use your influence to have all engineers and others reinstated to their former positions if the strike is declared off?

Third—Will you allow us to meet the United Mine Workers in joint conference, and to present grievances at the same time?

To the first two questions an affirmative reply was given. To the third this reply was made: "Yes, if you join the United Mine Workers."

A resolution was then adopted calling on the grievance committee of the Firemen's association to call on each coal company today and ascertain if the men who went out on strike last Tuesday will be given back their positions. These committees are to make a report to the same joint committee which met here yesterday, and, if the replies from the companies are favorable, then the strike will be officially declared off tonight.

Steel Workers Appear Confident

Pittsburg, July 22.—The important event in the strike history of Sunday is the organization of the tube mill workers at McKeesport. The word from there is, that, after long and arduous work, Assistant Secretary Tighe of the Amalgamated association succeeded in organizing 125 men of the National Tube Works company. At the meeting, 25 skilled men from each of the departments were initiated, and Mr. Tighe claims that enough more of the workmen will be secured to keep the entire plant closed down, affecting 9000 men. From Wellsville nothing has been received here except word that the situation is unchanged, and the strikers say everything is satisfactory to them.

General Tieup Threatened

San Francisco, July 22.—A general tie-up of wholesale and retail trade of this city may develop. The trouble grows out of a boycott of the Morton Special Delivery company, a non-union concern, by the San Francisco labor council, and the design of the Draymen's association is to compel the union men to do hauling for the non-union company. About 1500 union teamsters have been notified by their employers that they must either obey or lose their places. A sympathetic strike of men whose duties bring them into contact with the teamsters and draymen is expected.

Tailors on Strike

New York, July 22.—The tailors in the sweat shops all over the East Side were called out on strike yesterday, in accordance with the decision on Saturday of the Garment Workers' trade council. It was estimated that 30,000 workers quit yesterday, and that today 20,000 more refused to work. This estimate includes the Brooklyn and Newark, N. J., shops.

Boilermakers Quit Work

Lawrence, Mass., July 22.—The boilermakers of this city sent a letter to their employers requesting a nine-hour work day, with 10 hours' pay. At a meeting of the boilermakers Saturday night they voted that the men should not go to work again until their demands were granted. About 240 men are involved.

Suffered From Rheumatism

Worcester, Mass., July 22.—Nils Anderson, proprietor of a boarding house, committed suicide by hanging in the cellar of his home yesterday. He was 76 years old, and the only cause assigned for the deed was the fact that he had been a sufferer from rheumatism for several months.

Fighting For Mrs. Kennedy

Kansas City, July 22.—Attorneys for Lulu Prince-Kennedy, under sentence of 10 years for the murder of her husband, have filed a motion for an appeal to the state supreme court. Mrs. Kennedy's bond was fixed at $10,000, but no sureties have yet been secured.

Senator Clark's Big Investment

St. Petersburg, July 22.—United States Senator W. A. Clark, according to The Novoe Vremya, has joined with Kieff capitalists in establishing a copper company, having a capital of 15,000,000 roubles, Mr. Clark supplying 12,000,000 roubles.

SHOT THROUGH THE BODY

Vicious Character Received Wounds Which May End His Life

Ashland, Mass., July 22.—Following a vicious assault upon William Manning, Patrick Rafferty, well known to the police of this section, encountered two officers Saturday night, and as a result was taken to a Boston hospital yesterday, suffering from two dangerous bullet wounds. Rafferty is in a critical condition, and may die.

The fight between Manning and Rafferty took place on the road leading from Ashland to Cordaville. After a desperate struggle, during which Manning was severely handled, he fled along the highway toward the later village, meeting Officers Kelley and Wricker. While Manning was telling the officers of the assault, Rafferty came upon the trio, in pursuit of the fugitive. He carried a knife in one hand and a club in the other. The police endeavored to take care of Manning, but the latter fled in haste, with his enemy in close pursuit. One of the officers ordered Rafferty to halt, and fired his revolver in way of emphasizing his command. Finding himself in a tight place, Rafferty turned on the officer nearest him. The officer again discharged his revolver and the man fled to the woods.

Not knowing that they had wounded him, the officers telephoned to Ashland for assistance. Early Sunday morning the officers surrounded Rafferty's house. When it was entered, the occupant was found in bed, with two bullet holes through his body. He was very weak from his experience of the night before. As soon as possible he was removed to the Boston hospital. He was shot through the back twice, one bullet having penetrated the kidneys. It is thought the chances are against his recovery.

Manning was considerably cut and bruised during his encounter with Rafferty, but his injuries are not of a serious nature.

Struggling Against Poverty

London, July 22.—The suicide in London of Edith and Ida Yeoland, actresses, July 16, in consequence of their lack of engagements and disappointment at failing to secure an expected opportunity to play in New York, has forcibly brought to public notice the difficulties of making a livelihood on the London stage, and the fact that there are today a number of good actresses in London who are almost destitute. Among these actresses are many Americans who find engagements almost impossible to secure without social and financial backing.

GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENT

Four Men Instantly Killed by a Train at Lebanon, N. H.

Lebanon, N. H., July 22.—At the Bank street crossing, shortly after midnight, Sunday, a one-seated top buggy containing James Goodwin of Hinsdale, Mass., William Thurston of Percy, N. H., Thomas Burns of Winooski, Vt., and Eddie McCabe of this town, was struck by the Montreal night express, and the four men were instantly killed. The buggy was demolished, while the horse escaped with but few slight bruises.

The team was hired by Goodwin at Peter Stone's stable about 7 o'clock for a drive to Enfield, and he was seen here with Burns about 9 o'clock. It is not known where Thurston and McCabe joined the party, which returned from Enfield just in advance of George Benjamin, who reports them singing loudly. The train was making its usual speed on entering the yard, and there is a long stretch of road over which they drove from which the train could be plainly seen, but no attention seems to have been paid to the usual crossing whistle, which was heard by Benjamin and others.

It is evident that the party tried to cross in advance of the train, the horse alone clearing the rails. The train was quickly stopped, and returned to find the men all dead, each having been terribly injured about the head and legs.

The examination by the coroner revealed part of a bottle labelled alcohol. No blame whatever attaches to the trainmen.

In True Western Style

Bangor, Me., July 22.—While the stage driver from Mattawamkeag to Millinocket was about half way between Millinocket and Medway, he was suddenly confronted by two men, who sprang out of the woods beside the road. They called upon the driver to throw up his hands and halt, but instead of holding his hands up he whipped out a revolver and began to fire. The driver put the two would-be robbers to flight after a lively interchance of shots, one of the men's shots clipping a small piece out of the driver's ear.

Socialists Make Nominations

Boston, July 22.—The Socialist Labor party, in convention here, made these nominations for state officers, to be balloted for at the fall election: For governor, Michael T. Berry of Haverhill; lieutenant governor, Alfred E. Jones of Everett; secretary of state, Jeremiah O. Filkelly of Abington; treasurer and receiver general, Fred C. Nagler of Springfield; auditor, Frank Keefe of Lynn; attorney general, John T. Graves of Worcester.

Snatched From Jaws of Death

Providence, July 22.—Miss Edith Spaulding, Miss Bessie Loud, Charles Robinson, Willard Sunderland and Chester Hatch, members of the summer colony at Bayside, had a narrow escape from death by drowning at Conimicut yesterday. They were bathing and were swept out to sea by the undertow. When rescued by fishermen, all except Miss Loud were unconscious. It took about two hours to revive them.

A Peculiar Accident

Fall River, Mass., July 22.—Following a social entertainment at his house, James White engaged in a wrestling match with William Maxwell. He obtained a hold on his opponent, and, while exerting his strength, a loud snap was heard, and he fell to the floor. A physician found that he was wholly paralyzed from the neck down. He may not recover.

Coroner Holds Bennett Responsible

South Berwick, Me., July 22.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the death of Michael Cragin, returned a verdict holding Isaac Bennett responsible. A warrant for Bennett's arrest has been issued. The man was with Cragin, and is said to have quarreled with him in a barn owned by Edward Bennett. Cragin died last Tuesday.

Five Hurt In Collision

Boston, July 22.—Four women and a child were injured and many more were shaken up in a collision of two trolley cars yesterday afternoon in Brookline. It is thought that none of the injured was seriously hurt, although two of the women complained of severe internal pains. The five injured were all in a Newton boulevard car.

Taunton's Costly Fire

Taunton, Mass., July 22.—Fire last night in the Union block caused a damage of nearly $150,000. Among the damaged are Hack's Publishing company, Pierce's hardware store, E. D. Tisdale, jeweler; H. T. Washburn, undertaker; A. J. Barker, druggist, and Charles Barnard, tailor.

Killed by Fall From Wheel

Boston, July 22.—Dr. Donald W. MacDonald, 42 years old, of Brookline, fell from his bicycle in Brighton Saturday evening, and received injuries which caused his death yesterday. The police do not believe that he was assaulted or collided with another vehicle.

Is Not Blondin

Boston, July 22.—Chief Wade of the state police has received the following final and conclusive telegram from State Officer Letteney: "The man arrested is not Blondin." He sent this dispatch from Canada after looking over the suspect.

Probably Fatally Mangled

Hudson, Mass., July 22.—James Swift of Maynard was found on the Fitchburg railroad tracks yesterday badly mangled and semi-conscious. He was not able to tell how he was hurt, and the doctors do not think he can live.

Burglars Poorly Rewarded

Machias, Me., July 22.—The safe in the depot of the Washington County railroad here was blown open and robbed Saturday night. Less than $100 was secured by the burglars, who escaped.

SAMPSON READ PROOFS

But Did Not Give Maclay Any Facts About Campaign

STANDS BY FIRST REPORTS

And Thinks Perhaps the Historian Took His Facts From Them—Schley Made "Misstatement of Facts" If Correctly Quoted In an Interview

Boston, July 23.—Rear Admiral Sampson, in an interview yesterday, stated that he had read the proofs of Maclay's Naval History, which has been excluded from the United States naval academy by order of Secretary Long, because of matters considered objectionable, but that he did not remember what was said about the battle of Santiago or Rear Admiral Schley, which comprise the subject on account of which the book has been ruled out of the Annapolis curriculum.

"Since this talk in the newspapers," said Admiral Sampson, "I called the attention of my aide, Lieutenant Bennett, to the matter, and he says he read the proofs, but that I could not criticize them because the language was too immoderate. It was a long time ago that I read these proofs. I presume they contained the same statements that are now embodied in the history.

"I have read the history written by Mr. Maclay," he continued, "and consider the account of my campaigns a very good one. About the rest of it I cannot judge accurately, perhaps, having no intimate knowledge of the events described."

In response to an inquiry whether or not he had ever given Maclay any facts about his campaign, and especially about the battle of Santiago, Admiral Sampson replied most emphatically that he never had. "I never told him anything about the Santiago fight or any other, and neither did my aide, Mr. Bennett. In one way, possibly, I was responsible for the statements made in the history. I was commander-in-chief of the squadron and was responsible, so far as reading the proofs goes. If the historian has taken facts from my official reports to the navy department, which is perhaps what he means when he says that he obtained them from me, that is all well and good. I stand by first reports and official communications.

"I would welcome an investigation by congress or by the navy department, but I see no hope of its being taken up. I hardly believe congress will do anything about it at this session. Schley's first statements regarding the battle of Santiago, those given out just after the fight, I mean, were moderately correct. The public interviews given out some time afterward were not at all correct. They were entirely different from his first statements, and were written in a different spirit, I think. If you will look up an interview purporting to have come from Admiral Schley, and published, I believe, on Jan. 6, you will see that it was entirely incorrect.

"If he was correctly quoted, he most certainly made a misstatement of the facts. Soon after this statement appeared in print he came aboard my ship and told me he had never given out any such statement; that he had been incorrectly quoted. The reporter to whom the interview was granted was a friend of mine, and he afterward told me that he had published Schley's words practically as they had been spoken."

Long Won't Discuss It

Washington, July 23.—Secretary Long yesterday indicated to the newspaper men who called upon him that he did not care to discuss further the revival of the Sampson-Schley controversy. He said, however, that the author of the Naval History of the United States agreed to his (the secretary's) statement that only the third chapter of his book (that relating to mobilization) had been placed in the secretary's hands upon the publication of his book.

An Economical Move

Manila, July 23.—The conference between Adjutant General Corbin and General Chaffee will probably result in radical economical and administrative reforms. It is estimated that the total cost of maintaining the American army in the Philippines can be reduced by 60 percent in the course of one year. The principal change will be the reduction of the present military force to between 20,000 and 30,000 men.

Prison Sentence For Carrie

Topeka, July 23.—Mrs. Carrie Nation has been fined $100 and given a 30 days' jail sentence by Judge Hazen in the district court for disturbing the peace and dignity of the city by a Sunday "joint" raid last March. There is no appeal, and Mrs. Nation will serve her sentence.

Railroad Machinists Lose

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 23.—After two months' strike the machinists employed by the Lehigh Valley railroad have given up the fight and are returning to work as individuals. There is a rush of applications for work.

DIED OF ANTHRAX

Hog Disease Which Is Communicable to Human Beings

Leominster, Mass., July 23.—Several months ago, Joseph Turner, who runs a large piggery here, had 60 hogs die from what at the time was thought to have been due to a deadly acid, arising from orange peel boiled in the offal. Last Saturday he had another hog die, and reported the matter to the local inspector of meats and provisions, Dr. W. H. Dodge. The latter notified the state cattle commissioners, and by their request sent to them the liver, spleen and kidneys for examination and dissection, as previously requested by the board. Yesterday the board decided that the cause of death was antharax, a disease of the blood, and also contagious to human beings.

A Brave Old Gentleman

Lynn, Mass., July 23.—Otis Newhall, 80 years old, jumped into the water here yesterday and rescued a boy from drowning, being loudly applauded by a large number of people, who happened to be in the vicinity. Arthur G. Green, 6 years old, fell into the water, it being 15 feet in depth. He had gone down for the third time when Mr. Newhall jumped in and brought him ashore.

Capital Stock Greatly Impaired

Springfield, Mass., Receiver Pepper of the Pynchon National bank has reported to the comptroller of the currency that the shrinkage in value of American Writing Paper bonds held by the bank is $168,000, and that the shrinkage of other securities held by the bank will bring the total to $196,000, nearly enough to wipe out the capital stock.

Bicycle Collided With Carriage

Clinton, Mass., July 23.—While racing on his bicycle with two companions on the South Lancaster boulevard last evening, Ralph Wheeler of East Wakefield, N. H., 17 years of age, collided with a carriage, and was so badly injured that he died within five minutes. It is alleged that the carriage was being driven on the wrong side of the road.

Imitation Money Afloat

Leominster, Mass., July 23.—During the past few weeks local street railway conductors have taken in quite a quantity of spurious silver half dollars. Conductor Card accepted one from a stranger yesterday and he tried to take the man into custody, but he sprang from the car and escaped. The man had the appearance of being an Italian.

Came In Contact With Live Wire

Augusta, Me., July 23.—Robert J. Murphy, aged 19, employed by the Kennebec Light and Power company, was at work on a high pole yesterday when his body came in contact with a live wire. To save himself from death he jumped to the ground. He was picked up unconscious, and his recovery is doubtful.

Bad For Farmers

Greenfield, Mass., July 23.—A very severe hail and windstorm visited the Connecticut and Deerfield valleys, causing a damage to the amount of fully $25,000. Much of this loss falls upon the tobacco growers, 150 acres of the crop being ruined. Hundreds of acres of corn was levelled to the ground.

Struck by Bicycle and Killed

Pawtucket, R. I., July 23.—John Ryding, aged 60, was struck and knocked down at Valley Falls last night by a bicyclist, Joseph Forta. Ryding's skull was fractured, and he died in a short time. Forta was locked up. He was scorching when he struck Ryding.

Plan of Indemnity Agreed Upon

Washington, July 23.—The state department received a dispatch yesterday from Commissioner Rockhill, at Pekin, announcing that a plan for the payment of the indemnity to the powers by the Chinese government had finally been adopted. The amortization of the bonds to be issued will begin in 1902, and the plan contemplates the entire liquidation of both principal and interest by 1940. It is expected that China will raise 23,000,000 taels annually. This sum is to be used to pay the interest on the bonds and to form a sinking fund for the ultimate liquidation of the principal.

WON COMMODORE'S CUP

Constitution Takes Coveted Prize From Columbia

WAS THE LAST TO START

But Speedily Overhauled and Passed Her Rival In Fine Sailing Breeze Over Twenty-One-Mile Course—Greatly Improved In Her Rig

New York, July 23.—The cruise of the New York Yacht club opened brilliantly yesterday, with the race for three valuable cups presented by Commodore Ledyard. The whole fleet was eligible to compete, and was divided into three classes, schooners, single-masted vessels and yawls, in cruising trim, and the two cup defenders, Constitution and Columbia, in racing trim.

Naturally, the principal interest was focused on these two splendid racers, which entered the race in thoroughly fit condition. Both had been hauled out and polished and burnished until their underbodies fairly gleamed. Many defects in the rig of the Constitution had been remedied. She sported a longer bowsprit, her sails had been attended to and fitted her better than when she last appeared in public.

Her performance was very creditable. Starting in a nice sailing breeze, which, however, at no time exceeded a seven-knot strength, she beat her rival, the Columbia, smartly handled and sailed with rare skill and judgment, four minutes and 18 seconds over a 21-mile course.

The first leg was 11 miles northeast by east, one-half east, dead before the wind; the second leg was a beat to windward of five miles, west southwest, one-half west, and the third leg a stretch with the wind forward of the starboard beam to the finish line, one mile west from Eaton's Point light.

The water was smooth, and the wind fairly steady from start to finish. The Constitution started absolutely last of all the competitors. She overhauled the hindmost very rapidly, and, several minutes before the outer mark was reached, she held a proud position in the van, beating the Columbia four minutes and seven seconds.

Luffing beautifully round the mark she buckled down to a pretty thresh to windward, and in this short leg she gained 56 seconds on her rival. In the last leg she gained six seconds, and romped past the stake boat the winner of the commodore's cup.

The extension of the bowsprit of the Constitution will necessitate a remeasurement of the yacht for time allowance. Roughly estimated, the Constitution should allow the Columbia 51 seconds over a 21-mile course, so, on corrected time, Constitution is a winner by 3 minutes and 27 seconds, not a very large margin, but quite a victory when the sterling ability of her rival is taken into consideration. In the run before the wind, the Columbia was favored with a freshening breeze which she bore along with her and which helped her to materially lessen the gap, once nearly a mile wide, which separated her from her antagonist. Had it not been for this the victory of the Constitution would have been far more decisive and more convincing.

Manila, July 23.—The Philippine commission has accepted Governor Whitmarsh's denials to the charges that he had appropriated native Eve stock, worked convicts and other natives upon his farm, and had utilized his official position to further his private interests. The commission further decided that the burning of a few native huts during Governor Whitmarsh's expedition against the Igorrotes had been warranted by the exigencies of the situation.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞ With Morgan forming a $200,000,000 pool to back up steel stocks during the strike and Shaffer telling his men to stand firm, it is evident the end is not just yet.—Boston Herald.

☞ The Russian government is seeking to have the Gregorian calendar adopted throughout the land, but it will take more than the adoption of a calendar for Russia to catch up with the rest of the world. — Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The Cadillac, a centreboard boat designed and built in Massachusetts, won the second race of the Chicago trials for the selection of a defender for the Canada's cup. This gives her one first and one second in two starts. The Illinois, a keel boat, which was also built here, was again third. Evidently the American centreboard is not yet a back number.--Boston Herald

☞ Unless arbitration or conciliation should come to the front in some unexpected way, the great contest between organized labor and the trust will now begin in earnest. The public has heard from interviews with Messrs. Morgan and Shaffer what they expect to accomplish with the forces behind them. The facts will appear by and by, but if nothing in the line of peace intervenes the contest will be a severe one.—Boston Globe.

☞ Mayor Hall's recent vetoes, while they blocked temporarily certain expenditures which possibly were all right in themselves, were commendable for their condemnation of lax methods of doing municipal business. In Quincy, as in some other cities, there are members of the city council who have no regard for the formalities of procedure which have been wisely constituted to prevent hasty and ill-considered action, to say nothing of illegal transactions, which might be possible under certain circumstances.—Practical Politics.

☞ Those positive statements that Gov. Allen had resigned his post at Porto Rico are again clearly premature. He slipped through Boston from the Mayflower so quickly that nobody could question him, but at Canton, whither he went to present to the President the free trade resolution in the island Legislature, Gov. Allen said emphatically that "I have not resigned." "The question of my return to Porto Rico has not been determined." After the proclamation has been issued expect to ask to be relieved, but the President may not be ready to relieve me just at that time."—Boston Journal.

☞ A conservative estimate places the cost of both sides in the present great steel workers' strike, at $400,000 a day. This should prove one of the strongest arguments in favor of the speedy settlement of the difficulties, as well as for the adoption by legal enactment of some method of arbitration by which such long and costly contests between labor and capital may be avoided. The widespread disturbance to the general business interests of the country, resulting from these contests, calls for some more prompt and satisfactory method of solution than is at present available.—Milford Gazette.

W. G. Gassett of Faxon road is enjoying his vacation.

WHO FOR JUDGE?

Hot Contest for Appointment to Vacant Judgeship in Quincy.

Who will receive the appointment as Justice of the District Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Humphrey is the question uppermost in the minds of the legal fraternity in East Norfolk district. From all accounts the contest has narrowed down somewhat and there are now but four men who are considered to have any show of the appointment. They are E. Granville Pratt senior special justice, John P. S. Churchill the present clerk of the court, Walter S. Pinkham of Quincy and William M. Prest of Braintree.

Judge Pratt has been a special justice for 25 years and his friends think he is entitled to the position.

Clerk Churchill comes from a family long connected with Massachusetts Judiciary. He is admitted to practice in the Massachusetts courts and the United States Supreme court. He is a nephew of Judge Churchill of the Dorchester court and had another uncle who was judge in the Boston Municipal court for many years.

William M. Prest is somewhat of a stranger to Quincy people. He was born in Uxbridge and has been a resident of Braintree for seven years.

Walter S. Pinkham is a well known resident of Wollaston. He served in the Quincy City Council for several years and also as its president.

All hands are doing their best to secure the coveted plum. It is barely possible that the appointment will be made tomorrow although it is doubtful if it is made before next week Wednesday.

Mayor B. J. Weeks.

It will probably be news to many in Quincy to learn that Benjamin J. Weeks, formerly superintendent of the Quincy & Boston street railway but now of Tacoma, Wash., has won new laurels in his new home, having recently been elected Mayor of Spanaway.

Mayor Weeks or plain "Ben" Weeks as he was familiarly known in Quincy, left many friends behind him when he packed his grip, and shaking the dust from his tan shoes, pointed his compass toward Tacoma.

While in Quincy no gathering of the boys was considered complete unless Ben was there to do the mixing At the club rooms he was considered an authority on smug and hearts and his advice was often sought by those who were in doubt as to whether it was better to sell, or make it and get set.

Quincy people therefore send him their congratulations.

Here is what a recent issue of the Sun-Democrat of Tacoma says of his election:

The election of city officers was held in the Spanaway park on July 4th. The contest for the several offices was very close, but after the ballots of the five thousand visitors had been counted the following was the result: Mayor, Benjamin J. Weeks; Councilman from the 16th Ward, S.Z. Mitchell; Councilman-at-large, Charley Purdy; Policeman Judge, Billy Keifer; Chief of Police, Capt. Ward; Captain of Police, Charles W. Cromwell; Sargent, J. C. Vollmer; Policemen, Bird, Bader Parker and Oliver; Controller of Water Works and other drinks, F. E. Hill.

At the meeting of the City Council Mayor Weeks sent in the following appointments; Commissioner of Public Fire Works, John F. Culver; Keeper of Finance, J. S. Simpson; Boss of the Push, George Snyder. After the mayor's appointments had been confirmed, Commissioner of Fire Works Culver proceeded to paint the town red, white and blue, and the people green with envy. The fire works display was very fine, and the training of the commissioner of fire works came in handy when a pin-wheel got in the box with Admiral Dewey and George Washington. Talk about hot boxes! As an artful dodger John Culver takes the bun. When that box of fire works caught fire it reminded one of the "grotto" scene in Faust. The imps of darkness had all they could do to keep out of the way behind a small box, and it looked at one time as if the fire department would have to be call out.

After the fire works display Judge Keifer held court and fined Commissioner Culver one coat, a rubber blanket and a good scare. Talk about warm times; that was the most interesting hot time you ever saw. The day passed off splendidly and every one voted Spanaway the best resort in the northwest.

Mayor Weeks has called a meeting of the city council today, as the trades council is holding a picnic and they decided to ask the council for a franchise for a good time. If you want to see a model city go to Spanaway.

SONS OF ST. GEORGE.

Convention of this Well Known Order Being Held in Quincy.

The annual convention of the order Sons of St. George is being held in Quincy today at Wilson's hall. Delegates to the convention from all over the state began to arrive Monday night and today there are a large number in town. The visiting members of the order are making their headquarters at the Greenleaf.

The comfort and welfare of the visitors is being looked after by the members of Granite lodge of Quincy who have planned to make their visit a memorable one.

It was late this morning before the convention convened and up to the time of going to press only the preliminary routine business had been transacted. The convention will be continued tomorrow.

Tappenden Improving.

Mr. Tappenden who was so severely injured at the Fore River Works last week and who is now at the City Hospital continues to hold his own, and if anything is improving. He is now permitted to see his friends and unless some new complications set in he has a good chance to recover. It seems remarkable that anyone could survive such a shocking accident as befell Mr. Tappenden. He was a man of good habits, one who had never abused himself by strong drink, and had a fine constitution. These things count for much in a case like that which visited him.

The general public has been unusually interested in his case and many inquires are made concerning his welfare.

Cadillac Wins.

The second of the trial races to select a defender for the Canada's cup was held at Chicago on Monday. The wind was northeast and blowing twenty miles an hour. The race was won by the Cadillac, the yacht built by Hanley of Quincy.

The boats had a beautiful start, crossing the line in a bunch. Immediately after crossing, the Cadillac bumped the judges' boat and before she could get away, the wind sent her up against the judges' boat a second time. The collision was no fault of the Cadillac, as she had the right of way. This served as a handicap to the Quincy boat, as she was obliged to run entirely around and go over the the mark a second time. In spite of this, however, she held her own and won the race. The course was nine miles to the windward and return.

The Dandy Fifth.

General Bancroft paid a visit to the camp of the second brigade at Framingham on Monday and was warmly welcomed by the officers and men, especially the Fifth, which he served from a private to its commander.

In place of the regular evening parade there was a parade for review at 5 o'clock. Of this the globe says:

Then came the "Dandy Fifth," headed by its new colonel, William H. Oakes, who saluted his old commander in the most approved fashion, and his staff, with good alignement, followed example.

The band set a good pace, which resulted in the whole 12 companies making an excellent passage, with little to criticise.

Capt. Colbert of Co. K was officer of the day of the Fifth Monday.

Accident.

Ralph Blake of Wollaston Park narrowly escaped drowning at Wollaston beach Monday afternoon. Accompanied by his friends the young man was walking about the spacious float when accidently he was pushed over. The fall was very severe, as his body below the waist struck the raft full force while his face was dashed in the water. The shock was so severe that he was rendered unconscious. Through the speedy and untiring efforts of Charles Coupal, Louis Ela and Arthur Drew, he was promptly pulled on the float and soon resuscitated. Fortunately his injuries are not serious.

—Messrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, H R. Winthrop and S. Spencer of the Newport summer colony made the trip from that city to Boston yesterday in two Winton motor carriages, covering the seventy-two miles inside four hours.

☞ Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

A great many houses in Atlantic have been let during these warm days. The beauty of the place, its healthfulness, and its nearness to Boston renders it more attractive than many more lively summer resorts along the South shore. Summer residents will find the place so well suited to their tastes that they will feel they need a whole winter of Atlantic air.

Assignment of Wages

Springfield is affected with the same trouble among its municipal employes that Practical Politics has pointed out heretofore in Boston and some other cities. In Boston there is a rule forbidding city employes making assignments of wages, but it has been heeded very little, and those whose duty it is to enforce the rule have found it convenient to overlook flagrant violations thereof. Members of the city council in Springfield have in contemplation, on account of abuses of assignment practices, the introduction of an order to compel city employes to draw their own wages. Several patrolmen and the head of one of the municipal departments are among the offenders, it is claimed.—Practical Politics.

—Census figures just compiled show that there are 89,900 Chinese in the United States proper, as against 107,475 in 1890. The number in California was reduced from 72,472 to 45,752. There are now 24,300 Japanese in the country. Ten years ago there were 2039. Thus the Chinese are going and the Japs coming.

—The day set aside by the Governor of Missouri for prayers for rain was the hottest and dryest on record. But the Boston Herald says it is pretty sure to rain if they keep on praying long enough.

The Newest Shirt-Waists.

These show a diagonal direction of the fabric from the shoulders to the lower front. This effect is secured without cutting the fabric bias. Our lady patrons can see pictures of these styles in our Paper Pattern Department as the August DELINEATOR, just received, contains several illustrations of this newest effect.

Another style of shirt-waist is that called the "GRECIAN POUCH," in which the front is very long, and by being caught up in the belt produces the pouch effect.

REV. THOMAS MAYHEW

Memorial Tablet to His Memory.

To be Erected by D. A. R. at Martha's Vineyard.

Was Missionary to the Indians--- Many Quincy Descendants.

Edgarton, Martha's Vineyard, is to have a notable celebration Thursday the twenty-fifth, when dedicatory exercises in placing a tablet will be held before a large gathering. The affair is under the auspices of the Martha's Vineyard Chapter, D. A. R. This tablet marks the place by the wayside where the first missionary to the Indians, Rev. Thomas Mayhew, took leave of the Indians, many of whom he had converted, on his departure for England. Mr. Mayhew's work antedates that of John Eliot by three years, and it it is said that on this occasion more than three thousand red men assembled to wish him God speed. The exercises in the afternoon will be held in the open, and an elaborate programme will be carried out. Mrs. Frederick Warren of Commonwealth avenue, the founder and regent of the chapter will deliver an address. In the evening indoor exercises will be held in the Congregational church, where Miss Helen M. Winslow, state regent of the D. A. R., Mrs. Ellen F. Going, representing the Colonial Dames, and others will speak.

The Marsh family of Quincy should be interested in this celebration as they are direct descendants of Thomas Mayhew, as follows:

GOV. THOMAS MAYHEW.

Born in England March 1592, was merchant at Southampton, came to America in 1631, resided several years at Watertown, Mass. Obtained 1641 a grant of a considerable porton of the island of Martha's Vineyard, with the title of governor. Began colonization in 1642 aiding son Thomas in converting Indians, and through his influence they not only abstained from joining in King Philip's war but protected the white settlers. Gov. Mayhew founded Edgartown in 1647, preached in old age to Indians and the English. From him descended a remarkable series of missionaries to the Indians of Martha's Vineyard.

REV. THOMAS MAYHEW.

Son of Gov. Thomas Mayhew, born in England in 1621. Went to Martha's Vineyard with his father where he learned the Indian language and began to preach in 1646, and 1650 had 100 converts among the Indians. Four of his letters on the Indians of Martha's Vineyard were published in London. In Nov. 1657 undertook a voyage to England for purpose of obtaining aid for more extended Indian missions, but the vessel and all on board were lost at sea.

JOHN MAYHEW.

Son of Rev. Thomas Mayhew was a regular missionary, and on his death was succeeded by his grandfather the Governor.

EXPERIENCE MAYHEW.

Son of John Mayhew, born at Martha's Vineyard, Jan. 27, 1673, succeeded ancestors in pastoral charge over Indians in March 1694. Was employed by society for Propagating the Gospel to translate the Psalms and the Gospel of John into Indian language Published several volumes on Indians. Died at Chilmark, Martha's Vineyard, Nov. 29, 1758.

ABIGAIL MAYHEW.

Daughter of Experience Mayhew born at Chilmark, Martha's Vineyard, married Jonathan Allen and on his death married in 1748, Wilson Marsh of Quincy a descendant of Dr. John Wilson, the first minister of Boston and thus it comes about that in Quincy there are at least a fifty direct descendants of Rev. Thomas Mayhew whose memory and works are to be honored on Thursday at Edgartown, Mass.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

—It is thought that there may be $2,000,000 worth of counterfeit notes on the State Bank of New Jersey, which went out of business fifty years ago, now in circulation. Have you any of them?—Herald.

This Hot Summer.

All summers are hot, more or less, but some are hotter than others. And this is one of the hottest. So while we are inclined to talk about the heated terms of every year as something phenomenal—though quite in the wonted order, just as going to sleep every night is—we have reason to talk about the frequent and protracted hot spells of the present season. They are bearing out the theories advanced by Prof. Langley, who said that last summer would be hotter than that of the year before, and this summer hotter than last. This is in accordance with the periodicity of the sun spots.

Prof. Langley shows that, when the spots are at their maximum in number and area the sun gives out the most heat, and he is demonstrating the correctness of his theory by his ingenious instrument at the Smithsonian Institution, called the bolometer, which registers with the nicest accuracy the volume of heat that the earth receives from the sun. Some of the months show a surplus over the average quantity, and others show a deficiency; but it looks as if from now on to the end of the year the record would exhibit a decided increase for the entire twelve months. The fact that some months are below the average, like April and May last, may be accounted for by the fact that the very excess of heat in previous months so affects the precipitation as to make certain periods cooler through increased rainfall.

The worst feature of the heat aside from the prostrations, is its effect in drying and burning up the crops in the West. Hereabouts the summer is probably above the average in rainfall thus far for the streams and ponds are much higher than usual. Prof. Langley finds an agreement between periods of maximum and minimum sun spots and the occurrences of famines and pestilence, which follow upon changes in the rainfall. Possibly other connections yet more subtile remain to be traced to the same source. — Boston Herald.

Judicial Dignity.

Judge Reed, who has been judge of the first Bristol district court at Attleboro for 24 years has just appeared on the bench without a coat. Probably his honor may claim the record of being the first "shirt-waist" judge of Massachusetts. It is pretty certain that he will not be the last. A few judges in the Commonwealth have ruled against the shirt-waist man, so far, as violating the natural and inherent dignity of the court. Possibly now that Judge Reed has paved the way other justices in Massachusetts will favor rational dress methods in Massachusetts court rooms. To a large degree the question of conventional dress depends upon current fashions. It looks as if the shirt-waist man had come to stay in hot weather. If so, the courts will eventually tolerate him.—Boston Advertiser.

Adrian—Crabb.

Last evening, at the rectory of St. Chrysostom's church, Miss Lottie Crabb, daughter of Mrs. Richard Crabb of Chestnut street, was united in marriage by the Rev. C. P. Mills to Mr. William M. Adrian, one of Quincy's popular young men. The groom was attended by Mr. H. W. Adrian of Quincy and the bride by Miss Henrietta Adrian of Zanesville, Ohio. A reception followed at the residence of the bride's mother. They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Adrian will reside at 32 Chestnut street, this city.

Wollaston P. O. Station.

Letters unclaimed for week ending July 20: Mr. William Taylor, Jr., Chin Show, Mrs. Annie Tinkham, Miss Carolyn M. Cavis.

—The state department at Washington had the satisfaction last evening of announcing that Commissioner Rockhill had cabled that the Chinese indemnity question had been settled on the basis which was approved by this country. The final agreement reached by the envoys of the powers and the representatives of the Chinese Emperor provides for the payment of 450,000,000 taels in bonds, to be distributed ratably among the powers, bearing interest at 4 per cent. for 40 years, China to pay 23,000,000 taels a year, 18,000,000 for interest, 5,000,000 for sinking fund.

—The oldest specimen of paper money has turned up in China at the age of 534 years. Its face value is $167, and it purports to be redeemable in bullion. Its prospect of redemption vanished centuries ago. China had shinplaster Populists as early as 140 B. C., but the old empire still pins its faith to real money.

—Panic was caused among the guests of the Oregon House, Hull, last night by the burning of a stable directly across the street from the hotel. The stable was owned by Charles Waterhouse and was a two-story wooden affair valued at $1500, and is a total loss; no insurance.

—A Fall River street car ran over three skunks in one trip. Talk about a "single ride for three scents!"—Daily Advertiser.

Letter from New Mexico.

The following interesting letter was received this week by Mr. James C. Dunn from his daughter, who with her mother left Quincy a few days ago to visit Ernest Dunn who went some months ago to New Mexico for his health:

Las Vegas, July 13, 1901.

Dear Folks at Home:

We arrived here on Sunday. Ernest came to the station to meet us, under his big sombrero hat. He looked very natural and has a fine healthy color; and does not cough at all.

Mother is feeling nicely and so am I. This is the finest place I ever saw. It has a dry, mild climate. It is warm, but there is always a fine breeze.

Ernest has a splendid place to stop when in this city, but he goes on journeys across the prairies to carry supplies to those who work on the new railroad.

We are stopping in a pleasant hotel called the Rawlin's House. On Monday we took a walk up over the hills which are higher than Weymouth Great Hill. I got a dozen varieties of flowers. Saw where they make the adobe bricks out of the mud of the hills, to build their houses. They are of brown color.

In the evening took a walk round the city and saw six churches, several good schools, and a park, which is called the Plaza. It is like the Common in Boston. There are signs in English and Mexican notifying the people not to cut the benches, nor hurt the trees or plants. We also saw the cars that are drawn by a horse, I can walk as fast as they go.

Tuesday we went on a train to East Las Vegas to see the Hot Springs. There is a big hotel there called the Montezuma. It is way up on top of a hill. This place is noted for its peat mud baths for rheumatism and the hot water from the springs is used to purify invalids of various troubles.

From the hotel one can see a great distance up the valley. A big storm came up and I never saw or heard such hail; then it rained in torrents. But it was soon over and the sun was out.

We are well and enjoying life. Love to all. Alice.

Military List.

One of the duties of the Registrars of Voters is to each year make up what is called the military list. That is a list of those who if necessary could be called upon to do military duty in case of war. The list for this year which has just been completed shows that Quincy can be called upon to furnish 3110 men. The number from each ward is as follows:

|---|---|
| Ward One, | 609 |
| Ward Two, | 366 |
| Ward Three, Precinct One, | 295 |
| Ward Three, Precinct Two, | 295 |
| Ward Four, Precinct One, | 289 |
| Ward Four, Precinct Two, | 334 |
| Ward Five, | 491 |
| Ward Six, | 431 |
| Total, | 3110 |

—Newport is not given over exclusively to the inner circle of society. More than eight thousand excursionists visited fashion's summer capital on Sunday, cleaned out the restaurants, took all the bathing suits in sight and in reserve, and feasted their eyes on the magnificent homes of the very wealthy.—Journal.

Consumption

Is a disease of civilization. When the Indian was a stranger to the white man he had no name in his vocabulary for this dreaded malady.

Without arguing as to the curability of consumption, it may be stated positively that Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures weak lungs, hemorrhages, bronchitis, deep-seated and stubborn cough, and other diseases which if neglected or unskillfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption. There is no alcohol in the "Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

Persons suffering from chronic disease are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is conducted under the seal of sacred secrecy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

In a little over thirty years, Dr. Pierce, assisted by his medical staff of nearly a score of physicians, has treated and cured thousands of men and women who had been given up as incurable by local physicians.

"Your medicine is the best I have ever taken," writes Mrs. Jennie Dingman, of Rapid City, Kalkaska Co., Mich. "Last spring I had a bad cough, got so bad I had to be in bed all the time. My husband thought I had consumption. He wanted me to get a doctor, but thought we would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and before I had taken one bottle the cough stopped and I have since had no sign of its returning."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

Two Sources of Profit.

Large Dividends and an increase in value to several times the price that a block of the stock is now selling for is assured to the share holders of the Hartford Copper and Gold Mining Co. A net income of $500 per day in a few weeks when the new mill is in operation, and a net income of $1,000 per day in about one year when the mill is increased to double its present capacity. The Company owns ten 20 acre claims south of the famous Treadwell claim. The development work during the past three years has opened up rich bodies of copper and gold ore, which is likely to make stock as valuable as the Calumet, Hecla, Gold Coin, or any of the best copper and gold mines. The Yankee Fork mine in Idaho, which the Company owns, is opened up nearly 3,000 feet of tunnels, shafts, and crosscuts, which show ore values enough to produce $1,000 or over net value per day for very many years. A limited amount of stock will be sold at $500 per thousand shares and pro rata down to 100 shares.

Steel Strike Situation Unchanged

Pittsburg, July 23.—Neither of the cooked for programs for Wellsville or McKeesport were carried out yesterday. At Wellsville the importation of men failed to materialize, and at McKeesport the attempt to resume at the De Wees Wood Tube plant was not made. From the other important point, Duncansville, conflicting reports are received, and the result of the quiet struggle going on between the American Steel Hoop company and the Amalgamated association is still uncertain, with the company's chances probably better for winning in the end.

Collapse of Firemen's Strike

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 23.—The strike of the Stationary Firemen was officially declared off last night at a joint meeting of the strikers and the executive board of the United Mine Workers. The meeting was a stormy one. The committees appointed by the joint conference to call on the coal operators and ascertain how many of the strikers could hope for reinstatement reported that 16 of the companies were in favor of taking back the old men, and that seven refused.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, July 24.
Sun rises—4:28; sets, 7:13.
Moon sets—11:34 p. m.
High water—5:15 a. m.; 5:45 p. m.

The temperature situation remains unchanged east of the Rocky mountains, except that it has been still warmer in portions of Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio, with maximum temperatures equalling or exceeding all previous records. In New England it will be partly cloudy and probably cooler on the coast, with winds mostly light westerly.

Kruger's Health Unaffected

Amsterdam, July 23.—Mr. Kruger is very depressed as the result of the death of his wife, but his health is unaffected. On the contrary he has thrown himself into his work with more than his usual energy. The newspapers do not attach any political significance to the event.

A Peculiarity.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

—A man in my town became convinced recently that he had incipient consumption. Every time he drew a full breath he heard a crackling sound. A doctor discovered that the crackling sound was made by a small buckle on his suspender.—Exchange.

Before He Knew What Hurt His Sister

James Fosburg Tells Intensely Dramatic Story

Several Other Witnesses Testify For the Prosecution

Pittsfield, Mass., July 23.—Many features appeared when the trial of Robert S. Fosburg reopened yesterday to make the session the most interesting yet held. The big audience listened eagerly, particularly when, just before the recess, James B. A. Fosburg, younger brother of the defendant, took the stand.

He is a Yale student, tall, handsome and has a perfectly frank countenance. His story of the terrible night scene in the Fosburg house as he knew it in his isolated room on the lower floor, was intensely dramatic.

When the court opened City Engineer Fobes, who was on the stand at the conclusion of Friday's testimony, was called, his cross-examination being continued by Counsel Joyner. Nothing material was brought out by his few minutes' examination expect that he had put an additional line on one of the plans two or three weeks prior to the trial.

Mr. Crosby called up the next witness, Nelson Hall. He testified to being in the vicinity of the Fosburg house the night of the killing of May Fosburg. He was with Ed Hayes. It was about 4 o'clock in the morning, and he did not see anyone around the house with a lantern; it was then daylight. He walked up the road about 50 yards from the house, where he found a pair of black striped stockings. In a reply to a question from Mr. Crosby, witness said he also found tracks of bare feet. They went as far as the Benedict road. At this point a pair of black striped stockings were offered in evidence, and they were identified by Hall as the ones he found.

Ed Hayes was the next witness. He corroborated the testimony of the previous witness as to the finding of the stockings and the tracks of bare feet.

Found Pants and Pillow Case

William H. Dunn of the central fire station, who was the next witness to take the stand, said he responded to the fire call sent out by the police in connection with the murder. Later he went to the Fosburg house a second time, and found a pair of pants and a pillow case, on the Benedict road, four or five rods down on the left hand side of the road going south from Dalton.

S. S. Wheeler, a photoghapher, was called. He showed photographs of the plazza posts of the Fosburg house, smirched with the imprint of grimy hands.

Here Mr. Crosby started to show the witness a bundle of photographs for the purpose of identification. Mr. Joyner objected to the photographs being offered as evidence, as he said he did not know whether or not the conditions of the rooms at the time the pictures were taken were the same as they were at the time of the killing.

Judge Stevens asked Mr. Crosby if he knew whether the conditions of the rooms were the same at the time the pictures were taken as they were in August. He said they were. Finally the judge said he would admit them, and Mr. Joyner took exceptions to the ruling. The exception was noted.

Witness identified the pictures as the ones he had taken.

Doctor Was Too Late

Dr. Walker W. Schofield was the next witness. He said that the first he knew of a crime being committed was when he got a telephone message. It was about 1:30 a. m.

Asked what he did on the strength of the telephone message, witness said he drove to the Fosburg house, reaching there in the neighborhood of 2 o'clock. When he got there a man unknown to him said: "Doctor, you are too late, the girl is dead." He entered the house, and in the room occupied by May and Beatrice his attention was called to the body of a woman lying on the floor. There was a sheet over her head, which he put back. The body was lying diagonally across the room, two or three feet from the door. The young woman's night dress was covered with blood. He noticed no other marks. He said the woman was dead and he made no further examination. There were two ladies in the room when he entered. They were lying on the bed. He afterwards learned that they were Mrs Fosburg and Beatrice. Mr. Fosburg, Sr., was also there, and two police officers were in the room.

The elder Mr. Fosburg said burglars had visited the house and killed his daughter. Dr. Schofield also said he saw Robert Stewart, the defendant, in the room. Mr. Fosburg, Sr., told him that he was lying on the left side of the bed when he was awakened by seeing a masked burglar standing over him with a revolver and a lantern in either hand. He jumped out of bed and grappled with the intruder. He knocked the revolver from the man's hand, and as he did so he was struck from behind by another man. He told witness that when he revived he found his daughter May and son Robert lying on the floor. May was dead, Robert was unconscious.

Young Robert's Story

According to witness, Robert L. Fosburg was at that time fully dressed, even to necktie. The defendant was dressed, but witness thought he did not have on a collar. Dr. Schofield said that Robert Stewart Fosburg told him that when he heard the trouble, he rushed through his sister's room, and as he did so May fell back into his arms. He told of hearing one pistol shot. He said he had been struck by one of the burglars.

Dr. Schofield found evidence of his being struck on the back of the neck and left side of the back of the head. Dr. Schofield said the younger Robert Fosburg told him of the escape of the burglars, and his trying to follow one of them. The elder Fosburg said a revolver had been found. Witness then described the bureau, and said it had appearances of having been disturbed. Nothing was said to him about the pillow cases.

Officer Chapman Testifies

Officer Chapman of the local police force was next called. He learned of the crime about 1:50 a. m., and five minutes later he was at the house. When he entered the house he saw both Fosburgs, senior and junior. Mr. Fosburg said: "Myself and son have been assaulted and my daughter shot."

When Officer Chapman went into the house Fosburg senior was in his shirt sleeves, had on his trousers, vest, shoes, collar and necktie.

How was the defendant dressed? asked Mr. Crosby. Witness replied that he was in his shirt sleeves and had on a collar and necktie. He also saw defendant's brother, James. He was in his shirtsleeves without a vest, had on his pants, but his suspenders were hanging by his side. He had nothing on his feet. He saw the three Fosburgs in the parlor on the lower floor. The room was lighted. Witness saw no evidence of burglary.

Washed Torn Clothes

After Police Officer Lewis Bastion had testified regarding the time the police were notified of the shooting (1:50 a. m., Aug. 20), Mrs. Mary Nash, who did the washing at the Fosburg house, was called to the stand. She told of visiting the house on the Thursday after the shooting to get things to take home to wash. She noticed that one of the pillow cases was almost torn in two. A lady's night dress was torn down the front from top to bottom. Witness did not know the owner of the pillow case or the night dress.

State Detective McKay told of his first visit to the Fosburg house, Aug. 21. The detective related the story of the shooting as told him by the defendant, it differing in no detail from that related by State Detective Whitney. Officer McKay said that James Fosburg informed him that he did not get upstairs until it was all over.

The first reference to the wire gang was made by Mr. Joyner, counsel for the defense, in cross-examination of Officer McKay. The witness was asked if he saw a portion of the register of a hotel in Great Barrington cut out and taken away by another officer. The witness replied in the affirmative. None of the names was Patterson, Bly or Quinn. Witness said he never saw any of the persons named, who were understood to be members of the so-called wire gang.

James Fosburg Called

At the conclusion of this testimony, District Attorney Hammond called James Fosburg. It really was a cross-examination, for Mr. Hammond held in his hand a report of the testimony given by the witness before the coroner's jury, and the attorney questioned the boy sharply concerning the points of this evidence.

Witness began his testimony by saying he was 22 years of age. He slept on the first floor in the room under Miss Sheldon. With the exception of himself, his sister May and Miss Sheldon, the household retired at 10:30 on the night of the shooting. Witness and the two girls retired about 11:30. He was awakened later by a noise similar to one he had heard two nights previously. It was a terrible shriek, coming, apparently, from his father's room. Witness got out of bed, turned on the electric light in his room and then rushed up the front stairs, turning on the various lights as he ran. He heard several exclamations from above, and was met at the head of the stairs by his sister-in-law, who screamed: "Your father's gone crazy!" She was in her night dress. He brushed her aside and went on to his sister May's room. She was lying on the floor. The electric lights had been lighted.

Mr. Hammond asked witness if he noticed any other persons in the room. "There was only one thing that made an impression on me. That was the fact of my sister's body lying on the floor," replied the young man. Young Fosburg, continuing, said: "I rushed to her side and straightened her out. Her legs were doubled up under her. Almost immediately I was at her head. My mother came in, followed by my father. They dropped down beside her. Something had to be done, I saw, so I said, 'Get towels and ammonia.' I did not wait to see if this was done, but got ready to start for a doctor. I saw my brother Robert come into the room behind my father. He was staggering, and when in the middle of the room he collapsed and fell to the floor, his head resting near my sister's, but his body in an opposite direction."

Did Not Know What Had Happened

Witness then described his trip for a doctor. At that time, he did not know his sister had been shot or how she had been hurt. He knew she was unconscious. Said the district attorney: "You called a doctor, not knowing what the matter was or that there was a claim that other persons had been in the house?"

"Yes," replied the witness, "I did not know what had happened until I returned."

Young Fosburg was asked by the court if he went to Dr. Robert's office by way of Dalton avenue or Dalton road. Witness replied that he went by way of the avenue, although he had understood that a pair of shoes had been found in Dalton road. He had heard no shots in the house that night, and, therefore, could not say how many shots had been fired. At this point recess was taken until 2:15 o'clock.

Refutes Whitney's Testimony

When the court resumed its session, after recess, James Fosburg again took the stand. He said that at the inquest he had stated he got the key to the office of the electrical works, from whence he called a physician, from one of the ladies. Witness said he did not get in the cellar, and he did not break the slats on the screen. He did not so testify at the inquest, nor did he say so to Mr. Whitney, as the latter testified. He did say to him that he had brushed the mortar from one of the cellar windows at the rear of the house. As far as he knew he was the first person who discovered the bullet holes in the bureau.

Witness was questioned as to the exciting events which terminated in the death of his sister. He was awakened by "terrible shrieks and heavy falls coming from the direction of his father's room." He then repeated the story as given in his direct testimony.

Mr. Fosburg was cross-examined at great length by Mr. Joyner. He stated that at the time of the tragedy he had been home about six weeks from Yale. His brother and wife were staying at a house near by, but came to their parents' home afterwards. All ate at one table, and Miss Sheldon came to the house about the first of August, as a visitor. Mrs. Fosburg, witness' mother, returned on the day preceding the tragedy, having been on a long visit to her father's in Missouri.

After repeating his previous story as to the calling of a doctor, he was questioned as to the darkness of the night. He declared that when he went to the office to get the telephone book it was too dark to see the names in it. While witness had been at the house of Mr. Shepardson, just previous to this time, he had heard his father calling from the window of his home: "Police, Murder, Help." When he got back to the house his mother was just getting up from the side of his sister, and she exclaimed: "She's gone."

The face of the witness, at this point, seemed to grow purple with restrained feeling, and there was a pause of some moments, while he stood with bowed head until he gained his composure.

Revolver Under the Bed

"I remember that my father got a sheet and put it over sister May," he said. "Father and mother were at her side, and I told them they better get dressed. I helped father dress in his room. As I was getting his shoes from under the bed I saw a large revolver there. I got it and gave it to some one, but I do not know who. Beatrice came into the room and picked up an old brown derby hat, that I ad been smashed in. It did not belong to my family and I never saw it before."

The shoe found by the officers on the stairway of the house was handed to witness, who said that it did not belong to his brother, and was too large for him. He stated that he saw footprints outside the house at daylight the next morning.

Matches, the witness said, were found about the house, some in the kitchen bedroom, the attic and the carriage room. They were sulphur matches in cards, while nothing but parlor matches were used by the family. The electric light in the cellar had been shut off in the switch under the first floor. This switch was never used by the family, the lights being lighted from a button in the kitchen.

Witness further testified as to the wounds on his father, brother and mother, and said the he took his father and mother down to his own room, where he put hot compresses on their injuries. At this time counsel said to him: "Mr. Chapman said he saw suspenders hanging down, is that so?"

The young man replied: "I haven't had a pair of suspenders on for five years."

"A Matter of Seconds"

On re-direct examination he was asked by Mr. Hammond how long it was from the time he heard the first scream until he saw his sister's body on the floor, and he replied: "I don't know. It was a matter of seconds."

Mr. Joyner asked: "Did you not stop to ask how your sister was wounded?"

"No, because she was hurt, and we had to get some one. I did not stop. I just knew she was hurt, and I had to get some one there."

This closed Mr. Fosburg's examination, and as he left the stand he smiled pleasantly at his brother, remarking: "That's through with."

Fred W. Lund, who was employed by Fosburg & Son as bookkeeper and paymaster, was called to identify a piece of paper with the names of employes written upon it. He could not do so, and James Fosburg was recalled. He stated that he himself had written the names on the paper about September, 1900, because he was asked to give the names of some persons who had been in his father's employ at Adams and who had been discharged.

Captain William G. White of the Pittsfield police was the last witness of the day. He testified that he arrived at the Fosburg house at 2 o'clock with Officer Flynn. It was very dark then. He met the defendant at the top of the front stairs, and was by him introduced to Robert L. Fosburg, the father. The latter declared to him that there had been burglars in the house, and that they had shot his daughter. Witness then related the story of the affair as described by Mr. Fosburg, the facts coinciding with those given by Dr. Schofield.

A SUDDEN END

To Government's Side In Fosburg Trial

Nicholson Saw a Diamond Sunburst In Bedroom

Defense Gives a Recital of Occurrences on the Terrible Night

Pittsfield, Mass., July 24.—The government, represented by District Attorney Hammond, rested at 3:25 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the trial of Robert S. Fosburg for the alleged killing of his sister May. The conclusion was as sudden as it was unexpected, it being known that there were witnesses held in reserve, a number having been summoned by the prosecution only Monday.

At the conclusion of the government's case, the counsel for the defense suggested to the court that the case be dismissed for lack of proper evidence. Judge Stevens, however, decided that he was not ready to entertain such a motion.

At the very opening of the session yesterday Judge Stevens ordered the expulsion and exclusion of several representatives from three New York papers for the balance of the trial, because of an article which had been published relative to an alleged episode at the grave of the victim of the tragedy. This episode, it was said, occurred on Sunday last, and the publication of the alleged fact the court described as "the grossest attack on the administration of justice. "I can think of no publication more likely to affect the minds of the jurors," he said, and, in response to his order to the sheriff, the several representatives who were present left the room, and will not be permitted to enter during the balance of the trial.

The chief witness for the government yesterday was John Nicholson, head of the police department of Pittsfield. He was an interesting figure, and his clear, distinct and emphatic replies to questions were a feature of the session. He wore a black suit, without vest, and a belt, and he was continually twirling the ends of his moustache.

Officer Flynn, who searched the Fosburg premises on the morning following the tragedy, and who found the single shoe which has figured as a portion of the government's chain of evidence, was also a witness. Captain White of the local police was the first witness of the day, and his cross-examination was resumed by Mr. Joyner. His testimony was notable for his remarkable lack of memory, and the many things which he did not know concerning the case. These facts were made much of by the defendant's counsel. Officer Flynn proved to be a witness more confident that he was not mistaken. There were a number of minor witnesses.

Nicholson's Testimony

In giving his evidence the chief of police said that he reached the house between 5 and 6 o'clock. He caused the first alarm to be given when he first heard of the crime, about 3 o'clock. On his arrival at the house his attention was called to the tracks and footprints under the balcony. The footprints were close to the house. His attention was called to another mark farther north. It was not distinct and not a footprint. It looked like the print of the sole of a shoe. It was about four feet from the footprints. The piazza pole had several finger marks and one hand mark upon it. The latter was very distinct, containing the impression of the wrist, thumb and fingers of a hand. He examined the railing of the balcony, which was painted white. When he made the examination of the balcony defendant called his attention to it.

"I noticed the dew had been wiped off the railing," said Mr. Nicholson. The chief said he also found a mark in the gutter, evidently made by a hand. He next examined the back hall, looking for one of the two shots that were thought to have been fired. The witness told the story of the defendant to the effect that he thought that there was a fire, and was going to Miss Sheldon's room for water when his sister fell into his arms. Robert told him he saw a man standing near before his sister fell in his arms. He caught him by the neck and forced him on his knees. A second man struck him and escaped by the back stairway. He lost his hold on the first man, who also escaped. Nothing was said at that time about the shooting in his sister's room. The defendant told witness that two shots were fired. Mr. Nicholson found a hole in the back hallway, which defendant said might be the place the second shot struck. The witness took out his knife but could find no lead in the hole.

Jewelry In Sight

Chief Nicholson saw a diamond sunburst, a stick pin and a watch chain in the kitchen bed room. The defendant spoke about his revolver which had been in the top drawer of the bureau, under his shirts. In the kitchen bed room closet, on the back of the door were some hooks on which the defendant said his trousers were hanging that night.

On his first visit, Mr. Nicholson stayed about half an hour. The second time he reached the house about 11 o'clock the same morning. At that time he had a conversation with the father. James handed him a bullet and a photograph. Both were exhibited to the court and jury. James said he found the bullet in the comb tray. The defendant was present at the time.

Finding of Matches

On his second visit the witness made a more careful investigation of the back stairs. This time he picked up some matches on the stairs from the attic to the kitchen bed room. The witness also found one or two in the attic on the floor and three or four more in the kitchen bed room. The matches were shown to the jury. They were picked up personally by the chief. Later, he found burned matches on the floor of the front parlor. They were also exhibited. Three or four days later James Fosburg gave him some more matches which were found in the attic. After the funeral he found more burnt matches on the floor of the kitchen bed room, on the balcony and down stairs. He spoke to the defendant about the matches, and Robert said they did not use Diamond matches in the house. In the front room of the house Chief Nicholson said he found Diamond matches.

The defendant further said he was aroused by a tall man who came in his room armed with a revolver in one hand and a lantern in the other. He had a struggle with the man, and knocked the revolver out of the man's hand. He stated that these men wore pillow cases. "I inquired whether the pillow cases were over or under the hat? He could not state as to that."

One o'clock having arrived, the court adjourned until 2:15 o'clock.

Made Many Visits

At 2:20 o'clock Chief Nicholson again took the stand. He testified to finding the screen in the window broken about one foot from the sill. The moulding was also split. He did not remember how high the screen was raised. On his second visit to the house he examined the bureau and found that the mirror was out of place. He first noticed the hole in the mirror after his attention had been called to it. He saw the metallic lamp which was dented in. He noticed nothing peculiar about the door leading to the balcony. After that he visited the house several times and conducted his investigations.

The defendant told the witness that the man he struggled with was a negro. He designated one as being dressed in dark brown clothing.

Judge Stevens would not allow the witness to tell what was testified to by the defendant on this point at the inquest. The witness said that he and Dr. Paddock had made tests of how powder would act on cloth. Here he produced the revolver, which was the same one as that testified about last week by Dr. Draper of Boston.

The cross-examination of Chief Nicholson developed nothing new. At the conclusion of his cross-examination, the government rested, and there was a buzz of conversation in the court room for a few minutes, while Mr. Hibbard and Mr. Joyner, counsel for the defense, consulted preparatory to opening their case.

Argument of Defense

Mr. Joyner, in his opening address to the court, said: "The government's case has closed more suddenly than we had expected, and I am less likely, because of this, to analyze the government's claims and gather up the threads of the story. The defendant is about 30 years of age, an active, intelligent, vigorous young man. He is a business man, educated in the public schools of St. Louis, receiving a mechanical training, and has become a contractor and builder. He has a host of friends and business acquaintances, men who have been associated with him in business.

"In connection with his father, he came to this town to construct the building of the Stanley Electrical Manufacturing company, one of the great industries of the place. They occupied the house which you have seen. In this house these men with their families lived together. They lived there and were constantly occupied every day except the Lord's day in pushing on their work. They were there on the day before the tragedy, in absolute concord, harmony and good will, which existed between every member of the family.

"If Robert S. Fosburg intentionally, with the revolver within six or eight inches of the breast of his sister, shot her down, it would be difficult for you to believe him guilty of anything less than murder. If, aiming towards his wife or family, he had fired a shot which missed its mark, and it had killed his sister, that would have been murder. The deceased young woman, whose life went out that morning, had no enemies. Certainly her brother was not one. He was the nearest to her. She was to him something more than a sister; she was a companion. His relations to her were such that it is impossible to believe that he would have done her intentional harm.

Revolver Was Close to Breast

"The commonwealth has shown that this young woman was killed by some-

Constitution Takes Another Race From Columbia

LATTER HAD LUCKY STREAK

Led by Quarter of a Mile When Her Rival Was Becalmed, but She Was Overtaken and Passed by the New Boat, Which Increased Lead

New Haven, July 24.—Again yesterday did the Constitution prove speedier than the Columbia in light airs and fluky weather. It was in the first squadron run of the New York Yacht club from Huntington to Morris Cove, the day being remarkable for the variety of the wind. For the greater part of the run the yachts had a strong flood tide against them.

The racers started out close-hauled on the starboard tack. The wind grew free and sheets were eased broad off and ballooners spread. The Constitution crossed the starting line first at 11:35:35, the Columbia following at 11:35:53, the Constitution having the windward position and quickly overtaking the large fleet which had gotten away earlier.

The wind was so gentle that it barely filled the lower sails of the big sloops, and they seemed to derive most of their headway from the huge club topsails which were full when the other sails were flapping. As the wind stiffened canvas was trimmed to meet it.

At 1 o'clock, while the Constitution was becalmed, the Columbia got a lucky streak of wind, and passed her rival and secured a lead of a quarter of a mile. Her advantage was short-lived, however, for at 1:35 the wind once again filled the Constitution's sails, and she glided to the front in a marvellous manner, and maintained her lead to the finish, increasing it constantly. On elapsed time she won by 5 minutes and 16 seconds, and by 4 minutes and 6 seconds corrected time, the length of the course being 28 miles.

World's Records Broken

Boston, July 24.—Will Stinson broke the track record for 25 miles by over half a minute in the three-cornered race at the Charles River park last night against Johnnie Nelson and Ray Duer. His time was 38:21 3-5. He led Nelson almost a mile at the finish, while Duer had only 21 miles and a lap when Stinson crossed the tape. Stinson broke the world's two-mile record, making the distance in 3:12 1-5, over a second faster than the record.

WILL C. STINSON.

Milwaukee Had Good Lead

Chicago, July 24.—Milwaukee of Milwaukee crossed the line first yesterday in the third trial race for the Canada cup. Her victory was complete, as she led over the finishing line by over two minutes, and beat the Cadillac and Illinois by about six minutes. The race yesterday was over a triangular course, 21 miles in length.

Good Afternoon.

The talk of a shoe combine is said by Brockton shoe manufacturers to be but idle chatter.

Uncle Sam's revenue continues to be greater than his expenditure, so that the subject of a further reduction of taxes is mooted.

Cadillac was the founder of the city of Detroit, 200 years ago. Perhaps the new Hanley boat might win if she had a more up-to-date name.

Reductions in tax rate seem to be in order in the cities this year. Six have reported their figures, and three are less, while three are the same as last year.

It is the Boston and Northern street railway company which now controls all the street railways north and east of Boston, a system including 400 miles. Next it will be the Old Colony and Northern.

It is pleasing to note that the camp of the Second brigade at South Framingham, which includes Co. K of the Fifth regiment, is "a model one as regards neatness, and the discipline is excellent. The general health of the 1000 men of the command is remarkably good. The brigade also presents a very business-like appearance."

The importance of the improvement of Boston harbor are apparent when one learns the receipts of the port, and how rapidly they are gaining. For the year ending June 30 last, the receipts were $20,123,155.62, an increase of nearly five million dollars in three years. The total receipts nearly equal the Assessors' valuation of the entire city of Quincy, real and personal.

In the course of a lecture at the Summer School of Theology at Harvard, Dean Hodges made this very proper and pertinent observation: "There is no greater and more mischievous mistake than to suppose that we cannot do people good without having money to do it with." He applied this remark to the especial work of the Christian church, but it has force in every field of good-doing, as many of us are too apt to forget. The habit of measuring a man's worth to the community or the country by the way in which he scatters millions of dollars has in it the danger of paralyzing the ambition to render service which cannot be weighed by financial statement.

Drift Of Opinion.

☞ The sea serpent is not in it as an attraction for a watering resort nowadays. The story from Narragansett Pier of a snow storm is the advertising scheme par excellence of the times.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The official returns of the expenditures, made at the State House under the lobby act, are charmingly indefinite on the very points which the law was intended to cover. It would seem to be appropriate to repeal the law or enforce it.—Charlestown Enterprise.

☞ At a New Jersey wedding the man wore a shirt waist, but the woman was in a silken gown. Getting married was evidently not regarded by her as a commonplace, everyday affair that could be gone through with in overalls and a calico dress if need be. And still we suppose there are those who think the man in the case was a "good, every day fellow, with no foolish frills about him."—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ The popular branch of almost any of the European governments gets its dander up on the slightest provocation, the bitterest feeling existing between some of the various factions into which almost all of them are divided. The Socialists are about as peppery an element as there is in the whole collection, and can incite a circus at any time when they feel that things are getting sluggish. — Lynn Item.

☞ A gratifying feature of present industrial and commercial conditions in New England is the boom in the shipbuilding industry, created largely by the widespread recognition of the fact that the Maine-built schooner is the most practical and profitable vessel afloat for the coasting trade. In the wooden shipbuilding yards of Bath, Me., there are now contracts on hand for nearly half a million of dollars' worth of work, and a number of big steel vessels are also under way. These latter are deep-water ships, but the steel schooner is bound to come, and already the great firm of Sewall & Co. has the plans drawn for the first steel vessel of this rig. The time was when the excellence of the handiwork of the New England shipbuilder was recognized the world over, and there was corresponding activity and industry in Yankee shipyards from Providence to Eastport. Present indications are that these good times may come again, and there is no reason why they should not. The Yankee hand has not lost its cunning.—Lynn Item.

NEW PRESIDENT.

Sons of St. George Having Good Time at Quincy.

The delegates to the annual convention of the Sons of St. George, which opened in Quincy on Tuesday, spent the greater part of the day in having a good time.

Shortly after 2 o'clock special cars were taken for Houghs Neck. The party made its headquarters at the Fensmere where they were joined by many of the local members of the order. A shore dinner was served at 3 o'clock.

President James Rapson of Quincy presided at the business session. The principal business of the first day was the elections and installation of officers. The election resulted as follows:

President, Amos P. Webber of New Bedford.

Vice President, William H. Ladbury of Middlebury.

Secretary, John W. C. Sargent of Cambridgeport.

Treasurer, Lawrence Davenport of Lawrence.

Messenger, John Onell.

Trustee, Henry A. Wright of Boston.

Milton Man Shot.

The morning papers report that Binney Pierce, aged 17 years of Milton, was accidentally shot at Cape Elizabeth, Monday, by his classmate, Clayton Pearson. The young men had been visiting at the Buena Vista cottage, and at the time of the accident they were eight feet apart. In some way Pearson's revolver was discharged. The ball grazed Pierce's arm and entered his side. The physicians summoned do not consider the wound as likely to be fatal.

Inquiry at Milton by telephone does not find anyone who knows Pierce. Being a young man his name is not in the directory, and no one seems to know who he is.

Hotel Burned.

The Fairview Hotel at North Weymouth was completely destroyed by fire early this morning. The first alarm was sent in from box 16 at 1 A. M., closely followed by a second and third alarm. Assistance was also obtained from East Braintree, but the fire had got beyond control and the firemen's efforts were directed to preventing the large tenement block of Daniel S. Baxter from burning. The hotel was unoccupied.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

MILWAUKEE AGAIN.

The Cadillac Tied with the Illinois for Third Place.

Milwaukee of Milwaukee crossed the line first today in the third trial race for the Canada cup, says a Chicago dispatch of Tuesday to the Boston Journal. Her victory was complete as she led over the finishing line by over two minutes, and beat the Cadillac and Illinois by about six minutes.

Race was over a triangular course, 21 miles in length each leg of the cure being seven mile. The wind blew at eight miles from the east-north-east, and increased to 12 miles.

When the starting gun was fired the Milwaukee, Cadillac, Detroit and Illinois went over with but a few seconds between them. The Milwaukee was first over at 1.30.10, the Cadillac second at 1.30.20, the Illinois third at 1.30.35 and the Detroit fourth at 1.-30.36.

The Cadillac was beautifully handled and soon had a handsome lead. The Illinois, catching a breeze first, made a rapid spurt which carried her around to the buoy far in the lead, beating the second boat, the Milwaukee to this point by six minutes. The third boat round the first buoy was the Detroit. At the end of the second leg the Milwaukee had made up the six minutes and was again in the lead a position she held to the finish.

The last leg was to the northwest, with the wind a little east of east-northeast, and in this work both the Detroit boats proved superior to the Illinois. The Cadilac however, had but three seconds to spare as the two went over the line. The Illinois got away 15 seconds later than the Cadillac and was beaten three seconds at the finish, giving her a gain of 12 seconds over the course.

The boats finished in the following order, the given time being the actual sailing time covering the 21 miles:

| | Time. h. m. s. |
|---|---|
| Milwaukee, | 3 23 50 |
| Detroit, | 3 26 24 |
| Cadillac, | 3 29 10 |
| Illinois, | 3 29 10 |
| Minota, | 3 38 41 |
| Orion, | 3 40 35 |
| Prarie, | 3 43 09 |

Trotting at Readville.

The best time at the opening of the Readville track on Tuesday by the New England Breeders Association was by Diavolo, which went the first heat of the 2.13 pacing class in 2.09 3-4. Gentry won the next three heats and the purse. It was three straight in the other classes. Dan T won in the 2.30 class, best time 2.14; and Ellic the 2.17 class, in 2.15 3-4. Fanella went against time to beat 2.40 and won in 2.27.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of William E. O'Brien for drunkenness at Weymouth, was called, and he paid a fine of $5.

The case of Frank Morrison of Weymouth for the same offence was again continued for two weeks.

L. Herbert Merritt was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued one week.

Edward Anderson of Weymouth was arraigned upon two complaints for violating the fish and game laws. He was fined $5 for having in his possession one short lobster. The second case was continued one week.

Birthday Party.

A number of the friends of Miss Lena Burns tendered her a surprise party Tuesday evening at her home in the Adams building, the occasion being the anniversary of her birth. There was twenty or more in the party, and the evening was passed in a pleasant manner with games and music. Refreshments were served. The surprisers did not come empty handed, and Miss Lena received a number of birthday remembrances.

—"You are charged," said the magistrate, "with having no visible means of support." "'Tis false!" exclaimed the prisoner. "I have a wife and six children."

—"You haven't any manners, Jack; why didn't you offer to escort that young woman home?" "Oh, I have manners all right; but I didn't have street car fare."—Chicago Record-Herald.

—Getthere— "Did you ever attend any of Miss Budd's 'at homes?'" De Bore (sadly)—"N-o, but I've attended a good many of her not-at-homes."—New York Weekly.

☞ Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

—"No business to use such big engines on this road," said the farmer. "Why, they jar the ground so the potatoes won't sprout."

BAR COMMITTEE

Fail to Endorse Candidate for Judge.

Lawyers Beal and Orcutt Withdraw.

Qualifications of Clerk Churchill for the Position.

The committee appointed by the Quincy Bar Association to take action looking to the appointment of a successor of Judge Hupmbrey held a meeting at the Quincy court room this morning.

The committee is composed of W. G. A. Pattee, John W. McAnarney, Russell A. Sears and Paul R. Blackmur of Quincy, Albert P. Worthen of Weymouth, Albert E. Avery and C. C. Mellen of Braintree, Asa P. French of Randolph, J. Merrille Brown of Milton.

As Mr. Blackmur is a candidate for the position he tendered his resignation as a member of the committee.

As several of the members of the committee are away on their vacations, nothing was done at this morning's meeting but an adjournment was taken until some day next week.

As there are many applicants for the position, it is doubtful if the members of the bar will support the candidacy of any of the aspirants.

William B. Orcutt of Quincy and John V. Beal of Randolph whose names have been mentioned in connection with the office have resigned.

This practically narrows the contest down to five, E. Granville Pratt, senior special justice; John P. S. Churchill, the present clerk of the court; Paul R. Blackmur and Walter S. Pinkham of Quincy, and William M. Prest of Braintree.

---

J. V. Beal of Randolph, mentioned by one of the Boston papers as a candidate for Judge of the East Norfolk court, is emphatic in his declination. Mr. Beal says: "I never sought the office, I never spoke to any one about the office, and was never spoken to about it. I not only do not seek the position, but I positively would not take it if offered to me. The idea of my candidacy was never broached to me in any way, shape or manner, and the mention of my name in any connection whatsoever with the office is wholly uncalled for and without foundation in fact."

---

Of the numerous gentlemen who have been mentioned in connection with the position of Justice of the District Court of East Norfolk, made vacant by the death of Judge Humphrey, the most logical candidate appears to be the present incumbent of the clerk's office, John P. S. Churchill. He is eminently fitted by training and experience for the position and his appointment would undoubtedly prove an acceptable one. Mr. Churchill has been a member of the bar for the past twenty years, having been admitted to practice soon after graduating from the Boston University Law School, and was about ten years ago admitted to practice in the United States Supreme Court.

He received his early legal training in the office of his uncle, the late Judge Churchill of the Municipal Court of Boston and comes of a family which has for generations been prominently identified with the Massachusetts Bar.

Mr. Churchill assumed the position as clerk of the district court in 1890, which came to him entirely unsolicited and was tendered by Gov. Brackett to whom he was personally known and who considered him in every way well equipped for the office.

At the time Clerk Churchill assumed the office, the Legislature had just enacted a law which completely revolutionized the matter of court fees, entailing a vast amount of detail in the work and requiring a more systematic and comprehensive method of conducting the office. Clerk Churchill quickly grasped the situation and in addition to making the necessary changes, which the new law required, he introduced many improvements in the methods of handling the affairs connected with the work of his office.

Clerk Churchill has twice come up up for reappointment and is now entering upon his third term. In 1895 he came before Gov. Greenhalge for a reappointment and again before Gov. Crane last year, and each time the appointment was made without question. His experience as the clerk of the court for the past eleven years, has given him the advantage of familiarity with the work; and of the numerous names that have been mentioned either seriously or otherwise in connection with the position of Justice, he is the only one who has been closely identified with the court work. This is an advantage which is fully appreciated by the members of the legal fraternity.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

A $2,500 COUNTRY HOUSE.

It Is So Laid Out That It Cannot but Please.

We show herewith a most economical arrangement of rooms for a small dwelling. It is so planned that the entrance hall, parlor, dining room and kitchen are grouped in such a manner that one chimney is sufficient for the whole house. The staircase hall is of good size and serves as a reception room, with a corner fireplace, in which is an open grate for burning coal.

The parlor is immediately adjoining the reception hall, at the front of the house separated only by an archway hung with heavy portieres, which may be thrown back, making the parlor and reception hall, as it were, one room when desired. The dining room is immediately back of the parlor, separated from the latter likewise by portieres. Both parlor and dining room are provided with open grates and wood mantels in keeping with the finish of the rooms.

The kitchen is at the rear of the house adjoining the dining room. The passage from the kitchen to the dining room is through the pantry, which is placed in the extension at the rear of both, with suitable china closet and storeroom conveniently placed.

Entrance to the cellar is under the main stairs. The front of the house is protected by a wood veranda.

In the second story are three good sized chambers, with closets for each; a bathroom and one small bedroom, which can be used as a dressing room for the front chamber if desired. In the attic is one room, finished; the balance is left for storage loft. The cellar extends under the entire building.

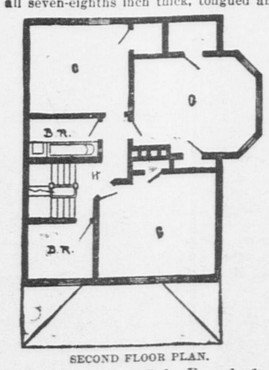

The foundation walls are of field stone laid in good lime and cement mortar. Chimney of hard brick, facings of hall fireplace and kitchen chimney best of pressed brick, rubbed slate hearth for kitchen, glazed tile hearths for hall, parlor and dining room; tile facings for grates in parlor and dining room. The side walls and ceilings throughout are hard finished on one coat of brown mortar and seasoned lath, with neat cornice pieces in the ceilings of main rooms. The veranda roof is sheathed with tongued and grooved spruce. All other roofs, side walls and gables of the building are sheathed with surfaced hemlock, the whole covered with waterproof paper. The panels in first story bay window, side walls of second story and gables of main building and dormer windows and all roofs except the veranda are shingled. The lower story is clapboarded with 6 inch white pine beveled, siding laid 4½ inches to the weather.

FORGOTTEN.

A little year or so ago
She sparkled everywhere,
With shoulders bare and face aglow,
The fairest of the fair.
We read about her every day
As having been at this or that,
At club or tea or ball or play,
Attraction centered where she sat.

A little year or so ago
She swayed a certain set.
Without her functions failed, but, oh,
How quickly we forget!
The men who flocked around her then
Now flatter other girls, and they
That read her name with envy when
She swayed ne'er think of her today.

A preacher said some words, and, lo,
A maiden ceased to be!
The fair one people used to know,
Oh, where, oh, where is she?
There's one who bends with loving gaze
O'er something small and frail and sweet.
I wonder if she mourns the days
When all the world was at her feet?

MARRIAGE AT THE SCAFFOLD

In the seaport of Calais, which for over 100 years was under the power of the English, there once lived a bachelor, Josse Dullart, who had come there to carry on business. He was a native of Bailleul-en-Flandre, well qualified to secure for the London merchants the wool of which the Flemish weavers make their various materials and to derive an honest profit from each. Naturally, because of his commercial subtlety and because of the pleasant and comfortable life which came to him in consequence, our man became exposed to the jealousies and ill will of the other tradesmen, English for the most part. He did not know it, since the hypocrites allowed nothing to become evident, but, on the contrary, made every endeavor to present an agreeable exterior to him, so as not to compromise in the least the slight advantages which accrued to them through his kindliness. Nevertheless they decided to ruin him and to that end contrived a device so black and so wicked that Sir Satan himself in his demoniacal mind could not have imagined a better. In pursuance of the scheme one of them secretly concealed in the house of Josse Dullart a leather bag containing a sum of 100 livres sterling in gold crowns. Having done this, he went to the criminal magistrate with two comrades as witnesses to accuse his colleague of having robbed him.

At that remote period there had not yet appeared under the canopy of heaven any of the impudent sharpers, sluggards and swindlers who in the course of time have shamelessly said and written that ownership means theft, and the money earned by some is so much lost by others, with the sole intent that they may put everything into confusion and be able easily to slip into their purses that which is another's.

The world has indeed heard of much folly and seen many iniquities, but not that, and human justice, which had never known of any jesting upon the matter, would have hung their like high and in short order, dealing with them precisely as she would with veritable robbers.

Who was amazed at seeing the policeman of the provostship invade his home, ransack his coffers and chests, produce from them a sack of gold of which he knew nothing and a legal clerk take down disquieting notes of the affair in his illegible scrawl? It was the ill fated Dullart.

The poor fellow strove with them in vain, vowing to God his innocence, but words could not prevail against deeds. Now, he could not explain how the sack, the evidence of his crime, had come into his possession, whence it followed that the innocent man was condemned to the halter as if he had been guilty.

The affair, however, let loose in an uproar all the devils of Calais. Think of it—a great merchant, with a house of his own, convicted of common larceny, like a vulgar rascal!

In the end the populace, while it was not privy to the plot laid by a half dozen arrant rogues, was nevertheless not mistrustful. It rather inclined in favor of the pitiable citizen of Bailleulois. This without taking into consideration the peasants on the outskirts of the town, who were French, not having been expelled from their fireside by the conquerors, as had been the poor commoners of the city, and who hated all the English within their borders.

So it may be said that the throng which swarmed about the streets and crossways on the day when Dullart was to be taken to the gibbet entertained more compassion for him than derision, above all, if you take into account the fact that he was young, good in every respect and of a prepossessing appearance.

From the jail to the gallows Josse walked with bowed head by the side of a priest, who enjoined him to rejoice that he was about to pass into a better world. He did not glance at a single person, so great was the shame he felt on account of the filthy mischief of which he was accused. It was only when he had ascended the first rounds of the fatal ladder, having the cord about his neck, that below the soldiers grouped around the base of the gibbet, he perceived the crowd and recognized among them a fair young woman for whom in happier days he had conceived a tender and violent passion.

At the sight of her he experienced a yet more poignant sorrow at leaving so soon and so painfully an existence from which he had expected to derive such delicate felicities. And then, impelled by a sudden reminiscence and by a natural instinct for preservation, he began to cry out with all his might: "Loyse, Loyse, by God the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, I adjure you! Save my life, claim me in marriage."

The girl stood there trembling with emotion among her companions. Hearing herself thus addressed by name by the prisoner, she became convulsed with agitation; almost unconsciously, half moved by pity, half incited by her neighbors, she approached the gibbet without the police daring to prevent her.

"Oh, Loyse," repeated the prisoner ardently, "I am innocent. I swear it by my eternal salvation! Demand me in marriage, and you will have saved my life!"

She did not know one word to say, she had so lost her senses, but she extended her hand, which the poor devil seized with avidity. Seeing this, the people in all direction began to roar:

"A marriage, a marriage! She has claimed him! Cut the cord, hangman; cut it, cut it!"

The executioner did not cut the rope, but he let it drop, undecided as to what was most expedient for him to do, and as the crowd continued to bellow and even become threatening the officer of the provostship, judging it an opportune time for a delay, led the condemned man back into his cell in order to submit his peculiar case to the law. And the people dispersed content, believing the man from that moment to be saved.

But the stealthy cats did not so easily let go one whom they held in their claws. They had a man to be hanged, a pretty little man, a man over whose hanging they licked their lips, and here how people pretended that he was taken out of their grasp! And why, I ask you? Under the most foolish of pretexts, in the name of some ridiculous custom, some illegal pretense which granted grace, full, free and immediate, to any condemned man whom a woman declared in public to desire in lawful wedlock. Who ever had heard of an equal subterfuge?

But, ah, traditional or written, the law is the law, and the case in question had to be elucidated! Unwillingly rather than willingly they opened an inquest upon the matter in hand to learn whether or not so unreasonable a usage had ever at any period had power by law, which inquest finally established that no similar case had been presented since the time of the conquest in Calais, but that previous to that date there had been many such cases, more particularly in Flanders and in Artois than in Picardy.

In consideration of these indecisive conclusions the enemies of Dullart urged the magistrates to override the law, and the magistrates did not demur. It was the governor who placed an obstacle before them in view of public opinion, which had become greatly agitated over a controversy which had at stake the life of a man made in the image of God. Suddenly that dignitary called to mind the example of prudence offered of yore to the world by that worthy magistrate Pontius Pilate in order that he might avoid thrusting his own finger between the tree and its bark. In place of announcing his fears in public he appealed to his master, King Edward, the fourth of that name, to decide the matter according to his own good pleasure.

The monarch judiciously estimated that one man more or less upon the gallows was of small value in enhancing his glory and bespoke clemency for the case under consideration. He ordained then that the old usages should be conformed with and that full pardon be awarded the condemned man, under the condition, be it well understood, that the solicitor of his love hold him duly to his engagement.

So it came to pass that the good Josse had the rare and marvelous fortune to espouse a gentle and well favored maiden after the approved fashion instead of the cold and grimacing death and to be indebted to his wife for that which ordinarily men owe to their mothers only—that is to say, his life.

A similar occurrence took place a short time afterward unexpectedly at the city of Rouen. As a certain thief, a native of Hautvilliers, was conducted to his fate, a loud old woman stepped out of the crowd below and declared that she desired him in marriage. The prisoner, astonished, considered a moment; then, remarking that the aforesaid person was a homely hag, shook his head and pursued his way to the gallows, observing to the executioner:

"The wench, I don't want her!"

And in a moment he was wedded to the gallows.—Chicago Tribune.

Fled to the Wolves.

For sheer melodrama the English jewel robber Houghton's arrest would be hard to beat. After his last big diamond theft he was traced to West Bromwich and thence led the detectives a dance over the country. At last when the pursuers were hard on his heels he dashed into a traveling menagerie which was exhibiting just outside Birmingham. There he found one of the attendants fastening up a van cage containing a pair of large gray wolves. He flung the man on one side and opened the cage, shutting himself in with the beasts and daring any one to fetch him out. The strange thing was that the wolves, which the proprietor had always considered the most dangerous animals in the show, took no notice whatever of the fugitive, but showed great ill temper toward the keeper and a constable, who had great difficulty in dragging Houghton out.

A Question of Location.

"I thought, count, that you were a dead shot?"

"I am."

"And yet, though you said you would shoot your adversary through the heart, you hit him in the foot."

"It was an error of judgment. I thought his heart was in his boots; it turned out to be in his mouth."—London Telegraph.

WILL SEEK VINDICATION

Schley Determines to Ask For Court of Inquiry

WILL THEN SUE FOR LIBEL

Evans Furnishes a Chapter to the Controversy, Bringing Out Points Which Disturb the Opponents of Schley—A Suppressed Dispatch

Washington, July 24.—The Washington Post telegraphed Admiral Schley that, in an editorial, it insisted that he owed it to himself, as well as to his friends, to begin proceedings against Mr. Maclay, the author of the History of the United States Navy, to disprove the latter's charges, adding: "Will you do this? Please wire statement."

In reply, The Post received the following telegram from Admiral Schley: "I believe the first step should be an investigation of all matter by a court, then a civil action afterwards. I am preparing to take this course."

The Post this morning, as a result of extensive inquiries based upon the admiral's dispatch, says in part:

"Admiral Schley proposes to ask for an investigation at the hands of a naval court of inquiry, and then to sue Historian Maclay for libel. His action is the sequel to the developments during the past week, when the whole country has been stirred up by the publication of the unexampled abuse poured out upon him in the third volume of E. S. Maclay's History of the United States Navy, in which publication Schley is said to have run away "in caitiff flight," and is in addition denounced as a coward, a cur and a traitor.

"The Schley court of inquiry will undoubtedly be one of the most celebrated cases in the naval history of the country. The high rank of the officers involved in the controversy and the intense public feeling which has been aroused will combine to give to the investigation a dramatic interest. Nothing has occurred in Washington for many years that will compare with it.

"The appointment of the court of inquiry is expected to be made by Secretary Long, though it would be in the power of the president to make the selections if he chose. This is hardly likely to occur, however. Mr. Long has already stated that if Admiral Schley requested a court of inquiry he will grant the request."

Considerable surprise is manifested at the navy department because of the publication in the Baltimore Sun of what purports to be an interview with Rear Admiral Evans, in which he defends Rear Admiral Schley from the charge of unnecessarily delaying his squadron at Cienfuegos during the chase after Cervera's ships.

There are two points in the Evans interview which disturb the opponents of Rear Admiral Schley. One is that one of the chief counts in the criticism of Schley is his delay at Cienfuegos. He had been ordered to remain there until he learned whether the Spaniards were there.

According to Rear Admiral Evans' statement, it took him two days to get this information, and the delay was caused by the fact that the arrangements for getting it were kept from him.

The other point is, that Rear Admiral Sampson, according to Evans' statement, did not communicate as to the code with Schley or Cook, and yet the official correspondence shows that Sampson was continually urging Schley to leave Cienfuegos as soon as he had learned that the Spaniards were not there.

Subsequently, Sampson forwarded to the navy department the telegrams he had sent to Schley, and on them the department founded its charge of delay at Cienfuegos, when he was wanted at Santiago. The senate subsequently called for the papers on the subject, and these letters and telegrams were published, lending color to the gravest suspicions against Schley. Thereupon, Schley, being called upon for an explanation of his conduct, submitted a dispatch which had been suppressed, and had not been sent to the navy department, nor to the senate.

This was the "Dear Schley" dispatch, signed by Sampson, and saying, among other things: "I have decided to make no change in the present plan—this is, that you should hold squadron off Cienfuegos. I am, therefore, of the opinion that our best chances of success in capturing these vessels will be to hold the two points—Cienfuegos and Havana—with all the force we can muster."

Not After Territory

London, July 24.—In the house of commons yesterday Lord Cranborne stated that the presence of the French, German and Japanese troops at Shanghai was purely temporary, the result of Chinese disturbances, and in no way prejudiced by supremacy on the Yang Tse region or involved any alienation of territory.

Havoc by a Tornado

New Ulm, Minn., July 24.—A tornado passed a mile north of here yesterday. Several farm buildings were lifted from their foundations and fields of corn and grain were blown flat on the ground. A heavy rain accompanied the storm. Half an hour before the storm the government thermometer registered 105.

Rafferty Dies of His Wounds

Boston, July 24.—Patrick Rafferty, who was shot at Cordaville late Saturday night, while attempting to make his escape from officers, after making a vicious assault upon William Manning, died yesterday at the Massachusetts general hospital. Rafferty had frequently figured in court records.

CONFLICT THREATENED

Over the Importation of Negro Workmen by Latrobe Steel Plant

Chicago, July 24.—The advent of 300 negro workmen, 25 women and 3 preachers, imported from Mobile, Ala., by the Latrobe Steel and Coupler Works, is awaited with interest by the residents of the suburb and the 600 workmen now employed in the plant. Threats of the workmen to strike for higher wages are believed by many to have been the cause of the importation.

This is denied by the officials of the company. They declare that the only reason the negroes are brought here is that it has been impossible to secure sufficient white help to do the work demanded from the Latrobe company by the United States Steel company.

Employes of the works declare that a number of extra guards have been employed by the company, and they assert that this is an indication that trouble is expected. An impromptu mass meeting was held last night in front of the village hall. Fully 3000 persons were in attendance to protest against the importations. While no direct threats were made, it was freely prophesied that trouble will follow the arrival of the imported laborers.

An unsuccessful effort was made to confer with Governor Yates by telephone, to see if he would not take same immediate action to prevent the importation of the negroes.

Planning Injunction Proceedings

Pittsburg, July 24.—It is asserted on good authority that papers are being prepared by District Manager Smith of the American Sheet Steel company to ask for an injunction against the strikers to prevent them from interfering in any way with the operations of the company's plants, wherever situated. Following this the rumor is in circulation that a carload of men will run into Wellsville to supplement the force now at work. Outside these incidents the actual strike status is unchanged.

A One-Day Strike

Fall River, Mass., July 24.—All the union loom fixers at the Shove mills struck yesterday morning, alleging that the management had in its employ non-union and incompetent workers at that craft, thus making the work of the skilled union fixers unbearable. A committee called upon the agent yesterday afternoon, and as a result the trouble was amicably settled, the loom fixers reporting for work this morning.

Mines Resume Operations

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 24.—The stationary firemen and the coal operators are again at peace. Nearly all the strikers, including a number of engineers, who went out in sympathy with the firemen, are back in their old places. It was thought that some of the men would find some difficulty in getting reinstated yesterday, but this was the exception rather than the rule.

Messenger Boys Strike

Boston, July 24.—The branch offices of the District Messenger company in this city were practically deserted by the boys yesterday afternoon, about 60 of the messenger boys being out on strike. They want 2 cents each for delivering messages. They now receive 1 3-4 cents.

More Machinists Weaken

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 24.—At a meeting of the striking machinists of this city yesterday the strike at the shops of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company at Coxton and Wilkesbarre was officially declared off, and a scramble for situations followed.

Hide and Seek on the Ocean

New York, July 24.—Some time ago Mrs. McGill and her three children started from Fall River, Mass., to Ireland on a trip, and stayed longer than planned. McGill grew nervous and started out to find them. He left on the Majestic last Wednesday, and just before he sailed Mrs. McGill and the children arrived on the Oceanic. They were all on the same dock at the same time, but did not meet. A cablegram has been sent to McGill to hold him in Ireland, and Mrs. McGill and the children started back across the Atlantic on the Oceanic today.

Why Gomez Visited America

Havana, July 24.—General Maximo Gomez, in the course of an open letter setting forth the objects of his recent trip to the United States, asserts that he went to New York with a view of impressing upon Mr. Palma the necessity of coming to Cuba to be the first president of the republic.

Stocks May Be Assessed

Washington, July 24.—Comptroller of the Currency Dawes has received a report from the receiver of the Pynchon National bank of Springfield, Mass., which failed some weeks ago. The receiver says that, in his judgment, an assessment on the stock of the bank will be necessary.

To Get "Pointers" In America

London, July 24.—The London county council yesterday voted to send a tramway manager and an electrical engineer to the United States to investigate street railways, especially the "shallow underground lines" of the Boston system, which it is proposed to construct here.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, July 25.
Sun rises—4:29; sets, 7:12.
Moon rises—11:58 p. m.
High water—6:15 a. m.; 6:30 p. m.

The hot wave and drouth have continued for another day in the great corn belt. The maximum temperatures again averaged over 100 degrees. In the east and south the temperatures were not unseasonable. There is still no prospect of any relief from prevailing conditions in the central valleys and middle west. Generally fair weather will prevail in New England, without much change in temperature. On the coast the winds will be light westerly, becoming variable

A SUDDEN END.

one; has shown that she was killed by a bullet, and has taken great pains to show that she was killed by a bullet from a revolver held very close to her breast. That is exactly what we claim."

Mr. Joyner then spoke of the fact that the defendant had had no opportunity before coming to this trial of knowing any of the evidence against him. "But we knew," he said, "that she had been killed by a bullet from a revolver held by a man directly in front of her. We had imagined that the government would claim that the father and son had had a fight in a room way off somewhere, and that a stray bullet had hit her. We never imagined that the government would admit that the bullet was fired right in front of her.

"The government has proved that the bullet was fired from the south end of the house, while the defendant was sleeping in the north end. We shall ask you to believe that the bullet in the girl's breast was a dumb witness to the fact that this defendant is not guilty. He was confused, and there was cause for confusion. We shall ask you to bear this in mind when you consider the defendant's statement with reference to the course of the bullet which struck the bureau. No one knows where the bullet came from, nor what its course was. The footprints on the sward are corroborative of the defendant's story."

Just Before the Tragedy

Mr. Joyner then gave a resume of the doings of the family on the Sunday preceding the tragedy, and of the order in which the various members retired that night. He spoke of the illness of the defendant's wife, and the fact that May Fosburg, the victim, had carried lemonade to her room, and he continued in touching terms of the conversation which May had afterwards with her younger brother in his room. He then detailed the story of the younger brother, James, and described the fright into which he was thrown by his sudden awakening when he heard the screams upstairs. He also spoke of the awakening of the defendant by his wife.

"In a little while after that," he said, "the defendant heard terrible screams of one or more persons. He leaped out of bed, taking some of the clothes with him as he went, and rushed to the next room. He came into that room and saw the flash of a pistol from the little hall. The room was dark.

"May, his eldest sister, had arisen from the bed when she was awakened by the sound of a struggle in her father's room. As she went across her room she opened the door leading to her father's chamber, and as she stood there with her hand on the knob, a man appeared in front of her and the bullet was fired which ended her life. As she stepped backward in surprise at the first sight of this man, her brother appeared in the doorway behind her.

"He saw her fall, and caught her in his arms. He laid her on the floor, and, looking up, saw a man in the doorway leading to the little hall. He jumped and grabbed him, and would have held him, but was assaulted by others from behind.

"The last words, it is probable, which May ever uttered, were the startled exclamation she made as she jumped out of bed: 'O, gracious.' They were heard by her sister, Beatrice, who was awakened at that instant. Beatrice saw the flash of the shot which killed her sister, and was groping for the electric light when her brother rushed by her. She felt rather than saw him, and as she turned on the light and realized with sudden intenseness what had happened, she cried out to her mother, who had just entered: 'O, mamma; look at May.'

Mrs. Fosburg's Discovery

"The first person who saw anything of the intruders in the house that night was Mrs. Robert L. Fosburg. She was lying in bed and saw a light in the hall. She thought it was one of the children who had been taken ill, and was going to the bath room. She lay for a moment, expecting to see them, but as she did not, she spoke, saying: 'Who is there?' For answer two men appeared in the doorway, one of them at least armed, and both wearing masks made of pillow cases. One held a light in his hand.

"The light went out, but her husband had been awakened by her startled scream. He grappled with the man, but was overpowered, and she sprang to his help, touching the man who was bending over him. She received a blow and remembered no more till a minute or two later. Led by a mother's instinct, she started towards the room occupied by Beatrice and May. As she entered it, she heard her daughter Beatrice cry out: 'O, mamma; look at May.' A moment later Robert, dazed and blinded, staggered into the room.

Miss Sheldon Will Testify

"Each of the persons will testify as to the truth of these statements. There is another witness to some of the occurrences, Miss Sheldon, a visitor. She heard the pistol shot; she heard the screams and the noise, from her room, adjoining that of May. She quickly opened the door to the room where she knew her friend May was sleeping, and saw her lying on the floor in the agony of death. Her cry was, 'What is it?' and Beatrice answered, 'A burglar has shot May.' Miss Sheldon will tell you of this on the stand."

Mr. Joyner spoke at some length of the case in regard to Mr. Fosburg's cry from the front window of "Police, Murder, and Help," and stated that it was an awful wail and an agonizing sound which was heard by neighbors, who recognized the horror of it, but could not recognize the voice.

Mr. Joyner was about to go into the testimony which would be given, he said, by the nearest neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Plumb, Mr. and Mrs. Shepardson and Miss Estelle Chapin, when court adjourned, to resume its sessions today.

Gives Interesting Testimony at Pittsfield

Graphic Story of Father of the Defendant

Beatrice Fosburg and Neighbors on the Witness Stand

Pittsfield, Mass., July 25.—The Fosburg case, famous and attracting intense interest throughout the country because of its dramatic features, is nearing an end.

Many sensational incidents occurred yesterday, the first coming when, after Mr. Joyner, for the defense, had concluded his presentation of what he claimed he could prove, Frederick W. Lund, the bookkeeper and paymaster of the Fosburg firm, in testifying, declared that he felt some of the men who were employed by the firm were dangerous. He said he knew they carried weapons.

Another came during the testimony of the father of the dead girl. In the course of his description of the manner in which the family spent the Sunday evening preceding the tragedy, he said: "Then May went in and sang several selections, while Miss Sheldon played. The last song she sang was 'Plains of Peace.'"

When Mr. Fosburg came to the reference to May's singing her last song, he stopped. Tears came to his eyes. His lips quivered, and his voice choked up. His head was bowed, and for a few seconds he was unable to continue. Otherwise Mr. Fosburg's testimony was given in a clear-cut and distinct voice. Each word was measured.

Mr. Fosburg's narrative of the discovery of the burglars and of his encounter with them, was told without interruption. "'Oh, Robert, she is gone,' cried out my wife, "and I remember she knelt and offered prayer." So the witness told of his first knowledge that his daughter was dead.

Didn't Carry Lantern

Mr. Fosburg emphatically denied that he had ever said either of the two men who entered his chamber carried a lantern, as had been testified to by at least two government witnesses. He said this slowly and distinctly, and later explained that he might have said to someone that the third man, who was behind the other two, might have had a lantern, a candle or matches.

Again, when Mr. Joyner questioned Mr. Fosburg with reference to the meeting with Esther at the depot on the morning after the tragedy, and as to what was told her, a refutation of one of the theories which have been prominent in this case was made by Mr. Fosburg.

"Esther said," he testified, "what has happened?"

Then Robert put his hand on her shoulder and replied: "Oh, nothing, Esther, only papa and I have been in a little scrap, and he got hurt."

"It was not: 'We have had a scrap?'"

"No sir," replied the witness, with emphasis.

Little Beatrice Fosburg, called by the government, but not used on that side of the case, was on the stand for the defense, and was the first one to break into tears while telling the tragic story of the death of her sister.

She is an attractive little girl of 15, with bright black eyes, but a weak, thin voice. Her description of her glimpse of the intruder who killed her sister was very dramatic. "I saw a pillow case standing up there in the doorway with holes cut in it for eyes. Then I saw a flash. As my brother rushed by me I turned on the light and cried: 'Hurry up, there are burglars in the house.'"

In resuming his outline of the case for the defense, Mr. Joyner said it was not admitted that May was killed with the defendant's revolver. The intruders probably entered by the "screen window," and the pillow cases were used by unskilled burglars. The stockings were used perhaps to deaden the noise of footfalls. He declared that the men were seen running away from the house. The furniture was probably broken in the scuffle with the burglars, he said.

Fosburg's Testimony In Detail

A suppressed stir passed through the court room when the father of the defendant was called to the stand. He gave his business as that of a contractor. He had been in business 15 years. His son was associated with him.

The witness had 260 or 270 men on the payroll. He always paid the men in cash. A mixed class of laborers was employed, mostly Italians. His son took active charge of the men on the work. The witness looked after the work in the office and work not directly connected with the men.

On the fatal night all of the family were at home except Esther. She was visiting at Adams, with Mrs. Daniels. Mrs. Fosburg, Sr., had been in St. Louis for six weeks attending her father, who was ill. She returned home the Saturday before the tragedy. Miss Sheldon was visiting his house. She had been there for about three weeks prior to the tragedy.

The witness then described the doings of the family on Sunday. After supper all sat on the porch until dark, then retired to the house. Mrs. R. L. Fosburg read a story aloud. James also read aloud. Probably two hours was spent in reading. Later Miss Sheldon played and the oldest daughter, May, sang several psalm songs. Mr. Fosburg's eyes kept filling with tears as he vividly described the scenes leading up to the shooting, and many of the spectators wiped their eyes, also. He described the location of the rooms in the same manner as had other witnesses.

Then he told the first part of the fatal story. He had gone to sleep when he was aroused by his wife. He was then lying on his right side. He turned over on his left side, and raised himself up on his left elbow. As he did so he saw two men walk into the room. They stopped by the side of the bed. One had a revolver in his hand. Witness then got his feet off the bed and put them on the floor.

Encounter With Burglars

Continuing, he said: "I uttered a screech which those who heard it say was something awful. When I got on the floor the revolver was within 10 inches of my face. I dodged it and then struck the man's arm. I then closed in, grabbed the man by the arms and forced him to the floor. That is as far as I can remember of what took place in that room, as I was then struck by a sandbag by the other man."

When he came to, witness saw his younger son standing at the balcony window on the east side of the house. He heard Beatrice say: "Oh, mamma, look at May; she's hurt."

Continuing, Mr. Fosburg said: "I went to my daughter's room, and there saw May lying on the floor, her mother by her side and James by her head. Blood was rushing from her mouth. Mrs. Fosburg was calling to Beatrice to get some water and towels. As I bent over her my eldest son, whom I had seen in the kitchen bed room, staggered past me. He fell, his head lying 12 inches from his sister's head. I called for some more water. As Beatrice brought it I threw it in his face, and he revived almost instantly. I picked him up, carried him to his own room and put him on the bed. I then ran to the front window, looking out on the street, opened the window and shouted, 'Police, murder, burglars; we want help.'"

Arrival of Neighbors

Mr. Plumb, who lived across the street, raised his window and asked what was wanted. I said, 'Burglars have been in the house and shot May.' I then went back to where May was lying. Afterward I put on my trousers and went down stairs into the front hall and met Mr. Plumb and Mr. Shepardson. Then I went upstairs again. Beatrice was in the room with her mother and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fosburg and Miss Sheldon were also there. Mrs. Fosburg said: 'Oh, Robert, she is gone.'

"In the meantime, James had been down to the office. At this time he had on his night shirt and trousers. Previous to this he had only his night shirt. I then suggested, as the officers would be coming, all had better dress. Then I dressed. I put on the same clothes I had worn on Sunday. James helped me to dress. I was wounded about the face, but in the excitement I did not notice that I was hurt, until my attention was called to my face. The family was very much concerned in my injuries. While dressing Beatrice called my attention to a hat."

Could Not Identify Hat and Revolver

Counsel Joyner then showed him the brown derby hat that has figured in the case, and witness surprised all in the court room by saying: "I don't think that is the hat that was found in our house." Asked about the revolver, witness said his attention was called to a revolver which was under the bed. The revolver was shown to him and he said: "I cannot identify the revolver."

Asked if he had seen the revolver before, he replied: "I don't remember ever seeing the revolver before. I never had a revolver myself. I had no revolver in the room in which I was sleeping."

When the family finally went down stairs all were fully dressed. His son and wife were down stairs before the others. He had not seen an officer up to that time. The first he saw of one was when he came in with Dr. Schofield. Mr. Fosburg described how they lifted May from the floor and placed her prostrate form on the bed.

A Cross Examination

Mr. Fosburg was turned over to District Attorney Hammond, and the witness, in reply to questions, said the pillowcases came down over the breasts of the burglars. He did not know the length of the time the burglars were in the room. They had gone when James appeared. He had no recollection of anything that happened in the room after being struck.

Witness never stated that he had positive knowledge of three men being in the house. He did not see three men, but he saw someone holding a light, whether a candle or a match he could not say.

Mr. Hammond tried to get witness to admit that he had said he heard pistol shots, and the witness kept replying

SHOT FROM KEARSARGE

Caused Lively Scare Among Citizens of Newport

DID BUT LITTLE DAMAGE

Reason For Firing Shell, Which Evidently Exploded High In Air, Not Yet Explained by Officers of Warship, Who Also Got a Fright

Newport, R. I., July 25.—The screeching of a shell as it passed through the air, and its explosion into fragments that broke a small piece of stone out of the new city hall building and cut a limb from a tree nearby, caused great consternation among Newport citizens last evening. Fortunately no one was injured.

Half an hour later, following the line of the shell, two officers came ashore from the Kearsarge, tracing it to city hall, and obtaining information as to its passage over the city. They examined some of the pieces and pronounced it to have been a one-pounder shell from the Kearsarge, after which they returned without making any explanation.

From the flagship it was learned that the crew was called to quarters at 5 o'clock. The gun crews took their positions, pointed the guns and went through the work of firing. A Nordenfeldt-Maxim automatic gun, in the after fighting top, went off when the crank was turned.

Immediately all was excitement on shipboard, and the officers were making hurried inquiries. The crews in the top declared that a shot had been fired, but that it had struck in the water just short of the wharves. The officers were thereupon dispatched to the shore in order to assure Rear Admiral Higginson that such was the fact.

On the wharf a scared party of fishermen were found, who declared that something had passed over their heads, screeching loudly. Following this tip and the general direction, the officers located the point which the projectile had reached.

How the shot happened to be fired has not been satisfactorily explained. The ship has been engaged, since the breaking up of the camp at Nantucket, in target practice at sea. The gun was last fired on Tuesday afternoon, [illegible] of ammunition were supposed to have been exploded. Tuesday afternoon and yesterday morning there were the usual quarters on shipboard, and the gun should have been pointed and worked as it was last night. But then it did not go off, and last night it did. The matter will be thoroughly investigated, and a court-martial may result.

The damage done ashore amounts to but little, but there was a big fright. This was perhaps more thoroughly appreciated on shipboard than on shore, for there they fully realized the effect of sending a stray shot into a city.

They contended on shipboard that the shell was one that would not explode except by impact, but the indications are that it exploded high in the air, and that it was the fragments that cut the limb of the tree and made the dent in the city hall. Why some of the hundreds of people who gathered at this junction of streets were not hit cannot be explained any more than the reason for firing the shell.

Withdraws From Committee Control

Fall River, Mass., July 25.—At the meeting of the directors of the Sagamore Manufacturing company yesterday the agent of the company was instructed to notify the selling committee that the concern would withdraw from the syndicate agreement at the expiration of 30 days, as provided by said agreement. The Sagamore is engaged in the manufacture of syndicate goods almost exclusively.

Ties Went With Building

Newton, Mass., July 25.—Considerable excitement was created here yesterday over the circulation of a report that an attempt had been made to burn the Newton hospital. The excitement was caused by the burning, by order of the fire authorities, of an unused section of the old contagious wards, to make way for a new ward. Incidentally some 5000 railroad ties were destroyed.

Assault Has Fatal Termination

Pittsfield, Mass., July 25.—James W. Fuller, who was assaulted at the house of correction last Wednesday by Daniel Leary, one of the prisoners, died last evening, as the result of his injuries. Mr. Fuller was 71 years old, and the father of Sheriff Fuller. He was deputy sheriff. Leary is serving a term of two months and eight days for drunkenness and assault.

Good Afternoon.

If this is a good sample of what the dog days of 1901 are to be we should be thankful. There has been hot weather enough for one year.

July 25 is the anniversary of the landing of the first United States troops in Porto Rico, and will hereafter also be the anniversary of the establishment of free trade between the islands and the United States.

The plans of the new government building at Fitchburg appear in the newspapers this week. May those of Quincy appear within a year. Now that this city is a first-class post office, its claims for a suitable building should be recognized.

Public opinion should demand that Congress get at and make public all the facts in the West Indian naval campaign, and settle once for all the Sampson-Schley controversy, which has grown more than tiresome with the assertions and counter-assertions that accompany its periodical revival.

Lynn is another city to report a reduction in tax rate. It would be necessary to go back over ten years in the history of the shoe city, however, to find another instance of reduction, as the tax rate has steadily increased since 1891, when it was $14.60. High water mark last year was $18, and this year the rate is $17.80. If reductions are made for the next ten years the taxpayers of Lynn will be happy. A popular rate is from $16 to $17.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ You can get any sort of evidence about the canteen or the absence of the canteen that suits you best—but if you read all that is put out on both sides, and attempt to judge free from any prejudice you will be about as fuddled as if you had imbibed too generously of the canteen fluids.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Good sense is leading most of us to dress in harmony with our tropic environment, to eat with moderation, to move as lazily as circumstances will permit, and above all to shun worry. Many people permit the heat to nag them, they talk about it, complain, and appear to enjoy inviting all the misery there is to be had. This is as unphilosophic as it is silly. The individual who dominates his environment is so far master of it.—Springfield Republican.

☞ A lady from Ithica, N. Y., who has traveled a great deal, was in Brockton visiting a few days ago. While here she went into a local shoe store to get some footwear for herself. "Now that I am in a famous shoe city," she said to the salesman, "I want to get a pair of the best shoes that you make." She was shown several pairs and selected one which was to her liking. "Would you like to put them on and wear them?" asked the clerk. "No, indeed" was her rather indignant response. "Do you think I would disgrace that pair of shoes by wearing them on such sidewalks as you have here in Brockton? The sidewalks here are the worst that I have ever seen." The clerk was discreet and made no comment.—Brockton Enterprise.

Brockton ought to have a Board of Public Works that will take up the sidewalk problem and carry it to a solution as the one in Lynn is doing. We have been disgraced by the lack of sidewalks in the central part of the city but a transformation is in progress, and before the summer is over we shall have sidewalks to be proud of. If the board does nothing else, it will justify its creation and deserve perpetuation by reason of its systematic work to sidewalk the business portion of Lynn. Already much has been accomplished, and praise of the work is heard on all sides, and when the season's work is finished we shall wonder how it happened that we suffered the neglect so long under the old Adelrmanic do-nothing-except-for-your-friend system.—Lynn Item.

☞ "Children," we are told, are taught many things, but they leave school unable to write a decent letter." Do they? Undoubtedly some children do; certainly some children do not. It depends a good deal on the child, and to quite an extent upon some other influences than that of the school. Some attention to this matter leads us to the conclusion that most children leave school with as much ability to write a decent letter as can fairly be expected of them considering their ability to begin with, their industry in school, and all their environments of home and life. That the child who leaves school at fifteen years of age should write such a letter as might be reasonably required of him after he had had twenty years of succeeding development and of training in some well conducted business establishment is not to be looked for; and yet there are critics of the public schools who seem to demand just this. The child who has fair intellectual ability nd common sense to begin with, who takes a reasonable amount of interest in his studies, and who has the proper care and attention at home, comes out of school as a rule, able to write a decent letter—when the letter is tested by the fact that he is still a child and not a man. All criticism of the schools, to be fair and useful, must remember that the end of the school is not the end of education. In point of fact, it is not much more than the beginning. There is no reason whatever in setting up tests for children which adults of years of the education of the great world are unable to pass.—New Bedford Standard.

Again Under Arrest.

Arthur H. Flowers is again in trouble. A Boston paper reports that at 10 o'clock last evening the stillness along Federal street was broken by the crash of falling glass. Patrolmen Devine and Tangney of division 4 who were in the vicinity made a dash for the place whence the noise seemed to emanate and came in sight of Chandler & Farquhar's hardware store just in time to see a man emerge from the doorway and run down the street.

They followed and soon overtook him. At the station he gave his name as Arthur H. Flowers, 19 years old, and lived in Quincy. The noise which attracted the officer's attention was the smashing of a large pane of plate glass in the door of the store. Flowers was locked up on the charge of attempting to break and enter the building.

Probate Court.

At Probate court in Brookline, on Wednesday, Judge Flint allowed the wills of Mary McMahon late of Braintree, Susan Richardson late of Milton, William Ferguson late of Foxboro, Ellen Chapman late of Providence, R. I., and T. J. Murray of Brookline.

Administrations were granted on estates of Joseph Comey and Susan Stewart late of Foxboro; estate of G. E. Furber late of Brookline, and estate of Mary Mansell.

Trial of Lawrence

It is expected that the official trial of the torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence will be held at an early date She has had several builders' trials since spring in which considerable speed has been developed, although at no time has the weather conditions been all that could be desired

For the past two weeks she has been idle receiving a touch here and there in her machinery, and being prepared for the final test. She will be put in dry dock today or tomorrow to have her hull scraped, so that there will be nothing to retard her progress.

—There is some talk of establishing a women's college of matrimony, to be located in Chelsea, England, where the duties of a wife will become the subject of a two years' course of study. The curriculum will embrace not only the usual branches of housewifery, such as cooking, serving and laundry work, but is intended to deal with physiology and medicine as well, so that the students will receive mental discipline in connection with the manual training.

Pickpocket Caught.

There were several hundred present at the picnic of the Boston pavers at New Downer Landing on Wednesday. There were also two, at least of the light-fingered gentry. One of these who later gave his name as Daniel J. Murphy got a $100 watch almost out of one man's pocket when he was discovered. Strong arms prevented his getting away and he was later arrested by Officers Fitzgerald and Butler of the Weymouth police. Murphy claims to belong in Boston and says his home is at 34 Eustis street. The police however say that he has not given his correct name or address. He was arraigned in Quincy court and held for the grand jury.

At Brockton Next.

Dr. Amos P. Webber, the new president, presided at Wednesday's session of the annual convention of the Sons of St. George in this city. Routine business was transacted, and the following delegates elected at the Supreme lodge meeting to be held in Philadelphia: William F. Barlow, of East Boston, Henry A. Wright of Cambridgeport, Sandy Harrison of Fall River and James Rapson of Quincy.

It was voted to hold the next session of the Grand lodge at Brockton. The session adjourned at 5 o'clock.

TODAY'S COURT.

Daniel J. Murphy was arraigned upon two complaints. One for the attempt at larceny of a watch valued at $50, from Andrew Russell, and the second for the attempt at larceny of a watch valued at $100, from John J. Kelly. Both were at New Downer Landing. Murphy was held in $200 and in $500 until next Tuesday.

Martin Clark was sent to the State farm for being a tramp at Braintree.

Welcome East Wind.

A decided change today in the weather from that of Wednesday, and a very welcome one. The temperature at noon Wednesday was 92 and today at the same hour 68, a difference of 24 degrees. It was roasting hot all day Wednesday until evening. Along about 8 o'clock the wind worked around to the east and the air was immediately cooled. The change was too sudden at the beaches and those who had gone down with the intention of getting cooled off found the change too much, and made all haste to get home.

—An order has been given for the erection of a monument to Jennie Wade on the battlefield of Gettysburg. Jennie Wade was a young Iowa woman who was visiting at the home of her sister in Gettysburg when the battle began. Her fiance was in the Union army, and was killed. She and her sister were in a large brick house almost within the Union lines. On the morning of the third day word came to the house that many soldiers were suffering for want of food, and the women set about making biscuit and bread for the soldiers. Jennie was engaged in this task when a musket ball went through the kitchen, killing the young woman.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

SWIFT SHIPS PLANNED.

Fleet of Four Day Atlantic Liners Proposed.

WOULD BE DRIVEN BY TURBINES.

Crude Texas Petroleum to Be Used as Fuel, and the Vessels Would Make Thirty Knots—Great Saving In Expense—C. R. Flint's Forty Knot Yacht.

Charles R. Flint has a fondness for fast boats. An ordinarily fast craft won't do for him. He must have something that will go through the water faster than any other vessel afloat, says the New York Sun. A few years ago he had a world beater, but somebody built a boat that was as fast or faster, and Mr. Flint then gave a commission to Charles D. Mosher to design and to Ayres of Nyack to build a boat, called a yacht for convenience, which should be able to travel 40 knots an hour. The boat has been called the Arrow, and in a few days she will have her official trials.

Since Mr. Flint gave the commission for a 40 knot boat others interested in fast vessels have been trying to figure out whether it would be possible and profitable to build not a yacht, but an ocean liner, that would cross the Atlantic in four days. One of the persons who took up this problem was George Wilson, president of the Atlantic Shipping company of New York city. Mr. Wilson believes that his engineers and designers have solved the problem by the use of turbine engines driven by the direct impact of the combustion of crude Texas petroleum.

Mr. Wilson says that his company is now making arrangements for the building of ships to cross the Atlantic from New York to Berehaven, in the southwest of Ireland, in three and a half days. He says that, allowing two hours from the company's pier in New York to Sandy Hook and 13 hours from Berehaven to London, passengers and mails would be carried from New York to London in a little less than four and a quarter days, taking into account delays incident to customs examination and the handling of baggage. He says that the vessels contemplated will have an average speed of 30 knots clear across the Atlantic.

This great speed is to be attained, and the company building the ships is going to make money out of the project through the use of the turbine engine and of crude petroleum for fuel. Hitherto it has been supposed that the cost of running an ocean liner much faster, for instance, than the Deutschland, would be too great, and too much cargo space would have to be sacrificed for boiler and engine rooms to make such vessels profitable. Just by way of showing that his company intends to make a good thing out of its four day boats Mr. Wilson says:

"Our intention has been to construct and run first class mail steamers to Europe which shall cross the Atlantic in four days, conveying the Saturday's mail from the New York postoffice to the London postoffice on the following Thursday. At present it is not distributed in London until Monday morning of the next week. The compensation allowed by law for the mail matter which left New York for Europe on Saturdays in 1900, if it had been conveyed in vessels of United States register, would have been $545,086, or $10,500 for each weekly voyage. The Cunard line, which actually carried it, received the reduced rates allowed to foreign ships, or only $184,721. The postoffice department gives the mail to the fastest ships without regard to nationality.

"To enable our ships to cross in four days and pay their way it was evident that great improvements were necessary in the engine room to reduce the cost of fuel and wages. The machinery in our ships will occupy a comparatively small space in the stern.

"It takes 3,200 tons of coal, costing about $9,600, to carry the Deutschland across in 5½ days. It will take 800 tons of crude Texas oil, costing $4,000, to take our ships across in four days. This represents a saving of $5,600 a trip, or $291,200 a year in fuel alone. Besides this we save the wages of all stokers, coal trimmers and half the engineers, which may be estimated at $2,200 a trip or $114,400 a year.

"The difference in the cost of machinery on the Deutschland and on our boats will be about $1,575,000 on one ship. Another thing that must be borne in mind is that we require none of the valuable parts of the ship for the storage of fuel. Our fuel is carried in ballast tanks in the bottom of each vessel, thus economizing the immense amount of space used on the ordinary steamers for fuel."

Mr. Wilson doesn't say when his company is going to begin the construction of the four day ships, but the probabilities are that the first one will not be ready for service during this year at least.

The Scientific American evidently thinks there may be something in the four day steamers, for in an article on "Atlantic Steamships—Present and Future," printed awhile ago, it said:

"If a 30 knot transatlantic steamer makes its appearance within the next few years, it is safe to say that it will be driven by the combination of water tube boilers, using hot, forced draft, with fast running reciprocating engines, using superheated steam, or with turbines of the Parsons type. So great will be the reduction of weights and saving of space achieved by this change that it will be quite within the possibilities to produce on a displacement not much greater than that of the Deutschland a 30 knot ocean steamer that shall have equal accommodations for passengers."

PRAISE FOR FIFTH.

The Regiment to Parade in Boston on Saturday.

The Fifth hopes to show Boston of what it is made on Saturday, which is its full field day, says the Journal. It is proposed to load the horses in the box cars and transport the whole regiment to Boston, leaving South Framingham by 12 o'clock noon and disembarking at the Huntington avenue yard, from whence the line of march may be taken up, down Boylston to Tremont, to Winter, to Washington, through "Newspaper Row," and so by School and Beacon to dismiss on the Common. Lieut. Col. Clement had the regimental staff out on the field Wednesday drilling in the sword exercise and salutes.

Wednesday at evening parade Lieut. Col. Clement received the review under First Sergeants. The First Battalion, under Maj. Morrison, made a well nigh perfect passage, both as to distance and alignment, and the boys were delighted at the generous "hand" extended them in the applause given by the military gentlemen present.

The Major congratulated his men on coming in and they responded with three cheers for their popular commander. The Third Battalion showed a trifling loss of distance, but the regiment as a whole made a fine passage.

The Fifth, continues the Journal, never had a better regiment in this field than it has today. Everybody is remarking upon the personnel. What a task has been accomplished since Col. Oakes took command may be realized from the statement of one captain that he has 34 new recruits in his company of 63 since the first of June. And yet the regiment swung along by Lieut. Col. Clement, its reviewing officer, at evening parade in a way which would have delighted its old Lieutenant Colonel, Captain Weaver of the U. S. Artillery Corps. The regiment clings to the U. S. A. regulation distance of 30 inches from breast to collar of the front and rear ranks and thereby gains much in appearance, abandon and swing.

The criticism is made by returning volunteers of the Twenty-sixth U. S. infantry that there is too much swing, since the regulation is three inches at the limit on each side of the seam of the trousers. It is a natural tendency of the men to swing more to the front than to the rear, but so long as the elbow is not bent, a good full swing gives a dash and verve to the marching column which is very fetching.

NEW NAVAL CONTROVERSY.

Views of Officers on One Started by Rear Admiral Schley.

Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley has opened up another naval controversy as a result of his claim that the cruiser Brooklyn inflicted 58 per cent of the damage done to the Spanish fleet and sustained 54 per cent of the damage suffered by the American squadron, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Herald.

Captain C. E. Clark, in his report on the part played by the Oregon in the battle, stated that "as the vessels (the Spanish ships) were so much more heavily armored than the Brooklyn they might well have concentrated upon and overpowered her, and consequently I am persuaded that but for the way the officers and men of the Oregon steamed and steered the ship and fought and supplied her batteries the Colon and perhaps the Vizcaya would have escaped."

Rear Admiral (then Captain) H. C. Taylor, who commanded the Indiana, stated in his report: "I can say without disparagement of any other vessel that during the first hour of the fight the Indiana's fire contributed to the destruction of the Oquendo and Teresa more than that of any other single vessel of our squadron, except one, and equaled hers."

In his official report Rear Admiral (then Captain) R. D. Evans, who commanded the Iowa, described the damage caused by the Iowa's projectiles upon the two Spanish torpedo boat destroyers and the armored cruisers Vizcaya, Oquendo and Maria Teresa.

Rear Admiral Sampson reported, "Each commanding officer, in my opinion, was personally responsible for the good use which he made of the tools with which he had to work."

The board which reported upon the hits made by the American squadron found five 5 inch shell holes in the Oquendo, six 5 inch shell holes in the Vizcaya and three 5 inch shell holes in the Infanta Maria Teresa. Some of the holes may have been made by 4 inch projectiles. As the Brooklyn was the only ship which carried 5 inch guns the finding of the board establishes that she placed her mark upon every Spanish ship. She, of course, should also be credited with a proportionate share in the 8 inch and 6 pounder hits.

Reporting upon the Brooklyn's injuries, Rear Admiral Schley stated that "the marks and scars show that the ship was struck about 25 times, and she bears in all 41 scars."

Rear Admiral Schley's assertion that the Brooklyn sustained 54 per cent of the injuries received is asserted to be exaggerated by junior officers who discussed the matter the other day. The Iowa is said to have been struck 17 times, the Texas received various injuries, and the Indiana also suffered slightly from the fire of the Spanish ships.

HORRORS OF SHANSI.

Famine Killing Thousands In the Chinese District.

The Chinese consul in New York, Chow Tsz Chi, has received a letter from a native commissioner in China telling of famine which exists in the Shansi district which is killing thousands of persons, says the New York World. In his letter, which is made up of extracts from his diary, the commissioner tells of the journey of his relief party through the towns of Shansi. Following are a few paragraphs taken from the commissioner's letter:

"Our party (seven) left Michi city today. On the way we saw numbers of refugees coming down to the south as thin as skeletons, eating tea leaves and apparently enjoying them.

"Stopped at temporary asylum, where nine of ten lodgers were seriously sick. Gave all medicine in our possession. Superintendent said 10 or 20 fever deaths every day.

"Started for Fung-shiang at 3 o'clock in the morning and saw many dead bodies on the road. In a deserted cafe we met a boy of about 14 dying from hunger. We fed him with bread and water. He told us that both his parents and sisters died two days ago. He cried bitterly, and we all shed tears.

"A dreadful scene in the woods today. A number of birds were fighting for a dead body. Many women and children were crying for mercy and drawing their last breath. We gave away all the provisions we had with us.

"Turned out of our way to a big city and tried to buy some provisions, but could not get any. Had to stop there and wait for our provision wagon. Saw 56 dead bodies."

The commissioner says that wheat is 92 cents, corn 66 cents and green peas 95 cents.

To Protect the Sea Fowls.

Recent investigation by Professor Beyer for the American Ornithological Association of the Louisiana gulf coast for the purpose of stationing wardens to protect the sea birds shows that action was not taken a moment too soon, says the Chicago Post. Professor Beyer found that nearly all the breeding places of the birds had been destroyed by killing the birds themselves and taking their eggs. Not a trace of birds was found on several islands at one time the home of millions of sea fowl.

Kangaroo Ranch In Arkansas.

An Arkansas planter is making arrangements to start a kangaroo ranch, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. The hides are valuable and the tendons much more so. The latter can be split extremely fine and are the best thing known to surgeons for sewing up wounds and especially for holding broken bones together.

Japan's Population.

The population of Japan is increasing at the rate of 400,000 a year.

Process Too Expensive.

Warts are curious things. They come and go mysteriously, although their going is frequently marked by exasperating delays, and there are almost as many infallible cures as there are warts, the only trouble with these cures being that they are useless when applied to the particular wart you happen to have. They are only good for other people's.

"In my opinion,' said a clubman who was discussing the subject with a friend one day, "a wart is merely the outward correspondence of some mental excrescence. Get rid of that, and it goes away.

"Let me give you a bit of my own experience," he continued. "Last year I went to Europe. For about three years I had had a wart on my little finger, on which I had tried everything I could hear of, but without effect. It only grew larger.

"Well, in the excitement of preparing for the trip and of the journey itself I forgot all about my wart, and when I looked for it about six weeks later it had vanished without leaving the slightest mark. I simply forgot it, and it had no mental condition to feed on. I see you have one on the back of your hand. Forget all about it for a few weeks, and it will go away of itself."

"Yes," said the other clubman, shrugging his shoulders, "but I can't afford to take a trip to Europe for the sake of curing one wart."

Sewing Done by Ants.

Ants are credited with so many marvelous accomplishments that a new one must be remarkable to be noteworthy. Mr. E. G. Green of Ceylon, an authority upon insect habits, has, however, made an observation which is well worth putting on record. He has watched red ants holding grubs in their mouths and using the web they spin to repair a rent in their nest.

Some leaves which had been fastened together by the ants were separated by Mr. Green, and in a short time after he saw small white grubs being passed backward and forward across the gap. Closer observation showed that each grub was held in the jaws of one of the worker ants, and its movements were directed as required. A continuous thread of silk issued from the mouth of each grub and was used by the ants to sew up the rent in their shelter.

There were no grubs in the neighborhood, and those used were obtained from a nest at some distance. This deliberate use of a naturally formed web as a sewing thread is as astonishing as any instance of the intelligence of ants yet observed.

Peculiar Trees.

The visitor to the Falkland islands sees a number of what appear to be weather beaten, moss covered bowlders of various sizes scattered here and there. On attempting to turn one over he is surprised to find that it is anchored to the ground by roots of great strength. These are not bowlders. They are trees. No other place in the world can show such a peculiarity of "forest" growth. The Falkland islands are exposed to a strong polar wind which renders it impossible for trees to grow in the proper form. Nature has consequently adapted herself to the prevailing conditions and produced this strange form of plant life. These "living stones," as they are called, are quite devoid of "grain," and it is next to impossible to cut them up and utilize them for fuel.

Its Changing Value.

It was right that the gallant act should be rewarded, but what should she give him?

Ha, a kiss, of course! Were there not men who would pay a great price for that? Truly it was quoted high.

"That," she said as she bestowed it, "is easily worth $100."

"It was," he answered, "but it is not."

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"While in your possession it would bring a good sum," he said, "but in mine it cannot be exchanged for the price of a meal."

However, he was a prosaic sort of fellow at best, and besides he was hungry.—Chicago Post.

Cleanliness In Cooking.

Says a Chinese writer of the eighteenth century: "Don't cut bamboo shoots (the Chinese equivalent of asparagus) with an onion knife. A good cook frequently wipes his knife, frequently changes his cloth, frequently scrapes his board and frequently washes his hands. If smoke or ashes from his pipe, perspiration drops from his head, insects from the wall or smut from the saucepan gets mixed up with the food, though he were a very chef among chefs, yet would men hold their noses and decline."

Canaries.

Canaries, which were originally green and gray in color, were native to the islands from which they take their name and were first taken to England on ships plying between English ports and the south of France. From this stock have been derived a number of distinct varieties, such as the crested, the green, the lizard, which imitates the reptile in its variegated markings, and the Belgian, which has a strange humpback appearance.

The Peanut.

In Tennessee and Georgia the peanut is known as a goober, in Alabama and the western gulf states a ground pea, in the southeast of the United States and in the West Indies a pindal or pindar and in various parts of England a jurnut, an earth nut or a manila nut.

Pingree and Mosby.

When Hazen S. Pingree was coming into prominence in Michigan politics, he was in Washington one night and strolled through the corridors of Willard's hotel, which he had not visited since war times, when it was the popular rendezvous of the city, political, military and otherwise. A friend introduced him to Colonel Mosby, the old guerrilla chieftain.

"Why, hello, colonel," said Pingree in his bluff, offhanded way, just as if he was in the habit of meeting Mosby every day. "I have not seen you for 25 years, but I remember very well the last occasion when we met."

"Ah," said the Virginian politely, "what incident recalls it to your mind? I really fail to remember you, much to my regret."

"Oh, well," said Pingree, "you would not be so apt as I to remember the day. I was captured by your men, and, happening to be wearing a very good, nearly new uniform, you confiscated it on the spot and gave me your old ragged butternuts. But that's all right. All's fair in love and war, I know. Let's have a cigar."

Without a word of protest Mosby accepted, and a long friendly chat followed.

She Was the Ghost.

"A certain lady and her family," says Sir Mountstuart Grant-Duff in his "Diary," "hired a place in Scotland which was haunted by the ghost of a woman who was to be seen constantly at night wandering through the rooms and passages. When the family arrived, the lady was much struck with the place and said, 'I must have been here before, for I know this place so well, only there ought to be two rooms here, and there is only one.'

"The agent replied that within a few weeks the owner had caused a partition to be taken down and made the two rooms into one. Still the lady was puzzled at her knowledge of the place, till she remembered that it was a house she used to go to in her dreams.

"Well, some time passed, and the agent was up at the house again, when the lady complained that one part of the contract had not been fulfilled. They had hired a house and a ghost for the summer, and no ghost had she seen. The agent replied: 'Of course not, because you are the ghost. We recognized you the moment we saw you.'"

LONG GRANTS REQUEST

Court of Inquiry Will Consider the Schley Case

COURT MARTIAL IS BARRED

As Far as Santiago Is Concerned—Dewey Likely to Preside—Schley's Proceeding Simultaneously In Civil Courts Considered a Shrewd Move

Washington, July 25.—Secretary Long, in accordance with a request from Admiral Schley, has advised that officer that he will order a court of inquiry to examine into the entire matter of Admiral Schley's course in the Santiago naval campaign. Later the secretary announced that, owing to the extremely hot weather the court would not meet until September, and that he would turn over his reception room to the court. The secretary said:

"It is too hot now, and I do not believe it would be very comfortable for officers to sit in their heavy full dress uniforms during August. I issued an order some time ago dispensing with the wearing of full dress uniforms during a court-martial, but this case will be so important that every form of official dignity will be observed, even to the guard of marines at the door."

Congress, in 1895, established the principle that no court martial could be held two years after the occurrence under investigation. This is known as the naval statute of limitation, and, while it bars a court-martial relating to the Santiago campaign, it does not bar the court of inquiry. In this case the court of inquiry would be effective only in establishing records, and would not be preliminary to a court-martial.

An important feature in the order directing the court is that specifying whether it shall state only the facts found, or shall also give an opinion based on the facts. Unless the order expressly requires the court to give their opinion they are confined to stating the facts found. It is considered quite probable, however, that in a case of this importance the order would direct the court to record its opinion as well as its conclusion of facts.

Schley's proceedings simultaneously in the civil courts is considered a shrewd move. Whatever may prevent his obtaining exoneration at the hands of his brother officers, it is assumed that a civil jury would give him the benefit of all the technical doubts and award him damages on the mere strength of the violence of the terms used in denouncing him; so that he will be able to point to a "clean bill of health" from a tribunal free from professional jealousies.

Secretary Long yesterday received the letter from Admiral Schley, asking for a court of inquiry. In his letter to the secretary, Admiral Schley does not specify any of the criticisms to which he takes exceptions, but asks, in view of the statements and innuendoes and abusive language contained in Maclay's history, which he says he does not consider worthy of use in any college in the country, that a court of inquiry of the "entire matter" be held. He also asks that the court shall sit in Washington where his papers are stored.

Secretary Long has replied to the letter, saying that "under the circumstances" he heartily approves Admiral Schley's course, and that the department will act favorably upon Admiral Schley's request.

It is stated that Admiral Dewey undoubtedly will be at the head of the court of inquiry. It is not the intention of Secretary Long to have the court convened at once, but to wait until the weather becomes cooler.

There is much speculation as to the members of the court other than Admiral Dewey. Secretary Long himself says there is no warrant for the announcement of any particular name, as he still has the question under advisement. He has been making inquiries as to the advisability of certain officers, and it is understood that some telegraphic inquiries have been made of those absent from the city, to see if there is any reason why they should not serve.

Seeking Maclay's Removal

Washington, July 25.—Representative Mudd of Maryland, a member of the committee on naval affairs in the last house of representatives, called on Secretary Long yesterday and represented to him the impropriety of E. S. Maclay continuing an employe of the government, in view of the language of which he made use of in his history in referring to Admiral Schley. The secretary promised to give the matter his early attention.

How Jones Would Have It

Searcy, Ark., July 25.—In a speech here yesterday, Senator Jones, chairman of the Democratic national committee, expressed the belief that the next president will be a Democrat. His present opinion is that the party might display wisdom in selecting some discreet jurist or now obscure business man, whose record is faultless.

Serious Fighting In China

Shanghai, July 25.—According to native intelligence, Chinese and Russian troops have been seriously defeated by insurgents in the southeastern part of Manchuria, and the rebels are now destroying the telegraph wires.

Clergyman Relieved of Money

Geneva, July 25.—Rev. Mr. Todd, an American clergyman, was robbed of $5000 while on the Paris-Geneva express. He is one of numerous victims of two fashionably dressed women and two presentable men.

FOR THE THIRD TIME

Constitution Defeats Columbia, After a Most Dramatic Start

New London, Conn., July 25.—In a fine southwest breeze over the 39-mile course from New Haven breakwater to the mouth of New London harbor, the Constitution once again showed what a superb racing craft she is in light weather and smooth water. She beat the Columbia yesterday by 8 minutes and 23 seconds, fully and squarely. There were no flukes, the wind holding throughout.

The Constitution and the Columbia very narrowly escaped a disastrous collision as they crossed the line—a collision too, which might have wrecked one or both of the yachts. The rivalry between Captain Rhodes of the Constitution and Captain Barr of the Columbia is intense. As they were maneuvering for the weather gage, just before the start, Barr got the windward position, with the Constitution close under his lee. The steam yacht Narada, which was acting as the committee boat, was anchored at the weather end of the line. The Constitution luffed up sharp, leaving a very narrow passage between herself and the Narada. Barr ran his bowsprit into it, and hailing the Constitution for room to pass went into it in what seemed the most reckless manner. Although Captain Rhodes put his helm up, it was some little time before she paid off. When she at last swung off the bowsprit of the Columbia was nearly grazing the side of the Narada. Captain Barr, to escape a collision with the Constitution, put his helm up and gybed the Columbia, or else the end of her main boom would have struck the topmast rigging of the Constitution. He barely cleared her, and then, luffing up, overcame the boom again, and, close hauled once more on the starboard tack, the Columbia shot ahead and to windward, blanketing the Constitution and luffing out under the stern of the Narada as she stood on her course, 100 yards in the lead.

The Trouble at Latrobe

Springfield, Ills., July 25.—Governor Yates was asked yesterday by telegraph to stop the threatened importation of 200 Birmingham, Ala., negroes to take the places of strikers at the plant of the Latrobe Foundry company, near Chicago. The law says that the importation of an armed body of workmen is made a felony. It is also a felony to import persons who have agreed to work for stipulated wages. As none of these things was alleged in the message asking the governor to interfere, he could see no way under the law to take a hand in the matter.

No New Developments

Pittsburg, July 25.—It is apparent in Pittsburg that fresh and decidedly important developments in the strike of the steel workers are about to take place. At the Amalgamated headquarters it was stated that President Shaffer was away on personal business, and had nothing in hand concerning the strike. The absence of Secretary Williams was also accounted for in the same manner. The question of the manufacturers securing injunctions against the Amalgamated association is discussed guardedly.

Cables Were Insecure

New York, July 25.—A number of the vertical supporting cables of the Brooklyn bridge pulled out of their sockets last evening, and are now dangling in the air. The accident happened at the north side of the New York end of the bridge, and this end sagged from four to six inches. The vertical cables which pulled out were imbedded in the great cables upon which the bridge is hung. What caused the pulling out of the vertical cables is not known.

An Insane Man's Doings

Leavenworth, Kan., July 25.—Michael Kelly, an insane man, entered the office of the Robert Garrett Lumber company and shot six people, killing one, probably fatally wounding another, and more or less seriously wounding the others. He was himself finally killed by the police.

THE DEFENCE.

that he had no recollection or such a thing. The burglar, although pointing the revolver at him as he lay in bed, made no threats and no demand of any kind.

The witness did not remember of burglars showing any hostility to his wife. Witness did not see the burglars leave the house. He had no personal knowledge as to whether they went out at the window or not. There have been no indications of hostility by the laborers at his works.

Mr. Hammond read to witness a number of questions put to him and answers at the inquest. He corroborated most of that testimony, but said there were some things he could not remember.

Beatrice Fosburg Testifies

Beatrice Fosburg was the next witness. She said she was down stairs when Dr. Paddock arrived, and did not see the body of her sister placed on the bed. She remembered that two shots were fired, but she never said that it was the second shot she heard that killed her sister. She denied that at the inquest she had testified that she had no idea who the first shot was fired at. She did state at the inquest that she was directly behind May when the shot was fired which caused her death.

She denied testifying that she did not know where the defendant was when the shot which resulted in her sister's death was fired. She never said that no one was in her room when the shots were fired. The witness also denied that she had testified that she turned on the light after her sister fell, and that she heard a shot before her sister fell to the floor. This testimony was given in reply to questions as to what she had testified to at the inquest. Beatrice said she saw no light before she got out of bed; that May got up first and ran around the bed to the doorway and had reached the door into the hall when she was shot.

Upon redirect examination the witness said she did not see her brother Robert before she saw the flash from the pistol which caused her sister's death. He was coming from his room when this shot was fired. The witness said she had never told any person that she did not see Robert until he was in the back hall, after her sister fell.

Neighbors Give Testimony

James P. Shepardson, one of the first of the neighbors to arrive at the scene of the tragedy after May was shot, was then called. His acquaintance with the Fosburg family began on the night of the tragedy. Their bookkeeper, Mr. Lund, boarded at his house. He sat on the lawn with Mr. Lund that evening and heard the music over at the Fosburg house. They retired at 10:30, and he was awakened early in the morning by the violent ringing of his doorbell. He found James Fosburg there. James had his trousers on, a shirt with sleeves rolled up, and no shoes and no hat. James told him that his sister had been hurt, and wished to know where to find a doctor.

Mr. Shepardson told him of Dr. Roberts, and when James left to get him witness woke Mr. Lund, then dressed and went over to the Fosburg house. At the house he saw Mr. Fosburg, Sr. Witness and Harry Plumb then went to call Officer Chapman at the latter's house. Witness then returned to the Stanley office to telephone for a doctor and the police. On the way he overtook Mr. Lund, and together they went to the Stanley Electric company's office, where they found James Fosburg trying to telephone. He had great difficulty, and asked witness if he would telephone. "I got a doctor and notified the police station," the witness said. "My wife and her sister, Miss Chapin, who lived with us, then went with me to the Fosburg house."

All Looked Grief-Stricken

He then told of the persons whom he saw down stairs, and said: "I remember young Mrs. Fosburg's appearance. She was leaning against the wall and had a distracted look upon her face. They all looked grief-stricken and greatly excited."

Mr. Shepardson discribed the condition of the family at their house, and then said he went to his own home, got a lantern, lighted it and gave it to Officer White. The lantern chimney was smoking. He was not upstairs in the Fosburg house at this time, and had not been there until within six weeks.

He was cross-examined at considerable length. Witness could not say positively that he handed the lantern to Officer White, and he did not know whether Mr. White personally used the lantern or not. He could not tell what time it was when James Fosburg called him. It was 1:56 o'clock when he went into the Fosburg house, by a clock on the stairs. He remembered that James went toward the Stanley office when he left witness' house. He discovered the electric light button on the cellar stairway turned off when he went down cellar early in the morning to get some wood. He could not tell whether the open hatchway was or was not opened by a member of the family. The night was fairly dark, but not pitch-dark. He thought the stars were shining, but could not tell whether the moon was shining or not.

Reporter First on Scene

Mrs. Shepardson, wife of the preceding witness, was the last person on the stand. She said she was awakened that night by the ringing of the doorbell very loudly and continuously. She heard her husband and James talking, and when he informed her what it was, she dressed, awakened Mr. Lund and her sister. She heard the cries and excitement, and heard someone say: "O, she is dead." Her sister and herself went over to the house, and she helped Mrs. R. S. Fosburg down stairs, because she seemed so dazed. It seemed to witness that the first man she saw that night around the house was a reporter. This was before Dr. Schofield came. She had seen all the household except the parents before Dr. Schofield came. She was holding Beatrice some of the time. "She was crying, and I thought I could console her. I had been there about 25 minutes before they (Mr. and Mrs. Fosburg, Sr.) came down stairs. I did not see Dr. Paddock at all. Mrs. Fosburg did not leave the down stairs bed room as long as I stayed in the house, which was until 5 o'clock. The nurse discovered a bruise on Mrs. Fosburg's neck which she dressed."

On cross-examination she said she did not know what time Dr. Paddock came or what time he went. She did not know positively whether or not Beatrice was upstairs that night.

Court adjourned at 4:45 until today.

Lister Disagrees With Koch

London, July 25.—The Daily Mail publishes an interview with Lord Lister, in the course of which he says that he is unable to believe the statement of Professor Koch that human beings could not get consumption through drinking milk from diseased cows, the evidence to the contrary being far too overwhelming.

Bridget Wielded a Knife

Boston, July 25.—Bernard McNulty and his wife, Bridget, had a quarrel at their home last evening over his refusal to wash the supper dishes. Bridget became enraged, and jabbed a knife into her husband's left breast and also inflicted a bad wound on the side of his head, neither of which is considered fatal. Bridget was locked up.

Hanged Himself From Door Knob

Brockton, Mass., July 25.—Martin Schou, a painter, 62 years old, tied a cord around his neck and slipped it over a door knob, bringing himself to a sitting position, which caused him to strangle to death. No reason is known for the suicide.

Charge Not Sustained

Boston, July 25.—Stephen Fastbender, a bartender, was acquitted in the municipal court yesterday on a charge of manslaughter, in causing the death of Olaf Olsen in the saloon of Sullivan & Co., on Hanover street, last Friday.

Short and Sweet.

Perhaps one of the shortest courtships was that of an eminent jurist. He was on his way to hold court in a town when he met a young woman returning from market.

"How deep is the creek and what did you get for your butter?" asked the judge.

"Up to the knee and ninepence," was the answer as the girl walked on.

The judge pondered over the sensible brevity of the reply, turned his horse, rode back and overtook her.

"I liked your answer just now," he said, "and I like you. I think you would make a good wife. Will you marry me?"

She looked him over and said, "Yes."

"Then get up behind me, and we will ride to town and be married."

She did get up behind, and they rode to the courthouse and were made one. It is recorded that, brief though the courtship had been, the marriage proved a pre-eminently happy one.

A Remarkable Suicide.

One of the most remarkable cases of suicide was that of the king of Falaha, on the west coast of Africa.

The king was attacked by a Mohammedan force, and, finding resistance impossible, he assembled his family and principal officers, and after addressing them and intimating his determination never to accept Mohammedanism and inviting those who did not agree with him to go away he applied a light to a large quantity of gunpowder collected for the purpose and blew into atoms the palace and all who were in it.

Bottles.

In using bottles these two hints ought to be so borne in mind that the practice of them becomes habitual:

Always keep the label uppermost when pouring from a bottle, so that if any liquid trickles down the side the label misses it. Result—your labels keep clean and legible for much longer.

Secondly, if you want to deliver drops (or a very small quantity) of liquid just moisten the lip of the bottle with the finger.—Exchange.

Trouble Either Way.

Mrs. De Good—Why aren't you going to church?

Mr. De Good—Last Sunday the roof leaked, and three or four drops went down my back.

Mrs. De Good—The roof has been repaired since then.

Mr. De Good—Huh! Then they'll be wanting money to pay for the repairs.—New York Weekly.

Steered Straight.

"If I thought that any girl would accept me," casually remarked the bashful Mr. Dolyers, "I'd propose tomorrow."

"Why not this evening?" asked Miss Fosdick coyly.

The affair will take place in about a month.—Detroit Free Press.

First Public Pianist.

Of all the myriads who play the piano how many know that "Tom Bowling" Dibdin was the first man who played the instrument in public? That was in 1767, and the feat was performed at the first night of "The Beggar's Opera."—Invention.

Ants can stand extremes of heat and cold. Forty-eight hours' exposure to frost will not kill them, and one sort has been observed to build its nest in chinks in a blacksmith's forge.

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Sewing as a business is an exacting and exhausting occupation. Long hours, fine work, poor light, unhealthy atmosphere—these are only some of the things which fret the nerves and hurt the general health. Often there is a diseased condition of the womanly organism which causes backache or headache and the working of the sewing machine under such conditions is akin to torture.

Thousands of women who work have written grateful letters to Dr. R. V. Pierce, whose "Favorite Prescription" has cured their womanly ills and established their general health. "Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries unhealthy and offensive drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free, and so avoid the indelicate questionings, offensive examinations and obnoxious local treatments deemed necessary by some physicians. All correspondence private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for female weakness," writes Mrs. Susannah Permenter, of Pauls Store, Shelby Co., Texas. "I was troubled with bearing-down pains in my back and hips for six years, and wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. I tried his 'Favorite Prescription' and six bottles cured me. I feel like a new person and I thank Dr. Pierce for my health. Life is a burden to any one without health. I have told a great many of my friends about the great medicine I took."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Testimony Completed In Fosburg Trial

Defendant's Mother Relates a Pathetic Story

Neighbors Corroborate Family's Story of Burglars Being About

Pittsfield, Mass., July 26.—In the Fosburg manslaughter case yesterday, Mrs. R. L. Fosburg, the gray-haired mother, mourning for a lost daughter, went upon the witness stand, and told in simple words how her daughter May passed from her life; told how masked men entered her room, appearing before her with hideous coverings upon their heads; told of her husband's encounter in the bed chamber; told of how she heard her little daughter, Beatrice, cry out, "O, mamma, look at May," and described the torturing scene when she found her daughter lying upon the floor in the agonies of death, and then saw her eldest son fall down unconscious by the side of his sister.

But if the testimony was given by the mother with simplicity, it could not have been given with more pathos, and it could have been spoken in no way which would more affect the great crowd of people who heard it. If the mother told it with dignity, she also told it with frequently uncontrolled emotion. Her voice failed her, and she shed tears. The other members of the family sat listening to her word-picture and suffered because of what it recalled to them.

Miss Sheldon a Witness

"Did you notice the relations of the family while you were there?"

"I did. They were very devoted and affectionate."

"And would you say that of all the members?"

"Yes."

These were among the questions which were put to and answered by Miss Bertha L. Sheldon of Providence, who went on as a defense witness yesterday. By her testimony the defense wished to show that there were burglars in the house and that they were seen by little Beatrice.

There was a long argument between counsel over the government's objections to the admission of this evidence, but the court finally allowed it to go in because what was said was spoken in the presence of the defendant.

Miss Sheldon was relating the story of her awakening by a "piercing scream," and declared that she opened the door leading to May's room and cried, "What is the matter?" Robert, Beatrice and her father and mother were in the bedroom at the time. Witness saw the body of May upon the floor, and at that instant Beatrice replied, "Burglars have entered the house and shot May."

Another point of interest in Miss Sheldon's testimony was that relating to the reason she left the Fosburg house so suddenly after the tragedy, and as to why she was refused permission from her father to attend the inquest. She said she felt that she ought to get away as soon as possible from the house, as she would only be in the way there. As to her failing to testify at the inquest, she declared she was willing to do so, but her father would not permit it, solely on account of her ill health. Mr. Sheldon, who was present, testified to the truth of his daughter's statement.

Corroborative Evidence

There were many witnesses who gave corroborative evidence yesterday, among them the shoe salesmen from New York, both of whom identified the single shoe found in the house, saying they sold it to someone. There were also Mr. Lund, the bookkeeper, who identified checks and letters signed by Robert L. Fosburg and his son, the defendant, on July 5, 1900, the day the shoes were sold; and Harry S. Plumb, a neighbor, who heard the screams and pistol shots, the cries for help, and also saw the footprints on the ground. This witness was corroborated by his wife.

Mrs. B. E. Bullard, now of Madison, Wis., declared that on the fatal night about midnight she heard two men talking loudly in front of her house, and that after they had gone about an hour she heard pistol shots far off.

Mrs. Nellie Beverly of East Cheshire, who at the time lived in Pittsfield, testified that her husband was very sick on the night of Aug. 20, and she claimed that he was disturbed by the loud breathing of two men who had stopped running when opposite her house. She opened the blind and told one of the men, who was standing by a tree, to go away. The incident excited the sick man so greatly that as a result he died two days later.

Burglary Theory Strengened

One important circumstance bearing out the theory of burglary which the defense sets up was borne out yesterday by former Chief Hazen of the United States secret service, who appeared as a witness for the defense. He testified to an interesting experiment which was made Wednesday evening in the house occupied by the Fosburg family on the night of the tragedy. The window screen, which has played such an important part in the case, was loaned by the prosecution to James Fosburg, for the purpose of experiment. In the evening it was carried to the house and adjusted in the window in the same position which it originally occupied at the time of the killing of May L. Fosburg.

"The screen," said former Chief Hazen, "was adjusted in the window and raised 11 inches from the window sill. Three of us, Mr. Shepardson, Mr. Lund and myself made the experiment. We marked a point nine feet from the window, and all three of us in succession started from that point and clambered through the window. I succeeded in getting through in five seconds by a stop watch. The time of the other men was 3 4-5 seconds, and 4 seconds."

Mrs. Fosburg's Testimony

Mrs. R. L. Fosburg, dressed in deep mourning, with a crepe veil thrown back, took the stand at 2:25 p. m. She said her name was Esther Stewart Fosburg, that she was the wife of Robert L. Fosburg and the mother of Robert S. Fosburg. Robert, she said, will be 30 years old next month. May was 24 when she died. Robert has been married more than three years. He and his wife did not live with the older Fosburgs until about the middle of July, when she went to St. Louis to attend her father, who was ill. His name is James Stewart.

James was at college at the time that Robert and his wife came to live with them. She came home from St. Louis Saturday, Aug. 18. She remembered everything that happened on Sunday, telling virtually the same story as the other members of the Fosburg family.

She was awakened in the night by a light. She thought it was one of the family, and called out, "Who is it?" Instantly the two men came into the room. The first I saw was the masks on their faces. "The horns stood up and looked like devils."

Continuing, she said: "I screamed and awoke my husband. The next thing I knew was Mr. Fosburg was grappling with the men. I jumped out of bed and onto the burglars. The next thing I knew was when I heard Beatrice call out, 'Ma, May's hurt.' I saw May lying in a corner of the room, just inside the door."

"I lifted up her head. Her eyes were set back in her head. James was there. We were going to lift her up to place her on the bed, and the blood gushed from her mouth."

Witness saw Miss Sheldon. Robert then fell near May. Some one said, "They are both gone."

Continuing, witness said: "I called for water. Beatrice got water, and some one got towels. I tried to resuscitate May, but her eye lids closed and she was gone. I turned to Bert, who was trying to get up. I next straightened out the hands of the girl who was so willing and so good. I remember hearing Mr. Fosburg say, 'We must get dressed.' While dressing, I knew Beatrice picked up the hat, and then I saw my boy dropping backward over his sister.

"Oh, mamma," he said, "her eyes won't open."

"Don't say that; don't say that," I said.

No Officer Spoke to Her

The witness said no officer spoke to her. "I didn't speak to an officer until May was in her grave. I didn't speak to Dr. Paddock. He must have been mistaken. I saw him while at breakfast. I tried to get up to speak to him, but my sons would not let me. I asked Dr. Paddock if he had a daughter of his own. I didn't want an autopsy, but I knew it had to be done."

The witness was hurt, but she didn't know it until the family noticed it. She went to James' room when neighbors came in to comfort her. She had been given ammonia, and she asked for more. A nurse came and asked her if she had a stiff neck. When she saw her child lying there all thoughts of herself vanished, and she didn't know she was hurt. The witness didn't see Robert until he staggered back unconscious near May. In reply to a question, Mrs. Fosburg said: "It was not Robert who killed May. It was a burglar."

She saw Dr. Paddock late in the afternoon of Monday. He prescribed for her, and it was then that he saw her neck. "That's what he meant when he testified," said witness. "I never told Dr. Paddock I didn't see a burglar. I couldn't have done so."

Witnesses In Rebuttal

Mrs. Fosburg was the last witness of the day, and immediately after her testimony was concluded the defense rested. In rebuttal the state called six witnesses. The first was Mr. McKay of the state police, who stated that Beatrice had stated in his presence that she saw no one in the Fosburg house but members of the family at the time of the shooting.

Patrick Parker, superintendent of detectives of Providence, testified that he visited Miss Sheldon in company with Detective Whitney, about Sept. 20. Whitney did most of the talking. Miss

SERIOUS ALLEGATIONS

By a Stockholder of the Seventh National Bank

FALSE REPORTS OF OFFICERS

Said to Have Blinded Stockholders as to the True Condition of Affairs—Alleged Loans to Insolvents Without Adequate and Valid Security

New York, July 26.—William E. D. Stokes, who is a stockholder of the Seventh National bank, has taken out summonses in the supreme court against the directors of the bank, President Thomas and Receiver Raynor.

E. R. THOMAS.

The complaint charges the directors with making reports to the stockholders to the effect that the capital of the bank was unimpaired and the the bank was solvent, when, as a matter of fact, it was already insolvent. It further charges that the directors "utterly failed and neglected to perform their official duties;" that they "suffered and permitted the accounts of said bank to be kept in an inaccurate manner, which failed to show the true condition of its affairs."

In the complaint the directors are further charged with having employed incompetent persons as officers of the bank, "who were unable to properly and efficiently discharge their duties, all of which was well known to the directors."

After having further charged them with having given loans to insolvent persons and corporations without adequate and valid security, the complaint goes on:

"That the said directors, defendants herein, so negligently and carelessly conducted the said bank and the business and affairs thereof, that the entire capital and surplus, and much of the property and effects thereof, have been lost, and a stock of the said bank rendered liable for a large sum of money on account of the debts of the said bank remaining unpaid."

The plaintiff then demands judgment for the total amount of his loss as a stockholder of the bank, and the costs of the suit.

Invention Recognized by Government

Boston, July 26.—The Boston Submarine Signal company has obtained a special permit from the United States government to erect a cable house on Egg Rock. The company proposes to establish a system of submarine signalling by which vessels bound into Boston harbor may determine their position within a dozen miles from shore, and thus escape the danger of approaching too near the dangerous shoals and ledges in the entrance to Boston harbor.

Difficulties Removed

Pekin, July 26.—The deadlock of the ministers of the powers has ended. Russia has withdrawn her proposal to increase the duties to 10 percent, and has accepted, with some important reservations, Great Britain's counter-proposal that the sources of revenue ear-marked now shall be considered adequate, the powers providing for a shortage if it arises.

Seven Persons Injured

Manchester, Mass., July 26.—The summer residence of James Means of Boston was burned last night, as the result of a tremendous explosion of gas, and seven of the 11 persons in the house at the time were more or less injured, one person possibly fatally, Miss Klems of Philadelphia, who was a guest of the Means family.

Parents Are Worried

Brockton, Mass., July 26.—Gardner Jones, 17 years old, rode on his bicycle to the home of Fred Flanders Sunday afternoon, and since then has not been seen or heard from. He had intended to go to Lakeside park. His parents fear accident or foul play.

New President In Office

Santiago, July 26.—Jerman Riesco was formally proclaimed president of Chili yesterday. He was elected to this office June 25.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

Newburyport is the first city to report an increase in tax rate, but then only one city has reported a lower rate this year, so that Newburyport makes a good showing. Her tax rate is $15.80.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The doctors who claim that appendicitis can be communicated from one person to another through sympathy are getting treacherously near the ground of the Christian Science-faith cure theory of sickness for, if mental power can transmit disease why can it not cure it?—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Edward Everett seems to me, on the whole our best example of the orator, pure and simple. Webster was a great statesman, a great lawyer, a great advocate, a great public teacher, and all these his matchless oratory was but an instrument and incident. But Everett is always the orator. He was a clergyman a little while. He was a Greek professor a little while. He was a college president a little while. He was minister to England a little while. He was representative in congress and senator. He was governor of the Commonwealth. In these places he did good service enough to make a high reputation for any other man. Little of these things is remembered now. He was above all things—I am tempted to say, above all men — the foremost American orator in one class.—Senator Hoar in July Scribner.

☞We may learn in time that a city cannot afford ugly architecture any more than it can afford unsanitary conditions or inadequate transit facilities. It is not wise to underestimate the influence of material surroundings on our lives. Who has not felt the depressing effect of a mean and sorrowful environment, or the thrill of delight experienced on entering a noble building or standing amid the artistic splendors of a scene like that of the "White city" at Chicago in 1893? Architectural beauty is one of the chief sources of the popularity and prosperity of such cities as Paris, Berlin, Venice and Vienna; it is worth millions to them, as their citizens and others are well aware. Monuments and mountains, esplanades and embankments and arcades are there looked upon as a sound investment of the public funds. The experience of the Chicago and Omaha expositions proves that the same thing is true in this country. It is safe to say that nine-tenths of their visitors found their keenest pleasure and most vivid impressions to come from the contemplation of the magnificent architecture of these cities: it was this which drew and fascinated the crowds, far more than what was to be seen within the buildings.—Harper's Weekly.

2.10 Time at Readville.

Gazette paced in 2.10 at Readville, Thursday and won the purse in the 2.08 class in three straight. View View also won in three straight in the 2.20 class, and Ward took first place in the 2.17 trot.

☞The Brockton Enterprise says, You cannot tell just where the canal is going by the lines of the survey made, but can find the line runs through your land, for instance, it does not necessarily mean that you will be obliged to open and shut the door every time a boat wishes to pass through.

THE HOSTESS FIRST.

Outsails Chewink and Rooster in Hull Open Race.

The Hostess, the Quincy cup defender appears to be in fine trim this season, and won easily in Class D in the Hull open race on Thursday making the best time of the day.

In Class C the Hustler had a walkover.

In Class D the Little Peter withdrew and the Flirt outsailed the Chewink.

The Runaway Girl easily ran away from the Gerha.

There were seven entries in Class S and it was close between the Eaglet and Opilsah III for first place, but it was won by the former; Tobacco III took third prize.

The Fantasy left the Lobster far stern in Class I, and the Vitesse served the "Can't Help It" the same way in Class X.

Class I had thirteen entries and the prizes were taken by the Oom Paul, Malillian and Kittie Wake.

Only 15 seconds separated the tenders of T. W. King and J. P. Mead in the D. Y. C. tender race. Won by the former.

The Late Mr. Tainter.

Mr. Alfred B. Tainter who died at his summer home at Great Hill, this week, had been ill for nearly a year. Mr. Tainter was born in Hingham, and in his youth went with his parents to Watertown. Later the family removed to Newton. For many years Tainter conducted the Newton & Boston express, and retained an interest in the business up to about 20 years ago, when he retired. For 25 years he had made his home at 40 Highland avenue. He was a member of the Newtonville Universalist church. He was about 60 years of age. A wife, and two sons survive him.

Led the Brigade.

One of the most pleasing things of the review was the placing Signal Corps, Lieut. Sprague at the head of the brigade. The command which has done as hard work as any in the field in clambering over roofs and climbing poles looked extremely well and very business like.

Lieut. Sprague is well known in Quincy, being a brother-in-law of Joseph W. and Robert Johnson.

No More at Neponset.

The Journal says, the case of J. M. Costello & Co., who applied to the Police Board for a transfer of license from Dover street to Neponset was not given a hearing Thursday as had been anticipated. Costello was told by the board that no more licenses were to be granted in that district and they could not entertain his application even by giving it a hearing.

Granite Men's Outing.

The Granite manufacturers of Quincy will also go to Crescent Park, Rhode Island, for their annual outing, making the trip of the Providence division from Boston, Saturday, Aug. 3. Some who will attend are already in training for the base ball game and other sports.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

Was Displayed Thursday on Great Hill.

Recent Arrivals at Quincy-by-the-Sea.

A red weather signal flag floating from the observatory at Great Hill, Wednesday, was the cause of considerable excitement at Houghs Neck. One man got so excited over it that he telephoned the police to find out if there was a case of small pox, and, if not, why the flag was shown. Hearing of the trouble he was causing the proprietor took in his flag.

He Saw It. Will You?

One who has recently returned from the Pan-American at Buffalo opines thus:—"It would be difficult for the most gifted writer to adequately portray and describe this wonderful Exposition." In the choice of the site, a most ideal selection was made and the person who has not visited the grounds has but a slight conception of the marvellous beauty and colorings of the buildings. What was a barren waste is now a most artistic park land adorned with a wealth of foliage and innumerable fantastically designed beds of flowers. The part played by electricity in the mammoth show has never been equalled and the grounds and buildings are dazzlingly radiant with an electrical illumination which is to the beholder almost bewildering. The Midway is the best yet, according to exposition goers, and in a few, all too short, hours one gets an inkling of the lite of half a dozen countries. Uncle Sam has an exhibit which is the admiration of every visitor. Music, and there is music everywhere, and by fine bands and musical organizations, too. Every visitor gets his money's worth and ten times over at that. There are a thousand other features which might be mentioned, but you will see them when you get to Buffalo.

Did you know that the Boston & Maine has several routes to Buffalo? either one of which has attractive features galore; and if you are a Pan-American tourist, send to the General Passenger Department of the Boston & Maine Railroad (X), Boston, for the book "Pan-American Information." it's a corker, and you'll enjoy perusing it. It's free for the asking.

Letter from New Mexico.

Las Vegas, July 20, 1901.

Dear Folks at Home:

The country here is called "God's Country," and you would see how true that is, if you were out here. Every day is like Sunday. It is very quiet. People do not shout at all. Drivers of teams turn out to let you pass. I hear no swearing, and have not seen a single person drunk, although there are saloons. The people are the best hearted in the world. The animals used for work are horses, broncos, mules, donkeys and burros. I think the burros are very interesting. They are like very small donkeys. They can carry heavy burdens, and always walk with eyes searching the ground.

Have been to see the curio store where they have Mexican and Indian curiosities. It was very interesting. There was a big thunder storm one evening, it was rather bad, but did not last long. Ernest is in excellent health and is getting better every day; weighs 163 1-2 pounds. He lost some on his trip to Santa Rosa. He is having a vacation while we are here. We are enjoying our trip very much and Ernest is as lively as a cricket. We go for walks and trips around this place. Mother is getting on very well, and is quite smart. This trip has done her much good. We go to see the ranch today, and Ernest goes with us.

We start for home Saturday, July 27; one week from today and get home Tuesday, 30th of July at night. All three of us are very well. We hope things are going fine. Do not write again — for we would not likely get it. With love to all. Alice Dunn.

FOSBURG ACQUITTED.

Judge Stevens Takes Case from Jury and Discharges the Defendant.

[Special to the Quincy Ledger.]

Pittsfield, July 26.—Robert S. Fosburg is acquitted of the charge of manslaughter, in causing the death of his sister, May, on Aug. 26, 1900. Judge Stevens this morning allowed the motion of the defence, and ordered a verdict of acquittal for the defendant.

JACK THE HUGGER.

Aristocratic Adams Street Has Attractions for Him.

Quincy has a "Jack the Hugger." He makes his stamping ground on Adams street near the residence of Hon. William B. Rice. There have been numerous complaints of a man who addresses women who happen to be in this part of the city at night. The fellow seems to be getting bolder and bolder, and Wednesday night he hugged a domestic employed by Mr. Harry L. Rice. It was along about 10 o'clock Wednesday night when the girl was on her way home unaccompanied. When near the residence of Hon. William B. Rice, a man suddenly made his appearance and placed his arms about her and attempted to hug her. She managed to break away from him and ran home. The police were informed by telephone and Offiers Murray and Golden went up but could find no trace of the fellow.

A New Excuse.

One of the men in a large pottery took two or three days' holiday now and again, and when he came back, on being asked what was wrong, he said he had been away burying his grandmother.

He did this two or three times, and then he thought he had better change his excuse, so, on being asked the next time, he replied:

"Well, my brother, the sailor, is at home just now, and he is so used to the sound of the waves that I had to lash pailfuls of water on the window all night before he could sleep, and then I had to sleep during the day."

Too Smart.

"Huh!" exclaimed Mr. Rox after reading his morning mail. "Our boy's college education is making him too blamed smart."

"What's the matter?" asked Mrs. Rox.

"I wrote to him the other day that I thought it would be kinder for me not to remit the check he asked for. Now he writes, 'Dear father, I shall never forget your unremitting kindness.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Cruel.

Old Aunt (on her deathbed)—I am just making my will, my dear Heinrich. I know, alas, too well that you are not religiously disposed and have no desire to promote the cause of—

Nephew (hastily)—Beg your pardon, aunt; quite the contrary.

Aunt—Heaven be praised! Then you will be glad to hear that I have left all my property to the church!—Humoristische Blatter.

The Unicorn.

Chinese annals of great antiquity contain numerous detailed accounts of the supposedly fabulous unicorn, in which the description are identical with those handed down from the earliest times in the mythology or occidental countries. From this it is inferred that at some time in the remote past there actually did exist a single horned equine or cervine animal of some sort.

—Lincoln, N. J., known as the "woman's town," has gone into bankruptcy. Now the women will undergo the experience of being the bargain sale instead of attending one.

—Several people have condemned the national hymn, but then there are some people who would condemn anything that savored of patriotism.--Lynn Item —The valuation of Everett is $605,350 more than last year, and the tax rate ten cents less or $16.60. North Adams shows an increase of $488,038 in valuation, and reduced its tax rate $1 to $18.50.

—The school committee of Winthrop have elected as superinteudent, Mr. William H. Winslow of Bath, Me., at a salary of $1,800.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

Moonlight Dips.

The Atlantic bathers have arranged many moonlight dips for next week. The absence of a public bath house necessitates all who live within reasonable distance of the beach to don their suits at home unless some kind friend opens the door of his private bath house to a stray outsider.

This fact of walking through the streets in bathing costume is unpleasant to many and it is with great joy that the moon and tide come together for many wander down to the beach by moonlight who have to be observers of the swimmers in daylight.

Rather Venomous.

A tenderfoot who visited the Yosemite in the old days thus related his experience: The stage driver found out that he was seriously afraid of snakes and immediately proceeded to make his hair stand on end.

"Venomous reptiles? You bet. I don't know what reptiles is, but them snakes you can just bet your life is venomous. Why, one day I was comin down here drivin a wagon, when I catches sight of a snake in the brush all ready for a spring. My horses starts, an I whips 'em up fast to clear the snake, don't you see, afore he could spring. He makes one clear spring, the snake does, an he misses the horses."

"That was lucky. But you—you"—

"Lucky? You bet your life it was lucky. He missed the horses, the snake did, but he stuck his fangs clean through the wagon."

"You don't say!"

"I do say, and maybe you don't believe it, but it's a fact. He stuck his fangs clean through that wagon, an that wagon is swelled up so bad that we had to leave it by the wayside and take the horses home."

Dogs and Somersaults.

As there is more than one way of cooking a goose, so there is more than one method of teaching a dog to throw somersaults. But the most practical and thorough manner is to fasten a cord around the body of the animal close to the forelegs, and two people should hold the ends of the cord on either side of the unfortunate dog.

A third party armed with a stout rope takes a position immediately in front of the canine acrobat and with a measured and masterly stroke flogs the floor at close quarters to the dog's nose.

At each stroke of the rope the dog springs backward, and that movement is the trainer's golden opportunity. As the dog springs backward the rope passing under its body is jerked upward, and, although the first few attempts may prove futile, the somersault is acquired in course of time. An intelligent dog soon sickens of this order of things and throws somersaults without the assistance of ropes.

A Blunt Query.

A good story is told of one of the dignitaries of the Scottish church. Before he became known to fame he was minister of a remote parish in Perthshire and was not considered a particularly attractive preacher. At his suggestion extensive alterations were made in the transept of his church, and these had the effect of sweeping away considerable seating accommodation. One day after the alterations had been effected he visited the church to see how it looked.

"What do you think of the improvements, John?" he asked of the beadle.

"Improvements!" exclaimed John in disdain. "They're no improvements at a'. Whaur are ye goin to put the folk?"

"Oh," said the minister, "we have abundance of room, John, considering the size of the congregation."

"That's a' very weel the noo," retorted the beadle, "but what will we do when we get a popular meenister?"

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

Tom—"Mary, did I understand you that your attack of rheumatism was cured by Christian Science, so called?"

Mary—"No, sir. The attack of Christian Science was cured by an attack of rheumatism.—Buffalo News.

Dozens In England.

Don't imagine that a dozen always means 12 things. In the Staffordshire potteries and in the earthenware trade a dozen to this day represents that number of any special article which can be offered at any fixed price.

For instance, the pitchers, which are called jugs in the trade, are sold as 2, 3, 4, 6, 9, 12, 18, 24, 30 and 36 pieces to each dozen, the price for a dozen being constant.

The ordinary pitcher holding a quart represents 12 to the dozen, while a pint pitcher is 24 to the dozen and is so called when dealing with that size.

Few of the articles of the trade are sold in dozens of 12, plates being almost the only ones and some of them being sold 60, 70 and even 80 to the dozen.

Besides these curiosities in figures the potters have peculiar names, such as cockspurt, twiflers, etc., that make up a trade language of itself.

The baker's dozen of 13 is a recognized figure in their trade.

A publisher's dozen is usually 13 copies.

Among fishermen in Cornwall a long dozen consists of 26.—London Answers.

Work of the Earthworm.

When we behold a wide, turf covered expanse, we should remember that its smoothness, on which so much of its beauty depends, is mainly due to all the inequalities having been slowly leveled by worms. It is a marvelous reflection that the whole of the superficial mold over any such expanse has passed and will pass again every few years through the bodies of worms. The plow is one of the most ancient and most valuable of man's inventions, but long before he existed the land was, in fact, regularly plowed by earthworms.

It may be doubted whether there are many other animals which have played so important a part in the history of the world as have these lowly organized creatures. Some other animals, however, still more lowly organized—namely, corals—have done far more conspicuous work in having constructed innumerable reefs and islands in the great oceans, but these are almost confined to the tropical zones.

Why the Mole Is Blind.

The creatures which dwelt in the darkness of the depths naturally lost their powers of vision after awhile. It is the same way with the mole, which is doubtless descended from progenitors which could see. Blindness in the mole is the result of a degeneration of the optic nerve, the consequence of which is that images formed in the eye itself are not transmitted to the animal's consciousness. Occasionally a mole can see a little out of one eye which has retained its communication with the brain.

It is not that the mole is born blind, but that it inherits a tendency to atrophy of the visual organs just as people derive from their parents an inclination to consumption or other diseases. Some day in the future there may be no such thing as a mole that is not entirely and hopelessly blind.

Heads Much Alike.

Most expert craniologists insist that it is extremely difficult to determine sex from the skull, but admit there are a few distinctions which taken together indicate sex. Perhaps the most marked distinction is the prominence of the bony projection over the nose. The skull in man is thicker and stronger, and the mastoid processes beneath the ear are larger. Broca is authority for the opinion that if the skull rests on the mastoid processes it is almost certainly a man's. In woman the top of the head appears flatter, while in man the curve from before backward is more smooth and even. Greek sculptors always recognize this.—Health Culture.

A Kick From Mexico.

Tourists come here and shout to waiters, hotel clerks, shopkeepers, etc., believing that if you only yell forth your English it instantly becomes comprehensible. And a common error in breeding and one not confined to tourist foreigners is to make unpleasant remarks about men, women and things in a tone of voice which conveys at once to the natives that something disagreeable is being said. So we acquire not without reason the reputation of being muy groseros, or very rude, and too often we are.—Mexican Herald.

Seeing Around Corners.

There are many insects which have a very much larger field of vision than we have. This is due to the greater concavity of their eyes, enabling them to see around the corner, so to speak, behind and at the sides. This development in man would have its objectionable points, but also its good ones, not the least of which might be the detection of pickpockets.—Chambers' Journal.

Lets Him Out.

Mrs. Nagger—Oh, James, how awkward! Mr. Smith has come, and now we shall be 13 at table.

Mr. Nagger—What then?

Mrs. Nagger (with a shriek)—Why, one of us will die before the year is out!

Mr. Nagger (brutally)—Never mind. I'm tough.--Pick-Me-Up.

Just In Time.

An Irish gentleman getting upon a street car found one place vacant, which he proceeded to occupy.

"Sure," said he, with a twinkle in his eye, "I came just in the nick of time."

"How is that?"

"Arrah! If I was to come now, I shouldn't find a seat in the car!"—Exchange.

You can generally tell when a man is talking to a woman over the telephone by the tone of voice he assumes.—Nashville Banner.

DEWEY'S DETAIL PLEASING.

Idea of Admiral's Attendance at British Coronation Approved.

The suggestion to send Admiral Dewey to England to attend the coronation ceremonies is meeting with exceptional favor, both in naval and diplomatic circles, since this detail will permit the United States to have as its naval representative an officer equal in rank of any sent by the continental nations, says a Washington dispatch to the Philadelphia Times.

A leading official of the navy said the other day:

"Particularly in England would this selection be hailed with delight. It would be regarded by the nation at large as a friendly act upon the part of our government and as a courtesy that would be a practical exhibition of our sympathy and esteem. It would permit the British government to extend courtesies that could not be accorded to any other officer in our naval service. It would be particularly pleasing to the British admiralty officials, since it would permit them to give Admiral Dewey a position in the ceremonies that his rank would entitle him to and which British desires would like them to accord.

"The regulations of both the military and naval service of all countries provide that officers of different countries shall take precedence according to rank. At the coronation services it will be necessary for this country to recognize this custom of precedence, and we can pay no greater compliment to the British people than by sending as our representative Admiral Dewey, whose place will be in the front rank, an honor and dignity which this country is entitled to upon the occasion.

"The presence of Admiral Dewey with the largest possible fleet that can be assembled will undoubtedly make a great impression upon the continental nations, since it will show to the foreign powers that the United States thoroughly appreciates its position as a world power and that at all assemblages of an international character a commanding position must be assigned its leading representatives.

"The selection of Admiral Dewey will not only please the country, but it will prevent strife in the naval service, for if a junior officer is selected who has identified himself with the Sampson Schley controversy it will surely be resented by the public at large."

NEW INVENTIONS.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Gets Two More Patents—Automobile Appliances.

Cornelius Vanderbilt received two more patents recently, one for a draft gear for railway rolling stock and another for a car truck, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Sun. Mr. Vanderbilt has secured other railway patents, the most notable being for a firebox.

The development of automobiles has spurred the inventors, and patents are being taken out for hubs, wheels, tires, engine protectors, wagon bodies, storage batteries and many other appliances used in the construction of automobiles. The most novel of these is a patent for a motor which is to take the place of a horse. It is shaped like a box and mounted on four wheels and runs in front of the wagon or buggy. It is designed to be managed by the use of reins, as the horse is guided.

A German inventor has secured a patent on an acetylene life preserver in the form of a belt. When the person wearing the life preserver is cast into the sea, the belt can be inflated with gas by admitting a little water to the store of acetylene, which is supposed to last for hours.

A man in Lockport, Ills., finding that it consumed considerable time and energy to place tacks under a hammer, took out a patent for a magazine hammer, the tacks being loaded into the handle of the hammer like shells in a magazine gun.

The movement in certain churches toward individual communion cups has brought out a patent by John G. Thomas of Lima, O., for an individual communion service consisting of silver cups arranged about a silver tray. The patent is on the tray.

BRITONS GET A RUDE SHOCK

Up to Date Department Store Methods a Surprise to Them.

The Americanization of England still proceeds, and British traders will need to get up very early if they are going to compete with some of their latest rivals from the other side of the Atlantic, says the London Telegraph. One firm which deals in boots and shoes has opened a London branch and invites ladies to regard its shop practically as a "home from home." The premises are fitted up with taste, and it is announced that "there is a reading room, with periodicals, etc.; a reception room and retiring room, a writing room, a bureau of information for strangers visiting the metropolis and a maid to wait upon your personal wants."

Finally, "ladies are cordially invited to avail themselves of these conveniences, whether patrons or not." What more can the most obliging tradesman do to win the favor of the public?

Ranavalona's New Gown.

The gown which Ranavalona, exqueen of Madagascar, was enabled to purchase in Paris recently by means of the subscription raised for the purpose is of black silk, exquisitely veiled in black tulle and embroidered with gold and jet, says the New York Tribune. It is cut square and softly wreathed about the decolletage with tulle. The cost was more than $200, but as there was a surplus left in the subscription money the ex-queen's little niece, Marie Louise, received a beautiful new doll.

Winter Shoes For Women.

The shoes of this fall and winter are to be in Russian calf, patent leather and mat kid.

THE COURT OF INQUIRY

Dewey, Kimberley and Benham to Pass Judgment

PILLSBURY'S NAME CHOSEN

For Judge Advocate, but Afterward Abandoned, and the Assignment Tendered to Lemley—Scope of Inquiry Not Yet Made Public

Washington, July 26.—The composition of the Schley court of inquiry is commended on all sides. Admiral Dewey obviously is named for the effect of his presence upon the mind of the general public, and Rear Admirals Benham and Kimberley on account of their standing in the esteem of the service as men of the highest integrity, good judgment and courage, moral as well as physical.

All day Secretary Long was engrossed in the consideration of the details of the court, seeking particularly for a suitable judge advocate. It was thought that such a man had been found in the person of Commander Pillsbury. In fact it was announced early in the day at the department that he had been selected for the place. But later, on more mature consideration, his name was abandoned.

It was recalled that as commander of the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius he had served under Sampson off Santiago and, moreover, as equipment officer of the Boston navy yard, he was now, again, a subordinate of the same admiral. In his desire to escape all criticism on the point of bias, Secretary Long felt that these were reasons sufficient for looking out for new material, and for some man who was absolutely disassociated from the great controversy in any phase.

Late in the afternoon he believed that he had found such an officer in the person of Captain Lemley, the judge advocate general of the navy, a selection calculated, because of the rank of the officer, to constitute a full recognition of the dignity and importance of the forthcoming court of inquiry. While it cannot be said that the matter is absolutely settled, Secretary Long went so far as to ask Captain Lemley if he felt free to accept the assignment if it were offered to him, and it is believed that the captain will decide to answer affirmatively.

The precept to the court promises to be a rather extended statement of the scope of the inquiry compared with such documents in less important cases. It will define the scope of the inquiry, but whether it will direct the court to return an opinion, or simply to ascertain the facts, Secretary Long thus far declines to state. The precept will contain the detail of officers who cannot be said to be officially appointed until it is promulgated.

Rear Admiral Schley was not notified yesterday by the department of the officers who will decide his case, but the precept will be sent to him, and it will constitute his official notification.

Secretary Long was disappointed to learn last night that Rear Admiral Kimberley would ask to be relieved from the detail on account of ill-health. He said that Admiral Dewey, with whom he had consulted, had expressed the opinion that Admiral Kimberley's health would permit him to discharge the duties which he will be requested to perform. Should he decline, the secretary will select one of the other retired rear admirals to take his place. Rear Admirals Luce, Ramsay, Jouett, Gerardi and Walker are some of the names that have been advanced for consideration.

Koch Arouses a Storm

London, July 26.—Presiding at yesterday afternoon's session of the British congress on tuberculosis, Earl Spencer severely criticized Dr. Koch's theory to the effect that human beings were immune from contagion from tuberculous cattle. Earl Spencer said he hoped that the dissemination of such views would not tend to cause laxity on the part of the dairymen and cattle owners, or less vigilance by the authorities charged with protecting the consumers of milk.

Porto Rico Trade Free

Washington, July 26.—Telegraphic notice has been given to all collectors of customs that free trade exists hereafter between the United States and Porto Rico. ## CONSTITUTION GROUNDED

Will Necessitate Her Being Hauled Out For Examination

Newport, R. I., July 26.—Columbia yesterday, in a rattling thresh to windward from New London to Newport, gave the Constitution a great and unexpected beating, the Constitution finishing a good third of a mile astern of her antagonist, and being defeated by 2 minutes and 5 seconds. The victory was surprising, for the race was sailed in weather that, as a rule, has just suited the Constitution, the wind never exceeding a 12-knot gait, and the sea being comparatively smooth.

It was not until Newport was reached and the Constitution had been shackled to her moorings that an intelligent explanation of her drubbing could be given.

The Constitution followed right in the wake of the Columbia, the leading yacht in the big sloop class, struck twice on a ledge near the Race Rock lighthouse. There was a substantial bump on each occasion of the strike, and, after this accident the Constitution behaved like a lame duck. Butler Duncan, who is in command, said that he believed some of the plates on the leaden keel were wrenched off by the force of the impact on the rock, and that these places torn from the fin acted as a drag on the yacht and made her incapable of showing her usual racing form. A diver was sent down shortly after the Constitution was moored last night, but he was unable to make a satisfactory examination, and it was decided not to race the boat further until she has been hauled out and opportunity given for a thorough investigation.

Importation Scheme Failed

Chicago, July 26.—The Latrobe Steel and Coupler Works at Melrose Park has abandoned the effort to bring colored laborers to Melrose Park, and they will be sent back to their homes in Alabama. All day yesterday the 600 colored men sat in their cars at La Grange, 28 miles from Chicago, in fear. At Melrose Park 300 armed citizens remained on watch until assured the negroes were not coming, when they dispersed.

Over Fifty Homes Burned

Davenport, Ia., July 26.—Fire laid waste an area of sawmill and residence property in Davenport last evening equal to 20 ordinary city blocks. Over 50 homes were burned, resulting in a hundred families being rendered homeless. It is believed there were no fatalities. The loss is $700,000.

Skipped With Handcuffs On

CASE CLOSED.

Sheldon described the events of the night, and said she retired about 10 o'clock. The next she knew she heard noises, and as she came out of her room through the door into May's room, she saw May lying on the floor, with her mother beside her. She heard no shooting, and saw no one but members of the family.

Captain White of the Pittsfield police testified that Officer Flynn did not call back to him from the rear stairway that the side door was unlocked. He did not say that the single shoe that Flynn found was wet, and he did not get a lantern from Mr. Shepardson.

Officer Chapman was called, but his testimony was brief.

Officer Flynn said that he went to Mrs. Bullard's house and rang the doorbell. She came to the window, and he was allowed to use her telephone. He said he told her a burglary had been committed at the Fosburg house, and asked her if she had seen any strange men about her house that night. She said she had not.

Inquest Notes Brought In

Miss Mary A. Bristol, who took the stenographic notes at the inquest upon the body of May Fosburg, read from those notes. Beatrice testified at that time that she did not think it was the first shot which killed her sister. She had no idea when the first shot was fired. Referring to the testimony of R. L. Fosburg at the inquest, Miss Bristol said: "He stated that the first shot was fired in his room, and the second before the burglars left the room."

Joseph W. Hollister of The Eagle said that R. L. Fosburg told him that night that he saw a light in the hallway, which evidently came from a lantern. There was no portable light in the hall, and the light was too steady to have come from a match. He also stated that the burglar held a revolver in his left hand.

The only witness put on by the defense in rebuttal was Mrs. Bullard. She denied that Officer Flynn asked her if she saw any strange men about her house that night. This completed the testimony in the case, and an adjournment was taken until today, with the understanding that the government would have an opportunity of placing Detective Whitney on the stand.

At the close of the session, Judge Stevens, together with the counsel for both sides, retired to the anteroom, where Mr. Joyner, for the defense, made a long argument on the question of his suggestion that the judge order a verdict of not guilty.

KAISER AS PEACEMAKER

Latest Rumors as to Negotiations Between British and Boers

London, July 26.—The rumor as to early peace negotiations, which has pervaded the house of commons for some days, says The Daily Express, has taken the more definite form that Emperor William is about to assume the role of peacemaker. Mr. Kruger and his advisers are represented as having empowered the kaiser to take the initiative in order to popularize his relations with the German people, who disapprove his friendship for Great Britain. Something, apparently, is on foot, whether Emperor William is in it or not.

Mr. Kruger's arrival at The Hague yesterday afternoon is connected, The Daily Express thinks, with the rumored peace negotiations.

The Brussells Le Soir publishes a dispatch from Rome, which says that Mr. Kruger will arrive in Rome early in October, on his way to South Africa.

A Life Was Sacrificed

North Attleboro, Mass., July 26.—A fire that was attended by the death of Miss Jennie Stanley, 26 years old, and the injury of a number of others, occurred yesterday afternoon on Broad street in a three-story building occupied by several firms. The loss will be about $20,000, and is covered by insurance. There were 160 persons in the building and while many of that number lost their hair by fire, all but Miss Stanley escaped without further injury. Miss Stanley was assistant bookkeeper for Frothingham & Co. She left the building with the others and went back to place the books in the safe. She was caught on the stairway between the second and third floors, in the rear, and enveloped in flames. Her clothing and flesh were still burning when Father Cassidy of St. Mary's church reached her and carried her to a place of safety. She died last night.

Reigned Over Thousand Years Ago

London, July 26.—The remains of King Edmund the Martyr, who reigned from 855 to 870, have been returned to England, after a sojourn in France for more than 700 years. They reached Arundel last night. A shrine is being prepared for their reception in the new Catholic cathedral in Westminster. The body was carried off to France by Louis VII. Through the good offices of the pope the relics are now returned to England.

Gets Off With a Fine

Chicago, July 26.—F. W. Brown, who, with Dr. A. M. Unger, was convicted of conspiracy to defraud an insurance company, was yesterday released from jail. The verdict sentencing him to the penitentiary was vacated, and an order imposing a fine of $2000 substituted. Brown and his wife paid the fine.

Willing to Sell Islands

Copenhagen, July 26.—The new Liberal cabinet favors the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States, and the minister of foreign affairs is familiarizing himself with the details of the case, with the view to continuing the negotiations to this end.

☞ When you want a modern, up-to-date physic, try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. Price, 25 cents. All druggists.

How High Was the Tower of Babel?

The actual height at which the last stone of that famous structure, the Tower of Babel, rested cannot, on account of the remoteness of the times at which it is said to have existed, ever become more than a matter of merest conjecture. Herodotus, who lived about 1,700 years after that "great spiral way to heaven" is said to have been attempted, says that he saw at Babylon a structure consisting of eight towers raised one above another, each 75 feet in height, but whether this ruin was the remains of the Tower of Babel it was even then impossible to ascertain. Herodotus, usually minutely exact in his writing, leaves us in ignorance as to how the upper level of each of these 75 foot towers was reached from the level below.

As might be expected, even in tradition, a wide difference of opinion exists as to the height of the tower. Most orientalists maintain that God did not put a stop to the work until the tower had reached a height of 10,000 fathoms, or about 12 miles. In Ceylonese tradition it is said to have been as high as 20,000 elephants, each standing one above the other. St. Jerome asserts on the authority of persons who had examined the ruins that it did not reach a height exceeding four miles. Other statements are still more extravagant.

Bill Nye on Life Insurance.

The late Bill Nye's indorsement of life insurance is probably the most characteristic paragraph to be quoted from his writings:

"In these days of dynamite and swift changing presidential administrations and dark tunnels through which an engineer goes groping his way at 25 miles per hour, these days of tumbling signs of the times and tipsy telegraph poles, live wires and dead repairers; these days when the politician and the deadly bridge policeman with his pull lie down together under the influence of the same stimulant; these days when death lurks in the air we breathe, the earth we tread, the food we eat, the water—the water we bathe in—I say it behooves us to look well to our insurance and our future state, and I take pleasure in certifying and saying to whom these presents may come that since I became fully insured my health has improved so much that it is a subject for profound congratulation on my own part and the deepest disgust on the part of those who would naturally inherit my vast wealth."

Keeping the Head Clean.

Keeping the head perfectly clean is a great aid to health. An exchange tells of a distinguished physician who, having spent much of his time at quarantine, said that a person whose head was thoroughly washed every day rarely took contagious diseases, but when the hair was allowed to become dirty and matted it was hardly possible to escape infection. Many persons find speedy relief for nervous headache by washing the head thoroughly in weak soda water. We have known cases almost wholly cured in ten minutes by this simple remedy. A friend finds it the greatest relief in case of "rose cold," the cold symptoms entirely leaving the eyes after one thorough washing of the hair. The head should be thoroughly dried afterward, and drafts of air should be avoided for a little while.

The Heart of a Mouse.

A tiny mouse who lived near the house of a magician begged him to save her from the cat of whom she lived in deadly terror.

So the magician changed the mouse into a cat, and she went away delighted.

In a few days she came back again in terror. "Oh, save me, save me now from the dog," she begged.

And the magician changed her to a dog.

A few days more, and back she came—this time in deadly fear of a tiger.

"Nonsense," said the magician. "You have only the heart of a mouse, and afraid you will always be. It is the heart that tells!"

Use Hard Beds.

A German doctor advises the adoption of a hard bed and that children should be trained from the beginning to sleep upon no other kind. It is certainly true that as a rule the hard bed conduces to the most refreshing kind of sleep, the feather bed, so dearly loved by our grandmothers, being enervating in the extreme and encouraging weakness of mind in the matter of getting up in the morning.

The World's Space.

A statistician asserts that when 350 years shall have passed the density of the earth's population will be so great that each person will have only two-thirds of an acre, which space will have to suffice for all purposes—agriculture, roads, houses, parks, railways, etc. He estimates the present population of the earth at 1,600,000,000 and says that in 2250 it will be 52,073,000,000.

A Useful Mother-in-law.

"After all, a mother-in-law is a pretty good thing to have sometimes."

"What wonderful experience have you been having lately?"

"My wife was afraid to discharge our cook, and she wouldn't go for me, so we sent for Birdie's mother and turned her loose in the kitchen. They smashed some of the furniture, but the cook's gone."

Running the Gantlet.

Running the gantlet as a military punishment was, it is said, originated by Gustavus Adolphus to punish thieves in his army. It was borrowed by the English from the Germans, who copied it from Gustavus, and, being employed in the British regiments in America, was readily taken up by the Indians of this country.

No Proof of Guilt of Robert Fosburg

Jury Ordered to Return Verdict of Not Guilty

Nicholson Will Still Look For Murderer of May Fosburg

Pittsfield, Mass., July 27.—The action of Judge Stevens in taking the Fosburg case away from the jury yesterday was not unexpected. There had been an intimation that the judge, after a consultation with counsel of both sides, had decided that the case against Robert Stewart Fosburg had not been proved. The intimation was that, because the government had not shown beyond a doubt that the defendant had fired the shot or had the exclusive opportunity to fire it, the case had failed.

As Judge Stevens turned around to address the jury upon the opening of court there was silence in the court room. He told the jury that the government had not proved its case, and ordered a verdict of not guilty for the defendant. The instant that he had told the jury to return its verdict, the spectators broke out in loud applause.

Judge Stevens instantly raised his hand as if to silence the spectators, and, addressing Acting Sheriff Norton, said: "Mr. Officer, you will see that this demonstration is not repeated." There was quiet once more, and then Clerk Candee called up Robert S. Fosburg and the jury.

After the form of having the jury return the verdict had been gone through with, the clerk told the defendant he was at liberty to leave the court a free man. The family and friends of the family grasped the young man by the hand and congratulated him on his vindication. The scene was an affecting one. Robert stood there apparently dazed, and did not speak. He appeared to fill up, but he did not cry. Then he sat down, and the judge addressed the jury again, thanking them for their attention during the case. Then they filed out of the room, followed by the family. The defendant's wife was not in the court room. Robert was the last of the family and friends to leave.

The state claimed "exclusive opportunity," but was unable to prove it, chiefly because of Beatrice Fosburg's testimony. This is admitted by District Attorney Hammond.

The news of the discharge of Robert S. Fosburg spread like wildfire, and there was great excitement. Many called at the Wendell to congratulate the family.

The Judge's Statement

The judge's statement to the jury, in full, follows: "Mr. Foreman and Gentlemen of the Jury: During the past six days we have listened to the painful recital of one of the saddest tragedies that was ever presented to a jury. A beautiful girl, just bursting into womanhood, was shot in her own home. Her brother was accused of having committed the crime. The government is called upon, before he can be convicted, to establish their proposition. First, that May Fosburg was not killed by burglars. Secondly, the government must exclude everybody else within that household except the defendant. In the third place the government must prove that the act was a criminal act.

"The trial has proceeded somewhat in the form of an inquest, and has been tried with great fairness on the part of the government and the defense. There has been an apparent desire to ascertain the truth, and so a great deal of evidence has been introduced and admitted without objection which might have been excluded under the strict rules of law. I think I also ought to say to you it is due to Chief of Police Nicholson, who has stood behind the prosecution, to say that in the view of the court he has tried to do his duty, with a single eye of ascertaining the truth.

"Now, Mr. Foreman and Gentlemen, a motion has been made that this case be taken from the jury, and it becomes my duty to say to you that, in the opinion of the court, the government has not furnished proof sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty against the defendant, and, therefore, under the direction of the court, in the indictment against Robert S. Fosburg for killing his sister, you are to return a verdict of 'not guilty.'"

After the above instructions, Clerk Kennedy called up the defendant and jury, and said: "What say you, Mr. Foreman, to the indictment against Robert S. Fosburg, is he guilty or not guilty?"

Foreman Barnes replied: "Not guilty."

"What say you, Gentlemen of the Jury?" said Clerk Kennedy. All replied, "Not guilty."

The jurors then sat down, and Clerk Kennedy told the defendant he was discharged from custody.

Nicholson Admits Defeat

Chief of Police Nicholson said: "I can make no comment on the verdict. As a policeman, it is my duty to continue the work of endeavoring to find out who killed May Fosburg. As the court stated, we were confronted with three propositions. First, we had to prove that there were no burglars in the house; second, that no other man than Robert S. Fosburg had the opportunity to fire the shot, and third, we had to prove that he fired with the intention to kill, and that it was not an accident. This we could not do."

Fosburg Family Thankful

Robert L. Fosburg, father of the defendant, was greatly overcome by the result of the decision of Judge Stevens. As he was met by crowds of people on his way to the Wendell from the court house, he was stopped and congratulated many times. He was visibly affected. On recovering his composure sufficiently to talk to newspaper men he said that in about a week he and his wife, his daughters, Esther and Beatrice, and his son, James, will leave for Down East. Robert and his wife will go to Maynard, Mass., where they will occupy the cottage which was being fixed up for them at the time May was shot.

Mrs. Fosburg, the mother of the defendant, was the most overcome of any of the family. As she walked from the court house to the hotel she was constantly being congratulated that her son Robert had been vindicated. All she could do was to bow her acknowledgements, as she wiped away the tears from her eyes. Later on at the Wendell hotel she sent for the newspaper representatives who have reported the trial and thanked them for the kind consideration shown herself and family.

From the court room young Fosburg went directly to the hotel, and passed quickly to his wife's room. She was ill in bed, but the news of her husband's acquittal so strengthened her that she arose, and, throwing her arms about him, exclaimed, "Thank God, thank God!" Mr. Fosburg spent some time with his wife, and then went to the lobby of the hotel, where for an hour he received the expressions of good will and confidence of his friends.

Had No Doubt of Result

Robert S. Fosburg will make no statement. This has been decided upon after consultation with the members of the family. However, a statement has been drawn up representing the entire family. It is as follows:

"We are glad the trial has ended. We never had moment's doubt of the result. We knew we had told the exact truth as to the death of our May. Her death at the hands of a burglar was a crushing blow to us all, but greater still was our anguish when one of our members was accused of killing her. But through it all God's infinite love and power has sustained us. To that portion of the public press and the kind friends who have nobly stood by us we extend our sincere thanks."

Signed by R. L. Fosburg and family.

Since the announcement of the verdict of not guilty, the members of the Fosburg family have received a deluge of telegrams of congratulation, these messages coming from all quarters of the United States, and some even from Europe. Robert S. Fosburg said again last night that he believed it to be the part of wisdom to make no statement, declaring that the official statement given out by the Fosburg family would have to answer all purposes.

Considering King's New Title

London, July 27.—In the house of lords yesterday, Lord Salisbury introduced a bill authorizing King Edward to assume by proclamation such title as he may think fitly recognizes his dominion beyond the seas. This title will probably be as follows: "Edward the Seventh, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, of British Dominions Beyond the Sea, King, Defender of the Faith and Emperor of India."

Reindeer For Alaska

Washington, July 27.—A cablegram has been received at the interior department from Lieutenant Bertholf, who was sent to Siberia to purchase reindeer for use in Alaska, saying that he has arrived at Vladivostock, and has purchased 500 deer for 13 roubles each, and has the prospect of securing 100 more, with 1000 next summer. The price of the deer is about $6.70 each.

Fine Work by Elkes

Boston, July 27.—After being obliged to dismount twice and change wheels, owing to punctures, thereby losing almost all the lead he had gained each time, Harry Elkes last night defeated both Champion and Moran in their 50-mile paced race at the Charles River park. Elkes' time was 1:20:02 4-5; Champion's time, 1:20:22 1-5; Moran five laps behind.

Waiting to Hear From Rockhill

Washington, July 27.—The authorities here are anxiously awaiting official confirmation of the latest report from Pekin to the effect that the deadlock of the ministers there as to the customs tax to be imposed to meet the indemnity has been broken. So far, however, Mr. Rockhill has not been heard from.

Nebraska Town Has Shakes

Elko, Neb., July 27.—A heavy shock of earthquake was felt here yesterday afternoon. The vibrations were from north to south, and lasted three or four seconds.

CRESCEUS' GREAT FEAT

Brings World's Record For a Mile Down to 2:02 3-4

HANDICAPPED BY TRACK

But Fairly Flew Over It Without the Use of the Whip—Famous Stallion Now Holds World's Trotting Record For Both Sexes

Cleveland, July 27.—Amid the enthusiastic cheers of nearly 10,000 people, Cresceus, the world's champion trotting stallion, again demonstrated that he is the peer of all trotters by trotting a mile in 2:02 3-4. This establishes a new world's trotting record for both sexes, replacing the former world's record of 2:03 1-4, held by The Abbot.

The conditions connected with this remarkable performance were anything but conducive to fast time, as, owing to the heavy rain of Thursday night, the track was not in the best of condition.

Few horsemen looked for a mile in better than 2:05. After having been given several preliminary miles, George Ketcham came out with the stallion to attempt what seemed an impossible feat. Ketcham nodded for the word on the third score, the horse trotting like a machine.

Accompanied by a runner, the chestnut stallion fairly flew to the quarter, the timers' watches registering just 30 seconds.

As Cresceus swung into the back stretch he was joined by a second runner, and, although many predicted that the footing was such as would retard his speed, he reached the half in 1:01.

The three-quarter pole was reached in 1:31 3-4, and as the great stallion trotted into the stretch, a runner on either side, his frictionless, machine-like stride was fairly eating up the distance.

Never once faltering, notwithstanding the terrific clip, he fairly flew to the wire, being sustained only by his indomitable courage and almost human intelligence, not being touched once by the whip, his sole urging being the driver's voice and the hoof beats of the accompanying runners.

As the time for the mile was announced—2:02 3-4—and the immense crowd realized that a new world's record had been established, Ketcham and his favorite stallion were tendered an ovation. Thousands of enthusiastic people rushed out on the track and Ketcham was lifted from the sulky and carried to the grandstand on the shoulders of admirers. Cheer after cheer rent the air, and the name of Cresceus was upon the lips of everyone present. The owner of the sturdy son of Robert McGregor was almost carried to the judge's stand, where he delivered a brief address.

Cresceus now not only holds the world's trotting record for both sexes, but last week at the Detroit grand circuit meeting, by trotting in 2:06 3-4 and 2:05, in his race against Charley Herr, secured the world's record for the two fastest heats ever trotted in a race, his second mile, in 2:05, also being a new world's record for the fastest mile ever trotted. Last September Cresceus trotted to the world's stallion record of 2:04 over the Cleveland track.

Easily Fulfilled Conditions

Worcester, Mass., July 27.—Hjalmar Lundin of Hartford threw Alexander Samuelson of this city three straight falls in a Graeco-Roman wrestling match here last night. The conditions called for Lundin throwing Samuelson three times in an hour. The visitor threw the local wrestler three times within a half hour.

Stinson Smashes Another Record

Providence, July 27.—Will Stinson broke the world's record for the mile on a six-lap track here yesterday, riding the distance in 1:24 1-5. All the requirements as to referee, timers and scorers were fulfilled. The previous record was 1:27, made at Baltimore by Archie McEachern last season.

Walcott Whipped Big Fellow

Bridgeport, Conn., July 27.—Joe Walcott and Jack Bonner went 15 rounds here last night, and at the close the referee gave the decision to the colored man. Bonner weighed 162 pounds and Walcott 149, and Bonner towered inches above his antagonist as they entered the ring.

Constitution Not Damaged

Bristol, R. I., July 27.—After a long job yesterday in taking the Constitution out of the marine railway to ascertain what damage, if any, her plating sustained in her striking a rock or wreck off New London Thursday, no defect could be found with the plates.

An Unsatisfactory Run

Vineyard Haven, Mass., July 27.—The squadron run of the New York Yacht club from Newport to Martha's Vineyard proved to be the first fizzle of the cruise. Owing to lack of wind, not a single yacht finished within the time limit.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

NOT A FINANCIER

Wampanoag Mills Elect a Practical Manufacturer as President

Fall River, Mass., July 27.—The selection of William Evans to act as treasurer of the Wampanoag mills has provoked an unusual amount of comment among treasurers and brokers. He is a superintendent whose experience as a practical manufacturer has been wide and varied, but whose acquaintance with financial affairs or with trading in the cloth market has been limited.

Most men here agree that his selection is a radical departure that may mean a great deal in the future conduct of the industry by bringing practical men to the front. Evans began his career in this city as an overseer of weaving at the Hargraves mills. His salary was almost doubled in his service at the Richard Borden mills where he was a superintendent for nine years, and the salary he was offered to accept the treasurership of the Wampanoag mills is nearly $3000 more than his predecessor received.

The men for whom Mr. Evans worked here say he is one of the most skilled weavers in the New England mills, and it is understood to be the purpose of the directors of the Wampanoag mills to have him change over the plant gradually for the manufacture of finer goods.

Wall Fell on Fire Chief

Chelsea, Mass., July 27.—Chief Spencer of the Chelsea fire department was badly injured at a fire in a spice-grinding mill at Revere last night. When a side of the mill fell he was caught in the debris. Two of the firemen were knocked into the Saugus river at the same time, but were rescued without being hurt. The property loss is $12,500.

Death of Dr. Paddock

Pittsfield, Mass., July 27.—Dr. Frank A. Paddock, medical examiner for Berkshire county, died here last night. His death was due to heart disease, with which he had been suffering for some time. Dr. Paddock was an important witness in the Fosburg trial, and it is believed that the strain of testifying hastened his death.

Pardoned For Aiding Officer

Newburyport, Mass., July 27.—Daniel Kelleher, a prisoner at the local jail, who was serving a nine-months' sentence for drunkenness, was pardoned yesterday, because of the assistance he rendered Deputy Sheriff Ayres and his son in their recent encounter with two prisoners. Kelleher had seven weeks more to serve.

Broke His Neck by Diving

Fighting Fire With Fire

Pittsburg, July 27.—The National Tube Works company at McKeesport has made an unexpected move intended to checkmate the Amalgamated association. Their skilled workmen have been asked to sign individual contracts to practically repudiate any union labor and they have been given but a short time to think the matter over. The welders are highly skilled workmen, and with them in line the plant will probably keep on running. It is intimated by friends of the welders that they will all sign the contracts.

Picketing Not Prohibited

Paterson, N. J., July 27.—Permanent injunction papers restraining the striking weavers of Frank & Dugan's silk mill from "serenading" or otherwise annoying non-union workers were received here yesterday. The papers permit the strikers to post pickets and to urge workers to leave their places, but all of this must be done in a peaceable and orderly manner. The temporary injunction forbade the picketing.

BRAINTREE.

During the past month there were no deaths in Braintree. Considering the changeable weather and the extreme heat we are experiencing, Braintree has been very fortunate in preserving her population. Braintree is the best town on the globe to live in.

Lock your windows and bolt your doors, for thieves have been numerous this week. They have been in O. M. Rogers' store, South Braintree; Victor Metal Foundry, East Braintree; John Doull's shoe shop on River street and the Dow Portable Electric Co., on Washington street. In the latter place about $100 worth of tools were taken. Minor thefts have been made on Hollis avenue.

About twenty or more buds burst nightly after sundown and exhale fragrance until dawn. It is quite a curiosity and has been admired by a large number.

IN BATTLE ARRAY.

Fifth Regiment in Extended Order—A High Percentage.

Archer the military editor of the Journal writes of Friday at camp as follows:

This afternoon Col. Oakes had the Fifth out in regimental extended order, column of battalions, the First forming the firing line the Second the line of supports, and the Third the reserve. The Colonel commanded in person, and the skirmish took in the entire field. It was an effective battle formation which has not been attempted before by any other regiment except the Eighth Infantry.

The Fifth is especially proud of its grand strength. Three months ago the command was 185 men shy of its full enrollment and with discharges it is safe to say that fully upwards of 200 men or more have been enlisted. With so large a percentage of new recruits, the work and the discipline has been little short of marvelous. The maximum has been 768 men out of 806 on the rolls, including band, thus showing but 38 absentees and a percentage present of .952 of the whole number, present and absent. It is the largest on record on Framingham field in the aggregate number of a militia regiment on State duty. Once before, under Col. Bancroft, the regiment had 743 present on the field.

Letter from New Hampshire.

The sight of so much land in this one township, Centre Sandwich, N.H., ten miles square leads one to wish there was more earnest work in connecting the energy lying waste in other places and transplanting it to the beautiful valleys in the Granite State.

Looking from our window, we see a good house well preserved, out-buildings and land to spare which rents at $25 a year.

There are 300 and more summer people in Centre Sandwich and many Quincy people are about here. Just now the sun brings out a white house upon the mountain side, over the valley, it is set off by the green surrounding it and we are told it is the one purchased by Lawyer W. W. Jenness.

Slowly changes must come, but it is pitiable to contrast the congested cities and suburbs and this broad, beautiful country.

Sandwich is ten miles square, surrounded by mountains, from 1,500 to 4,000 feet high.

Quincy people seem to be in abundance. Miss Gordon of Washington street, Miss Emma Saville, Miss Dora A. French and many others are familiar faces here.

The thermometer stood at from 90 to 98 degrees the hottest days, but the writer has been glad of light wool clothing at times.

A Home Week is near at hand, and the eldest citizen will be 100 years old in September.

Breezy Knoll farm is our place and we wish many more Quincy friends were here to share its attractions.

SECRET OF BALDNESS.

Detroit Doctor Announces New Theory Based on His Tests.

DUE TO IMPROPER BREATHING.

Stagnant Air In Unused Part of Lungs Becomes Decomposed and Produces a Poison Which Kills Hair—Proved on Dogs and Hens, Which Quickly Lose Hair and Feathers.

That baldness is merely a matter of breathing is a theory which has been promulgated by Dr. Delos L. Parker of Detroit. Dr. Parker, who is lecturer on materia medica in the Detroit College of Medicine, has made a series of interesting experiments in support of his hypothesis, the results of which he gives at length in The Medical Record.

Dr. Parker believes that air which is drawn into the lungs and allowed to remain in the air cells there is decomposed by the moist warmth of the body, throwing off a poison, "trichotoxicon," into the blood, which causes the hair to fall out. The reason why baldness is so much more common among men than among women, he says, is that the habit of wearing corsets forces women to use the upper part of the lungs in breathing, and it is there that the hair poison is chiefly generated.

In order to prove his theory Dr. Parker had baldheaded men exhale their breath into a vessel free from air, and it was transferred into bottles partly filled with water. After permitting it to remain in the bottles long enough to impregnate the water with the hair poison the water was injected under the skin of dogs, hens and pigeons. The result was that the hair of the dogs and the feathers of the hens and pigeons fell out while the injections were continued and grew again when they ceased.

Millions of tiny hollow spaces known as "air cells" occur in the lungs. They vary in size from one-two-hundredth to one-seventieth of an inch in diameter. If they could all be opened and spread out, they would cover an area from 100 to 130 times greater than the area of the skin. These air cells are gathered into groups less than an inch in diameter, and each group is connected with the bronchial tubes. Owing to this arrangement air may be taken into and expelled from some of the groups of air cells while it remains motionless or stagnant in others.

When the ribs which inclose the upper portion of the chest are raised and lowered in breathing, air is taken into and expelled from every part of the lungs, because all the ribs are connected, and the upper ones cannot be raised without raising the lower ones, thus expanding the entire cavity. Women usually employ this method of breathing, but when the lower ribs are raised it does not follow that the extreme upper ribs must move too.

Dr. Parker also points out that in ordinary breathing only one-sixth of the air in the lungs is driven out with each breath. The air expelled from the lungs contains very small quantities of organic matter, as well as hydrogen, and marsh gas has been established by research. From birth to death the lungs are never entirely empty of stagnant air containing these substances.

When Dr. Parker began his experiments, he obtained from a middle aged man who had long been bald a large bag full of expired hair. This was transferred to a bottle partly filled with water and placed in an incubator, where it was kept for ten days at a temperature of 98 degrees. Injections of the impregnated water were made daily in a fox terrier and a hen. After 14 injections the dog commenced to lose its hair and the hen its feathers. After 52 injections, large bare patches were visible on both subjects. Neither subject showed any signs of disturbed health during the progress of the experiments. Their weight remained unchanged. After the injections ceased a new coat of hair covered the bare patches in the dog, and the hen got her feathers back.

Convinced that his theory was correct, Dr. Parker determined to make a new set of experiments in October of last year. First he obtained the breath of a man who was not bald, then he filled a flask with the breath of a man who was bald and finally one containing ordinary atmospheric air. All these were placed in the incubator to allow decomposition to take place. In this experiment he used one fox terrier, five hens and five pigeons, all fully grown. Injections into the dog from the two flasks of expired air, one from a bald man and the other from a man not bald, had the same effect as in the first experiment. Similar treatment of the hens and pigeons was followed by the same results. Only those which were treated with the liquid from the first two flasks were affected.

Dr. Parker concludes from these experiments that when human breath is kept long enough to allow decomposition of the organic matter which it contains to take place it creates a poison which in the blood of certain animals acts upon the hair and similar tissues and has no other effect. Summing up the results of his investigations, Dr. Parker says, "It seems not unreasonable to conclude that baldness of the type under consideration is caused by an autoinfection in which trichotoxicon is taken up by the blood from the air cells of the lungs, where it has been elaborated during decomposition of organic matter normally present in respired air."

Though Dr. Parker does not suggest it, it is possible for any person threatened with baldness to test the theory by habitually breathing with the entire lungs. If Dr. Parker is correct, this expedient ought to stop the falling of the hair.

Keith's Theatre.

The program at Keith's Boston theatre for the week commencing Monday, July 29, will include besides the production of living pictures, to which several new subjects will be added, concerts by the players of the Symphony orchestra, supplemented by solos by Miss Victoria Johnson, a brilliant mezzo-soprano singer of this city; "Fix in a Fix," a screamingly funny farce, acted by C. H. Bradshaw, and others; the original and much talked about Beaux and Belles Octet, whose act is described as a novelty in melody and motion; Johnson, Davenport and Lorella, acrobatic comedians; Jehan Bedini, the noted juggling comedian, and his funny colored assistant; Mr. and Mrs. Swiekard, in solos, duets, and operatic travesties, and Dan Swift and Fred Huber, comedy musical entertainers. Among the pictures to be shown in the biograph are a panoramic view of the famous Crawford Notch, White mountains, and the show horse King, who has just been sold to the Emperor of Germany by Prof. Classen of Brookline, and was formerly the property of Mrs. Julia Dumaresq.

Castle Square Theatre.

The repertoire of the summer season at the Castle Square theatre has thus proved an eminently pleasing one and the management of this popular playhouse has found hearty approval of the season's plans on the part of its patrons. The lighter class of dramatic works, presented in recent weeks, have afforded keen enjoyment to the "stay-at-homes" and vast numbers of visiting tourists have improved the opportunity of becoming acquainted with the theatre during their Boston visits. The great favor shown "The Man from Mexico" last summer has lead to its revival at the Castle Square the coming week, and Mr. Walter Perkins has again been engaged to appear in the title part, the complete cast being as follow: Benjamin Fitzhew, Walter Perkins; Col. Roderick Majors, John T. Craven; Willie Loveall, Charles Mackay; Von Bulow Bismarck Schmidt, Lindsay Morison; Edward Farrar, J. J. Elwyn; Richard Daunton, Stanley Kent; Timothy Cook, Edward Wade; Officer O'Mullins, John J. Geary; Googan, Warren Cook; Louis, William J. Hasson; Clementina Fitzhew, Maye Louise Aigen; Sallie Graice, Leonora Gnito; Nettie Majors, Mary Sanders; Miranda, Caroline Frances Cook. Following this production, on Monday, August 5th, comes a revival of "My Friend From India." The Monday matinee chocolate bonbon souvenirs will be continued until further notice.

The Excuse

Made by many a man for taking a drink at the bar is that he needs a bracer. He feels weak, his stomach is "out of sorts" and liquor makes him "feel good." The tired man who sits on a pin leaps up with new energy, but no one would say that this energy was evidence of the strength giving power of a pin. So with the energy induced by liquors. They only spur the body on, but do not strengthen it.

Strength is made from food properly digested and assimilated. When the stomach is diseased there is a failure to extract the nutrition from food and the body grows weak. The weak body needs strengthening, not stimulating. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, so that the nutrition of food is perfectly extracted and assimilated and the body nourished into health and strength.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is no other medicine "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and allied organs.

"Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy have been of great benefit to me," writes (Prof.) Pleasant A. Oliver, of Viola, Fulton Co., Ark. "Before I used the above mentioned remedies my sleep was not sound: digestion bad; a continual feeling of misery. I now feel like a new man."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the bowels and liver.

The Excuse

Made by many a man for taking a drink at the bar is that he needs a bracer. He feels weak, his stomach is "out of sorts" and liquor mak... him "feel good." The tired man who sits on a pin leaps up with new energy, but no one would say that this energy was evidence of the strength giving power of a pin. So with the energy induced by liquors. They only spur the body on, but do not strengthen it.

Strength is made from food properly digested and assimilated. When the stomach is diseased there is a failure to extract the nutrition from food and the body grows weak. The weak body needs strengthening, not stimulating. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, so that the nutrition of food is perfectly extracted and assimilated and the body nourished into health and strength.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is no other medicine "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and allied organs.

"Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy have been of great benefit to me," writes (Prof.) Pleasant A. Oliver, of Viola, Fulton Co., Ark. "Before I used the above mentioned remedies my sleep was not sound; digestion bad; a continual feeling of misery. I now feel like a new man."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the bowels and liver.

NO OVERTIME.

Letter Carriers Must Return Within Eight Hours.

It is perhaps not generally known that Uncle Sam is very strict with his letter carriers in regard to their hours of labor. The rules prescribe eight hours for each carrier and if one works but a few minutes overtime he will get a call down from Postmaster Hammond who in turn will have to enter into a long correspondence with the department as to why and how it happened that a carrier worked overtime.

When a carrier reports to the post office for duty he registers his arrival on a clock. Each carrier has a number and he presses the key on the clock having the corresponding number. This registers the numbers and time on a slip. When he returns from his route he again punches the key and thus his hours of labor are recorded.

These slips or records from them eventually find their way to Washington. If a carrier starts out with a heavy mail and finds it is time for him to stop in order to reach the office before his eight hours is completed, he does not keep on but stops delivering, and any undelivered mail must wait until the next trip. It will be seen therefore that in a busy office like Quincy that the carriers have no time to fool away and that once work is commenced it is a case of hustle all the time.

A route must also be delivered in regular order, and the morning delivery, is the only complete delivery of the day, the only one those on the end of a route are sure of.

MISSION WORK.

Interesting Report of Miss Edith Anna Hemmingway.

The work of the Teluk Ayer school has been rather slow, uphill work. But we have journeyed on, and at the close of our second year together we realize that in spite of the difficulties we have gone upwards, and that the work has been blessed of God. At the annual inspection sixteen were presented for the examination and all passed. The inspector seemed pleased with our work. We have now as high as and including Standard III. Since inspection it has been necessary to spend the whole day in the school teaching Standards II and III, and one hour a day with Standard I in English. This plan seems to work very well and has improved the English, especially pronounciation and the forming of short sentences, for I have laid a great deal of stress on their acquiring a speaking knowledge of English.

The prizes this year were very pretty framed pictures, the gift of an American lady whom I met on the steamer two years ago while on my way to Singapore. She became very much interested in the work and bought us the gifts as she was passing through Singapore a month ago.

We are in rather small and inconvenient quarters, but the government has kindly granted us $3,000 towards a building, on condition that the mission raise an equal amount; but the location still remains unprovided for and is a difficult problem to solve. Since last conference I have received one large and two medium sized boxes of Xmas gifts from the W. F. M. S. of my home church and friends. The gifts were varied and very nice, and showed much loving thought and care. The dolls especially were so pretty, and dressed so nicely and neatly. At the close of school for the Chinese New Year vacation, we had a pleasant little occasion, the children singing and giving recitations. Each child was presented with gifts from the box, and some cakes. They were very much pleased.

Home Schools.—Four new home schools have been added during the year and five of the old ones have discontinued their teacher, the year closing with nine schools in private homes. Owing to the conflicting hours, I have not been able to visit these schools as often as I would like or I did the previous year. But when I do go I am always given a hearty welcome.

Street Sunday Schools.—Owing to Miss Lilly having extra work I took over her street Sunday school work for the year with Mr. Supramanium, who is an efficient and faithful co-worker. We began in five places but had to give up some of them because some felt that it was too hard for him, he being a student in the Anglo-Chinese school. The highest attendance has been 142 and the lowest 44, with an average of 69, although the attendance now seldom goes above 50.

Leper work.—I have always been especially interested in this work even before coming to Singapore, and began visiting the women once a month and have always been a welcome guest. After Mrs. Morgan went away I began to visit them more regularly, going at least once in two weeks. They are always glad to listen to us and often join in the songs. Several have died and new ones have come in during the year. One old Tamil woman who had been in a hospital a long time, and whom they called "gila" (crazy), has been realeased from her sufferings. Among the new ones are two little Chinese girls of six and nine years. We always carry them fruit or vegetables whenever we go. Through the kindness of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union we were enabled to give them an extra treat on Christmas day. Also through the gifts of our Junior League they were given a special treat a little later.

Junior League Work.—The very beginning of the year I was asked to take charge of the Junior League work, and though I hesitated at first, yet I have been very glad that I have done so, for in teaching these little ones of Jesus it has brought special blessings. We have more than doubled our enrollment and average attendance. We meet every Friday afternoon. Once a month we have a Band of Hope meeting, when they are given a temperance lesson. They have been very faithful in attendance. We have not missed a week when we have not held a meeting, rainy days and shiny days, during vacation and even the day the Sunday school held its annual picnic the Junior League had nine at its meeting. We average about thirty in attendance. At Christmas time we had a Christmas tree. There was a little programme by the children and each child was well remembered with presents from the Christmas box. To teach them the true idea of Christmas, that it is to give as well as receive, the children of the Deaconess Home were invited to be present and share in the enjoyment of the program and gifts from the tree. Each member of the Junior League was asked to bring a gift that might be given to the poor, and those who were not so fortunate as themselves. They responded well, even beyond my expectations, in their gifts for others, so that the next day I was enabled to take a basket of cakes and oranges to the women's pauper hospital and also a basket of different kinds of fruits, ginger nuts, and sweets to the leper women. Some of the older children brought some dolls, two of which were carried to the little leper girls. One girl opened and closed its eyes, so this was given to the smallest child, being a great curiosity, and I don't know which enjoyed it the most, the little ones or the grown-up. Then at the next meeting I told the children what I had done with their gifts and they listened attentively and were much interested. I feel sure that they enjoyed the giving. Our Juniors have had the altar cushions made over for the church, which makes them feel a new interest in the church.

My mornings and evenings are almost entirely devoted to the study of the language. Though the work has been somewhat varied yet I have enjoyed it very much and have seen the hand of God working through it all. Truly He has been very good and blessed us, and our hearts say,—"Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

THE ITALIAN CASE.

Government Side of Assault Heard This Morning.

Another of the Italian assault cases was heard before Judge Cook at the district court this morning. The case was that of Antonio Calderelli, Lungi Calderelli and Donato Celucci, who were charged with assault on Nicola Tocci.

According to the testimony, Tocci and a friend were riding their bicycles on Water street near the corner of Franklin street when another gang of Italians, three of whom are alleged to be the three defendants, set upon him. The result was that Tocci was struck on the head with a bottle and also cut on the face and head, presumably with a razor. The cuts were three in number and extended from the top of the head down the face to the corner of the mouth. The wound bled profusely and was of a nature that might prove dangerous.

Two weeks ago another Italian who was arrested on the night of the assault, was tired and was held for the grand jury.

The case this morning was one where an interpreter was needed and therefore consumed considerable time.

All of the morning was occupied in hearing the governments witnesses, after which the cases were again continued until next Tuesday, when the defendant's testimony will be heard.

Civil Trial List.

The following cases are marked for trial at the civil session of the district court next Tuesday:

TWO SCHOOLS.

I put my heart to school,
In the world where men grow wise.
"Go out," I said, "and learn the rule.
Come back when you win the prize."

My heart came back again,
"And where is the prize?" I cried.
"The rule was false, and the prize was pain,
And the teacher's name was Pride."
I put my heart to school,
In the woods where wild birds sing,
In the fields where flowers spring,
Where brooks run cool and clear
And the blue of heaven bends near.
"Go out," I said; "you are only a fool,
But perhaps they can teach you here."

"And why do you stay so long,
My heart, and where do you roam?"
The answer came with a laugh and a song,
"I find this school is home."
—Henry Van Dyke in Atlantic Monthly.

AN EXCHANGE OF BAGS.

... By M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

I had been at a certain hotel in London for three months while making researches in the interests of a client in Canada and had come to a point in my investigations where I was required to go down to Canterbury to consult church records, and late one evening I began packing my bag for the trip. I was thus engaged when the door opened and a stranger entered my room. He was a man of about 50, well dressed and having the look of a gentleman, and there was a bland smile on his face as he quietly observed:

"I thought I heard you invite me to come in in answer to my knock. Pray excuse me if I intrude."

He handed me a card on which was engraved the name of Theodore E. Bliss, New Orleans, but his looks and accent did not go to show that he was a southerner. On the contrary, I knew he was a northern man. He was fairly posted about my own town of Toronto, and, according to his statement, he had been offered a large plat of vacant property at a bargain. I knew the property and its owner, and I knew the price to be low. We were talking away when there came a knock on the door, and as I rose to open it the landlord entered, and I saw a stranger behind him.

TWO OFFICERS CALLED AND ARRESTED ME.

"Ah, Mr. Cook," said mine host, "please excuse me. I thought you were out and some one might have entered your room. It is all right—all right. Beg pardon, I'm sure."

He was gone before I could ask any questions, and Mr. Bliss at once led the conversation back to the property and kept me so busy answering his queries that I had no time to wonder over the incident. He remained for a full hour. As he asked me to act as his agent for the purchase of the property and as he paid me £100 on account I was forced to be more or less interested, though I could not get over feeling a bit put out at the way he had entered my room. Before leaving he found that I was going down to Canterbury in the morning, and he laughingly exclaimed:

"How very [illegible] down there myself. I'll meet you at the station in the morning, and we'll make the journey together."

After I got to bed I began to go over the incidents of the evening in a lawyerlike way. I found I had some curiosity about the way the landlord had burst into my room and also as to the identity of the man who had remained in the background. Mr. Bliss had seemed to talk straight enough, but I was considerably puzzled over him. After a night's sleep I felt better, however, or at least less annoyed, and when Mr. Bliss joined me at the station I gave him cordial welcome. In a casual way I also noticed that he carried a Gladstone bag, but of course I thought nothing of it at the time. We were a little early for the train and had taken our tickets and were walking up and down the platform when I was accosted by a stranger who asked for a word in private. I suspected at once that he was a detective. When we had stepped aside, he respectfully inquired:

"Am I right in believing that you are Mr. Cook of Toronto, Canada?"

"Perfectly so," I replied.

"You are stopping at the King's Arms?"

"I am."

"And the party with you?"

"Mr. Theodore E. Bliss, sir."

"Ah, just so! Thanks, sir. Mr. Bliss, being in your company, must be all right. Good day, sir."

Had he lingered I might have put some questions myself, but as he hurried away instead I turned to my friend. Mr. Bliss was humming an air to himself and appeared cool and placid. He asked no questions, and I volunteered no information. I was upset again, however. If Mr. Bliss was all right because he was in my company, the detective must have had a suspicion of him previous to this meeting. I had in a way guaranteed the man, and had I been right or wrong? As soon as we had taken our seats in the train I began to pump him as if I had him on the witness stand. In the course of an hour he made a dozen slips about Toronto, and he dodged so many questions that I made up my mind he was a man I wanted nothing to do with. I insisted on returning his money and taking back the receipt, and I declined to act as his agent in any manner. He was certainly surprised and put out, but he did not argue the matter. Just before we reached Guilford Junction he said he must get off there to see to a little business, but we did not part in bad feeling. It was not until I arrived at Canterbury that I discovered there had been a change of bags. Mr. Bliss had taken mine and left his.

Perhaps it was not exactly the right thing to do, but in my room at the hotel I tried my keys on the lock of the strange bag and opened it. It was stuffed full of what I at first supposed to be clothing, but after a little investigation I grew white in the face and weak in the knees. Down below the clothing were English consols and railway bonds to the amount of half a million dollars. I didn't have to figure much to come to the conclusion that a big robbery had been pulled off and that Mr. Bliss was in it. It was my duty to inform the police at once, but before I could leave the hotel two officers called and arrested me. They had me red handed, as it were, and even at the police station they would pay no attention to my assertions or protestations. In England a person under arrest is deemed guilty, at least by the police. I was taken back to London, where the robbery had occurred, and, though I had money and credentials and was an innocent man, it took me four weeks to get out of the grip of the law. Meantime the asinine officers had given Mr. Bliss time to get half around the globe.

How the man knew I was from Toronto and stopping at the King's Arms I cannot say, but he had robbed a broker's office near by, left the satchel at a fruit stand and entered the hotel to escape the crowd on his track. He had come direct to my room and had thereby saved himself. When he left me after our conversation, he picked up his satchel and turned in somewhere for the night. He knew the railroad stations would be watched, and he planned to get out of town in my company. It cost me £100 in cash and no end of worry to get clear of the law, and when I finally returned to the hotel the whilom urbane and humble landlord met me with a smile and said:

"Yes, I know they failed to convict you, but just at present we are greatly overcrowded, and I cannot accommodate you. Innocent as a babe, sir, but you'll have to try some other hotel, dontcherknow."

When You Give a Dinner.

Let us suppose you wish to give a little dinner for six.

The tablecloth should be of the best damask you can afford. Underneath should be the "silence cloth," which may be of thick cotton flannel or a felt pad.

At the right of each plate should be the knives, sharp edges toward the plate and in the order in which they are to be used, beginning at the right.

To the right of the knives should be the soup spoon, bowl up, and the oyster fork, when oysters are served.

On the other side of the plate should be the forks, tines up, as many as are necessary.

The goblet is placed at the upper right hand of the plate.

If wine is served, the glasses may be arranged in a semicircle in the order in which they are to be used, starting at the right.

The large napkins should be folded four times when they are ironed. When placed upon the table, fold once more by hand, placing [illegible] and then roll or fold the fold a dinner roll or a piece of bread 2 inches by 1½ thick. The napkin may be placed in front of the plate or at the left of the forks.

Always select a rather flat and never a very towering floral centerpiece, as this does not interfere with the exchange of glances and conversation across the table, and the guests are not compelled to keep dodging from side to side to see around and over the lofty mass of blossoms.

Chinese Barbers.

The barber's calling is supported by government. What if his little squat razor only covers an inch or two at the time and makes the operation unnecessarily tedious. He has the advantage of knowing that he represents lawful authority. He ought never to suffer from being out of work.

Then his perquisite, the combings, makes up for natural deficiency. He can sell at clear profits tails of his own collecting and making. Perhaps the fact that Chinese hair offers little variety in color simplifies this article of commerce. The more sable the better. Children's heads are shaved in order that it may be as black and thick as possible. Black is much more cheerful. A Chinaman plaits white silk into his hair when he goes into mourning.

Tales of a tail might be multiplied. The Chinaman's is more expressive than any that has not the power to wag with satisfaction or droop with dismay. For convenience in work it is fastened up in a coil, but for a man to speak to his superior without letting it down is an insult. No Christian would enter church in this dishabille. A stranger might possibly do so, and in such a case, before beginning the service, the officiating minister would fix him with a glance and politely—for the natives expect politeness under all circumstances—address him, "Sir, will you kindly let down your tail?"—Quiver.

HOW TO GROW THIN.

Remarkable Effect of Abstaining From Water—Not Hard to Do.

Saccharin has become such a common substitute for sugar that the tea table not supplied with the little white tablets nowadays is thought to lack a very important element. Women have taken saccharin when they follow no other rule to keep down their flesh because on the principle that every little helps they think this also may be worth their while. The most popular means of reduction just now consists of abstaining completely from water or an excess of any other liquid at meals. Encouraging stories are told of the amount of flesh lost in this way, and there is no doubt that the method is highly effective. Of course coffee for breakfast is not included in this regimen, which does, however, prohibit any liquid whatever at luncheon or dinner. For an hour preceding the meal no liquids must be taken, and to make the cure effective one hour should be allowed to elapse before anything is drunk.

This process is not nearly so difficult as it seems, says the New York Sun. The most confirmed drinkers of water with their meals, men and women who are never satisfied unless they drink four or five glasses of water during a meal, have found that after two or three days they have become entirely accustomed to doing without so much liquid. The effects of this sort of abstinence are really remarkable. Like all methods of reduction, they are first shown in the face when the cheeks lose the puffed and bloated look that goes with undue stoutness. All of the athletic training farms about New York follow this system, which is as good for the general health as it is for the reduction of flesh. The prohibition against water or any liquid greater in amount than a wineglass is strict. Not until an hour after eating can water be taken, and then there may be no limit to the quantity of it.

A Smart Little Coat.

A black taffeta coat sketched by the New York Sun shows an attractive variation on the silk jacket. It is tucked deeply all over, the tucks running around the coat, and hangs in loose box form, reaching about five inches below the waist line. It is lined with white, and the broad white collar of heavy silk is embroidered by hand in black and white. Very large silver buttons are used on this coat. Buttons are an important feature of all these coats and cloaks, and many of them seem appallingly expensive.

An Easy Test For Genuine Butter.

An easy household test which distinguishes between genuine butter on the one hand and oleomargarine and "renovated" or "processed" butter on the other is presented by the United States department of agriculture.

It consists merely in boiling briskly a small portion of the sample and observing its behavior the while.

Using as the source of heat an ordinary kerosene lamp, turned low and with chimney off, melt the sample to be tested, a piece the size of a small chestnut, in an ordinary tablespoon, hastening the process by stirring with a splinter of wood (for example, a match). Then, increasing the heat, bring to as brisk a boil as possible and after the boiling has begun stir the contents of the spoon thoroughly, not neglecting the outer edges, two or three times at intervals during the boiling, always shortly before the boiling ceases.

A gas flame, if available, can be used perhaps more conveniently than a kerosene lamp.

Oleomargarine and renovated butter boil noisily, sputtering more or less like a mixture of grease and water when boiled, and produce no foam or but very little. Renovated butter produces usually a very small amount.

Genuine butter boils usually with less noise and produces an abundance of foam.

The difference in regard to foam is very marked, as a rule. Rarely a butter is found which yields an uncertain result. Such a butter should receive the benefit of the doubt.

Ripe Currant Pie.

One cupful of mashed ripe currants, one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of water, one tablespoonful of flour mixed with the sugar, the yolks of two eggs. Bake with one crust. Frost the top with the whites of two eggs beaten stiff and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and brown lightly, says The Ladies' World.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 28—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Missions; true philanthropy.—Gal. vi, 1-10.

Philanthropy is the practical love of mankind. It is "universal good will, readiness to do good to all men." Philanthropy should embrace the entire man—body, mind, soul. It is usually limited to the care of the body and of the mind, but should not be so limited, because "the soul is the man, and the man is the soul." A limited philanthropy is a defective philanthropy. True philanthropy is not limited and hence not defective. True philanthropy is nowhere so well illustrated as in Christian missions. The Christian missionary aims to elevate body, mind and soul, and therefore is the truest of all philanthropists.

Missions help the physical man. The care of the human body is of most vital importance. It is the dwelling place of the Holy Ghost and is not to be defiled or dishonored. The relation that exists between the body and the mind is a most intimate one, and a sound body is a primal necessity to a sound mind. Heathenism largely ignores the body, and is usually grossly ignorant of its wants and needs. Christianity gives the care of the physical man its proper place. It does not deify the body, nor does it ignore it, but it does give it an important place in man's nature as greatly influencing both mind and soul. Wherever the missionary goes the importance of the human body is emphasized, and the proper methods for its development, care and preservation are inaugurated, and the physically weak and infirm are cared for.

Missions help the intellectual man. Christianity is not stoicism. It does not make the cultivation of the mind the chief end of man's existence, but it does believe in the education and development of the intellect; it does believe in and practice the care of those who are afflicted with mental infirmities. Wherever the Christian missionary goes there is renewed interest in education, in the development of the mind. The church and the school, the Bible and the spelling book, go hand in hand. Christianity is the handmaiden, not the foe, of education and of intelligence.

Missions help the spiritual man. The supreme aim of Christian missions is to care for the human soul, to have it redeemed by the blood of Christ and kept by the power of the Holy Ghost after it has been redeemed. This is the end of all missionary work. It would reveal God to man in Jesus Christ and have God reconciled to man in Christ. No philanthropic work of any other character can be compared to this. The care of the soul is of infinitely more importance than the care of body or mind. The missionary therefore in any every sense is the truest philanthropist. This fact should increase our missionary zeal. Philanthropy is greatly magnified today. If we would be the truest of philanthropists, we must be interested in and supporters of missions.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Let the missionary committee arrange a special missionary programme.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. xxxv, 1-10; lii, 7; Nah. i, 15; Math. vii, 12; x, 5-8; Rom. xii, 9-13; I Cor. xiii, 1-13; xv, 58; II Thess. iii, 13; Rev. xxii, 12.

The Light of the World.

Christ is the Light of the World. Followers of Christ are described also as lights kindled from the great central Light. In Christ's life the love of God broke like a glorious sunrise into the darkness of the earth. We all know how Jesus lived. He was a benediction wherever He went. He blessed the people by His words, which told them of God's compassion, love and truth. He blessed them by His life, in which the bitterest enemy could find no fault—a life full of sweetness, gentleness, sympathy, purity and whatsoever things are lovely. He blessed them by His deeds. He went about doing good, healing, comforting, helping, lifting up, cleansing lepers, opening blind eyes, scattering kindnesses everywhere. Christ has passed into heaven, but He wants us to continue His life, with all its goodness, its beauty, its sweet service. He kindles the life in us that we may shine as He did.—J. R. Miller, D. D., in United Presbyterian.

Needed at All Times.

Faith is a daily requisite. It is more than a pair of spiritual wings, with which the soul may fly to heaven. We want it in all that we attempt to do. The work may be insignificant, but faith in its success will give it dignity and worth. Without this hopeful hopefulness no man can please God nor even himself.—Presbyterian Journal.

Spiritual Life.

God has made everyday humanity, the common duties, the common affections, so fair, so full of tenderness, so full of claims on our love and admiration, that were we to watch for them and take their joy the path would be filled with music and our souls with grace.—Stopford A. Brooke.

The Great Decision.

The voice of my departed Lord—"Go, teach all the nations"—
Comes on the night air and awakes my spirit,
And I will go!
Henceforth for me it matters not if storm or sunshine be my future lot,
Bitter or sweet my cup,
I may not stop to play with shadows or pluck earthly flowers by the way
Till I my work have done and rendered up account,
And when I come at last to lay me down and die,
Perhaps all unattended, 'neath the cocoa's shade,
It will be sweet to me to know that I have toiled
For other worlds than this,
And, oh, if any for whom satan has struggled as he has for me
Should through my labors ever reach yon blissful shore,
Through all the ages of eternal years
My happy spirit never shall regret
That toil and suffering once were mine below!

Have you been watching veteran ball tossers since the record breaking hot spell swept over the country? If not, you have missed a treat. Just pick out a couple of old timers in your favorite team and watch them play the game. They are fast, sure and diplomatic on the bases, they field with wonderful precision and hit the ball with a crack not unlike a pistol shot.

While youngsters of the Strang order are feeling indisposed and cranky veterans are frisking around like 2-year-olds turned out to pasture. And the "vets" are now setting the pace which the youngsters made so fast early in the season. And these same young men are having their hands full trying to keep up with the procession.

You will also notice that teams carrying several veterans are playing great ball just now. The acquisition of Jennings has had a wonderful effect on the Philadelphia Nationals, while the old timers in the Boston and the Chicago American teams are playing ball of the sort to keep the enthusiastic followers on their feet for a good part of the game.

Nichols is pitching great ball again and is hitting it out like a star outfielder. But of all the veterans George Van Haltren is just at present the shining light. Van began to play ball so long ago that the oldest inhabitant likes to recall the time when he as a lad used to watch Van amble around the inclosed lot, the oldest inhabitant watching operations from a knothole in the fence.

Van Haltren is a fine illustration of a tranquil temperament and sobriety. He pays close attention to business and his physical well being. While enjoying a bit of gossip, Van cannot be placed in the trouble making class in spite of the stories circulated to this effect. He never played a better game of ball than he is playing today, and he is as fast as any of them in the field and on the bases—a really remarkable old man and one of the very few veteran ball tossers who have never taken on superfluous tissue.

Van is an ornament to the game and is just as valuable to a team as he was 15 years ago, when he was considered one of the star pitchers of the country. And he can go in and pitch today when occasion requires. Like Jesse Burkett, one of the greatest all around players of the time, Van recognized that if he stuck to the pitcher's box his life on the green diamond field would not last many years. His constitution would not stand the strain. So, like Burkett, he abandoned the curves and shoots for the outfield, and he has been a star ever since. It is the same with little Keeler of Hanlon's Superbas, who at first thought that he was destined to be the greatest left handed pitcher in the League.

I met John L. Sullivan the other day, and the one time great fighter told of the time that Eddie Burke slugged him in Chicago, remarking that Eddie was one of the few men alive today who had smashed his face and got away.

It all occurred in a Chicago hotel. Sullivan, as usual when he came to town, had hunted up the ball team and decided to stop at the same hostelry. The big fellow was in a merry mood and insisted upon treating to cigars and liquids until the ball tossers wearied of the attention, and one by one they went to bed. Burke was one of the early sleepers, with big Amos Rusie as a roommate. Rusie liked a frolic and frequently played little tricks on his roommate. He told John L. to come to his (Rusie's) room for a few minutes. Sullivan agreed and, seeing Burke apparently asleep, picked up a spiked shoe from the floor and, turning back the coverlet, gave Burke a resounding whack.

Burke turned over restlessly, saying, "Stop, Amos, or I will smash you." This caused Sullivan to roar, and he applied the shoe again.

Burke woke up with a yell and let go his right. It landed squarely on Sullivan's nose. The claret began to flow copiously. Everybody expected trouble, but Sullivan simply grunted and deliberately walked out of the room, going straight to his apartments.

When Burke was told that he had slugged Sullivan, he became so frightened that he arose, dressed and went to the pugilist's apartments to beg his pardon. But Sullivan had fallen on his bed and was snoring roundly, so Burke did not apologize until the next day.

The last I heard of Burke he was playing in a team out west, and they say he shivers yet when Sullivan's name is mentioned.

While the contests for both the National and American pennants are interesting, the struggle for the pennant of the older organization will probably be the better one, for the teams as a whole are better matched.

Chicago, Boston and Baltimore appear to be the pick of Johnson's league, and many of the players say the actual issue will be between the three.

While the patronage in Brooklyn has been fair this year, I am of the opinion that the champions are playing in a 25 cent town, and the sooner the management realizes this the better it will be for the coffers of the club.

It looks as if the New York club will really make considerable money this year in the face of the poorest of management. These two towns, separated by but a narrow stream, are distinctly unlike. New York wants the best in everything and never grumbles at the price. Brooklyn likes the best and wrangles if it does not get it, but demands a shade off the price. I believe that baseball in Brooklyn under the old 25 and 50 cent regime would prove to be a profitable change for the club. Philadelphia is much like Brooklyn in this respect.

I had a talk with one of the heaviest holders of professional baseball stock in the country the other day, but as he objects to being quoted at this time his name is omitted. He has been a strong advocate of absolute protection for the umpires for many years, and I was rather surprised to hear him say that he was beginning to think that it paid to bulluoze the umpire.

"I know that it is not sportsmanlike or for the best interests of the game," said he, "but the club owners who encourage that sort of thing are getting the best of it all along the line.

"Rowdyism ought to be stopped, of course, and it is the club owners' fault that it is not stopped. One team in the country which has made the most trouble for the umpires has got the best of close decisions in nearly every instance. Umpires realize that they will not be supported, and the stronger the protest the easier it is for the player and his team.

"Fault finding players work on the system that it is good policy to kick at everything, with the hope that they will get a shade the best of it. When the reorganization comes, this is a phase of the game which must be settled for good and all or no self respecting man will ever again don the umpire's mask and protector."

Harry Stovey, once the pride of Philadelphia, is a big, fat policeman up in New England. He never tires of talking baseball and says the game is not so exciting as in former days.

GEORGE E. STACKHOUSE.

R. D. Little and F. B. Alexander of Princeton university are attracting a deal of attention in the lawn tennis arena. They are sectional champions in doubles and have a good chance to qualify to meet Holcombe Ward and Dwight F. Davis in the national supremacy play off.

The national doubles championship is to be played at Newport, R. I., Aug. 24. The contest will be one of the most interesting of recent years. Ward and Davis have of late been considered practically alone in their class. Their long holding of the title is testimony to their ability, but Little and Alexander can give them a hard rub for honors.

In various of the sectional championship matches that have been played recently the Jerseymen swept the boards. They captured the southern championship from Paret and Davidson at Washington and also corralled the western supremacy.

Penn's New Athletic Instructor.

Great things are expected of Dr. J. K. Shell, the newly appointed athletic trainer of the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Shell has had plenty of experience with teams of smaller institutions. He is an alumnus of U. of P. and graduated in 1881. He was trainer of the University of Illinois teams for three years, and he has turned out some great athletes from that university. Prior to that he trained the University of Vermont athletes and many academy and school teams as well.

It is strange that American managers never suspect the possibilities of the standard dramas until they have been exploited by their English cousins. "Coriolanus" was a favorite with the giants of the American stage a generation or so ago, and yet the play has lain dormant, so far as our stage is concerned, for decades. Last winter, however, Henry Irving, having no other available material at hand, decided to revive "Coriolanus." The production was sumptuously made in London, and Irving's former popularity, coupled with the gorgeousness of the mounting, served the purpose of making the receipts reasonably satisfactory. Still there was nothing in the result of the experiment to demonstrate that "Coriolanus" is a particularly valuable vehicle from the box office standpoint. Nevertheless, despite the fact that Mr. Irving will present the play during his tour of this country next season, two productions have already been announced by promoters of this city.

Now, there is no reason in the world why "Coriolanus" should not succeed. The point is that it was more valuable to the smaller American managers before its revival by Mr. Irving than it is now and that these native magnates were not and are not able to recognize that manifest truth.

The "Don Cæsar de Bazan" craze is now on in England, and it is beginning here for no reason other than that some Britishers have managed to make various versions of the stilted old absurdity pay. Of course that ought to indicate nothing at all, but theatrical managers, especially those who now control the affairs of the stage in this country, are not noted for foresight. It is therefore likely that "Don Cæsar" in one form or another will be exploited from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Minnesota to Texas. It is also more than probable that the theatrical highways and byways will be strewn with mementos of abandoned "De Bazan" tours.

Elsie Leslie is a living refutation of the oft repeated assertion that a child prodigy never develops into a really good performer. A little more than a decade ago Elsie Leslie's name was familiar to every child in the country by reason of her assumption of the title roles of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and "Prince and Pauper." For some years after the "kid drama" craze, as it was irreverently dubbed along the Rialto, had died out Miss Leslie was not heard of. Then she reappeared as a member of Joseph Jefferson's company. She was not a Rachel by any means, but she gave promise of improvement, and the promise was realized, for she is today a really excellent leading woman. She has been engaged for next season for Viola Allen's old role of Glory Quayle in the company which will support Edward J. Morgan in "The Christian." In addition to whatever ability she may possess, Miss Leslie is an exceedingly pretty young woman, a fact which is not likely to militate against her in her chosen profession.

ELSIE LESLIE.

"Tom Moore," the historical comedy drama in which Rich & Harris will present Andrew Mack next season, opening the Herald Square theater, New York, Aug. 31, can hardly be classified as a distinctively Irish play, as only the first act is given locale on Irish soil. The scenes of three acts are laid in London. Among the characters are personages of historical eminence. The story, which to a great extent follows actual incidents in the life of Tom Moore, treats its principal character with considerable dramatic license, but there is no intricate plot and no intensely wrought up dramatic situation. Instead "Tom Moore" will be found to be a happy love story of him who was called the "lovers' poet."

Rich & Harris announce the following cast of principals:

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Alarm Over Crops and Steel Workers' Strike Was Needless

New York, July 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: After a number of days of serious weather conditions in the corn and spring wheat states, advices of lower temperature and moderate rains came as a great relief to business throughout the country. Speculators were brought up sharply, and were disposed to consider more fully the general undoubted prosperity.

Labor matters took a more hopeful aspect. A fortnight of the steel strike has passed without materially altering the position of the contestants or adversely affecting the industry as a whole. Instead of spreading to mills all over the country, as threatened by the labor leaders, the controversy is confined to a comparatively small number of plants, and most of these needed an opportunity to make repairs. Exceptional activity is noticed at the mills not affected by the strike.

New lines of woolen goods for delivery after Oct. 1 opened at moderate reductions from last year's prices, as generally expected by the trade. Supplies of heavyweight goods have been reduced to a satisfactory point, and the situation in all branches of the industry is such as to engender confidence.

Cotton goods are dull, neither buyers nor sellers exhibiting any eagerness to make propositions. Withdrawals of prominent concerns from the Fall River selling committee suggests lower prices for print cloths. Mills are not fully employed either north or south.

Shoe shops are producing at full capacity, with orders arriving steadily, and salesmen are already placing spring samples liberally in western and southern markets. Business improves as the season advances, and local jobbers report July trade in excess of the corresponding month in any previous year.

Whole Province In Insurrection

Victoria, B. C., July 27.—Advices by the steamer Duke of Fife, which arrived from the Orient yesterday, included details of the rising in Manchuria. Refugees from the affected districts are reaching Che Foo and the Japan mails say the whole province of Shing King is in a state of insurrection, rebels pillaging, burning and killing around Moukden. All the villages and hamlets have been burned, and hundreds of the inhabitants who offered resistance have been killed. The Russian forces are entirely insufficient to maintain order in southern Manchuria.

Ran Against an Inspector

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 27.—Frank Wallace was lodged in jail here yesterday, charged with dealing in green goods. Wallace thought he was in communication with a man named H. C. Ehringer of Ann Arbor, Mich., to whom he wanted to sell green goods to the amount of $10,000 for $650. The transaction was to have taken place at Mauch Chunk. When Ehringer arrived at Mauch Chunk he proved to be Postoffice Inspector Malone and he arrested Wallace.

Total of a Billion Taels

Pekin, July 27.—The ministers of the powers yesterday dispatched a note to the Chinese peace commissioners formally accepting the recent Chinese offer, which was in anticipation of the ministers' plan for the payment of 450,000,000 taels as indemnity at 4 percent interest, the final payment to be made in 1940. The total payments of principal and interest will be 1,000,000,000 taels.

Boer Prisoners Fighting

Jamestown, St. Helena, July 27.—Bad blood among the Boer prisoners in St. Helena over the question of taking the oath of allegiance to King Edward has led to several severe encounters, and the vigilance committee of the irreconcilables subjected those who had taken the oath to indescribable indignities. The ringleaders have been imprisoned in a fortress.

Bryan Says Imperialism Comes First

Chicago, July 27.—While here yesterday, William J. Bryan, who is going home, after a long tour of the east and south, said: "Imperialism is still the great issue between the two political parties. The tariff, to be sure, is an important subject, but, to my mind, heart disease is a more serious malady than stomachache."

A Public Execution

Little Rock, July 27.—Charles Anderson, colored, was publicly hanged here yesterday for a criminal assault on a white woman. When the black cap was placed over his head, scores of negro women became frenzied with excitement, and rent the air with their screams as they rolled upon the lawn of the court house.

Warship Maine Launched

Philadelphia, July 27.—The battleship Maine was launched at Cramps' shipyard just before 11 o'clock this morning. Miss Mary Preble Anderson of Portland, Me., christened the warship. Miss Anderson is a descendant of the Preble family, which became famous in the naval annals of the United States.

Blondin Dead, This Time

Woodstock, N. B., July 27.—Coroner Hay is satisfied, on comparing a photograph of Blondin received from Boston with a corpse found on the railroad track near here Thursday night, that the man killed was Blondin.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, July 28.
Sun rises—4:32; sets, 7:09.
Moon sets—1:48 a. m.
High water—8:45 a. m.; 9 p. m.

While the hot wave continued yesterday over the corn belt, it was somewhat tempered over its western portion by light local thunderstorms. In the middle and south Atlantic states there were rains with considerably lower temperatures. In New England the weather will continue fair, with light variable winds on the coast.

Good Afternoon.

While the horse continues to lower his record for speed, the automobile has come and left him far behind.

The city of Fitchburg needs curbing—her tax rate for 1901 is $19.20. The tax rate of North Attleboro, however, is $22.

Congressman Mondell, of Wyo., said the other day: "There is no general sentiment in favor of tariff revision in the northwest. The next Congress will have plenty to do without attempting to revise the schedule of the Dingley tariff. The Philippine tariff and a reciprocity treaty with Cuba will give us plenty to think about and talk about, to say nothing of the Nicaragua Canal and our merchant marine."

With a jury chosen, to decide and the evidence all heard, it seems an usurpation of their duty for a judge to decide a murder case, as did Judge Stevens in the Fosburgh trial. Having read the evidence as printed we failed to find any evidence that would convict young Fosburgh b it the purpose of a jury trial seems to be to obtain the opinion of twelve men and not that of the judge. The judge has authority enough in admitting and excluding evidence. Had Judge Stevens on the other hand decided against the motion, it would have said to the jury that the court had reasons to believe the prisoner guilty, and this might prejudice the jury against a prisoner. Fosburgh being found not guilty, it was a terrible thing to subject the family to a court trial and suspicion for a year.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It looks as if the Cadillac would be the lake cup defender consequently Boston doesn't feel wholly cast down, although Hanley's yard is down Quincy way.—Lynn Item.

☞ For goodness sake if we have a bug "in our midst" that is good for anything, let us keep it. We have enough of the nuisance and worst type of bugs and insects to be worked up here, and if the ladybug is good at the exterminating business let us cherish her and her offspring instead of shipping them to South Africa, where her service is understood. Here is every suburbanite and farmer in the land lying awake o'nights trying to devise some scheme to beat out the plant lice brown tail moths and all the other thousand and one insects that destroy life and limbs of every growing green thing, and yet it is suggested that the one decent specimen, the flower so to speak of the insect family, be shipped out of the country. Let us keep the ladybugs here and make it pleasant for them.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ It is said that this is the age of young men, but Secretary Long very evidently believes that there is opportunity for the older men as well, and it is said that in his annual report he will take strong ground against the present system of retirement in the navy by which men who have just got into the sixties are retired from active duty under the service provison, having given forty years of active duty to the navy. The secretary is right, for such men ought to be right in their prime. Our naval duty has not required of these men such hardship as to make them prematurely old, and some of these men who are now seeking retirement are in as good condition for service as ever and possess the practical knowledge gained by experience that is needed to balance the theoretical knowledge of the younger element who are comparatively fresh from the college.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ Many a man has sacrificed the best part of himself in his struggle for success. He has given up his friendship, torn up all the tender ties of his early years, sacrificed everything which he then held dear, to the goal of his ambition. In his mad rush for the "almighty dollar," all that is beautiful in his social life has been lost sight of. He has developed his money getting powers, the faculties which grasp and hold, at the expense of all nobler qualities. In middle life he suddenly awakens to the fact that he no longer loves music that his admiration for poetry and painting has evaporated. He finds that he does not linger by the wayside to drink in the glory of a sunset as he used to. He no longer cares to lie on his back in the grass and study the stars. He finds it difficult to carry on conversation in society as he once did. In fact, there is only one thing in life that yields him pleasure—his business. In the narrow rut, between his office or store and his home he finds his only joys.—O. S. Marden in Success.

Editorial Correspondence.

There are many charming spots in Massachusetts, unknown to most people, which many who seek rest and pleasure at a distance would appreciate. It was the writer's pleasure to enjoy two weeks this month at Littleton, Mass., about 30 miles from Boston on the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine. Littleton is not a little town in area as it covers over 17 square miles, more than the city of Quincy. The census shows about 1,300 population and the town has less than 300 voters. But it is the lakes, or ponds as they are called, and the pine groves, and the hospitable people which attract people to Littleton, and they camp on the shores of Nagog, Warren, Long, Spectacle and Forge ponds, or board at the farms, and enjoy a free and easy life away from the whirl of fashion, with boating, fishing, bathing, riding, etc. Good sized yachts sail on Nagog. In the ponds an inexhaustible supply of pickerel, perch, hornpouts and flat fish abounds.

The town presents a creditable appearance with its well-kept farm houses and buildings, good roads three churches, town house, library, large depot, etc. It has an almshouse but no inmates for two years. About the only industry outside of farming and gardening is the Avery Chemical Works at the head of which is a former Quincy man, who invented Lactart.

The Warren farm shipped to Boston in one day during our stay, eighteen crates of raspberries.

We met in the town relatives of Quincy people, including Mr. and Mrs. Alan Claflin, a cousin of Thomas B. Tilton, relatives of Mrs. James T. Penniman and acquaintances of others.

For tired people seeking rest and comfort, we heartily recommend Camp Hayward on the shores of Warren pond, which during August will be occupied by the family of A. F. Hayward of Goffe street. F. F. P.

☞ Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a phys cian. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

—The lawns at Buckingham palace are sufficiently large to allow of the manoeuvering of 2000 men.

—Germany exported over $4,000,000 worth of soaps and perfumes in 1899.

—Eight British brewers turn out over a million barrels each in a year.

—In certain London hotels, wine left on the tables is the waiter's perquisite.

There will be 24 leap years in the 20th century.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

BATTLESHIP PLANS.

Majority and Minority Reports Both Criticised.

Plans for battleships now interest many in Quincy who are employed by the Fore River Co. and a Washington dispatch to the Herald says:

Pursuant to instructions from Secretary Long, the majority and minority of the naval board of construction have submitted to the secretary criticism on each other's designs for the proposed new battleships.

The majority contends that the additional 300 tons' displacement required for the minority design can best be obtained by increasing the draught of the ships five inches, and that this increased draught is objectionable, so the majority design simplifies the construction of the ship and the mounting of the battery.

It is contended that the arrangement of the guns in the majority plan gives great advantages as regards rapidity of firing and simplicity and ease of ammunition supply; that the superimposed turret design proposed by the minority is faulty because four guns may be disabled by a single shot; that the 7-inch gun proposed by the majority is much superior to the 8-inch gun proposed by the minority in rapidity of fire and in ease of manipulation and that the 8-inch gun mounted in turrets is slow and inefficient in action. Most of the arguments of the majority are directed against the superimposed turrets and the 8-inch guns.

Rear Admiral Bradford, in the minority reports, admits that increased draught is objectionable, but does not admit that it is necessary to increase the draught to accommodate his battery plan. He does not deny that the majority design simplifies construction and the mounting of the battery, but he says: "In the design offered by the majority, he did not consider the question of simplicity of construction, but efficiency as a fighting machine, which, I submit, is the most important factor."

The increased rapidity of fire asserted by the majority, Rear Admiral Bradford contends, is purely theoretical. He also contends that the rate of fire given by the majority for the eight-inch gun is misleading, as it is the rate obtained with old guns and old mounts and is not the rate actually obtained at home and abroad with the latest types of eight-inch guns.

Rear Admiral Bradford contends that the rapidity of fire asserted for the seven-inch guns cannot be maintained without an ammunition hoist for each gun and a large number of magazines and shell rooms in close proximity to the hoists. He admits that the same statement applies to the battery proposed by the minority, except that for the eight-inch guns the magazine and shell rooms and ammunition hoists for each turret are more compactly arranged and constitute themselves a distinct unit insuring a direct and rapid supply of ammunition.

The Faxon Law.

The Brockton Enterprise thinks that the Faxon law, relating to express shipments of liquor to no-license towns, is enforced about as well as any liquor law now on the statute books. That could be true, very easily, and yet the law could be violated very frequently. It is true that when a spasm of reform seizes the police in a no-license city or town, a raid under the Faxon law occasionally results in good hauls; but that is because the expressmen have grown careless. When they realize that the police are on the lookout, it is not very hard to evade the law by various pretexts. Like many other good laws, the Faxon law is usually best enforced about the time of a town or city election, when temperance agitation arouses the police to a stern sense of duty. When the agitation dies down, the police find other things to monopolize their attention. The Faxon law is a very effective law, in stopping illicit liquor selling—when the police enforce the law.—Boston Advertiser.

CADILLAC FOURTH.

The Fifth Trial Race Won by the Illinois.

The Cadillac must win again to be selected as the defender of the Canada's cup, and today may decide it. A dispatch of Friday to the Journal, says: Illinois, the Chicago fin-keel yacht, won the fifth trial race today for the selection of the Canada's cup defender. Detroit was second, nearly two minutes behind, and Milwaukee and Cadillac were far in the background. Today's trial had been expected to end the series and give the final victory to either the Milwaukee or Cadillac, each of whom had won twice. Illinois and Detroit had been generally counted out of it.

Milwaukee and Cadillac were leaders when eighteen miles of the twenty-one had been sailed and there they were pocketed, which arrested the progress of the entire fleet. Finally a fitful breeze sprung up. Illinois and Detroit were the first to feel it and came dancing in, Illinois leading and the other yachts creeping along with flapping sails over the smooth sea behind.

Elapsed time:

| | Time. h. m. s. |
|---|---|
| Illinois, | 3 52 48 |
| Detroit, | 3 54 40 |
| Milwaukee, | 3 57 20 |
| Cadillac, | 4 00 14 |

Gantz—Hussey.

Miss S. H. Hussey received a visit the first of the week from a couple on their bridal tour. On July 17 her favorite niece of New York, Miss Mary Anthony Hussey, and Rev. Albert Dale Gantz were married at the 96th Street Presbyterian church in Central Park west, and it was Miss Hussey's intention to be present, but sudden illness prevented, and it was therefore a great pleasure to entertain them, especially as Mr. and Mrs. Gantz are to make their home at Walla Walla, Washington. Miss Hussey was a Wellesley college girl and known to several in Quincy. The wedding was a brilliant one at 12 M., the Rev. David G. Wylie officiating, and was followed by a wedding breakfast at 1.30 at the home of the bride's parents. The wedding trip includes Baltimore, Newport, Niagara Falls, and Buffalo. Rev. Mr. Gantz will be installed early in August as pastor of a large church at Walla Walla, Washington.

Hayden—Brigham.

There was a pretty home wedding last Sunday evening, July 21, at the corner of Pond and Town streets, South Braintree. At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. Nelson E. Hayden, Jr., of South Braintree and Miss Ethel May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Addison Brigham, also of South Braintree, were united in marriage, the nuptial knot being tied by Rev. Charles H. Pennoyer of Boston. The wedding gifts were many and appropriate.

Among those present were: the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Brigham, Mr. Nelson E. Hayden, Sr., Mrs. F. R. McDonald of Jamaica Plain, Mrs. Hattie Harris of Chelsea, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Sherman of Brockton, Ervin Hayden, and Larkin Hayden, of Marblehead, Mr. and Mrs. Walter White of Weymouth, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Coy, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hayden, Mrs. Alice McGibbon and Mr. Fred Hayden, all of South Braintree. Others sent gifts, as Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Cook of Dorchester, Miss Emma E. Brigham of Boston, Mrs. A. P. Pennock of Braintree, Mr. Henry F. Brigham of Dorchester, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Goodnow of Jamaica Plain, Miss Ada May Faulkner of Whitingham, Vt., Miss Alice Ardelle Leach of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Frost of Dorchester and others. The bride was prettily dressed. The company was a happy one. All were glad for the new couple and for each other and for all.

Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden will be at home, corner of Pond and Town streets, South Braintree, after September first.

—Of the new colors, Paris is wearing red in the raspberry, strawberry, flame and similar tints; of the blues, hyacinth, aqua marine and turquoise are favored; greens are very popular, varying from water hues to deep colorings. One characteristic very apparent to the woman who looks at the new colors with an artistic eye is their extreme refinement and the absence of all suggestion of crudity. The shadings are very subtle, the red, for instance, which erstwhile were so garish, having the artistic blending nature used in painting a rose petal or a sunset.

HULL'S SECOND.

The Hostess, Hustler and Bonito Among Winners.

The Hostess was again an easy victor in Class L in the Hull open race of Friday, outsailing the Circe II by over 6 minutes and the Rooster by nearly 20 minutes.

The Hustler defeated her only rival the Thordis in Class C.

The order in Class D was Flirt, Chewink, and Calypso; the little Peter withdrawing.

In Class K, the Runaway Girl had no close rivals, who finished Dabster, Vitesse, Geisha.

Class S with seven entries was more exciting. Mildred II took first prize, Eaglet second and Opitsah III third, the order of the others being: Tobasco, Rambler, Scamper and Nancy Hanks.

Only 36 seconds stood between the Fantasy and Lobster in Class T and the Plunger was a good third, with the Hector last.

The Bonito led the fleet in Class I by nearly 10 minutes but it was a hot race for the other places, the order being: Oom Paul, Miladi, Nethla Aspinquid, Trouble, Malillian, Dazzler, Lobster II, Kittiwake, Barbara, Oriana and Ayaya.

The Vitesse defeated the Kant-Elp-It in Class X and T. W. King's Hobo on the D. Y. C. dory race.

The Hostess promises to win the cup offered by Mr. Pidgeon to the boat securing the greatest percentage in the series which ends today. The Hostess has already two firsts and should win today.

Play House Dedicated.

An elaborate children's party was held yesterday from four to six at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brown on Elm street when their children—Madeline, Francis and Grace—invited nearly forty of their young friends to assist them in dedicating their new playhouse which has been appropriately numbered 154 1-2 Elm street. It is an attractive little house and all their friends envied them. The children enjoyed themselves in the house and on the lawn, and were entertained by a sleight-of-hand man and music by three pieces. Dancing, bonbons, grabs, etc., were other attractions, but nothing pleased them more than the ice cream, cakes, candy, etc.

Among those present were: Morton Beattie, Miriam Miller, Francis Thompson, Paul Blackmur, Maurice Blackmur, Richard Blackmur, Winslow Sears, Samuel Sears, Constance Sears, Allen Miller, Grace Miller, Marjory Welch, Marion Howe, Huntington Hardwick, Donald Crane, Richard Crane, Mary Faxon, Baby Faxon, Elizabeth Ellsworth, Baby Burgin, Baby Angier, Frederick Schenkelberger, Maria Schenkelberger, Roxana Schenkelberger, Jack Pfaffmann, Baby Pfaffmann, Dorothy Packard, Ruth Packard, Alice Arnold, Henry Prescott, Marjory Penniman, Laurice Penniman, William Harlow, Chester Bennett, Ernest Perkins, Eaton Perkins.

Has a Mania.

Edward F. Linton, aged 13 years, whose home is in Indiana, but who has been stopping with his uncle, P. H. Linton of Weymouth, has according to the police, a mania for helping himself to things not his own.

It is alleged that he stole a bicycle in Quincy last Monday and rode it to Quincy Point and then left it. It is also alleged that he stole his uncle's watch and two bicycles in Weymouth this week. Yesterday it is alleged that he stole a bicycle from Seth Damon. He was subsequently arrested by Officer Fitzgerald and brought into court this morning.

Bull Dog Whipped.

A valuable white bull dog of A. L. Schenkelberger was badly used up in Saville street last night by a large Newfoundland dog. The two dogs got into a fight and when they were separated the bull dog was bleeding profusely at the neck. Just then Harry Rice arrived from Boston and placing the injured animal in his carriage, started with him for a doctor. The Newfoundland dog in the meantime had disappeared.

BROAD SCOPE IS GIVEN

To the Inquiry Into the Facts of the Santiago Campaign

PRECEPT IN SCHLEY COURT

Covers Every Point of the Controversy Between the Admiral and Critics—Lemley Accepts the Detail as Judge Advocate, Thus Completing Court

Washington, July 27.—The precept in the Schley case directs the court of inquiry to investigate Schley's conduct in connection with the events of the Santiago campaign; movements of the "flying squadron" off Cienfuegos in May, 1898; the movements of said squadron in proceeding from Cienfuegos to Santiago; the circumstances attending the arrival of the flying squadron off Santiago; the reason for its retrograde turn westward and departure from off Santiago, and the propriety thereof; the disobedience by Schley of the orders of the department contained in its dispatch of May 25, 1898, and the propriety of his conduct in the premises.

It must ascertain the condition of the coal supply of the flying squadron on and about May 27, 1898; its coaling facilities, the necessity or advisability of the return of the squadron to Key West to coal, and the accuracy and propriety of the official reports made by Commodore Schley with respect to this matter.

Whether or not every effort incumbent upon the commanding officer of a fleet under such circumstances was made to capture or destroy the Spanish cruiser Colon, as she lay at anchor in the entrance of Santiago harbor, May 27 to 31, inclusive, and the necessity or advisability of engaging the batteries at the entrance to Santiago harbor and the Spanish vessels at anchor within the entrance to said harbor at the ranges used, and the propriety of Commodore Schley's conduct in the premises; the necessary advisibility of withdrawing at night the flying squadron from the entrance to Santiago harbor to a distance at sea, if such shall be found to have been the case; the extent and character of such withdrawal, and whether or not a close and adequate blockade of said harbor to prevent the escape of the enemy's vessels therefrom was established, and the propriety of Commodore Schley's conduct in the premises.

It must determine the position of the Brooklyn on the morning of July 3, 1898, at the time of the exit of the Spanish fleet from the harbor of Santiago; the reasons for and the incidents resulting from the turning of the Brooklyn in the direction in which she turned, or at the beginning of the action with said Spanish vessels, and the possibility of thereby colliding with or endangering any vessels of the United States fleet, and the propriety of Commodore Schley's conduct in the premises.

The circumstances leading to, and the incidents and results of a controversy with Lieutenant Albon C. Hodgson, U. S. N., who, on July 3, 1898, during the battle of Santiago, was navigator of the Brooklyn, also the colloquy at that time between Commodore Schley and Lieutenant Hodgson, and the ensuing correspondence between them on the subject thereof, and the propriety of the conduct of Admiral Schley in the premises.

These specific directions do not limit the scope of the inquiry into the "entire matter," the investigation of which is asked by Rear Admiral Schley.

Secretary Long has selected Captain Lemley to be judge advocate of the court of inquiry. Captain Lemley has accepted the detail. Lemley is judge advocate general of the navy. No officer has served on more important courts than he, and his fitness is admitted.

No word has been received from Admiral Kimberley, who, it is reported, had written to the department, saying that his health made it inadvisable for him to attempt to serve on the court. He will not be officially notified of his selection as a member of the court until he receives the precept, which was mailed to him yesterday. A copy of the precept also will be sent to Admiral Dewey and Rear Admirals Benham and Schley.

An Innocent Purchaser

Butte, Mont., July 27.—Senator Clark has filed his answer to the suit brought by the government to invalidate his title to about 15,000 acres of timber land in western Montana, valued at $500,000, on the ground that the lands were secured from the government through a gigantic swindle, in which the federal grand jury recently returned 102 indictments. Senator Clark avers that he was an innocent purchaser and as such must be protected.

Kearsarge Gun Not Damaged

Washington, July 27.—The navy department has received a report from McCalla concerning the bursting of a shell in one of the 13-inch guns in the after turret of the Kearsarge, off Newport. The gun was in no wise injured. The shell broke up in the gun at a point about seven feet from the muzzle, where the bands are deformed for a distance of about six inches.

Kruger Addressed as President

Knockout Resulted Seriously

Paterson, N. J., July 27.—Jim McCann, who fought 37 rounds a few days ago with Andy Watson, and who was knocked out, is at a private sanitarium here, in a serious condition.

PLANS FOR A CHURCH.

Modest Place of Worship to Cost Only $3,000.

There are many things to be considered when a church is to be built, but one of the principal requisites is that the entire space within the edifice can be made available for hearing and seeing.

In the case of a little church that seats only 200, if there be a little room to one side, it is desirable that the seating capacity of this room be available in connection with the large room, so that upon extraordinary occasions all may be thrown into one. This is an almost universal condition and is particularly true of small churches.

Take the case of the little plan here given. In the main audience room there is a seating capacity of about 225. In the Sunday school classroom back of the main room there is a capacity for about 50 more, and 35 or 40 may be seated in the gallery above. The classroom in this and other structures of similar character should be arranged so that it may be cut off from the main room and have its individual use without connection with the larger room. Thus the purpose of the meeting is better subserved and at times heat and light are economized.

A vestibule of relatively large size is always desirable in connection with a church building. People come on a cold or rainy day, take off their wraps and overshoes and arrange themselves in a way to disturb none who are on the inside. Then it is much pleasanter not to have a door opening directly into the room from the cold or noise of the street. It is true that there is one door which opens from the classroom to the outside in the case of this structure, but it is placed there in deference to prejudice and not to reason. The people who build this church think that on general principles it is quite desirable that two doors be provided, that upon the unusual occasion both doors may be open that large numbers may pass through both entrances.

In case of fire it is argued that the church can be emptied much more rapidly. Now, in truth, the extra door will not be used in this building, and in a one story structure there is not much danger of being injured by fire. As it is, one can go into the vestibule and thence to the main room or from the same room to the classroom or the gallery above. Thus the extra door is altogether unnecessary.

There is nothing plentier outside a church than fresh air, and it is almost universally true that the air inside the church is nasty. A great deal of energy has been wasted in attempts at church ventilation, and for anything which is so desirable as fresh air it is really very strange that nothing proper has been done in the way of supplying what is wanted. Now, it is said that fresh air is cheap. While this is true as to fresh air, it is not true as to fresh air warmed to a summer temperature during very cold weather. The coal combination has something to say about the price of warmed fresh air. There is one way to furnish good air in the church building of this kind. Warm it below in a furnace, let it pass through the room and to the outside.

The furnace should be ample, the air inlet large and the air outlet large. The coal pile should be ample, because large quantities of outside air are brought into the furnace and heated by it, distributed through the registers in the floor to the room above, breathed and allowed to pass out. Now this is simple, natural ventilation, but people will be wiser than they are now before a church will be ventilated in this way. There is always some one to object to the coal bill. It is cheaper to breathe the nastiness of foul air, and those who object to the coal bill do not care for the bad ventilation. They are used to it. They are old; they have been brought up on it. It is hard to beat an idea into a man who has been breathing bad air all his life.

This structure is of wood, sheathed, papered and weatherboarded. It is substantially built and cost about $3,000. The details of the plan are self explanatory.

AT THE URN.

Ida sitteth at the urn
Every afternoon at three.
Since that summer at Lucerne
I am very fond of—tea.
"Sugar?" "Thank you; just a lump."
Ah, Pilatus, proud and free,
How my foolish heart goes thump!
I am very fond of—tea.

Ida sitteth at the urn.
"One more cup?" "Why, certainly."
While we watched Swiss sunsets burn
I grew very fond of—tea.
Now we're married, in a flat;
She paints things; I write, you see;
Cheese and kisses and all that,
And we're very fond of—tea.

With a View to Matrimony.

"Can I dew anything moar for ye, Sally?" said Bob Heron, the cowman, to his sister as he finished banging the mud and "muck" off the mats against the outhouse wall.

"Why, whatever ha' come to ye?" said his sister. "D'ye want anything?"

For years Sally had taken upon herself the unenviable task of looking after her old father and of "mothering" her three younger brothers. Her efforts to keep them going in food and clothes were wont to meet with more unmerited abuse and foul language than any return in the shape of attention, gratitude or help. This she felt the more as she was a woman with ideas of refinement that were unusual in the neighborhood of Frogsthorpe and took to heart the complaints of her great loutish brothers that "they hadn't got noo mother." Bob's desire to assist her in any way surprised her.

"Narthen to sigerfy," said Bob sheepishly. "Can't I dew narthen moar?"

Sally bustled about and deftly tidied up the kitchen. Out of the corner of her eyes she watched Bob hanging around uncomfortably with an evident wish to ask something and a reluctance to make a start.

"Shall I sluch the bricks down for ye?" inquired Bob.

"Come an do," said Sally. "Tell us what 'tis. Surely to goodness ye ain't afeard."

"Will ye prarmus not to put the grin on tew me?" Bob asked.

"Why, what should I want to do that for?" said Sally, who was getting inquisitive and knew the only way to extract information from her brother was to evince no curiosity. "But just as ye like. I can't keep muddlin about here all the mornin."

"I want ye to tell me what to say," Bob gasped out.

"Say? Say what? Whatever are ye talkin about? I don't know the meanin on't."

"Well! There's a gal!" Bob began nervously.

"Ah! There's plenty o' them," said Sally, unconcernedly.

"I want ye to tell me what to saay in a letter," burst out Bob. "Lor', Sally, she's a gre't wench; She's bigger'n yew. Har hair's that black! 'Tain't like yarn." (Sally was fair.) "She's big as me. An har eyes! Lor', har eyes fare to goo right trew ye they be se shiny an se black."

"A love letter?" said Sally. "No, Bob, I don't know nothin about love. I ain't goin to mix up along o' no love."

"Noo, noo!" expostulated Bob. "'Tain't come to that yit. But I see har brother t'other daay, an he axed me to goo oover an see har, an I axed him if I should write an tell har I wuz a-comin, an he said as he'd find out."

"D'ye want to walk out with her, then?" said Sally.

"I doan't knoo azackly as yit," Bob answered. "D'ye think she'd maake a good wife?"

"How can I tell?" asked Sally, with some show of reason. "Do I know her?"

"Noo," said Bob. "But she bain't like yew. She's a strappin wench, an my missus 'ull hev to wark to help to 'arn the grub."

"Do she wear a fall an gloves?" asked Sally slyly, reminiscent of fraternal remonstrances at her own occasional lapses into gentility.

"That she doan'!" said Bob. "She shan't wear noo fall nor noo gloves."

"Ye'll have to treat her different to what you do me," said Sally, "or she won't put up wi't."

"I'll trate her prarper," Bob promised. "She shall hev all the grub she can get down har, but she shan't hev noo bare nor stout. They doan't dew ye a might o' good."

Bob was an adolescent valetudinarian in his way and was just then strong on total abstinence.

"I wouldn't write no letter," said Sally. "That's dangerous. She might hev ye up for breach o' promise."

"D'ye think soo?" said Bob, who in all ceremonial matters was guided by his sister.

"That 'ould be best—to see her," said Sally. "How offen hev ye seed her?"

"I doan't knoo much on har, an tha'ss a fack," admitted Bob. "She's in sarvice out at Chetbridge, an har brother axed me if I'd like to goo oover."

"Well, that appears funny to me," mused Sally, keeping her countenance, but chuckling inwardly. "What d'ye want to write for?"

"I'm a-gooin to dew the thing prarper," Bob explained. "Not saam's as yew an yar chap what never came to narthen. I want to hev a prarper onnerstandin afoor I gits engaged, an I hain't got noo mother, wuss luck, an thote as yew'd help me."

"Ye get your onnerstandin talkin," advised Sally. "That fare strange to me she should set her brother on to ye like that."

"D'ye think soo?" said Bob nervously.

"Hev ye ever kissed her?" asked Sally slyly.

"Blaame it, noo!" Bob roared. "But I should wholly like tew," he added softly.

"Take her out an kiss her, then, an be done wi't," said Sally, more experienced in wooing. "But do ye mind ye bain't sucked in."

"What d'ye mane?" asked Bob.

"They say as fish hawkers cry stinkin fish the loudest," answered Sally sententiously, "an har brother wholly holler tew."

"D'ye think soo?" muttered Bob, alarmed at unconsidered possibilities. "But har eyes maak ye jump, they be se bright. She's the prattiest gal ye ever see. I'll maak ye a bet on't," he added by way of self consolation.

"I spooz," he said after a pause—"I spooz yew 'ouldn't write for me an ax har if she'd walk out wi' me. I bain't got noo mother to dew it, wuss luck."

It may be incidentally remarked that Bob was 23 years of age and, with his brothers, was always lamenting the want of a mother. That lady during her life left the charge of her young children altogether to Sally and neglected them and her home equally.

"Yew may take your oath o' that," answered Sally firmly in reply to Bob's hint. "If ye got sucked in, ye'd lay it all on me. Ye must hoe your own land. Ye'd better tell her brother ye'll meet her o' Sunday."

"D'ye think soo?" said Bob and subsequently acted on her advice.

* * * * * * *

When Bob had finished the milking on Sunday morning and arranged for an evening substitute, he grew into a fever of unrest. "Sally," he called, "wheer's my clane shut? Wheer's my collar? Will ye black my bewts for me? I'll gi'e ye tuppence. Come an tie my tie. Shall a weer a flower? D'ye think she'll like to goo to chapel? How dew I look in my new clothes?"

At last Sally got him off and turned her attention to the midday meal.

She sat up for his return at night. He came in about 10 and found his sister alone. The others had gone to bed. His face wore an expression of mingled indignation and shame.

"Well, how did ye get on?" asked Sally. "Hev ye had your tea?"

"I doan't want noo tea," said Bob. "Le's goo to bed."

"Good night, then," said Sally, knowing there was more to come, but making a pretense of turning out the lamp.

"Blaame it!" struck in Bob hoarsely. "She an har brother met me at Chetbridge just as the Swan wuz oopenin. She said she wuz dry, soo I axed her in to hev some'at. T'ree glasses o' stout fer har an t'ree glasses o' aale fer har brother I paaid foor, tha'ss ninepence, an a glass o' mild bare fer me is tenpence, an neither o' them offered to paay a farden. Then arterwards Tom left us, an we walked to St. Mary's-on-the-Fern, an she said as we wuz travelers an walkin made har wholly dry. Soo we went into the King's Head, an she had t'ree moor glasses o' stout an a half o' mild fer me. Tha'ss fivepence ha'p'ny, an tenpence is one and t'reppence ha'p'ny. She never paaid fer narthen."

"Why, Bob, bor, you must ha' been a fool," said Sally, chuckling inwardly. For Bob is notoriously parsimonious.

"D'ye thing soo?" he said uneasily. "Arter that," he continued, "we set under the hedge for a bit, an she axed me to kiss har. Soo I did, but she stunk o' bare soo I didn't think much on't. Then she kep' a-scrowgin up ag'in me till she went asleeap. When she woke up, we walked to Turlham, an I axed her if she'd like too goo to chapel. But she said that wuz past 6, an she wuz dry. Soo we went into the Queen's Head, an she had t'ree moor glasses o' stout an a half o' mild for me. Tha'ss fivepence ha'p'ny an one an t'reppence ha'p'ny is one an nine. Gooin hooam to Chetbridge that wuz gettin dark, but she wanted to set under the hedge ag'in. Howsomedever, I said the ground was damp, an she said as I wuz a sorft fewl, an we'd best git on to the Swan afore they shut. But I'd had enow on't an come hooam. Thas's just like yew be, mixin me up along of a wench what cost me one an ninepence an would ha' done moor if I'd ha' let her. Now's the time when I feeal I hain't got noo mother. I shan't gi'e yew yar shillin this weeak out o' my money. I must look arter myself same as yew dew, livin hare, kep' like a queean a-dewin narthen. Nice dewin's I call it!"

And Bob went up to bed grumbling and cursing, while his sister laughed silently down stairs.

Bob is still a bachelor, but he has another girl in his eye and wants Sally to test her quality before he commits himself to another one and ninepenny Sunday.—Black and White.

Respectfully Referred.

As The Green Bag has it, Chief Justice Marshall used to narrate with great glee the following correspondence on a point of honor between Governor Giles of Virginia and Patrick Henry. The governor wrote:

Sir—I understand that you have called me a bobtail politician. I wish to know if it be true, and, if true, your meaning. W. B. GILES.

Patrick Henry's reply came promptly:

Sir—I do not recollect calling you a bobtail politician at any time, but think it probable that I have. I can't say what I did mean, but if you will tell me what you think I meant I will say whether you are correct or not. Very respectfully, PATRICK HENRY.

This was leaving it to Giles with a vengeance; but, as there was no further correspondence, the governor of Virginia must have read satisfaction somewhere between the lines of Patrick Henry's brilliantly equivocal reply.

Way to Moral Strength.

We can learn to live nobly only by acting nobly on every occasion. If you shirk the first trial of your manhood, you will go so much weaker to the second, and if the next occasion and the next find you unprepared you will unquestionably sink into baseness. A swimmer becomes strong to stem the tide only by frequently breasting the high waves.—Success.

Shaffer and Williams Had Talk With Steel Magnates

END OF STRIKE VERY NEAR

Executive Board of Amalgamated Association Will Consider the Matter Tomorrow—Manager of Publishing Company Acted as Peacemaker

Pittsburg, July 29.—The strike of the steel and tin workers of the Amalgamated association against the United States Steel corporation will probably be settled this week. The conference held in New York Saturday between the officials of the United States Steel corporation and President Shaffer and Secretary Williams of the workers' organization, has resulted in paving the way for renewal of negotiations between the two conflicting interests. It is said that a basis for such a conference has been arrived at. This basis is still locked up in the minds of the officials of the two organizations, and will not be divulged until later this week.

If the basis is satisfactory to the general executive committee of the Amalgamated assosiation the conference between the association and the manufacturers will proceed immediately. If, on the other hand, the basis is not what the Amalgamated association will permit to be considered as negotiable grounds, the strike will be continued with the same vigor as at present.

President Shaffer and Secretary Williams returned from New York yesterday. They left Saturday night, after an eventful day. They had spent many hours in conference with the leading officials of the steel trust.

Secretary Williams admitted that he had been with President Shaffer in New York and had seen J. P. Morgan, but as to what had taken place there he said that he was pledged to secrecy, and could not talk. If there was anything to be given out it would have to come from President Shaffer, but he was positive President Shaffer would not be at liberty to talk for some days yet. When asked if he regarded the situation hopeful for a settlement, he declined to even offer an opinion. He said that the terms printed in the papers Sunday were purely guess work. No terms could possibly be made without the full consent of the general executive committee of the organization. It is learned here that a meeting of the executive board has been called for tomorrow.

Additional information regarding the New York meeting of the industrial leaders was afterwards picked up from reliable sources. It was stated that the two Amalgamated officials left Pittsburg late on Friday night, and when they arrived in New York they went direct to the private office of J. P. Morgan. The meeting between the Pittsburg men and Mr. Morgan lasted from about 11 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. During the conference, President Schwab and E. H. Gary were present. The Amalgamated officials went over the grounds on which the strike began, and discussed a settlement basis.

After getting the views of the steel officials and giving theirs in return, Mr. Shaffer and Mr. Williams left the office and spent their time away from public places. On Friday, George B. H. Harvey, manager of Harper Bros., the publishers, was a caller at the office of President Shaffer. It was positively stated yesterday that the meeting between the heads of the Amalgamated association and the steel corporation was due to no other person or persons than Mr. Harvey.

It is believed that before the end of the week the mills will all be ready to run again, providing repairs are completed that have been undertaken since the strike began. Should the whole project fail of coming to an amicable end, however, the fight promises to be more bitter than ever.

Flour Mills Strike Threatened

Minneapolis, July 29.—The 535 nailers and packers employed in the 22 flour mills of Minneapolis are in a position to force the temporary suspension of the great industry of this city. These employes presented to their employers a demand for a return to the wage scale of 1892, which was $2.75 per day for packers, and $2.25 for nailers, 25 cents more than they are now receiving. Accompanying the demand was a clause requiring a contract for five years. The employers agreed to raise the wages as desired, but would enter into no contract. The strikers met yesterday and decided upon a demand for a one-year contract. A conference will be held with the employers today. The mill owners admit the situation is critical. The employes are well organized.

An Unexpected Hitch

New York, July 29.—On account of a hitch in the settlement of the strike of the garment workers, the 15,000 strikers who were expected to return to work yesterday, failed to do so. Only a few thousand of them returned, though the shops were ready for them. The hitch was caused by the contractors demanding increased prices from the manufacturers who had settled. The manufacturers were not prepared for any new demand, and the shops of these contractors will not be opened again until a settlement is reached.

Foundrymen Handicapped

Chicago, July 29.—Members of the National Foundrymen's association have been forced to abandon their plan of opening their foundries today. The inability to secure a sufficient number of non-union men to take the places of the striking iron molders is responsible for the change in their plans.

THREE MEN ASSAULTED

Colored Man Said to Have Used a Club and Revolver

Boston, July 29.—Patrick J. Sweeney, 24 years of age, was shot in the right breast, John C. McKay, 38, was slightly injured in the head by a bullet, and Michael J. Sullivan, 23, was badly cut about the head with a club at the corner of Shawmut avenue and Ohio street Saturday night, and Charles E. Travis, a colored man, is under arrest charged with causing their injuries.

The three injured men say they were standing on the corner about midnight when Travis rushed out of a dark court and attacked them with a club, and then opened fire with a revolver. Travis, they say, was a perfect stranger to them. Travis, however, tells the police that he had good reasons for the shooting, but what they were is not made public. Sweeney was sent to the city hospital, and the other injured men were cared for at the police station.

Woman Routed Burglar

Providence, July 29.—Mrs. M. W. Lindgren of Auburn was awakened early Sunday morning by her baby, and saw a man behind a door. She sprang upon him, seized him and screamed for help. The fellow hit Mrs. Lindgren a blow in the face, knocking her down. He then escaped. Mrs. Lindgren's husband awakened too late to be of any assistance in the tussle. The man secured $45 and had all the family silver piled up ready for removal. The unexpected interruption prevented him from getting this away, however. Mrs. Lindgren was badly bruised about the nose and right eye, and her throat bears the prints of the burglar's fingers.

Vanished a Generation Ago

Pana, Ills., July 29.—John Russell, a farmer, mysteriously disappeared from home 33 years ago. The skeleton of a man, found beneath the floor of a house which was torn down Saturday, has been identified as that of Russell. Trinkets found with the bones made the identification complete. The circumstances of his disappearance are said to be that he went to Shelbyville and drew $800 from a bank, with which to pay for some land. His horse returned home riderless the following day, from which time no clew was found until Saturday.

Radcliffe Summoned to Washington

Denver, July 29.—William Radcliffe, owner of the lease of the Grand Mesa lakes in Delta county, has been summoned to Washington for consultation with the state department. This gives an international aspect to the recent shooting of two men by a deputy sheriff game warden, the burning of Radcliffe's hotel, and the threatened lynching of himself by a mob of Delta county citizens. Radcliffe claims to be a subject of King Edward, and has appealed to his government to protect his life and have him reimbursed for the loss of his property.

Two Lives Sacrificed In Fire

Louisville, July 29.—Max Belovitch, a cigar manufacturer, lost his life in a fire that destroyed the Badgley-Graham photographic supply store here. He dashed up the stairs to save the life of a young woman to whom he was greatly attached, and who, he thought, was in a flat above. Policeman Purdon also lost his life in an effort to save Belovitch. Six men were more or less hurt. The damage amounted to $40,000.

Imperial Supplies Captured

London, July 29.—The so-called "allied villagers," according to native reports, include 25,000 well armed troops in southwestern Chi Li, says the Pekin correspondent of The Standard. Most of them are old Boxers or disbanded soldiers. They have captured all the imperial supplies sent from Pekin overland.

Death of Rear Admiral Irwin

Washington, July 29.—Rear Admiral John Irwin, retired, died at his residence here late last night, after an illness of several months, due to a complication of diseases. He was 69 years old. He entered the naval academy in 1847, and had a good war record. He leaves a wife and daughter and one son.

Sultan Toes the Mark

Constantinople, July 29.—The sultan has agreed to comply with the demand made by the Russian government for the release of the Servian recently arrested in Albania, together with the restoration of arms taken, and for the recall of Djemai Bey, the mutessarif of Prishtina, the instigator of the arrests.

Rejected Suitor's Awful Deed

Muncie, Ind., July 29.—Peter Tillbury called at the home of Kate Phinney last night and threw carbolic acid into the face of Mrs. Marry Torrey, a guest, destroying her eyes and burning her neck, breast and arms frightfully. The man had pleaded for years with the woman to marry him.

SHOULD SPARE NOBODY

Advice Given Admiral Schley by His Eldest Son

WANTS TO ASK SAMPSON

As to Who Would Be Blamed If Battle of Santiago Had Resulted In Defeat—Declares That His Father Has Several Strong Cards Up His Sleeve

Salt Lake, Utah, July 29.—The Herald today prints the following:

Captain Thomas F. Schley, eldest son of Admiral Winfield S. Schley, who is stationed at Fort Douglass in this city, yesterday outlined some points that will be brought out in the court of inquiry as to his father's conduct at the battle of Santiago. He declared that some startling facts will be brought to light if the whole truth shall become known, and that the reputations of persons other than his father are likely to suffer.

"I have just written to my father," said Captain Schley, "that I thought he ought to spare nobody, and that he should withhold none of the facts in his possession about Admiral Sampson or anybody else."

Captain Schley is an officer in the Twenty-third infantry, stationed at Fort Douglas. Although he has not had a letter from his father since the court of inquiry was ordered, he is familiar with the questions at issue and pointed out some of the facts that will be urged in the admiral's defense.

"When the court of inquiry meets," said Captain Schley, "I would like to have the privilege of asking Admiral Sampson just one question: 'If the battle of Santiago had resulted in defeat, to whom would the blame have been attached?' This, I think, tells the situation in a nutshell. If Admiral Schley had lost the battle he would have been blamed. He won it, and he should have the credit.

"The accusations that are made are ridiculous, when they are investigated. Take, for example, the charge of disobedience of orders in May, 1898. An attempt has been made to saddle the responsibility on my father. The fact is that he has a letter from Admiral Sampson telling him to do exactly what he did, and this letter will be produced at the inquiry. At that time he was maintaining the blockade of Cienfuegos. Secretary Long wired Admiral Sampson strongly advising that the blockading fleet go to Santiago, in the hope of finding the Spanish fleet there.

"Admiral Sampson sent the dispatch to Admiral Schley with a note in which he said: 'After duly considering this telegram, I have decided to make no change in the present plans; that is, that you should hold your squadron off Cienfuegos.' This letter was suppressed."

Regarding the maneuvers of the Brooklyn at the time of the battle, Captain Schley says the facts all go to show that this was the best move under the circumstances. The part played by the Brooklyn in the battle certainly compares favorably with that of the New York, he thinks.

"If this inquiry is full and fair," declared Captain Schley, "some facts will be disclosed that will startle the public. My father has several strong cards up his sleeve; and I trust he will make use of them all."

Captain Schley enlisted in the army in 1884, and was appointed a second lieutenant in the Twenty-third infantry seven years later. He served with his regiment all through the campaigns in the Philippines, where he earned his captaincy. Since his return from the Philippines he has been at Fort Douglas.

Revolution Is Still On

Kingston, Jam., July 29.—Newspaper reports from Panama assert that the insurgents are operating in large numbers in the vicinity of the city, and that an order had been issued by the government calling upon the citizens to concentrate in order to repel attacks and to protect property. Panama is guarded from the sea by a gunboat. The government is exercising the strictest precautions to prevent news of developments leaking out.

Good Afternoon

It isn't always the towns which have all the improvements which have the highest tax rates. That of Randolph this year is $20.20, and it will be over $20 in Gardner, Mansfield and North Attleboro.

Will you go to Crescent Park Wednesday or Saturday? Perhaps if you go with the grocers on Wednesday you will want to go again with the Granite Manufacturers on Saturday. It is not so much the place visited as congenial company, and this is assured on both dates.

The municipal debt limit of the city Jan. 1, 1901, was $492,146.25, and the actual municipal debt $380,905.61. The sum of $68,605.61 will be paid this year, but the new debt promises to aggregate considerable more than this, and if all measures before the Council pass, the limit will be reached this year. With the pressing need of a new schoolhouse in Ward Two, an enlargement of the High school, and an enlargement of Mt. Wollaston cemetery, the city should be careful not to get into a hole by exhausting the limit before these are reached. In fact, the city should always have a good margain.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Under the Belgian law unmarried men over 25 have one vote, married men and widowers with families have two votes, and priests and other persons of position and education have three votes. No provision is made for the new woman.—Lynn Item.

☞ The ideal city of the future will be less noisy than the average city of today. Street cries of ear-splitting shrillness and all sorts of tumultuous sounds will be moderated by the next generation, if the present municipal rulers do little or nothing to abate a grievous nuisance. — New York Tribune

☞ Now it is becoming clear that Neely and Rathbone are not likely to be convicted and punished for their frauds in connection with the Cuban postal service, and that that exhibition of stern Anglo-Saxon justice which we used to hear about as furnishing a fine object lesson for the Cubans is not likely to come off. In the best event it is going to be so far postponed that all the effect it should have had will be as good as lost. A dispatch to the New York Times from Washington says that "well informed officials in the war department are beginning to doubt the ultimate conviction" of the embezzler, and further that "the war department has been watching these proceedings in Cuba, and no great surprise would be occasioned by an announcement that Neely could not be convicted, and that he would be released." Perhaps, after all, these anticipations are not justified, and that in the course of time, each culprit will receive the punishment which is his due. But the outlook at this moment is that those disagreeable individuals who prophesy evil things, and who delight in saying "I told you so," will have an opportunity at their favorite pastime.—New Bedford Standard.

THE MACKEREL SKY.

Cosmopolitan South Quincy Has Many Opinions of It.

"Mackerel sky and mare's tails
Make tall ships carry low sails."

The crowd of people who attended the band concert at South Quincy Saturday evening were not "moonstruck" although that luminary seemed to be of unusal interest to them.

The cause of so much attention heavenwards was a bit of "mackerel sky" around the moon. It is seldom we see a mackerel sky so clearly and regularly marked as was observable on Saturday evening between nine and ten o'clock. The deep blue of the sky fretted with light fleecy clouds showed in exact and regular form the undulating marking seen on the mackerel.

The majority of people leave the study of the clouds and, the moon too, to those who profess to know something about these things, but when an unsual appearance compels the attention of the crowd it is interesting to note their expressions of opinions as to causes and effects of the phenomenon.

Seizing the opportunity we found a few of the interested observers were positive that nothing short of a gale of wind was about to overtake us. A number held that cool temperature always followed such appearances. One thoughtful person pronounced it nothing more than the reflection of same snow clad hills far away, on which the sun was then shining, he had seen the same thing in his native land when the sun was blaring over the snow clad Alps of Switzerland. "This is no dinger" he added.

Inquiring of one who hails from a sunny clime, what would cause a sky so strange, he replied, with shrug, "me don't know,—me no like too much spot in sky—me hear they fight in some contra." The joker liked the appearance as the whole bunch might fall before morning and give us mackerel for breakfast.

Rain, fair weather and storms were variously judged as the probable result of the light rifted clouds that floated so far overhead and resembled so much the markings along the backs of the toothsome mackerel. Perhaps it was the man in the moon making mosquito netting of the clouds.

Sudden Death.

The friends of Otis R. Cooke will be grieved to hear of his sudden death.

In the midst of apparent good health he was stricken with that dreaded disease appendicitis. Thursday of last week he went to his place of business in Boston and returned that evening very ill. A physician was summoned at once, who pronounced it a severe case of colic. He grew worse rapidly and was removed to the hospital, where, after an examination, they found an operation necessary. Blood poison had already began from the bursting of the appendix. He sank rapidly and passed away early Saturday morning. A widow and one child survive him.

His birthplace was Boston, and there he received his education, being graduated from the English High. Later he went to live in Scituate. He was employed by the American Powder Company of Boston, where he held his position for eleven years. He was the son of Edward O. Cooke, deceased, once a prominent lawyer of Boston. In 1894 he married Miss Blanche Souther, daughter of Andrew J. Souther of Cohasset. The ceremony was performed by the veteran Unitarian minister, Rev. Dr. Osgood. They lived two years in Ashmont and since then have been residents of Wollaston.

Mr. Cooke was one of the directors of the North Quincy club of Norfolk Downs, and secretary and treasurer of the Downs Boating association.

He was a devoted husband and father a kind neighbor, genial in his disposition, and will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Raid and Arrest.

Chief of Police Hayden, Inspector McKay with Officers Barry and Murray raided the boarding house of Giovanni Celli, situated on Beale street near Adams street on Sunday morning. The officers seized 208 bottles of beer, 202 empty beer bottles and some empty cases. They also arrested Celli, the proprietor, and another Italian for drunkenness.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

THE HALF HOLIDAY.

Stonecutters Enjoy Themselves on Saturday Afternoons.

The challenge ball game to have been played Saturday afternoon by the Birnie & Diack team and the nine from the sheds of McIntosh & Sons was unavoidably postponed.

To somewhat make up for the loss of the game, an impromptu entertainment was held in one of Birnie & Diack's sheds, which demonstrated in a marked manner the versatility of stonecutters and the social advantages of the weekly half holiday.

Among those who so readily helped to make the afternoon an enjoyable one were: Mr. Arthur Tripp, who sang "Those wedding bells shall not ring out"; Mr. Edward Warmington, who came recently from the west, rendered in fine style some of the songs characteristic of those parts, such as, "If Dick should draw his gun," "I'll fight Bob on the square," etc.; Mr. A. Birnie was an exponent of roust-about comic songs, was vociferously applauded; Mr. Peter Capperilli was also a favorite in serio-comic verse, as instanced by his fine rendition of "Give him a brick all red hot"; Mr. J. Birnie was last, tho' not least, as was proved when he rousingly raised his voice in "The winds tho' howling round my bark."

The program was closed by Mr. Arthur Tripp giving an exhibition of hypnotism. Several of those present submitted themselves to his hypnotic influence and for fifteen minutes afforded enough merriment to stock a traveling clown show.

The refreshments which were procured to be served on the base ball field were not out of place, and found ready acceptance at the end of the entertainment.

Crooks and Pickpockets.

The Boston Globe says the city is full of "grafters and dips;" and pickpockets can be found at all hours of the day and night, and their ranks are constantly being recruited by ambitious thieves, who perhaps took their first lesson in crime at one of the resorts of these grafters. Some of the favorite places where these crooks operate are at the cheap museums, where they can always be found, some of them mingling with the crowd. They are generally in evidence along Hanover and its side streets, and especially on Saturday nights. They are always to be found around a street fakir.

The market district is a favorite field for them, and many a poor woman has had to return home without a Sunday dinner owing to the operations of these thieves, who have succeeded in relieving her of her well-worn purse. The auction sales are attended by the dips, and they are always in evidence at a fire, where they reap a harvest. Of course these thieves do not operate in Boston entirely; they visit every city within a considerable distance where there is an attraction of any kind such as a fair, a race or anniversary, or anything which is likely to call a crowd of people together.

Another favorite field for the crooks is the union stations between 5 and 6.30 P. M. where they operate with exceptional boldness. They board every outgoing train, and push through the crowded aisles, where they find plenty of victims. They empty the change pocket of several unsuspecting citizens before the train starts, after which they drop off and board the next train to repeat the operation, and as they have the appearance of respectable clerks or office boys, they are not suspected.

Another move of theirs is to push up to the ticket window, when there is a group around it, and holding a bill in one hand, use the other to relieve people of their valuables. They have no fear of detectives here at this hour, as the inspectors on duty at the stations must report at Pemberton square at 5.30 for rollcall, and as they do not return to the station until next day the grafters feel secure and, therefore, work boldly.

They generally carry away a souvenir, as they call it, in the shape of a bundle or satchel when they leave the station, and they invariably head for their hangout where they display their prizes to an admiring group of thieves who are always to be found there.

Should it be that one of their craft was unfortunate enough to fall into the hands of a fly cop they immediately club together and raise enough to pay a lawyer to defend him. Several can be seen in the courthouse corridor the next morning waiting to see how their partner comes out. Thus these young men spend the best days of their lives, living in an atmosphere of crime, with but one ambition—to rob drunks, pick pockets and steal wherever the opportunity offers, and spend the mony thus obtained for the gratification of their various passions.

Plymouth and Provincetown.

The first few weeks of the summer vacation season find the Bay line more heavily patronized than ever before, a plain indication of the fact that the tide of travel is flowing toward Plymouth and Provincetown. One reason, undoubtedly, for this is that the Boston, Plymouth and Provincetown steamboat company has provided two of the staunchest, best-equipped and most commodious steamboats on the Atlantic seaboard.

Any one who seeks a day's outing on the sea, with plenty of time ashore in two of Massachusetts' most historic towns, will enjoy these trips. The boats now leave the Bay line wharf, 410-430 Atlantic avenue, every morning at 10 o'clock.

With a view, however, to still further satisfy and accommodate the patrons of the Bay line by allowing more time at the "tip of the Cape," the directors have decided that on and after Thursday, Aug. 1, the steamer for Provincetown, will leave Boston week days at 9.45 instead of 10 o'clock. The time for leaving on Sundays will be 10, as heretofore.

A TIMELY ALARM.

A Man Nearly Cremated Alive in His Room.

The alarm of fire from Box 31 at 3.30 o'clock Sunday morning called the department to a lively blaze in a house on Phipps street, owned by John Chamberlin and occupied by George White. The fire was confined to one of the sleeping rooms, and was caused by the overturning of a lamp.

When Chief Williams entered the burning room he stumbled over the body of man who was lying within a few feet of the fire. The man proved to be White who was in a stupor and unable to help himself. He was bundled into the street.

The fire was extinguished with loss of not over $50.

As near as can be learned, White and two other men had been celebrating some unknown event. The other two men had managed to get into bed, but White was too far gone to help himself and it is thought that he carelessly overturned the lighted lamp. It seems a wonder that his clothing did not take fire, and it probably would but for the timely arrival of the fire department. Had White's clothing taken fire he must have been cremated alive, for he was unable to help himself in the least.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. ## THE FIGHT IS ON.

Hot Time Expected at City Council Meeting.

Mayor Hall Vetoes the Loan Order.

Other Orders He Has Vetoed Will Come Up.

An important meeting of the City Council will be held tonight and unless all signs fail there will be a flow of oratory. An effort will be made to adjourn over the month of August, but there is a question if it can be done.

The debate will come on the veto of Mayor Hall of the $29,000 loan order, which includes several improvements.

The Committee on Streets will report on the petitions of the Citizens' Gas Co. to extend its mains on Water street; of the Old Colony Street Railway for a double track on Hancock street, and of the New England Telephone Co. for a location for one pole; also on the order for a sidewalk on the west side of Hancock street, between Adams and Carruth streets.

The joint committee on Legislative Matters and Ordinances will report on the matter of enforcing the laws relative to weights and measures. The joint committee on Public Buildings and Finance will report on the order for $1,500 for repairs of public buildings, and the joint commitee on Finance and Fire Department will report on the matter of a police station.

In the calendar are the orders granting the New England Telephone Co. a location of poles on Washington street, an order for $185 to settle the claim of Sarah Dolon, and the sidewalk assessments on Copeland street.

On the table are several orders which may be taken up, namely, the vetoes on the Newbury avenue sidewalk, Walker street sidewalk, Beach street sidewalk, Clark street sidewalk, widening Chubbuck street, and the Grove street improvements.

There is also on the table the matter of the acceptance of Belmont street extension, and the Mayor's vetoes on the ordinance relative to the purchase of material and the order to employ an expert bookkeeper.

Heavy Rain.

Seldom has it rained harder than it did early this morning. Accompaning the rain was vivid flashes of lightning and the heavy roll of thunder. Fortunately, however, Quincy did not appear to be very near the storm center. It was near enough, however, to make timid people feel anything but comfortable. It rained hard all through the shower and at times it seemed almost as though Niagara Falls had been let loose. It came down in bucketfuls. Streets were badly washed in places, especially on side hills where it came down in minature rivers. Today the street department is busy filling up the holes and gullies in the streets.

TODAY'S COURT.

C. H. Kennedy, Manuel Johnson, Jonathan Martin, Alex Brautini and Patsie Buccini were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy, and Michael Griffin $5 for the same offense at Braintree.

Stephen P. Lavin was sent to the State farm at Bridgewater for being a tramp at Milton.

Giovanni Celli was arraigned for keeping a liquor nuisance at Quincy, and also for assault, at Quincy. Cases continued until Tuesday.

Emma F. Barter was arraigned for assault on William E. Linscott at Weymouth. Case continued until Tuesday.

T. J. Billings was arraigned for the larceny of lumber and tools from Carmiss P. Gardner at Quincy. Case continued until Wednesday.

CUP FOR HOSTESS.

First for Third Time in the Hull Series.

The Hostess did not disappoint her friends on Saturday, but won for the third time in the Hull series by outsailing F. L. Pidgeon's crack Circe I, thereby winning the Pidgeon cup. The Herald says:

One of the most watchable races of the day was that between the 21-footers Hostess and Circe II. The Circe looked like a winner after the beat to wind ward, as she had a good stretch of water between her and her rival. She did this, too, with her smaller jib, the proper article for the occasion having got a tear near the start. On the run off the wind, however, the Hostess pushed along, and made a lead for herself that the Circe could not cut down, although her jib had been repaired meanwhile, and she crossed the line about close to two minutes behind. The Hostess carried two reefs at the start, but shook out later.

The Globe says: The Hostess and Circe II were the only contestants in class I. and the former won, capturing at the same time the special cup donated by Mr. Pidgeon. Her victory yesterday was a hard-earned one, as the Circe II was out for the first prize, and her crew did their utmost to win.

A torn jib handicapped the Circe II, although she led at the windward mark by fully 1m. 30s. The Hostess after rounding this mark at Strawberry Hill started on the reach, and she soon gained the leadership, which she retained to the finish. The Circe II was sailed with good judgment throughout, but the torn jib was too much of a handicap for her to labor under.

In the other classes first places were taken by the Calypso, Thordis, Dabster, Tobasco, Plunger, Bonito and Vitesse.

SECOND TO NONE.

Yachting Championed by ex-Commodore Henry M. Faxon.

What is the best summer pastime? was the question discussed in the Sunday Globe symposium, and experts at golf, canoeing, base ball, yachting and rowing, championed their favorite pastime.

Ex-Commodore Henry M. Faxon of the Quincy Yacht club, and skipper of the cup defender Hostess, said of yachting:

The question, what is the best summer pastime? is readily answered by the many whose privillge it is to live near the seaboard.

"The value of yachting as a means of recreation and healthful enjoyment is second to no other sport, and its growing popularity is attested by the ever increasing number of the white-winged fleet which dot the harbors along our coast.

"Fortunate indeed are those of us who can recall that proud moment when, as skipper of a tiny craft, laboriously constructed at odd moments out of school hours, we grasped the tiller, hauled in the sheet, and felt her move for the first time over the blue waters of the bay.

"Yachting is something more—infinitely more—than a mere pastime. It gives a training and experience which is invaluable, strengthening and developing the body in a rational way, and cultivating courage, decision and self-reliance, qualities which go far toward insuring success in the more serious affairs of life.

PROTEST ALLOWED.

And Cadillac Loses Her Third Victory—Final Trial Today.

The Hanley built boat, the Cadillac, won the decisive trial race on Saturday at Chicago, to select a defender of the Canada's cup, but was protested by the Illinois for fouling near the finish, and the committee allowed the protest. This gives the Milwankee two races, the Cadillac two, and the Illinois two. As three victories are necessary to be selected as the defender these three boats are sailing again today the decisive race.

Saturday's race, says the dispatch to the Herald, was nine miles to leeward and back. A heavy haze made the yachts invisible at less than two miles. The wind blew 20 miles an hour throughout the race. At the start the order was: Milwaukee, Cadillac, Illinois and Detroit. The Cadillac soon went to the front, and as the boats passed out of sight in the haze she was still leading. The run home between the Cadillac and the Illinois was close. When the watchers near the finishing line saw the Cadillac come out of the haze they could see no other boat and in their opinion there was nothing to beat the Detroit boat. In a few minutes, however, the Illinois was made out and it was seen that she held a better position than the Cadillac and stood an excellent show of crossing the line first. The hopes of her friends were, however, doomed to disappointment, as the Cadillac held the lead to the finish. The Illinois was but 10 seconds behind the winner in crossing the line.

The official elapsed time for the leaders was as follows: Cadillac, 3h. 15m. 30s.; Illinois, 3h. 15m. 40s.

West Quincys Lose.

Reardon pitched for the West Quincys on Saturday, and the Cambrige Reds were victorious in a well played game. Up to the seventh the home team led, but the seventh was fatal to all hopes, and in the ninth the visitors added to their lead:

Loyal Ladies' Picnic.

The Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor held their annual outing at Quincy woods on Saturday, and like everything else which this organization undertakes it was a decided success. The weather conditions were perfect for a picnic, and the ladies assisted by quite a number of their male friends, availed themselves of every opportunity to make things pleasant for all who were there. After luncheon there were games and races, and some of the contests were very spirited especially the ladies' race and the bicycle race.

Mrs. Fanny Wood was first in ladies' race, Mrs. Belle Ross second, and Mrs. Maggie Hall third. They each received a valuable prize for their exertions.

Alex Souter was first in bicycle race, John Wood second, and Alex Russell a close third.

Before starting for home a clam-bake was served, which was greatly enjoyed by everyone. The committee of arrangments are to be congratulated on the success of their plans.

HAD A TRAGIC ENDING

James Wallace Had Just Been Reunited With Family

QUARRELLED WITH WIFE

Used a Knife In the Endeavor to Take Her Life—Then Cut His Own Throat With the Same Weapon—Woman's Wound More Serious of the Two

Fall River, Mass., July 29.—A celebration of the reunion, after a long separation, of a father from his family was brought to an abrupt termination Sunday morning, when the father was locked up, charged with an assault with a dangerous weapon upon his wife, whom he had scarcely seen for nearly four years.

The prisoner, James Wallace, 40 years old, of 193 Division street, and his wife, Mary, were former residents of Fall River, but removed to Alabama, where they resided some time. Various domestic strifes occurred during their residence in the south, and, after a particularly severe quarrel, the husband left his wife and family, and departed for Central America.

The woman, left alone, was unable to help herself, and after many unsuccessful attempts to support her family, finally drifted north again and settled once more in Fall River. Meantime nothing had been heard from her husband, and it was supposed that he was still in a foreign country. After residing some time in Fall River, the woman received information that her husband was in the city, and a few days ago he walked into the presence of his family. He staid at home, and there seemed to be indications of a reunion on a friendly basis.

After a time the husband became tired of domestic life, and, under the influence of liquor, which he used freely, the old quarrel was renewed.

During a fierce altercation, about 1 o'clock Sunday morning, the husband viciously attacked his wife with a knife. After several unsuccessful attempts to strike her with the knife, he succeeded in stabbing her in the throat, making a wound an inch deep, which bled profusely.

He then swung the knife and cut his own throat from ear to ear. The attention of neighbors was attracted by the screams of the wife, and the police were summoned. It was found that the woman's wound was the more serious of the two, and had the knife entered her neck a fraction of an inch to either side, she would have been killed.

The wound in Wallace's throat is not severe, the knife having penetrated but a short distance below the skin.

Travellers Took Tall Tumbles

Berne, July 29.—Arthur G. Davis, a London shipowner, while climbing to the Doldenhorn clubhouse, fell over a rock 300 feet high. Herr Wurster, the Austrian tenor, while descending the Faluhorn, fell over a precipice and lodged in a tree 50 feet down. He was rescued without being seriously hurt. Frederick Herril, while picking edelweiss, fell 600 feet into a valley.

A Badly Wanted Bandit

Havana, July 29.—The government has offered a reward of $1000 for the capture, dead or alive, of Lino Lima, a bandit. There has been a standing reward of $500 for Lima's head. He sent word to the authorities that he would surrender for $500, provided he was allowed to leave the island. Upon receipt of this offer the authorities doubled the reward.

Prize Hailstones

Halifax, July 29.—A severe electrical and rainstorm visited Union Road, P. E. I., on Saturday night. The residents state that during the storm hailstones four inches in circumference fell. They were so plentiful that they could be gathered in cartloads. Great damage was done to the crops. The hailstones were six inches deep on the roads.

PROBABLY FATALLY SHOT

Tragedy Resulted Over Dunning For a Debt of Ten Cents

Boston, July 29.—An alleged debt of 10 cents, which Antonio De Pullo claimed was owed him by Susi Panfilo, was the cause of an altercation last evening, resulting in the probably fatal shooting of De Pullo by Panfilo, who is under arrest.

De Pullo lives at 3 Bartlett place, and Panfilo formerly boarded with him. The two met in the entry of 227 North street last evening, and De Pullo demanded the 10 cents, which, he said, was due him. Panfilo disputed the debt, but said if he owed it he would pay it to Mrs. De Pullo, to whom he had been formerly in the habit of paying the board money. This incensed De Pullo, who knocked Panfilo down, blacking his eye with the blow.

Panfilo jumped to his feet, and, drawing a revolver, fired three shots at De Pullo, every one taking effect. One struck him in the wrist, another in the left breast, just over the heart, while the third hit him in the middle of the back.

The sidewalks and neighboring doors were filled with people, and there were several witnesses to the shooting. Panfilo ran, pursued by a crowd. He was soon captured, making no resistance. He freely confessed his crime.

Mayor Fled Over a Fence

Boston, July 29.—A platform erected for the accommodation of those attending the exercises of the laying of the cornerstone of a new Jewish synagogue on Carroll place collapsed yesterday afternoon, throwing more than 100 people into an excavation. Only five persons received injuries worth mentioning. Mayor Hart was on a platform adjacent to the one that fell, and during the excitement that followed hurriedly made his exit over a fence into an adjoining yard. There was a veritable panic when the platform went down. Somebody cried "fire" and several women who saw the affair from windows of neighboring houses immediately went into hysterics. Women fainted on all sides, and it is remarkable that some of the children on the roofs of the houses which surrounded the scene did not fall off and add to the casualties.

Trolley Cars In Collision

Danbury, Conn., July 29.—Two cars on the Danbury and Bethel trolley line collided at 11:30 Saturday night. Eight persons were more or less seriously injured, one of whom will die. The accident happened on a sharp curve, and both cars were going at a high rate of speed. The entire road is protected by a block system, and the railway officials state that the accident would not have happened had the signals been obeyed. Joseph Keating, a motorman, was pinned in the wreckage, and probably fatally injured.

Death Attributed to Alcohol

Salem, Mass., July 29.—Mrs. James Conroy was found dead at her home yesterday, and the medical examiner assigns alcoholism as the probable cause of death. Her husband was found asleep in bed, his wife being on the floor. Conroy says that they had some trouble, but the last he remembers before he fell asleep his wife was all right. When he awoke she was dead. The woman had a serious bruise on her head, but the medical examiner does not think that this injury caused her death.

Fishermen Lost In Fog

Gloucester, Mass., July 29.—Schooner Briganza arrived here from the fishing grounds last night, bringing the intelligence that two of her crew, Fred Sampson and Vincent Dillon, are missing and are probably lost. The vessel was fishing off Sable island, June 17, and the men went out to attend their trawls. A thick fog enveloped them and they became separated from their vessel.

Automobile Capsized

Narragansett Pier, R. I., July 29.—A naphtha automobile, containing George Colstead, Ethel Barker and Nellie Wagner, was overturned last evening on Ocean road, wrenching Colstead's shoulder, while the women escaped with slight bruises. After the accident the naphtha exploded, setting fire to the machine, which is a total wreck.

A $20,000 Village Fire

West Topsham, Vt., July 29.—Fire broke out in the barn of Dr. Dow at 2 o'clock Sunday morning from an overturned lantern, burning Dr. Dow's buildings and contents, together with the store, dwelling and contents belonging to F. P. Cunningham, the only church in the village and the school building. The loss is about $20,000.

Three Years' Savings Stolen

Boston, July 29.—Julius Herman, a sailor, just returned from a cruise, formed the acquaintance of a young woman Saturday night, and is now mourning the loss of $600 in money, which represents his savings for three years. The police have been unable to obtain any trace of the woman.

River Traffic Resumed

Saco, Me., July 29.—Schooner E. I. White, loaded with coal, that has been ashore in the Saco river for three days in the channel near Cow island, blockading navigation to this port, was floated yesterday. The vessel is the largest that ever came up the Saco river.

A Workman's Awful Fall

Portsmouth, N. H., July 29.—Elmer W. Durbin, aged 31, fell a distance of 88 feet on the inside of a standpipe being erected by the United States government on Seavey's island, Kittery, Me. Nearly every bone in his body was broken.

Grocery Company Burned Out

Keene, N. H., July 29.—A fire that started early Sunday morning in the large building of the Holbrook Grocery company caused a loss of about $75,000 to the company. The fire caught on the first floor, from some unexplained cause.

WAR OFFICE WORRIED

Over the Alacrity Displayed by a London Newspaper

London, July 29.—The Daily Mail makes the following statement today: "In consequence of The Daily Mail's publication of the fact that the Boers killed the British wounded at Vlakfontein, all cables from the correspondent who made the charges have since been suppressed."

It also asserts that War Secretary Brodrick is using The Daily Mail's publication of Lord Kitchener's new plan of campaign as an occasion for "the insinuation that we obtained the news of Lord Kitchener's scheme by purloining documents at the war office," and has cut off The Daily Mail's daily lists of casualties, having also informed The Daily Mail in writing that he had warned the news agencies under contract with The Daily Mail not to supply the paper with casualties or other official news.

Choate as Mediator

London, July 29.—United States Ambassador Choate has left London for Holland, says The Daily Express, "not for a holiday, but—so rumor states—at the invitation of Mr. Kruger, who desires him to act as a mediator in bringing about a settlement. The paper refers to it editorially in a facetious vein as a "South African gooseberry."

A Desperado's End

Monticello, Fla., July 29.—Simon Williams, condemned to death for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Hawkins, and sentenced to hang Aug. 3, made a dash for liberty yesterday. Deputy Sheriff Kilpatrick had gone to the death cell to give Williams his dinner. Williams dashed out upon the official and seized his pistol. The officer sprang upon the murderer and a tussle ensued, in which the officer was shot. Both fell down a stairway, and rolled into the yard, where the deputy wrenched the pistol away and shot Williams in the chest. Williams dashed into the street. The deputy followed, shooting. After a chase of 100 yards, Williams fell dead. Kilpatrick is still alive.

Emperor Honors Songstress

Vienna, July 29.—Emperor Francis Joseph has forwarded a generous gift to Senora Concha Mendez, the Mexican songstress, on the occasion of her 80th birthday. After Emperor Maxmilian had been shot and Empress Carlotta had gone insane, the audience at a Mexican theatre called upon Mendez to sing a song villifying them, but she cried out "No, I shall not villify the dead and unhappy," and a hush fell upon the house. The incident is recalled in connection with the gift.

Still In the Dark

Washington, July 29.—The navy department has received a report from Lieutenant Commander Merriam of the battleship Kearsarge upon the conditions under which a shell was fired, striking the city hall of Newport, R. I. He does not express an opinion as to how the shell was left in the gun, but Captain McCalla, in his endorsement, says the greatest care will be exercised to prevent a cecurrence.

Death In Miners' Riot

Cambridge, O., July 29.—One man dead, one dying, another probably fatally shot, and a fourth with the back of his head crushed in, with the threatened lynching of a negro, is the result of a free-for-all fight at King's mines yesterday, where a riot between Hungarian and Slavish miners occurred Saturday.

OFFICIALS KEEP SILENT

As to Probable Result of the Steel Strike Conference

WORKMEN LOOK FOR PEACE

Points to Be Discussed Are Carefully Withheld From the Public—Strikers Will Continue Active While Peace Negotiations Are On

Pittsburg, July 30.—Everybody is on the qui vive in strike circles, and the coming conference of the leaders of the two contending forces is looked forward to with mingled hope and fear. Hope, however, predominates, and peace is confidently expected by the majority of those interested.

The executive committee of the Amalgamated association will meet today in the headquarters of the organization and take up the proposition of the United States Steel corporation for a settlement of the steel workers' strike.

This statement was made by Secretary Williams of the Amalgamated association. Beyond this he declines to discuss the strike in any form.

There was no change in the position of the two contestants yesterday. Both sides held firmly to the plan of watching the other. The officials of the wood mill of the American Sheet Steel company made no attempt to start the plant and indications pointed to their remaining inactive until the strike negotiations are decided one way or the other.

It was a busy day for President Shaffer and the executive officials of the Amalgamated association. There was a steady stream of callers from early in the morning and innumerable conferences bearing on the proposed settlement of the strike. President Shaffer was firm in his determination not to talk on the strike situation until after the decision had been reached by the executive committee concerning the propositions of the United States Steel corporation.

It was intimated, however, that there was a very strong likelihood that the committee would not adjourn until they had met with the manufacturers and formally discussed the settlement of the strike. If this should be the case, actual peace is possible in a short time. Whatever points are to be discussed are still known only to the officials of the association.

One of the most apparent facts in the status of the strike is the determination of the strikers to lose no ground in their struggle while peace negotiations are being conducted. It is explained that this plan was absolutely necessary in order that the position of the Amalgamated association should be strong when the settlement takes place. Most of the officials of the Amalgamated association express confidence that the strike is near an end.

News received from all points where the strike is in progress is of a reassuring nature. The strikers claim to have more than held their ground since the strike began.

Brewers and Plumbers Disagree

Milwaukee, July 30.—The Milwaukee Brewers' association unanimously passed a resolution declaring the contract between that association and the Milwaukee Building Trades council terminated. The trouble arose over one of the breweries refusing to recognize the Master Plumbers' association to the extent of giving it a monopoly of its business and prohibiting all competition for plumbing work.

Can't Go Back Just Yet

New York, July 30.—It is said at the headquarters of the striking garment workers and tailors that no definite day can be set for the men to return to work. At least 15,000 would have gone back yesterday, but the action of the Contractors' association in making demands upon the manufacturers blocked the program.

Millers Won't Sign Contract

Minneapolis, July 30.—At a conference yesterday between representatives of the Packers and Nailers' union and the flour millers, the latter, while granting the advance in wages asked, absolutely declined to sign a contract for any period. The union representatives withdrew to consider the situation.

Six Weeks' Strike Ended

Sharon, Pa., July 30.—The strike inaugurated at the Sharon works of the National Steel company six weeks ago by the blacksmiths was declared off yesterday, and the strikers returned to work. It is said the company conceded them nearly all they asked for.

The Expulsion of Kennan

London, July 30.—Mail advices from St. Petersburg give details of the expulsion from Russia of George Kennan, the American author and lecturer. The expulsion was carried out quietly. Mr. Kennan was provided with a travelling passport, and boarded a train for Wirballin. His own passport was returned to him on his arrival at Wirballin.

CEILING DESCENDED

Exposed to Liquor Deputies a Place For Concealing Intoxicants

Portland, Me., July 30.—The most ingeniously arranged hiding place for intoxicating liquors unearthed by Sheriff Pearsons' liquor deputies in many months was found yesterday afternoon in John H. Thompson's barber shop on Commercial street.

The officers had examined the walls and ceiling and were about to give up the search, when a hidden spring in the ceiling caused a section of the sheathing to loosen and slowly descend. When the automatic contrivance had concluded its operation there was a short ladder leading through a hole in the ceiling. In a dark room above were several boxes of liquor, 152 half-pint bottles, 6 pints and 13 quarts. Thompson was arrested and the liquor confiscated.

Groom Is 82, Bride Is 70

Clinton, Mass., July 30.—Joseph Staples, aged 82, was married here yesterday to Mrs. Hiram K. Blanchard, aged 70 years. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. M. Osgood of the Methodist Episcopal church. The first wife of the groom has been dead about three months, and the second husband of the bride died about one year ago. Mr. Staples owns a farm in the town of Berlin, where the newly married people will make their home. Both have children and a number of grand-children.

Beaten and Left In Cemetery

Clinton, Mass., July 30.—James Dibb, Antonio Coffi and Dominico Tace were arrested last night on the charge of assaulting William Record and leaving him in an unconscious condition in St. John's cemetery. The four men have been employed by contractors here. Record's injuries show that he had been terribly pounded, and he claims the three fellow laborers under arrest are responsible for his injuries, which are severe, but not dangerous.

Guardian For Parker Children

Newport, R. I., July 30.—A codicil of the will of the late Edward Parker Deacon, who shot the alleged lover of his wife in Paris some years ago, was admitted to probate here yesterday. The will itself being executed in Paris could not be probated here. The will leaves all the property in equal shares to the four children. The feature of the codicil is the provision for a guardian for the children.

De Pullo Dies of Wounds

Boston, July 30.—In the municipal court yesterday, Susi Pantilo, accused of the murder of Antonio De Pullo, was held without bail for examination. De Pullo was shot during a quarrel in the hallway of 277 North street, and died yesterday morning. The shooting was the result of a quarrel over a washing bill of 10 cents.

Left Babe on Beach

Chelsea, Mass., July 30.—Alice M. Locke was arraigned in court here yesterday, charged with having abandoned her 15-months-old boy on Revere beach on July 20. Miss Locke pleaded guilty, but, at the request of Superintendent West of the Revere Beach park reservation, the case was continued for a week.

Manslaughter Charged

Boston, July 30.—Michael Pizzeno, charged with killing Sylvester Murray by striking him over the head with a billiard cue, was given a hearing in court yesterday, and was held on the charge of manslaughter in $10,000 bonds for action by the grand jury.

Buried In Sawdust

Windham, Vt., July 30.—Frank N. Hastings, 33 years old, was suffocated under a pile of sawdust at Goodell & Hastings' mill yesterday. He was shovelling the pile into the brook nearby when a big section of the pile fell upon him.

Leary Charged With Murder

Pittsfield, Mass., July 30.—Daniel Leary was arraigned here yesterday, charged with the murder of Overseer James W. Fuller at the house of correction, July 17. Leary pleaded not guilty, and the case was continued until Aug. 7.

Means Extermination of Boers

Chicago, July 30.—"The horror of the situation in the Boer reconcentrado camps of South Africa is appalling. Men, women and children are dying at a rate that would mean the extermination of the Boer race in nine years. The people are cooped up in unsanitary quarters, where they are unable to secure sufficient food or clothing, with disease making terrible ravages among them." Thus was the situation in the Transvaal and Orange Free State depicted last night by Rev. Mr. Van Broekhuisen, late pastor of a church at Pretoria.

Socialist Factions Meet

Indianapolis, July 30.—The Socialist unity convention met here yesterday. Delegates were present from the various Socialistic unions of the United States. The object is to unite all the elements not disagreeing in vital principles into one party for work in the next presidential campaign. The two leading factions of the Socialists are known as the Deleonists, or Social Labor party of New York state, and the Debs element. The usual committees were appointed.

RIG IS TO BE CHANGED

Duncan Dissatisfied With Constitution's Work

LOST YESTERDAY'S RACE

Columbia Won by Nearly Three Minutes and Took the Thousand-Dollar Astor Cup—Will Next Sail Against Independence For Special Cups

Newport, R. I., July 30.—The Columbia yesterday defeated the Constitution, boat for boat, in a splendid race, by 2 minutes and 50 seconds, and won the $1000 cup presented by John Jacob Astor. The behavior of the Constitution, on the other hand, was disappointing in the extreme, and last evening Mr. Duncan announced that his boat would not take part in further races until her rig had been altered. He declared that the Constitution is not doing herself justice; that she is not going well and that there is no use in racing her further until she is put in proper shape.

The Constitution will not participate in the Newport yacht racing events of Thursday and Saturday of this week as a competitor of the Independence. The Columbia, however, has been entered for these races, and will sail against the Boston boat. The Constitution will go to Bristol at once to have the alterations made.

If this change in the plans of the Constitution does not prevent, the next races in which she will start will take place over the Newport course on Aug. 12 and 14. The regatta will be under the auspices of the New York Yacht club. The races take the place of the postponed July series, and also of the annual autumn sweepstakes, and will include all classes. Special cups will be offered for the 90-footers. In one of these races the cup offered by Sir Thomas Lipton will be sailed for.

The regular trial races, for the purpose of selecting the defender of the America's cup, will be held here on Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 and 3.

It is not expected that the Newport Racing association will hold any more contests this season after this week, and unless the Independence should qualify to start in the New York Yacht club contests the races next Thursday and Saturday will be the last in which she will appear this season.

The wind yesterday never exceeded 13 knots, and, although there was a long roll of the sea setting in from the southwest, the water was by no means rough. The course was a total distance of 38 nautical miles.

It is not easy for the best friends of the Constitution to make plausible excuses for her most palpable defeat. She was beaten fairly and squarely on her merits. She will probably be hauled out at Herreshoffs by Thursday, and, after it has been determined that there is nothing wrong with her plates, the riggers will begin work on the boat.

The Boston boat, the Independence, started over the course, about a mile ahead of the racers. She tackled them to leeward of the Block Island mark, and did windward work similar to that of the racers. But at no time did she show any great speed.

Won't Handle Non-Union Iron

Wellsville, O., July 30.—The entire force at the Fawcett Boiler Works walked out yesterday, rather than work non-union iron from the Wellsville mill. It is the first local complication in the strike. The foreman said they could obtain no other sheets, so the works closed down.

Strikers' Demands Granted

Paterson, N. J., July 30.—The Collinge & Nolan company, silk manufacturers, have decided to give their striking weavers the wage schedule of 1894, minus 15 percent. These are the terms demanded by the strikers. The weavers resumed work today at this mill.

☞ Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

Slugging Match at Baltimore

Baltimore, July 30.—"Young Peter Jackson," the colored lad, won from Jimmy Handler of Newark last night in one of the fiercest slugging matches ever seen in Baltimore. The contest was to have gone 20 rounds. Just as the ninth round was about to end, Jackson landed a vicious left swing on Handler's jaw, setting him groggy. After this there were some wild swings with Handler gasping and dazed, until the police ordered the fight stopped, and the referee decided that Jackson was the winner.

McLeod Retains His Title

Buffalo, July 30.—Dan McLeod, middleweight wrestling champion, last night threw Ed Atherton in two straight falls. McLeod gained the first fall in 2 minutes, and the second in 7 minutes, the style being straight catch-as-catch-can, strangle hold barred.

Good Afternoon.

We are surprised that Mayor Hall should advocate quick payment of the city's municipal debt, and thereby continue the high tax rates of the last few years. The policy adopted by the Finance Committee for two or three years, of extending the loan orders over ten years, promises to reduce next year the maturing debt, and thereby reduce the tax rate. Every $20,000 of the maturing debt requires a tax of about $1 per $1000, and it is too much to ask the taxpayers to pay annually $60,000, $70,000 and some years over $80,000 on the municipal debt.

The maturing municipal debt of 1901 amounts to $68,605.61. This is aside from parks, water and sewer. At the beginning of the year 1901, the maturing debt of the year 1902 amounted to $40,250; for the year 1903, $37,850, and so on gradually down to $15,575 in 1910. The three combination loan orders of this year amount to $60,100, and if divided equally will increase the maturing debt of each of the ten years about $6,000. There are a few small loans, some payable in one year, as is proposed on the order of $1000 for repair of public buildings, $1000 for crushed stone, etc., but the maturing debt of 1902 will not greatly exceed $50,000, or about $15,000 less than will be paid this year.

With debt paid in ten-year instalments, there will be no erratic fluctuations of the tax rate. The rate of 1902 should be less than in 1901 but then it should continue along for years at about the same rate, $16 to $17 per $1,000.

It would be a good idea to pay off the debt rapidly, if the City Council would make an effort to keep out of debt, but where the Councilmen seem determined to appropriate all they can, there is little satisfaction in paying the old debt, as new debts larger than the old will be contracted. So long as the debt is increased the item of interest will be increased. We hope some day to see the debt limit reduced by statute. That appears to be the only way of keeping the debt and interest down.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ We must not neglect to take into account the press in reckoning up our allies. We talk sometimes of the time when we shall have a religious press, while we have it now. Every Monday the papers of the country help to carry the gospel to the world. A single report sent out from Old Orchard has a circulation of 1,000,000 copies. The busy banker and business man, the lawyer with no time to go to church, but with a few minutes to devote to his paper, those at home, everybody is reached by the newspapers, and in a large degree the press of the United States is a Christian press, and I thank God that it is so.—Dr. Bates at Old Orchard.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

Monday night's meeting of the City Council gave another exhibition of you pat my back and I'll pat yours. All the orders of two weeks ago, that the Council refused to pass over the Mayor's veto, with one exception, were taken from the table and passed, and were followed by the introduction of a loan order for $20,600 in ten instalments to cover them.

Councilman Langelier was the only member absent the entire session.

SMOKE NUISANCE.

Mayor Hall sent a communication recommending the adoption of Chapter 426 of the Acts of 1901, which provides for the abatement of the smoke nuisance. To Committee on Legislative Matters.

MORE BOXES.

The Mayor also forwarded a communication from the Chief Engineer relative to fire alarm boxes. Laid on the table until later when an order was offered for $700 for fire alarm boxes as follows:

Corner Centre and Station streets.
Corner Water street and Brook road.
Quincy avenue, near residence of Mrs. Baxter.
Farrington street, near foundry.
Presidents hill.
Corner Franklin and High streets.
Sailors' Snug Harbor, Germantown.
Referred to Committee on Fire Department.

FISH LAWS.

The Mayor sent a communication from the Fish and Game Commissioners relative to restrictions for fishing at the reservoir and suggested an ordinance. To Committee on Ordinances.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Mayor called attention to the urgent need of more fire protection at Houghs Neck, and recommended the purchase of a combination chemical and hook and ladder. To Committee on Fire Department.

CRUSHED STONE.

The Mayor sent a communication relative to the purchase of crushed stone from the Metropolitan Sewer commissioners on Adams street, and recommended an appropriation of $1,000. Laid on the table until later when an order for that amount was offered by Councilman Newcomb.

DEPUTY SEALER.

The Mayor sent in for confirmation the name of George A. McKay as deputy sealer of weights and measures. Laid on the table.

POLLING PLACES.

The Social Democratic party requested polling places for holding caucuses Aug. 30. Laid on the table until later when an order was offered.

VETO OF LOAN ORDER.

The Mayor returned without his approval the loan order for $29,500 his reason being on account of the length of time the loan had to run. He felt that the adoption of shorter times for loans would put the city on good financial basis.

The order was passed over the veto by a unanimous vote.

PETITIONS.

The New England Telephone Co. petitioned for a location of poles on Neponset bridge, Dimmock street, Howard street and conduits on Randolph avenue. To Committee on Streets.

The O. T. Rogers Granite Company petitioned for permission to run a guy wire across Bates avenue. Referred to Executive.

A petition for a street light on Beacon street was referred to the Executive department.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The joint Committee on Legislative Matters and Finance reported an order for $460 for enforcing the provisions of the law for sealing weights and measures and authorizing the appointment of a deputy who should receive $2.50 per day when employed.

Upon motion of Councilman Nichols the amount was changed to $4.25. The order was then referred to Committtee on Finance.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for the relocation of a telephone pole on Billings street. Adopted.

The same committe reported ought to pass on the order for $2,000 for a sidewalk on the west side of Hancock street between Adams and Carruth streets. To Finance Committee.

The same committee reported favorable on the petition of the Citizens Gas Co. to extend its mains on Water street. Ordered to a second reading.

At the Kindergartens.

In connection with the Summer Kindergarten work of the Quincy Home Science Association this season, two mothers' meetings so-called have been planned for each kindergarten, afternoon meetings to which the mothers of the kindergarten chilren are invited by the teachers and ladies of the managing committees to discuss the needs of the children and how the home and kindergarten can best help each other, and to enjoy a social hour. The pleasure of these occasions is mutual—the ladies of the committee finding them as helpful and enjoyable as their guests. During the coming week one will be held at the John Hancock kindergarten on Wednesday, another at the Gridley Bryant on Thursday, and one at the Adams on Friday—and the attendance should be especially large as beside the usual music and simple refreshment, informal talks on "the care of children and how to keep them well" by Quincy Doctors good enough to spare some of their valuable time to help the kindergarten work, are promised.

COUNCILMEN NOT WITH MAYOR.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

The joint committee on Finance and Public Buildings reported an amendment to the order for $1,500 for repairs of Public Buildings, changing the amount to $1,000. Rules suspended and order passed.

LICENSES.

The Committee on Licenses reported favorable on a number of petitions for minor licenses.

PLAIN STREET.

The Committee on Finance reported favorable on the order for $200 for laying out Plain street as a public way. Ordered to a second reading.

CHUBBUCK STREET.

Upon motion of Councilman Newcomb the order widening Chubbuck street with the Mayor's veto was taken from the table.

Councilman DeNormandie asked for the Committee's report on the order.

President Bryant replied that the amount had been changed by the Committee on Streets from $7,500 to $6,000 and that the Committee on Finance had reported reference to next Council.

The order was passed over the veto by a vote of 17 in favor and 4 against, as given elsewhere.

GROVE STREET.

Upon motion of Councilman Elcock the Mayor's veto to the order for $3,000 was taken from the table. The report of the Finance committee on the order was ought not to pass.

Councilman DeNormandie said he had viewed the locality, and while it should be fixed up he did not think $3,000 would do half of it. It would cost in the end considerable more.

Councilman Faxon said he had viewed the street. He did not know of one valid argument for the expenditure of their money. But few houses would be served by it. The $3,000 would only be a beginning.

COUNCILMAN ELCOCK.

Councilman Elcock. The way to kill an order is to say there is not money enough. Careful figures had been made by the Commissioners and $3,000 will make a fine job. It sometimes happens that people brought up in luxury do not understand the needs of those who work early and late. It was not fair. They want and ought to have the street.

In answer to questions by Councilman DeNormandie, Councilman Elcock said there were eight or nine houses on the hill. It would be impossible to tell how many people would be directly benefited.

Councilman Faxon could not take the view that many would be benefited. If we had to take the money out of our own pockets for this we would consider it a bad investment, as but few people would be benefited.

PRESIDENT BRYANT

The order was passed over the veto by a vote of 16 in favor and 6 against. President Bryant voting in the affirmative to make the necessary 16.

CLARK STREET SIDEWALK.

Upon motion of Councilman Gassett, the Mayor's veto on the order for the sidewalk on Clark street was taken from the table.

President Bryant said the Finance committee reported ought not to pass.

The order was passed over the veto by a vote of 18 in favor and 3 against.

NEWBURY AVENUE SIDEWALK.

Upon motion of Councilman Alden the Mayor's veto on the order for $1,200 for a sidewalk on Newbury avenue was taken from the table.

President Bryant said the committee reported favorable on the order.

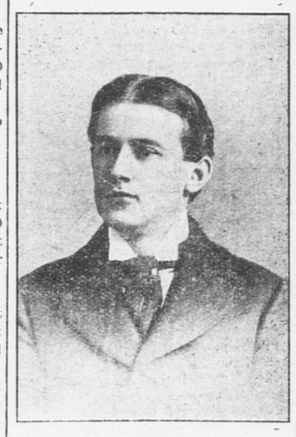

The order was then passed over the veto by a vote of 20 in favor and 1 against.

WALKER STREET SIDEWALK.

Upon motion of Councilman Alden, the Mayor's veto on the order for $1,000 for a sidewalk on Walker street was taken from the table.

President Bryant said the Committee reported ought not to pass.

The order was passed over the veto by a vote of 19 in favor and 2 against.

COUNCILMAN BASS.

BEALE STREET SIDEWALK.

Upon motion of Councilman De Normandie, the Mayor's veto on the order for $1,700 for a sidewalk of Beale street was taken from the table.

In reply to a question by Councilman Elcock, Councilman DeNormandie said the order had much merit. It was the only street running east and west that leads beyond the ward. People living on many streets used this street. There were two churches, a school house and a fire station on the street.

The order was passed over the veto by a vote of 17 in favor and 4 against.

Councilman DeNormandie offered an order that the receipts from Parks and Playgrounds for 1901 be placed to the credit of the appropriation for Parks. To Committee on Finance.

Councilman Craig offered an order apportioning the sidewalk assessment on the estate of Fred A. Hardwick on Franklin street.

FENCE VIEWERS.

Upon motion of Councilman Nichols, George Crane and John H. O'Neil were elected as fence viewers.

LOAN ORDER NO. 3.

Councilman Freeman offered a loan order for $20,000 in ten instalments. To Committee on Finance.

SMITH STREET.

Councilman Craig offered an order laying out Smith street from Garfield to Quarry street. To Committee on Streets.

COUNCILMAN CRAIG.

CALENDAR.

The order granting the New England Telephone Company a relocation for poles on Washington street; sidewalk assessment on Copeland street, and the order for $185 to settle claim of Sarah Dolan, were passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules.

Adjourned at 9.05 for one week.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

BUFFALO EXPENSES.

One Can Go to the Pan American for $20.

Editors of Quincy Ledger:

It almost seems as if the people of Quincy who read your valuable paper should be well posted in regard to the Pan-American Fair, yet, since my return from here, I have noticed by the enquiries, that some things concerning the Fair are not understood. So will you kindly allow me to answer, through your paper, a number of the questions to which the public wish answers.

The first is in regard to the expense.

An eight-days' ticket going and returning the same way, is either $12 or $15. Where a person starts in the morning, arriving in Buffalo at midnight it is $10. The twelve-dollar ticket is as good as the other, provided one has his room engaged in advance. One does not need to take a sleeper for that distance. The fifteen-dollar ticket allows one to go at night and take a sleeper by paying extra, arriving in Buffalo in the morning and having a chance to look for rooms in the daylight.

Right here allow me to remark that there are thousands of nice rooms to be had for one dollar per day for one person. I don't think, however, that it is safe to engage rooms of a drummer at the railroad station. I should advise anyone to take a car for Whitney Place or some fine residential portion of the city, where he can sleep nights and be near the Fair grounds. There are plenty of nice rooms to let there.

In my opinion the Fair with its grand illumination, and taken in connection with Niagara Falls which truly seems to be a part of the Fair, is superior to the Columbian Exposition, and everyone that is able, should go. The sooner he goes, the better; for later the crowd will spoil half the pleasure.

Below is a list of the expenses. Of course anyone can spend $10 or $14 at the Midway, if he wishes to, but in my opinion a large part would be a waste of money.

|---|---|
| Ticket, going and returning, | $12.00 |
| Three days' lodging and breakfasts, | 3.75 |
| Two admissions to the Fair, | 1.00 |
| Meals at the Fair, | 2.00 |
| Excursion to Niagara Falls, | .50 |
| Dinner and lunch at the Falls, | .80 |
| Great Gorge ride, | 1.00 |
| Steamer under the Falls, | .60 |
| Electric car fare in Buffalo, | .30 |
| Lunch on home journey, | .25 |
| Total, | $22 20 |

For $2.65 one can add another day at the Fair or can visit a few of the Midway exhibits. All the above is first class. Of course $3 can be added for the sake of going at night. Sleepers cost $2.50 per double berth each day.

Yours truly,
C. W. Guy.

Time Signal.

That Boston ought to have a system of time signaling seems to be an opinion quite general among business men says the Globe. The Harvard observatory intends establishing a system of light signals early in the fall. This system, however is intended for local use. The power of the lamps and the elevation will not be strong or high enough to be of any material benefit to Boston and none whatever to the shipping in the harbor. Several years ago Mr. Gerrish experimented with flash signals on the top of Blue Hill in Milton. They were easily seen at Princeton, 40 miles away. Blue hill would be an excellent position for a time signalling plant in case the city should desire to establish one on a more extensive scale than the state house could afford. Signals from here could be seen well out to sea, and from the outer borders of a very wide circle, which would embrace man of the large cities and towns.

If arrangements can be made to utilize the state house lamps for signaling, Boston could have at small cost and without much delay a time-signaling system far superior to anything of the kind ever before devised for the benefit of her citizens.

Burglars at Braintree.

Burglars entered the grocery store of Mr. H. A. Clark at Braintree "Five Corners" Monday night, by forcing open a back window. They were unable to find any money, so they took the waste basket filled with canned goods.

CADILLAC WON.

But Judges Decide to Have Three More Trial Races.

It looks as if the committee to select a defender of the Canada's cup were unfriendly to the Quincy boat. They decided a protest against her on Saturday, and Monday after she had won three races, as required, they decided to have three more races.

The race of Monday was triangular, seven miles to a leg. The wind was due west, shifting occasionally a point or two, but steady for the most part. During the race it blew at a 20-mile rate. Three boats were to start, but forty seconds before the starting gun was fired the mast of the Milwaukee broke off short, and the Cadillac and Illinois were left to compete alone. The former led throughout and the race was a procession over the course. The last leg was run to windward and on this, as has been the case in former races, the Illinois proved the better boat in windward work and gained steadily. The official elapsed time was: Cadillac, 3.14; Illinois, 3.15.05.

The announcement that three more races would be sailed (making ten in all) was disagreeable to the Detroit contingent, who claimed that Cadillac had made the best showing and was entitled to the honor of defending the cup. J. C. Shaw, owner of the Cadillac, left for home and it is not certain that he will sail any more races. He has not however, announced that he will not do so.

A great many women are subject to spells of dizziness, spots before the eyes, and a ringing noise in the head. These symptoms are commonly associated with liver "trouble" as the result of a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures through the stomach diseases seemingly remote from that organ, but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system. Hence, cures of heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, and other organs are constantly effected by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

There is no alcohol in the "Discovery" and it is free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

Some dealers may offer a substitute as "just as good" as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. There's more profit in substitutes for the dealer. There's more health in the "Discovery" for you. Don't be imposed on.

"It is with the greatest pleasure I write you the benefit my mother has received from your 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" says Miss Carrie Johnson, of Lowesville, Amherst Co., Virginia. She suffered untold misery with uterine disease and nervousness, and had a constant roaring and ringing noise in her head. After taking six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery she was entirely cured."

When a laxative is required use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

LAND LOTTERY DRAWING

Witnessed by an Expectant Crowd at El Reno

ONE IN EVERY THIRTEEN

Will Secure a Homestead, The Value of the Capital Prizes Being Estimated at From $20,000 to $40,000—Hundreds Are Worn Out

El Reno, O. T., July 30.—Oklahoma's great land lottery was begun here in earnest yesterday, and when the commissioners appointed by the federal government adjourned the drawing for the day, 1000 of the choice of the 13,000 160-acre claims in the Kiowa-Comanche country had been awarded.

The first name drawn from the wheel was that of Stephen A. Holcomb of Pauls Valley, I. T., for a homestead in the El Reno district, and the second was Leonard Lamb of Augusta, O. T. These two men selected the two choice claims in the district. The capital prize winners, however, proved to be James R. Wood of Weatherford, O. T., whose name was the first to come from the Lawton district wheel, and Miss Mattie H. Beals of Wichita, Kan., who drew the second number on that district. They will have the privilege of making the first filings in the Lawton district,and will undoubtedly choose the two quarter sections adjoining the town. These are considered the most valuable in the territory, and are, it is estimated, worth from $20,000 to $40,000 each.

The day was one of keen excitement, replete with interesting scenes. It is estimated that fully 25,000 persons witnessed the drawing. The immense throng was wrought up to the highest pitch. The drawing of the first claims was followed by a mighty shout.

Each succeeding winning for a time was met with shouts of applause and merriment. All was pleasant. Every man, though he did not draw a prize from the wheels yesterday, had steadfast faith that tomorrow will surely see him the possessor of a slip reading him a title clear to 160 acres of Oklahoma land.

The crowd fairly exhausted themselves, and when the close of the drawing for the day was announced, at 6 o'clock, hundreds who had neither eaten nor drunk during the day sank to the ground, where they stood from sheer fatigue, or dragged themselves to better places for rest or to refreshment booths up town. The day was remarkably free from quarrels, and general satisfaction with the government's method of disposing of the land was felt.

It has been found that many hundred applicants have "repeated," and that others have applications so illegible that they will be thrown out. Over this much discord has resulted, and the outcome may be an appeal to the courts.

Twenty-five names were first drawn from the El Reno district, and then an equal number from the Lawton district. When all was ready, Ben Heyler placed his hand in an aperture in the El Reno wheel, and withdrawing an envelope handed it to Colonel Dyer. It was passed to Chief Clerk MacKay, stamped, and handed back to Colonel Dyer. The commissioner walked to the front of the platform, raised his hand for order, and in a loud tone exclaimed:

"Stephen A. Holcomb of Pauls Valley, I. T., draws the first number."

The crowd yelled for three or four minutes, apparently as much delighted as if every man had drawn a prize.

Envelope No. 2 was quickly drawn forth, and Colonel Dyer again announced: "Leonard Lamb of Augusta, O. T., born in Illinois."

In quick succession other envelopes were drawn, and as the names were announced each one was greeted with cheers.

The 18th winner of the Lawton district was Minerva McClintock, aged 25 years, of Oklahoma City. She was married last Sunday, and by this act forfeits her right to her claim. She might have chosen a claim near the county seat worth several thousand dollars. The drawing will, it is believed, be completed by Thursday evening.

Channel Held by Enemy

London, July 30.—The first battle in the British naval maneuvers took place yesterday afternoon, when the cruiser squadrons of the opposing fleets were engaged off the Scilly islands, with the theoretical result that the defending fleet was annihilated. The channel is now apparently at the mercy of the enemy. Eighteen cruisers were supposititously sunk.

Lake Barge Sunk

Saulte Ste Marie, Mich., July 30.—The whale-back barge Sagamore, loaded with iron ore, was sunk in a collision with the freight steamer Northern Queen, near Point Iroquois, yesterday. Of the crew of eight men three were drowned. A dense fog prevailed at the time of the collision. The Northern Queen sustained considerable damage about the bow.

Two Thousand Against Twenty

St. Petersburg, July 30.—The Russian government has been advised that 2000 Tibetians, July 16, attacked Major Kosloff's expedition of 20 men, half of whom were shot down, and the others severely wounded. The government will demand satisfaction.

Disturbances In China

Shanghai, July 30.—It is announced that there has been a recrudescence of outbreaks by the Boxers in the province of Shan Tung, in consequence of the success of the allied villagers against the troops of Li Hung Chang.

NAMED AND SUSPENDED

Redmond and O'Brien Incur Displeasure of House of Commons

London, July 30.—There was wild uproar in the house of commons this morning at the conclusion of the debate on the taxation of agricultural property. The Conservatives interrupted Mr. Watson, Liberal, with cries of "Divide." William Redmond, on a point of order, called the attention of the speaker to the interruption, but the speaker ruled that the point was not well taken.

Mr. Walton resumed, but quite inaudibly, owing to the persistent cries of "Divide."

Mr. Redmond shouted: "Police, police." The speaker said this expression was disorderly.

Mr. Redmond said: "Why don't you keep order?"

The speaker directed him to leave the house, and named him. Mr. Balfour moved Mr. Redmond's suspension, and this was carried by a vote of 303 to 71.

Patrick O'Brien persisted in the same point of order, and was in turn named and suspended.

The bill was adopted.

Successful Balloon Trip

Paris, July 30.—Santos-Dumont made another successful experiment for 26 minutes yesterday afternoon with a dirigible balloon, sailing from St. Cloud to the Longchamps race course alone.

M. SANTOS-DUMONT.

He steered the balloon and ascended and descended. Though asked to make an attempt to go around the Eiffel tower, the aeronaut declined, saying his motor was not yet working as well as he wanted.

A Unique Proposition

Deadwood, S. D., July 30.—Petitions are being signed in some of the Black Hills counties, by farmers and ranchers, praying congress to permit them to take up government land at the rate of $4 per acre, payment to be made on said land by actual work done upon dams, dikes and ditches, for the purpose of saving the rain water in the gulches in the wet season of the year. Hundreds of thousands of acres of good ground can be redeemed in this way. The plan is new, and it is being taken up readily by the South Dakota congressmen. Nothing is asked of the government in the way of an appropriation, only that the farmers may be permitted to take their pay for the work done in the redemption of the ground in government land.

Suspect Appears Confident

New York, July 30.—Walter L. Gray, who is held on suspicion in connection with the murder of May L. Fosburg in Pittsfield, Mass., was remanded for further investigation in the police court yesterday. Gray said he had no objection to being held for the fullest investigation. Unless the police get something to corroborate the statement of the woman who caused the arrest of the prisoner he will probably be discharged when brought into court again tomorrow.

Mementoes In Pawnbroker's Hands

Paris, July 30.—J. Pierpont Morgan, before his recent departure for the United States, left a check for $10,000 with Horace Porter to be paid on delivery at the United States embassy of certain valuable relics of Lafayette, said to be in a pawn broker's shop in London. How they got there is not known, but the story is that among them are the sculptured gold jug and sword carried throughout the American campaign which Lafayette left to his heirs.

A Reward For Titus

West Point, N. Y., July 30.—Among the candidates who successfully passed the examinations and who yesterday were admitted to the military academy as cadets are Clarence K. Lyman of Hawaii and Calvin P. Titus, at large. Forty-eight reported for examination. Thirty were successful. Titus is the young man who was first to scale the wall at Pekin. Lyman of Hawaii is the first cadet to be appointed from the government's new possessions.

Four Victims of Lightning

Newark, N. J., July 30.—During a storm yesterday Frank A. Silvers and Edward Wade sought safety in a railroad shanty. The shanty was occupied by Keeper Riley and helper. After the storm passed the four men were found unconscious, the shanty being struck by lightning. All were badly burned, and Wade cannot recover.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, July 31.
Sun rises—4:35; sets, 7:06.
Moon sets—11:58 p. m.
High water—11 a. m.; 11:15 p. m.

While the maximum temperatures were generally above 90 degrees yesterday in the corn belt, there were quite general showers since Sunday night over almost its entire area. There were also showers from the eastern portion of the Dakotas eastward through New England and the northern portion of the middle Atlantic states. There will be showers in New England, probably warmer on the coast, where the winds will be light to fresh east to southeast.

ANARCHY EXTOLLED

Editor Estervo Wishes That Every Country Had a Bresci

Paterson, N. J., July 30.—Bartholdi hall was packed yesterday by the friends of Bresci, the assassin of King Humbert of Italy, it being the anniversary of the deed. The speakers lauded Bresci and his act. Pedro Estevo, editor of La Questione Sociale, outdid his previous efforts in lauding Bresci. He was encouraged by frequent cheers. All the speeches were in Italian.

"I wish every country had a Bresci," said Estevo, and the sentiment was vociferously applauded. "Down with empires!" he continued, and the cheering was accentuated. The speaker, referring to Bresci's companions, Quinto Carollo and Lanzi, who sailed with him, said they sailed for the same purpose. "They all went to do that which Bresci did," said the speaker.

Having said that the last two are in prison, the speaker continued: "The question we ask the United States government is were these men citizens, and where are they now?"

It appeared from further remarks that that two others had been selected to do the work Bresci did, but they failed. One of them, Matteo, committed suicide. The other, Spiedendo, was let off on condition that he kill a shop foreman, who was objectionable to the Italians.

Cuban Electoral Provisions

Havana, July 30.—There was a good attendance at yesterday's session of the Cuban constitutional convention when the electoral bill was submitted. The measure provides for universal suffrage, but restrictions as to ability to read and write are imposed in the case of office holders. Governors of provinces and provincial legislators must be of Cuban birth, or have been naturalized for a period of eight years. They must be at least 30 years of age. They must be heads of families or property owners, or they must possess title by public decree or have filled office by popular vote. The same restrictions regarding citizenships are laid upon congressmen, who must be 25 years of age. Senators must be Cubans by birth, and 35 years of age. The president must be a Cuban or naturalized. In the latter case he must have served in the Cuban army for 10 years. He must be at least 40 years of age. The same conditions apply to the vice president.

Loubet Feels Grateful

Paris, July 30.—Benjamin D. Woodwell, assistant commissioner of the United States at the Paris exposition, has wound up the affairs of the commission, and was received in farewell audience yesterday by President Loubet, who said: "America's participation was more than ephemeral, as one feature has been lasting, the Lafayette monument erected in Paris." The president dwelt on the importance of a good understanding and friendship between France and the United States, and evinced the deepest interest in the industrial and commercial situation in America.

Threshers on Smashing Tour

Wichita, Kan., July 30.—Eight threshing machine crews reached the town of Colwich Sunday, and, because they could not get liquor, they smashed five "joints" and wrecked a number of town pumps. The citizens organized a party to cause their arrest, but the threshers made their retreat. The rioting was resumed yesterday, when the citizens again tried to arrest the threshers, but again they had to give up. The sheriff has been asked to come at once to the scene.

Britishers Believe In Flogging

London, July 30.—Mr. Choate, presiding yesterday at the distribution of prizes to the pupils of the London university school, alluded deprecatingly to the "delicate subject of flogging" which had been abandoned, he said, "years and years ago in America." His utterances have led to some editorial comments in the morning papers, The Standard defending the "ancient method."

A Warning From Long

Washington, July 30.—Secretary Long has issued the following general order: "All persons in the naval service are strictly enjoined to refrain from any public statement concerning the subject matter of the court of inquiry requested by Rear Admiral W. S. Schley."

To Work on Piece Scale

Joliet, Ills., July 30.—The strike of the Pressed Car Steel Works, inaugurated two weeks ago, has been amicably settled. The 200 men return to work on the piece scale. They formerly received day wages, and the new arrangement will give a slight increase.

"First Blood" For Chicago

Milwaukee, July 30.—Chicago carried off the honor in the first day's tournament of the American Whist league by capturing the Brooklyn trophy. It required but four rounds to arrive at a decision, Chicago winning four rounds in succession.

FETE DAY AT NEWPORT

Successfully Carried Out on Magnificent Scale

BOAT RACES IN THE HARBOR

Followed by a Big Parade Ashore, Participated In by Military and Naval Bodies—Brilliant Electric Illumination and Fireworks at Night

Newport, R. I., July 31.—With her streets resplendent in gorgeous trapperies, her harbor completely filled with flag-covered yachts, three massive warships in her roadstead, and a host of strangers in the city, Newport yesterday plunged into the gaities of a summer fete, and emerged at night fully satisfied with the day's frolic.

From the firing of the sunrise gun until the last incandescent lamp darkened the sport never flagged, nor was there a hitch in the almost continuous performance. Showers of confetti met the incoming crowds and decorated everyone all day.

Numerous harbor sports were the attractions of the morning, a land parade by details from the warships and also by the Rhode Island militia occupied the afternoon, while in the evening, day almost dawned again, through the brilliant illumination of every vessel afloat and every building on shore. Although the sky was overcast during the early morning and a thick fog obscured part of the fleet no rain fell to dampen the ardor of the crowd or disarrange the carefully-planned program.

Shortly after 8 o'clock, as soon as the morning routine of "colors" had been completed, Commodore Ledyard of the New York Yacht club gave orders to "dress ship," and soon every yacht in the harbor was festooned with signal flags.

Because of the fog and the crowded condition of the harbor, the sub-marine boat Holland did not give her exhibition at the scheduled time. Commander Mason, in charge at the torpedo station, decided that there was much danger in such an exhibition. Later in the day, when the weather cleared, it was decided to give her a short run. The Holland was accordingly sent out on a surface spin near the station, and then, with her decks awash she prepared for diving in the inner harbor. Her performance brought out many cheers.

Rowing races for local crews and also crews from the three warships followed, the Father Mathew crew winning from the crews of the naval reserves and the Old Colony machine shop, while the Massachusetts cutter defeated those of the Kearsarge and Alabama.

Races for small boats were, however, held later by the New York Yacht club. The Owl colors were won by the Isoldis two-oared boat, and the Gamecock by the Katrina's four-oared boat. The dingy race went to the Fortuna; the Alco-Vapor launch race to the Enterprise, and the naphtha launch race to the Surf.

The land parade formed at 1:30 o'clock,, and with Major General Joseph Wheeler as chief marshal, began to move half an hour after. A company of the coast artillery from Forts Adams, Preble and Wetherell, under command of Captain Joseph Wheeler, Jr., headed the main section of the parade. Following came the sailors and marines, this division being commanded by Captain W. H. Brownson of the Alabama, while just behind came the companies of the state militia and two companies of the naval reserve.

Although the evening was given up to one vast illumination, it had as a special feature a Venetian fete parade of all kinds of small boats, steam and naphtha launches and floats, which, strung out for half a mile, wound through the fleet like the tail of a fiery dragon. Prizes were awarded to the best dressed boats.

During this parade the sky was filled with shrieking rockets and bursting bombs from many of the yachts, and also on shore.

The electrical display on the three warships and quite a number of the yachts was particularly brilliant and imposing. All three of the battleships had their massive hulls sketched in bright electric lines, while flaming overhead was the name of each boat, in huge letters of light, which could be distinctly read miles away.

On the smaller boats in harbor the incandescent bulbs were more varied in hue, long strings of different-colored globes being hung in swinging festoons from mast to deck. Nearly all the yachts burned colored fire.

Not until midnight did the lights go out, and the loaded trains depart, leaving the city once more in its customary state of tranquility.

Forty-Five Hundred Numbers Drawn

El Reno, O. T., July 31.—The government drawing for lands on the Kiowa-Comanche reservation was continued yesterday. Interest increased as the drawing progressed, and the crowds were larger than at any time before. Forty-five hundred numbers have been drawn out of the boxes altogether.

BIG CO-OPERATIVE TRUST

Cotton Producers Propose to Form One, With 50,000,000 Capital

Boston, July 31.—George F. Washburn of this city sailed for Europe yesterday, primarily as a delegate to the Methodist conference in London, and, in a business way, to inquire into the co-operative methods of various bodies in England, Belgium and Switzerland, with a view to the formation of a $50,000,000 cotton trust in this country.

According to Mr. Washburn, he has worked out a plan to unite the cotton producers of the south into one great co-operative trust. He said that in his judgment the only way to meet the competition of the capitalistic cotton and wheat trusts was to organize better and bigger ones in the interest of the producer. The application of the idea to the cotton industry was made because the planters, being men of means, can unite in a co-operative business movement and effect a tremendous saving to themselves.

Mr. Washburn, who, in two national campaigns, was a national executive committeeman of the People's party, was asked if his plan had any political significance, and he said that in case it was successful it would have a far-reaching effect along political lines in the west and south.

Doctor Was Pushed Away

Manchester, N. H., July 31.—While a regular physician, who had been called, was administering treatment, which, he says, was restoring her to consciousness and life, yesterday, the mother of Miss Hattie Muzzey appeared, pushed the doctor away from her daughter, ordered him from the room and proceeded to pray. She was accompanied by another Christian Scientist, and within a very few minutes the girl was dead. Three other physicians were called, and all have given it as their opinion that had the medical treatment been continued the young woman would have lived. There were, say those who were present, signs of returning animation when the mother interfered.

Counterfeited Lottery Tickets

Boston, July 31.—In arresting two men yesterday on the charge of altering and counterfeiting lottery tickets, Chief Watts' men were forced to assume the peculiar position of assisting and protecting a lottery. Peter C. Plugge, aged 24, and Gustavus E. Thompson, aged 28, are the two men arrested. They are believed to have worked different parts of the country extensively in selling fraudulent lottery tickets. They have been in Boston several weeks.

Mills To Remain Closed

Taunton, Mass., July 31.—It is announced that Cohannet mills No. 1 and 2, of the New England Cotton Yarn company, have completed repairs, but they may not be started for an indefinite period, owing to a lack of orders. No. 3 mill of the combine is being run day and night on fancy goods. The other mills cannot handle the finer grades of goods demanded.

Assaulted a Young Woman

Bangor, Me., July 31.—Michael Curley, aged 26, entered the residence of John Dillon at 10:30 last night and made a vicious assault upon Dillon's daughter Jennie, aged 22, who fought him until help arrived. Curley escaped, but was arrested an hour later. Previous to the affair at Dillon's, Curley entered the residence of Morris Tozier, but was frightened away.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded

Waterbury, Vt., July 31.—The young son of Charles Fisk was killed yesterday at Stowe, and Angus Luce and a boy named Gibbs were injured by the firing of a gun supposed not to be loaded. The boys were swimming, and George Gale, aged 15, was on the bank, with a gun. While playing with it he fired it towards the boys in the water.

A Mother's Grief and Suicide

Lowell, Mass., July 31.—The body of Mrs. Bridget Gibney was found in the Merrimack river yesterday afternoon. She left her home Sunday night, leaving a note saying: "I am going in the big river to find Harry, my boy, my boy. I feel, oh, so happy, I can see him." She had grieved deeply over the loss of a 7-year-old son on July 2.

Alleged Attempt at Extortion

Worcester, Mass., July 31.—George H. Buzzo and Mrs. Bernice E. Fisher, charged with attempting to extort $8000 from Charles S. Barton, and arrested in this city July 18, had preliminary hearings in court yesterday, each being held in $3000 for the grand jury. Both are out on bail.

Stinson Keeps on Winning

Boston, July 31.—Johnny Nelson fell a victim to Will Stinson's pedalling last night in their 25-mile motor-paced race, Stinson riding in fine form and winning in 39:30. Stinson won by almost a lap, but Nelson was not beaten decisively until the end of the 24th mile.

—The apple grows wild in the Sandwich islands.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

FATE OF STEEL STRIKE

Still Remains a Matter of Extreme Doubt

HIRING OF NON-UNION MEN

One of the Chief Obstacles to Acceptance of Proposal of Magnates—Objection to Having All Mills of the Combine Classified as Open

Pittsburg, July 31.—Disappointment and apprehension prevail here because of the failure of the executive board of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers to ratify the peace proposals arranged at the conference in New York last Saturday between national officers of the Amalgamated association and Messrs. Morgan, Schwab and Gary, representing the United States Steel corporation.

When the conference opened yesterday morning, it was confidently expected that an agreement would be reached in a short time, but after a session lasting from 9:30 a. m. until 6:30 p. m., the meeting adjourned, without arriving at any conclusion, so far as known, to meet today.

The protracted session indicates that the board is not satisfied with the provisions of the compromise measures, and unless some modifications are made its ratification is doubtful. The opening of union mills to non-union workmen is the point on which it is believed the board hesitates to accept, and the long distance telephone between New York and Pittsburg was worked frequently to get a modification of this clause. The workmen hold that this would give the mill-owners full opportunity of crushing the union without a strike, by finding excuses to discharge union men, and then fill their places with non-unionists.

Another rock of dissension is said to be the retention in their present jobs of the men who worked as "strike breakers" at the various mills during the strike. It is said that these men have been promised the protection of the manufacturers in case of a settlement, and that they will not concede their dismissal at the request of the organization. The workers, it is said, are willing to declare the mills now working non-union open mills, but strenuously object to having all the mills of the combine classified as open mills.

All is, however, conjecture, as it is impossible to get any definite statement from any of the parties interested concerning the day's conference.

When the board dispersed at 6:30 every member was waylaid by persistent newspaper men, seeking information, but every question was answered by the stereotyped phrase, "We can say nothing. There is absolutely nothing to give to the public at this time."

It is doubtful if the members of the general executive board of the Amalgamated association ever were more uncommunicative and reserved than during and after the meeting which occurred yesterday. The importance of the matter in hand, the fate of the strike and the welfare of thousands of members of the organization now idle, rested upon their decision.

At the close of the day's session the members of the board left one by one for their respective homes, until no one was left at headquarters but President Shaffer and Secretary Williams. They at first refused to give any information, but finally President Shaffer volunteered the statement that an adjournment had been taken until today. Further than this he would say nothing, and admitted that even the announcement of the adjournment was more than he should have said. Secretary Williams said matters were in such a condition that nothing could be made public.

Non-Union Men Besieged

Haverhill, Mass., July 31.—Again last night more than a score of armed workmen slept in the big shoe factory of Chick Bros., where they have now been for over a week, besieged by the union men. Chief Wade of the state police has been appealed to, but he has not come here or sent anyone to investigate the complaint that the big factory is being used as a lodging house and restaurant for the non-union workmen secured by the firm. The union men claim that this use of the factory is contrary to the state law. The firm, on the other hand, say they are acting within the law. While Secretary Edmunds says that the strike is still on, the members of the firm say that the places of all strikers have been filled, and that no more are wanted. In the meanwhile the non-union workers are living in the factory 24 hours a day and armed to protect themselves against molestation.

Strikers Lost Their Jobs

Steubenville, O., July 31.—A riotous rowd gathered about the Mingo Junction Steel company, and were dispersed by the police. The trouble was caused by 95 Slavish furnace men, who struck because they were refused an advance of 25 to 40 cents per day. Their places were filled by Italians.

Bullets For Strikers

San Francisco, July 31.—Two non-union teamsters fired into a body of strikers yesterday afternoon. One man was wounded, but not seriously. The shooters were arrested. They claim to have fired in self-defense.

Good Afternoon.

In Springfield the tax rate order comes before the City Council. We are thankful that it does not in Quincy.

The figures of Mr. C. W. Guy on the cost of a trip to the Pan-American exposition were timely, and were appreciated by many, who do not wish to go it blindly.

The Grocers seem to own the town; at least they have us completely at their mercy. We hope they will return safely tonight, that he may procure a juicy steak for breakfast. Its rather too quiet with the stores closed.

While the Daily Ledger favors 10 year instalments on all the larger loans made by the city, it should not be understood that we favor such a rapid increase in the city debt. We would like to see a reduction each year and we believe it is possible and would be good policy. The maturing debt this year amounts to $68,605.31, and p lans should have been by this Council to keep the new loans within that amount, especially if no new schoolhouse is to be built. At the pace at which this Council is going on the succeeding Councils will have to keep within limits, as the debt limit will probably be reached and new loans can then be made only as fast as old loans are paid.

Ten-year instalments do not mean a high tax rate or an increased debt; on the contrary they mean a lower rate, as the maturing debt is smaller. It is the aggregate of the loans themselves that make the total debt, as the debt will not be decreased $1, whatever the payments, if the new loans are larger than the payments.

While the Mayor has taken a commendable stand in vetoing some of the appropriation orders (there is a difference between appropriation orders and loan orders), we observe that he is recommending many additional appropriations which tend to increase the debt. At the City Council this week His Honor recommended appropriations for crushed stone, for seven fire alarm boxes, for new combination wagon and for a deputy sealer, etc.

The appropriation for general repair of streets this year was supposed to include money to pay for crushed stone, or when required for special work it could be charged up against the special appropriation. If, as the Commissioner says, it can be bought cheaper than it can be manufactured, the Commissioner would have a balance if he paid $1,000 for stone which would cost him $1,200 to $1,500 to crush. Why not authorize the Commissioner to expend such sums from his street appropriations for crushed stone as he and the Mayor shall deem expedient.

The increase in appropriations for the Fire Department seem to be out of proportion to the increase in valuation of the city. This year two hook and ladder trucks with horses and men have been added, and also a relief steamer, new hose, etc. Better fire protection at Houghs Neck and more fire alarm boxes are advisable but should a special loan be negotiated?

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It never seems to have occurred to some people that the real end seat hog in an electric car is the one who wants the sitter to give up his seat, and is mad because the first comer will not surrender what he has paid for. —Milford Journal.

☞ That a "poor man's justice" is not stranger to the courts of Massachusetts has again been demonstrated in Boston where Frank Thomas, the Post Office square bootblack who was summarily dispossessed by a real estate owner who wanted his room for new building operations and would not settle fairly for his lease, has recovered $1200 for the injustice done him. The case was settled out of court, but the fact that the court gave evidence of determining to full extent the just deserts of the bootblack undoubtedly influenced the settlement. —Haverhill Gazette.

☞ It was not many years ago that Dr. Bowditch, a very eminent medical authority in Massachusetts, determined as a result of careful experiments that consumption was materially caused and accelerated by damp and marshy conditions. If we mistake not the mortality rate was considerably lowered by carrying out his suggestions in those regards. Today science not only declares a far different theory, but insists that streets shall be drenched and the very conditions he found fatal shall be repeated. Now, will science and experiment kindly settle on some tenable and mutual ground.—Waltham Free Press.

☞ We can now entertain the confidence that the promises of America are no longer promises, but tangible deeds, evidencing their good intentions, which in an evil hour we had doubted. We have seen, in fact, that the Filipino people were granted freedom and authority to freely discuss and seek their highest degree of happiness, so that in no far distant day we may enjoy the same progress as our protecting nation. These are the blessings of peace which one day departed from our Filipino land. Blessed be peace! Under it we shall carve out our happiness without fear that our protecting America will interfere with our legitimate aspirations. We need no proofs of these truths; we have witnessed the session for the establishment of civil government, and we have there been able to appreciate the indisputable good intention granted all those present the right to be heard with entire freedom. May the people of the United States be our protectors forever!—La Paz, of Nueva Carcares, Philippine Islands.

Men in Minority.

Census returns of 1900 just issued, show Massachusetts, with a total population of 2,805,346, to have 70,398 more females than males within her borders. The exact number of each sex is 1,367,474 males and 1,437,872 females. Divided according to nativity there were 1,959,022 native born and 846,324 foreign born residents in the state when the census was taken.

The total of whites was 2,769,764, of whom 1,929,650 were natives and 840,114 foreigners. Of the native whites, 1,032,264 were born of native parents and 897,386 of foreign parents.

A division of the native-born population shows that 958,857 were males and 1,000,156 were females. Of the foreign born, 408,617 were males and 437,707 females.

Horse Killed.

John Q. A. Field lost another horse last night by the electric cars. It was nearly midnight and bright moonlight when a five-horse hitch returning from out of town reached his residence. As the team was crossing the street railway tracks to enter his yard, a Brockton car dashed into the team. The driver, Napoleon Decelle, was severely injured, and one valuable horse had a leg broken, so that it was necessary to have him killed. This is the second horse Mr. Field has lost by the cars within a few weeks.

Defective Chimney.

The alarm from Box 72 at 6.45 this morning called the department to a lively blaze in a house on Curtis avenue owned by W. F. Steadman and occupied by John McKenstre. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a defect in the chimney. It was confined wholly to the bath room, which was badly gutted. The loss will be upwards of $400.

—Rev. Louis B. Voorhees who died in Niantic, Conn., July 26, was buried in the Old North cemetery at North Weymouth, today.

TENTH DISTRICT.

Quincy Will Be Stronger in 1902 Republican Convention.

Although the city of Quincy will have less delegates at the Republican conventions this year than last year, because of the new apportionment which drops the one at large for each of the six wards, it will be more of a power in the Republican Congressional convention next year than last year because the total number of delegates to the convention will be 91 instead of 108. Quincy will have 17 delegates on the basis of the vote for Governor in 1900 and 46 votes will be necessary to nominate a candidate. Wards 20 and 24 however, will have 41 and with Milton or most any ward of Boston would control the convention if united.

The following summary shows the representation of the new district in 1900 and on the vote of 1900:

| | | 1902 | 1900 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Boston, | Ward 13 | 3 | 3 |
| | Ward 14 | 9 | 8 |
| | Ward 15 | 6 | 6 |
| | Ward 16 | 11 | 9 |
| | Ward 17 | 8 | 7 |
| | Ward 20 | 23 | 15 |
| | Ward 24 | 18 | 13 |
| City of Quincy, | | 17 | 21 |
| Town of Milton, | | 6 | 6 |
| | | 91 | 108* |

* Other Boston Wards were included in 1900 to make the total 108.

Visiting Quincy.

Mr. Paul Adams of Evanston, Ill., is visiting his native town and vicinity. Some six years, since the death of his father the late Bryant N. Adams he has been living in the West, and only returns now for a few weeks' visit. He appears in good health and spirits, and says he likes very well in Illinois, but still thinks there is no better place than old New England. He says he notices marked changes and improvement in Quincy during his absence.

—The Steamer Martinique of the Bay State line for Provincetown leaves Boston on and after tomorrow at 9.45, instead of 10 o'clock as has been the custom. # GROCERS' OUTING.

Off to Enjoy Rhode Island Clambake.

All Old Colony Grocers Included.

Uneedas, Tonics, Etc., Contributed by Wholesalers.

Quincy furnished fully 150 at the annual outing today of the Grocers at Crescent Park, Rhode Island. The special train which took the party down, consisted of nine cars. It arrived at Quincy at 7.40 A. M., and eight minutes later pulled out of the depot.

There were many ladies in the party, as well as men, and the men were not confined to grocery and provision dealers, for in the party were men of all callings.

GEORGE H. WILSON
President Quincy Association.

John W. Nash and George H. Wilson were kept busy supplying tickets and distributing orange colored badges which were held in place by a green pin shaped like a pickle. The wording on the badge was appropriate to the occasion with the exception of the figures 57 on the bottom. Some outsiders thought that meant there were 57 varieties of grocers, while others were unkind enough to remark, while pointing to some particular person, that he had 57 just like him, and that they each had 57 different prices for the same kind of goods. The wise man of the party set all minds at rest by declaring that the badges were furnished by a firm who put up preserves, and that they put up 57 different kinds. The wise man also added that he guessed some of the party would put down 57 varieties before the day was out.

In the baggage car was a quantity of non alcoholic drinks and 600 boxes of crackers which were furnished by the U-need-a biscuit firm. These will serve to give the party an appetite on their way down.

Some of the gentlemen also had mysterious looking packages in their arms which the wise man explained by saying they were base ball suits. One fat gentleman was observed slyly slipping a parcel done up in a heavy piece of brown paper, into his vest pocket. The writer thought it a piece of B L, but the wise man said no, it was his bathing suit, and that he was to do the high dive act before the day was over.

JOHN W. NASH
National Delegate.

The wise man also remarked that he was sorry he did not bring his gun along, but it was just his luck to run up against funny things when he did not have his gun. Whether he referred to the fat man with the bathing suit, or the only Bowditch, was left for the writer to find out.

Of course all the ladies in the party looked pretty. They always do. For the most part they were gowned in becoming suits of white; suits is the proper word, suits that fitted the hot day as well as the dainty waists. Immaculate white they were, but as the mercury in the thermometer at Crescent park always goes several degrees higher than anywhere else, the stiffness will probably be taken out of those suits before the day is out, and Johnny Chinaman will have a job tomorrow.

The conductor said, all aboard, and John Nash standing on the lower step of a car shouted, hurry up George, to his colleague Wilson who stood on the platform making sure that no one was left. He got aboard all right, as did also Bowditch who wore his new summer suit and golf cap.

As the train pulled slowly out of the depot, Mr. Public Market, accompanied by Mrs. Public Market, and her parasol were seen hurrying up the depot yard. A close third was George Langley. George saw it was no use, and he disappeared into Carlson's store. Kind friends on the train shouted to Mr. and Mrs. Public Market, "Come on," "You can get it all right." Had he been alone his long lower extremities would have served to land him on the train all right but Mrs. Public Market wisely refrained from trying to board a moving train and the ninth car of the train disappeared around the bend leaving them on the depot platform to cool off and proceed by a later and quicker train, and the chances are that when the special pulled into Crescent Park, the excusionists found Mr. and Mrs. Public Market at the station to welcome them.

About 100 took the train from Quincy and half as many were from Quincy Adams.

SPECIAL TO DAILY LEDGER.

A dispatch from Crescent Park this noon to the Snake editor says: Our party arrived all right at 10.30. Immediately after arriving the men paired off with the ladies for a stroll about the park. Unfortunately there were not ladies enough to go around and some of those who did not bring any with them did the next best thing, went alone or with some other unfortunate.

Quantities of tonics are being consumed as the weather is something fearful for heat. Not a few of the meat carvers have been heard to express a wish for a case of ice and something containing more food properties than tonic.

Along about noon, the crowd was seen wending its way toward the beach. Word was passed around that one of our fat men was to do the high dive act. Sure enough there he was arrayed in his gaudy suit. He reminded us somewhat of one of those signs seen in front of a cigar store.

He stood erect, with head thrown back and chest thrown forward assuming somewhat the pose of a gladiator. His fat pink white calves shown brightly in the sunshine. My, but wasn't he a picture in his almost dishabille dress. Of course some of the ladies were shocked, or at least they said they were.

All were anxiously awaiting development. Then an argument started. He declared there was a sea serpent ever so long, waiting for him. Those standing about assured him he was mistaken, that it was only the effervescence of the tonic he had drunk working off.

At last he mounted the ladder and waiving his arms, as the circus "fellers" do, he jumped and landed with a splash that sent a minature waterfall over the crowd and soiled the ladies' dresses.

All looked for him to arise and swim ashore but he did not. When the commotion had subsided, it was found he had stuck in the mud and was rapidly filling up with water, plain every day water. Willing hands rescued him and upon being rolled on a barrel he gave forth a mixture of crackers and cheese, tonic and other stuff too numerous to mention. As I am about to file this, he is recovering, and says he will be able to eat dinner all right. Everybody else is well and happy.

Runover.

An Italian employed at the quarry of Jefferson Thayer at Quincy Neck, this morning, while leading out a loaded team, fell and was runover by a wheel. He was attended by Dr. Welch and Dr. Padula, who found one leg broken, and ordered his removal to the Quincy Hospital.

Marblehead Race.

There were a large number of entries in the open regatta of the Burgess club off Marblehead on Tuesday. The winners were the Flirt, Opitsah III, Sintram, Vitesse, Sally IV, Circe II and Ugly Duckling.

TODAY'S COURT.

Michael Carroll was fined $5 for assault on Lewis W. Key at Weymouth.

Niles Lindquist, Anton Olsen, Joseph Leedin were arraigned for the violation of the fish and game law. Cases continued until Thursday.

The continued case of T. J. Billings for larceny of jacks and tools from C. B. Gardner at Quincy, valued at $25 was heard. He was found not guilty and discharged.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by all druggists.

—Thursday, Aug. 15, will be the big day at Portland, Me., during Old Home week.

RICH PEARL FISHERIES.

Facts About a Product of the Philippines.

AN ENGLISH EXPERT'S VIEWS.

Sulu Archipelago, According to Mr. Streeter, Produces Some of the Finest Jewels in the World—British Had a Monopoly—Value of Some Pearls.

The "Gazetteer of the Philippine Islands," in course of compilation in the division of insular affairs, war department, contains an account from official and other sources of the pearl and shell fisheries of the Sulu archipelago and their relations to that industry and product in general, with charts of the shell and pearl "grounds" of Sulu and Palawan, says a Washington dispatch. The story contains in a nutshell the economic and commercial value and exploitative possibilities of this sea product within United States jurisdiction.

The value of this product at Sulu alone since January, 1900, according to custom house returns, was 222,814 pounds of mother of pearl shells, valued at $75,712; black shells, 1,114 pounds, valued at $440, and snail shells, 17,707 pounds, valued at $5,609; total, $81,761. The same amount was exported approximately from the port of Sasi in the Tapul group, which would make an aggregate of 483,242 pounds, valued at $143,522, from the two Sulu points alone. This does not include the value of the pearls taken from the mother of pearl shell, the finest of which at present go to the sultan of Sulu as royalty.

The present Philippine Pearling and Trading company, with headquarters at Manila, is owned chiefly by the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, the Hongkong and Shanghai bank and Holiday, Wise & Co. of Manila. It has also small shareholders all over the world.

An agreement between the sultan and this English company gives the latter exclusive right to fish, which the United States authority at the Sulu capital had naturally refused to recognize, it being officially recommended that it is not for the best interests of the archipelago, the sultan or commercially that this foreign company should exercise this right within American jurisdiction.

Before the signing of the protocol of 1885 the sultan was paid by foreigners for the privilege of fishing. The sultan never recognized the protocol, and fishing therefore was done under Spanish guns unless foreigners came to terms.

Mr. Streeter, the best English expert, after years of experience with a station at Liminusa, near Siassi, says that the Sulu archipelago produces the finest round pearls in the world. The Sulu waters also produce the finest type of what is known as the Meleagrina margaritifera, the very best of the pearl bearing mollusks.

The monopoly of the shell and pearl product of the immediate waters of Sulu, the capital of the archipelago, is held by a Chinese headman, who operates a fleet of six boats of ten tons each and crews of seven men and a captain each. A cruise lasts three weeks, each boat procuring from 1,500 to 2,500 pounds of shells in that time. The fleet is in charge of a supercargo, who, among other duties, looks after the pearls found.

The American shells are sent to Singapore instead of Manila in baskets, where they bring 55 pesos ($55 Spanish) per picul (133 1-3 pounds). The pearls are also marketed there, some having been found of the estimated value of 10,000 pesos. Soon after the American occupation of Sulu a representative of a New York house located at Sulu for the purchase and shipment of pearls and shells direct to that city.

The value of pearls in their natural state or split imported into the United States for home consumption was in 1899 $1,802,851, in 1900 $4,595,910, for nine months ending March 31 $1,086,480, ranking next in value to diamonds, which, besides their value for ornaments, are used in the arts, an economic use which pearls do not possess.

WU FRIEND OF THE JEWS.

Says There Is a Bond of Amity Between Them and Chinese.

The Jewish Chautauqua society, holding summer sessions at Atlantic City, had Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister, address them the other afternoon on the steel pier, says the New York Times. About 5,000 persons were present. Simon Wolf of Washington presided, and Adolph Berkowitz of New York made introductory remarks.

Minister Wu said he was glad to be among his friends and that there is a bond of friendship between the Chinese and the Jews because both are persecuted. He referred to the difference in religion and then spoke of the clergyman in Philadelphia who said he was a hypocrite. The clergyman, he declared, had slandered him in a manner that showed he didn't practice what he preached, adding:

"I am a heathen, and there are lots of Jews and Christians who are heathens, but I would not think of saying about any man what this minister said of me."

He was enthusiastically applauded, and after his lecture a reception was given in his honor.

Exposition For Life Saving Service.

Consul General Guenther reports from Frankfort that an exposition for accident, sanitary and life saving service is to be held at Frankfort Oct. 5 to 21. The exposition is to be exclusively scientific. Visits of workingmen will be arranged, as the chief aim will be to benefit those engaged in industrial pursuits.

The Celebrated "Leaf Ant."

One of the oddest little creatures in all animal nature is the "leaf ant" of Central America. Although different species of this oddity are known to inhabit the American continent from Brazil to Mexico, the real home of the true leaf ant is in Nicaragua. To all outward appearances this little insect is a common ant, but one of gigantic size, it must be admitted, when compared with the ants of our temperate regions, being on an average over an inch in length. The habit for which these ants are so celebrated, and one which we could hardly believe were it not for the testimony of reputable naturalists, is that of carrying a leaf for a sunshade, just as our women and men carry parasols and umbrellas for the same purpose.

When at work, the leaf carrying ants look like a little army in which each individual member is protected from the sun's rays by a little banner of green. Another remarkable fact in connection with the leaf carrier is that only those at work carry the little leafy protection. When a long file of burden bearers have deposited their budgets, they discard their parasols and return for a load without the leaf which made them such conspicuous objects when on the "up trip."

Millet and "The Angelus."

It was only after long years of struggle and dire poverty, through which Millet was consoled and supported by his wife, that the peasant painter was able to take the three roomed cottage at Barbizon and "try to do something really good." It was then that he began to paint that most beautiful "poem of poverty," the "Angelus," which is today one of the most valuable pictures in the world. Again and again he threw aside the picture in despair of ever finishing it to his satisfaction, and as often his wife replaced it on the easel and induced him to continue.

On one occasion he was so incensed at not being able to produce a certain effect that he seized a knife and would have destroyed the canvas and ended the matter once for all had not his wife fortunately seized his hand and induced him to give the picture another trial. Thus it was that at last the "Angelus" found a place on the walls of the Louvre. The success it won encouraged Millet to paint many more pictures and thus place himself among the immortals in art.

Abraham Lincoln.

This Lincoln of the black loam, who built his neighbor's cabin and hoed his neighbor's corn, who had been storekeeper and postman and flatboatman, who had followed a rough justice round a rough circuit, who had rolled a local bully in the dirt, rescued women from insult, tended the bedside of many a sick coward who feared the judgment, told coarse stories on barrels by candlelight (but these are pure beside the vice of great cities), who addressed political mobs in the raw, swooping down from the stump and flinging embroilers east and west—the physician who was one day to tend the sickbed of the nation in her agony, whose large hand was to be on her feeble pulse and whose knowledge, almost divine, was to perform the miracle of her healing.—Winston Churchill's "The Crisis."

A Chinese Joke.

There was a man in Ch'ang-an who was very fond of giving dinners, but the food given was atrocious. One day a guest threw himself on his knees in front of this gentleman and said, "Am I not a friend of yours?"

"You are, indeed," replied his host.

"Then I must ask of you a favor," said the guest, "and you must grant it before I rise from my knees."

"Well, what is it?" inquired his host in astonishment.

"Never to invite me to dinner any more," cried the guest, at which the whole party burst into a loud roar of laughter.—North China Herald.

Oddest Parasite In Creation.

Do readers know that the royal Bengal tiger is infested with one of the strangest creatures that ever lived? It is said to be a fact easily demonstrated or proved by one who has access to a zoological collection that the web of the foot of tigers of the above named species is inhabited by a blood sucking insect about the size of a common flea which is a perfect counterpart of a tiger in every particular, shape, claws, tail and stripes included.

Eternal Lamps.

A common superstition that the ancients possessed the art of making lamps which would burn forever for a long time obtained, and it was claimed that one such lamp was discovered in the tomb of Rosicrucius. Science, however, has long set this, together with other superstitions, forever at rest, since it has been demonstrated that fire will not burn in a chamber from which the air has been exhausted.

A Laugh Saved a Life.

The Rev. George Harvest, rector of Thames Ditton, England, was very absentminded, so that on one occasion he went into a friend's house, and, seeing no servant, he rambled over it, finally entering the room of an old lady ill of a quinzy. He stumbled over a clothes-horse, and his awkwardness made the patient burst into such a fit of laughter that the quinzy broke, and she lived many years to thank him.

Tunnels.

A New York newspaper remarks that "ferries came and ferries go, bridges rise and bridges fall, but tunnels last forever." There is a scientific truth in the observation. Of all works of man earthworks, plain earth mounds sodded over, are about the most enduring. A properly constructed tunnel is essentially a work in earth and so almost as permanent as the great globe itself.

COAL FROM MERRIMAC

Schley's Ships Said to Have Been Plentifully Supplied

HAD ENOUGH FOR BLOCKADE

For Much Longer Period Than Was the Intention—Kimberly Asks to Be Excused From Serving on Court of Inquiry—Congress May Yet Act

Washington, July 31.– Secretary Long spoke a trifle too late to head off all discussion by naval officers of the Schley controversy. One who has made a careful study of the executive document, published by the senate in February, 1899, and containing the correspondence of the officers engaged in the operations which directly preceded the destruction of Cervera's fleet, noted the peculiar wording of one of the paragraphs in the precept to the court of inquiry:

"6—The conditions of the coal supply of the flying squadron on and about May 27, 1898; its coaling facilities; the necessity, if any, for, or advisability of, the return of the squadron to Key West to coal; and the accuracy and propriety of the official reports made by Commodore Schley with respect to this matter."

"The accuracy and propriety" is a phrase which at once sent this officer to the record to see what Schley had reported, and how his reports compared with those of the other officers concerned. He found in brief that when Schley insisted on going back to Key West to coal, the records show that his own ship had coal for 10 or 12 days' full steaming, of 40 to 48 of blockade work; the Iowa and Massachusetts, a little less; the Texas half as much as the Brooklyn; the Marblehead one-third as much, before she coaled from the Merrimac; the amount afterward indefinite, but, of course, much larger; and there were still more than 4000 tons left on the Merrimac.

A memorandum of these points was in the pocket of a visitor to Secretary Long, who inquired whether the secretary was willing to say a word now on the subject of the famous controversy in any of its phases.

"Not one," answered Mr. Long. "My order prohibiting discussion of that matter, for obvious reasons, did not include by name the secretary of the navy with the other officers of the naval establishment, but it means him just as much as the rest. You must excuse me."

A letter has been received at the navy department from Admiral Kimberley asking to be excused from serving on the Schley court of inquiry on account of the state of his health. The admiral is understood to be suffering from heart trouble. The application was placed in the hands of Secretary Long, who will dispose of the matter from his home in Hingham, Mass., for which he departed yesterday.

Senator Tillman, who was here a few hours, thus expressed himself in regard to the controversy: "If they deny justice to Schley in order to save themselves, congress will take up the matter. I believe public sentiment would be so excited if anything but complete justice was done that congress could not fail to act."

When the navy department closed at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Admiral Crowninshield, acting secretary of the navy, said he had not seen the letter which Admiral Schley wrote to the secretary of the navy, acknowledging the receipt of the court of inquiry precept and making certain suggestions in reference thereto.

Captain James Parker, the ex-naval officer, who is acting as assistant counsel in the case of Admiral Schley, says that the letter was mailed to Secretary Long at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Captain Parker says that he himself deposited the letter in a box at the general postoffice. In the ordinary course of the mails the letter should have reached Secretary Long Monday morning. The supposition at the department is that if Secretary Long received the letter he took it with him on his departure from Washington, without making its contents known to the officials of the department. It is certain that the letter of Admiral Schley comments upon the fifth specification of the precept, and, it is believed, makes certain suggestions regarding it. Mr. Parker will remain here several days to complete his examination of the official papers bearing upon matters which will come before the court.

Carrie Wanted Fine Remitted

Topeka, July 31.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, who was serving a sentence in the county jail for "joint smashing," was yesterday pardoned by Governor Stanley. She would not at first accept the pardon because the fine and costs were not remitted, but afterwards decided to do so. The county commissioners will allow her to pay the fine and costs, amounting to $150, in instalments of $5 a month.

Homeseekers In a Smashup

Kremlin, O. T., July 31.—A passenger train which left El Reno crowded with departing homeseekers was wrecked yesterday afternoon, two miles south of here. One man was killed and 24 other passengers received cuts and bruises. A broken rail in a culvert, washed out by heavy rains, caused the accident.

Six Arrests For Double Murder

Roanoke, Va., July 31.—John Tolly and Charles Berry, cousins, were shot from ambush and killed on a roadway yesterday. Six people were arrested. All concerned are white. A quarrel over a woman is believed to have led up to the killing.

TWO ENGAGEMENTS

British Had to Hustle In One, but Made Captures In the Other

Durban, Natal, July 31.—An all-day fight between a British column and a Boer commando occurred near Nquta on July 28, in which the British narrowly escaped the loss of a gun of the Sixty-seventh field artillery. Four hundred Boers repeatedly rushed the British position, killing Major Edwards and Gunner Carpenter. The gun was limbered up and taken at a gallop for three miles, under heavy fire. Five British were killed.

Kitchener Reports a Success

London, July 31.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener: "General F. W. Kitchener, after a long chase of Ben Viljoen's commando, caught up with it. A sharp fight ensued. We captured a pom-pom and 22 wagons, and took 32 prisoners. The British had five wounded."

Watchman Saved Train

Walkertown, Ind., July 31.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to wreck the Baltimore and Ohio express train from Chicago to Baltimore last night. Two masked men were discovered obstructing the track 3 1-2 miles east of here by a track watchman. Before he had time to realize what was being done one of the men knocked him down an embankment. He soon recovered and, after a hard struggle with the desperadoes, he got away from them, hurried back toward Walkertown and signalled the rapidly approaching train in time to save it.

Ban Johnson on the Warpath

Chicago, July 31.—President Ban Johnson's reply to the reports from New York to the effect that the American league was "ready to give up the ghost," was the unqualified announcement that the American league purposes to invade St. Louis not later than next spring. When asked if it would not be a doubtful proposition to locate a rival club in the Mound city at a time when there is so much enthusiasm over the National league club, President Johnson made the remark: "There will be no other club when we go there."

Slashed a German Officer

Duluth, July 31.—Information was received in Duluth yesterday that Adolph Hartman of this city has just fought a duel with swords with Lieutenant Pachmann of the German army. It was a bloody encounter in which the lieutenant received a number of severe wounds, one of which severed the jugular vein. Hartman was also seriously wounded. Both will recover. Hartman graduated from the Duluth high school in 1899, and went to Germany to take a course in mining engineering.

Swapping Compliments

Paris, July 31.—Telegrams from Algiers report that Count Von Waldersee and his staff, on landing there to pay their respects to the military and naval authorities, reviewed and warmly praised a company of French soldiers who formed the guard of honor. The French non-commissioned officers then showed the German officers the sights of the town, and afterward went on board the German steamer Gera and had dinner. The Paris papers express surprise at these occurrences.

Brave Private Honored

Chicago, July 31.—Private James Bell, who, with two companions, succeeded during the troubles with the Sioux Indians in 1876, in carrying an important message from General Terry to General Crook a long distance through a country full of Sioux braves, and who was voted a medal by congress, was given a military funeral yesterday at Fort Sheridan. This unusual honor to an ex-private was given on orders from Lieutenant General Miles.

Prices Have Doubled

Chicago, July 31.—Though the drouth has been broken, says The Post, the woeful effect of the agricultural situation is now being brought home to Chicago, and to other cities as well. Prices of vegetables average double what they were a year ago, and to make both ends meet boarding house keepers and restaurants have been compelled either to raise their prices of to curtail the quantity served.

Aground For Third Time

St. John's, July 31.—The British armed sloop Buzzard, yesterday, while crossing Green bay in a fog, struck a rock in 10 feet of water and became badly damaged. She will be docked for repairs. This is the third occasion when the Buzzard has gone aground during her commission on this coast. She was also badly damaged by ice two years ago. An official inquiry will be held.

Wants Share of Stewart Millions

New York, July 31.—John Stewart, who avers he is a second cousin of the late Alexander T. Stewart, has now come forward to join the long list of claimants to the Stewart estate, and has commenced a suit in the supreme court for the recovery of certain valuable property, to which he says he is entitled as heir to Mr. Stewart.

Mrs. Kennedy Out of Prison

Kansas City, July 31.—Lulu P. Kennedy, under sentence of 10 years for killing her husband, Philip H. Kennedy, on Jan. 10 last, was yesterday released in bond of $10,000, pending an appeal on her case to the state supreme court.

SOCIALIST CONVENTION

Makes an Effort Toward Harmony and Draws Up a Platform

Indianapolis, July 31.—The National Socialists' convention made an effort yesterday to harmonize and was partially successful. After a conference between Mr. Brooks, leader of the Chicago faction, and Job Harriman, leader of the Springfield faction, a message was sent to Eugene V. Debs declaring the convention to be harmonious. Mr. Debs, when asked at his home in Terre Haute last night for an expression concerning the action of the convention toward him, said: "The term 'shelved' has little or no significance with me. They may shelve me if they like. I have no personal desire to be called a leader. The convention in Indianapolis is not a representative body of Socialists, as the Springfield faction is largely in the majority and in a position to dictate."

The platform as reported declares that private ownership of the tools of production and distribution is responsible for the ever-increasing uncertainty of livelihood, and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalist and wage worker. It advocates as "immediate demands" public ownership of all means of transportation, communication and all other public utilities, as well as all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts and combinations; reduction of the hours of labor; state or do oAvfpul.noe:-st Schleyiontsi national insurance for working people; the inauguration of a system of public works and improvements for the employment of unemployed, the public credit to be utilized for the purpose; the education of all children up to the age of 18 years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing and food; of equal civil and political rights for men and women; the initiative and referendum, and no more public land to be sold.

The platform was discussed at length in the afternoon and night sessions.

Bryan and the Presidency

Chillicothe, Mo., July 31.—William J. Bryan was asked yesterday if he would be a candidate for the presidential nomination again in 1904. Mr. Bryan said: "I have said repeatedly that I am a candidate for no office. However, I would not enter into a bond never to become a candidate. It would be foolish in any man to announce his candidacy for such an office at such a time, and it strikes me as a foolish question to be continually put to me by the newspaper men."
